SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS

1. INTRODUCTION

(1) SCOPE OF TITLE

(i) In general

1. Private maritime law and the public international law of the sea.

This title sets out the law of England and Wales relating to shipping and maritime matters as applied by the Admiralty Court within its jurisdiction¹, being the relevant private maritime law that applies where the public international law of the sea does not². This title is not concerned with military uses of the sea³ (nor with the related issue of prize⁴) but with peaceful uses of the sea, which include the domestic jurisdiction over merchant shipping⁵ and matters of navigation (including safety and security at sea and the avoidance of collisions)⁶. Hovercraft are also discussed⁷. Although maritime lien⁸ and marine salvage⁹ are described in this title, marine insurance and carriage by sea generally are not¹⁰; nor are matters such as the exploitation of the sea and its resources¹¹, the exploitation of the continental shelf¹² or related matters consequent on man's use of the sea¹³. These subjects are covered elsewhere in the work¹⁴.

1 Ie the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court assigned to the Admiralty Court, which includes jurisdiction to hear and determine questions and claims as to the possession, ownership or mortgage of a ship, damage done or received by a ship, salvage, towage, pilotage, supply of goods or materials, wages, disbursements, bottomry and forfeiture or condemnation of a ship, and, with certain exceptions, the jurisdiction of the High Court under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 (as to which see PARA 16 et seq): see the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 6(1), 20-24; and PARA 85 et seq. Although the sources of the original maritime law were largely non-statutory, the inherent jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court, and the law that it applies, is now governed largely by statute: see PARA 79 et seq.

2 Because the scope of this title is limited to the municipal law of the United Kingdom, the rules that govern international relations between states in shipping and maritime matters are dealt with elsewhere in this work. Specifically, in relation to the rules that are used to govern the legal status of waters, rights of passage and protection, and criminal and civil jurisdiction, see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 121 et seq. This is not to say that the law which is within the cognisance of the Admiralty Court lacks an international aspect, as this is inherent in the subject matter, and is manifest eg in relation to its dealings with non-British ships and with injurious acts committed within its jurisdiction: see PARA 3 et seq. Of course, the United Kingdom is governed also by any international treaties which it has ratified and by the legislation of the European Union: see PARA 8 et seq.

The law relating to landward waters, ie inland waters and the inland waterways, is also dealt with elsewhere in this work: see WATER AND WATERWAYS. As to the extent of the territorial and non-territorial sea, the baselines used for delimitation, and associated rights see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 121 et seq. As to the sovereignty of airspace which is superjacent to the sea see AIR LAW.

3 See ARMED FORCES and WAR AND ARMED CONFLICT. As to general maritime issues relating to war and neutrality, however, see PARAS 4-7, 1230.

4 As to which see PRIZE.

5 le that which is to be found within the relevant parts of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 and other statutes such as the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995: see PARA 16 et seq. As to the provisions governing vessels which come within the jurisdiction of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 229 et seq; and as to the crew and crewing requirements under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 423 et seq. As to offences and legal proceedings arising from the application of these statutes see PARA 1099 et seq.

6 As to pilotage and towage see PARA 562 et seq; as to safety and security at sea see PARA 591 et seq; and as to the avoidance of collisions see PARA 715 et seq. As to accident investigations and inquiries see PARA 844 et seq. As to lighthouse authorities see PARA 1068 et seq.

7 See PARA 381 et seq.

9 See PARA 876 et seq.

10 As to marine insurance see INSURANCE vol 25 (2003 Reissue) PARA 215 et seq; and as to carriage by sea see CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS. As the limitation of liability in maritime claims, however, see PARA 1042 et seq.

11 As to eg fishing see AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES. As to marine scientific research see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 194.

(ii) English Private Maritime Law

2. English maritime law.

Maritime law¹ is not the ordinary municipal law of England and Wales, but is the law which either is binding on the Admiralty Court by statute or has been adopted by the court by decision, tradition and principle². It comprises both the inherent jurisdiction of the former High Court of Admiralty³, the extent of which jurisdiction is to be deduced from practice or judgments⁴, and law derived from statute⁵. Statute law has now superseded to a considerable extent the original maritime law; and the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court is largely governed by statute⁶.

1 In relation eg to navigation on the high seas beyond the territorial limits of the United Kingdom maritime law was said to be 'those rules of navigation which usually prevail among nations navigating the seas where the collision takes place': The Zollverein (1856) Sw 96 at 99 per Dr Lushington. It was this law which was applied by the English Admiralty Court in cases of collision on the high seas, not the law of the ship's flag: see eg Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London and China v Netherlands India Steam Navigation Co Ltd (1883) 10 QBD 521 at 545, 5 Asp MLC 65 at 71, CA, per Lindley LJ. The statement as to the nature of maritime law made in The Zollverein was made in reference to the law apart from statute, in particular apart from the effect of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act 1862 s 25 (repealed), which established collision regulations, and s 54 (repealed), which rendered the provisions for limitation of liability applicable to foreign ships. As to the provisions now in force relating to the prevention of collisions see PARA 715 et seq; and as to the provisions now in force relating to the limitation of liability in maritime claims see PARA 1042 et seq. The Admiralty Court applied the general rule of the sea to a ship belonging to the Crown to which the merchant shipping legislation did not apply: see HMS Topaze (1864) 10 LT 659 at 661; HMS Supply (1865) 12 LT 799.

The maritime law so adopted has been referred to as part of the common law: see eg Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London and China v Netherlands India Steam Navigation Co Ltd (1883) 10 QBD 521 at 537, 5 Asp MLC 65 at 68, CA, per Lord Esher MR.

3 As to the origin and exercise of the jurisdiction of Admiralty courts see PARA 79 et seq. The inherent jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court is derived from that of the High Court of Admiralty, as extended by the Admiralty Court Act 1840, the Admiralty Court Act 1854 and the Admiralty Court Act 1861 (all now repealed). The principal subjects of jurisdiction left with the Admiralty Court after its conflict with the common law courts were injurious acts committed on the high seas, suits of salvage, suits of possession, cases of hypothecation (since the contract of hypothecation was not recognised by the common law), and cases concerning seamen's wages: see PARA 80.

2 English maritime law

NOTE 6--Supreme Court Act 1981 now cited as Senior Courts Act 1981: Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1 (in force 1 October 2009: SI 2009/1604).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/1. INTRODUCTION/(1) SCOPE OF TITLE/(ii) English Private Maritime Law/3. Extended scope of English jurisdiction.

3. Extended scope of English jurisdiction.

Maritime law is principally within the cognisance of the Admiralty Court¹ and necessarily has international aspects². The jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court has long extended to foreign ships on the high seas³, except ships of a foreign sovereign state used for public purposes⁴, and to injurious acts committed on the high seas⁵.

The rules on jurisdiction which apply in relation to tort can no longer draw a sharp distinction between torts which took place in England and torts which took place outside. The English court has jurisdiction in respect of torts, whether English or foreign, whenever it has jurisdiction in personam over the defendant⁶.

1 As to Admiralty jurisdiction and Admiralty courts see PARA 79 et seq. The civil Admiralty jurisdiction of the former High Court of Admiralty is vested in the High Court: see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 601 et seq. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court is now governed principally by the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20-24: see PARA 85 et seq.

Although the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 14 (offences relating to a ship's British connection) (see PARA 1116) applies to things done outside, as well as to things done within, the United Kingdom, criminal jurisdiction over eg crimes committed in whole or in part in a British ship is not within the scope of this title, but is considered elsewhere. It arose out of Admiralty jurisdiction but, if the trial is in England or Wales, would be exercised as part of the general criminal jurisdiction: see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(3) (2006 Reissue) PARA 1059 et seq. Foreigners in a British ship are subject to English criminal jurisdiction: see R v Keyn (1876) 2 Ex D 63 at 161 per Cockburn CJ; and CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(3) (2006 Reissue) PARA 1057. Similarly, carriage by sea and the principles of English law relating to the sale of goods are not within the scope of this title, even where the goods are to be carried in ships. As to the law relating to charterparties, bills of lading and the carriage of goods by sea see CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS; and as to the general law concerning contracts for the sale of goods see SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 27 et seq. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

2 See eg The Charkieh (1873) LR 4 A & E 120 at 122, where Sir R Phillimore said, in relation to the Admiralty Court, that the court administers private international law and has jurisdiction notwithstanding that the parties are foreigners. English maritime law, apart from statute, should be distinguished from the international law administered, subject to statute, in regard to prize: see PRIZE vol 36(2) (Reissue) PARA 801 et seq. The instance court of Admiralty was a municipal court, different from a court of Admiralty acting under prize commission: see The Wild Ranger (1862) 32 LJPM & A 49 at 56 per Dr Lushington. The term 'instance court' signified the civil court as distinct from the prize court. The records of the instance court were kept distinct from those of the prize court in and after the latter half of the seventeenth century.

3 See eg The Mali Ivo (1869) LR 2 A & E 356 (collision); Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London and China v Netherlands, India Steam Navigation Co Ltd (1883) 10 QBD 521 at 537, 545, 5 Asp MLC 65 at 68, 71, CA; Mersey Docks and Harbour Board v Turner, The Zeta [1893] AC 468 at 482-486, 7 Asp MLC 369 at 373, 374, HL. As to maritime torts generally see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 372.

4 See The Parlement Belge (1880) 5 PD 197, 4 Asp MLC 234, CA (action in rem); The Annette, The Dora [1919] P 105. As to foreign sovereign immunity from process and its waiver see PARA 90 et seq.

5 The Tubantia [1924] P 78 at 86, 18 Ll L Rep 158 at 159 (trespass to the possession of a salvor). A distinction must be drawn between civil and criminal jurisdiction. (iii) Maritime Issues relating to War and Neutrality

4. Requisition of British ships.

In time of war or national emergency, the Crown has a prerogative right to requisition British ships in territorial waters¹. The requisition of ships and of anything on board ship² and the requisition of shipping space were effected during the 1939-45 war under defence regulations³; and compensation was payable in accordance with statute⁴, there being established a shipping claims tribunal for determining disputes as to the payment of compensation⁵.

6. Convoys.

In times of war, it has been the custom for cargo vessels to sail in convoy, to lessen the effect of enemy action¹. As a result, a master of a ship may be placed under a contractual duty to sail in convoy by a term of the contract of carriage², express or implied, to that effect³. In time of war, ships may become subject to orders of the Defence Council⁴, issued with legislative authority, in respect of their movements and navigation generally⁵; and these orders may enjoin obedience to routing instructions issued by the Defence Council or by a convoy commander⁶. It is the duty of the master or other person in command of a vessel comprised in a convoy, under the command of an officer of Her Majesty's naval forces or of any person appointed in that behalf with the authority of the Defence Council, to obey, in all matters relating to the navigation or security of the convoy, any directions which may be given:

- 6 (1) where the convoy is escorted by any of Her Majesty's ships or vessels, by the commanding officer of any such ship or vessel;
- 7 (2) in any case, by the officer or other person in command of the convoy, and to take such precautions for avoiding the enemy as may be required by any such directions⁷.

If any such directions are not obeyed, any such commanding officer, or the officer or other person in command of the convoy, may compel obedience by force of arms⁸. Further, if the master or other person having command of any ship of any of Her Majesty's subjects in convoy with any of Her Majesty's ships of war⁹ wilfully disobeys any lawful signal, instruction or command of the convoy commander or without leave deserts the convoy, he is liable on conviction to a fine of any amount or imprisonment for not more than one year¹⁰.

During the 1939-45 war the duty of obedience to convoy orders overrode contrary obligations under the regulations for preventing collisions at sea¹¹, and the master of a vessel was not, therefore, negligent in not complying with those regulations if he was executing convoy orders¹². Otherwise, masters of vessels remained bound by the duty of good seamanship and, so far as the circumstances permitted, the duty to take the action prescribed by those regulations to avoid collision¹³. Where the master of a vessel accepts and undertakes the duties of a convoy commander, the owners of his vessel are not liable for damage by consequent collision caused by an act of negligence on the part of the master in the course of performing his duties as convoy commander¹⁴.

5 During the 1939-45 war, the Admiralty had power to make navigation orders and a master of a vessel contravening or not complying with such an order was guilty of an offence: see the Defence (General) Regulations 1939, SR & O 1939/927, reg 43 (revoked).

The Armed Forces, Army, Air Force and Naval Discipline Acts (Continuation) Order 2008, SI 2008/1780, has been made under the Armed Forces Act 2006 s 382 and, accordingly, the Naval Discipline Act 1957 continues in force until 8 November 2009: see the Armed Forces, Army, Air Force and Naval Discipline Acts (Continuation) Order 2008, SI 2008/1780, art 2. However, such an Order may not provide for the continuation of the Naval Discipline Act 1957 beyond the end of the year 2011: see the Armed Forces Act 2006 s 382(4).

8. International Conventions.

Difficulties which might otherwise arise from differences between the law administered by the English Admiralty Court and the law administered by courts of foreign countries, either because of differences in rules of conduct on the high seas adopted in those courts or because of differing statute law, have been lessened or avoided by international Conventions.

Conventions relating to maritime law have been incorporated into English law in one of two ways: by statutory measures whose provisions have the effect of the Convention¹; or by statutory measures which embody the original text of the Convention itself, usually in a Schedule, with separate changes to be made under English law for the satisfactory operation of the Convention². The former method of incorporation may lead to difficulties or ambiguities in interpretation, whereas the latter method should not³.

Among the international Conventions are:

- 8 (1) the International Convention relating to the Arrest of Seagoing Ships 1952⁴;
- 9 (2) the International Convention on Load Lines 1966⁵;
- 10 (3) the International Convention on Tonnage Measurement of Ships 1969⁶;
- 11 (4) the Convention on the International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea (COLREGS) 1972⁷;
- 12 (5) the International Convention for Safe Containers ('CSC') 1972⁸;
- 13 (6) the International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea ('SOLAS') 1974⁹;
- 14 (7) the Convention on Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims 1976¹⁰;
- 15 (8) the Merchant Shipping (Minimum Standards) Convention 1976¹¹;
- 16 (9) the Convention on the International Maritime Satellite Organisation ('INMARSAT')¹²;
- 17 (10) the International Convention for the Safety of Fishing Vessels 1977¹³;
- 18 (11) the International Convention on Standards of Training, Certification and Watchkeeping for Seafarers ('STCW') 1978¹⁴;
- 19 (12) the International Convention on Maritime Search and Rescue 1979¹⁵;
- 20 (13) the Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Maritime Navigation 1988¹⁶;
- 21 (14) the International Convention on Salvage 1989¹⁷;
- 22 (15) the International Convention on the Removal of Wrecks ('ICRW') 2007¹⁸.

Conventions which govern related activities such as carriage by sea or marine pollution are discussed elsewhere in this work¹⁹.

A Convention for the Establishment of an Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organisation was signed by certain states at Geneva on 6 March 1948, and came into force on 17 March 1958 when acceptances had been deposited by the governments of the necessary number of states with the prescribed tonnage qualifications²⁰.

Relevant measures which bind the United Kingdom may arise also from membership of the European Union²¹.

1 See eg the Merchant Shipping (Load Line) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2241, which apply the provisions of the International Convention on Load Lines (London, 5 April to 4 July 1966; TS 58 (1968); Cmnd 3708) to all United Kingdom ships which go to sea (with certain exceptions) and to all sea-going foreign ships within United Kingdom waters (see head (2) in the text; and PARA 671 et seq).

2 See eg the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 224(1), (2), Sch 11 Pt I (salvage), which incorporates the International Convention on Salvage (London, 28 April 1989; Cm 1526) (see head (14) in the text; and PARA 891 et seq).

3 As to interpretation see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1426; and as to Conventions generally see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARAS 801, 802; and INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 95 et seq.

4 Ie the International Convention relating to the Arrest of Seagoing Ships 1952 (Brussels, 10 May 1952; Cmd 8954). The Administration of Justice Act 1956 (largely repealed) (see now the Supreme Court Act 1981 Pt II (ss 15-52)) gave effect in English law to the International Convention relating to the Arrest of Seagoing Ships 1952, although the Convention is not mentioned explicitly: see The Banco[1971] P 137, [1971] 1 All ER 524, [1971] 1 Lloyd's Rep 49, CA; and PARA 86. The International Convention relating to the Arrest of Seagoing Ships 1952 art 7(2) is implemented by the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982 s 26, which enables the court to retain an arrested ship (or any bail or security given instead) as security for the satisfaction of a judgment of a foreign court which is enforceable in England and Wales, where the ship was arrested in proceedings begun in England and Wales and subsequently stayed or dismissed on jurisdictional grounds: see PARA 86.

5 Ie the International Convention on Load Lines (London, 5 April to 4 July 1966; TS 58 (1968); Cmnd 3708), implemented by the Merchant Shipping (Load Lines) Act 1967 (repealed) (see now the Merchant Shipping (Load Line) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2241; and note 1).

6 Ie the International Convention on Tonnage Measurement of Ships (London, 23 June to 23 December 1969; TS 50 (1982); Cmnd 8716), implemented by the Merchant Shipping (Tonnage) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1510 (as to which see PARA 248 et seq).

7 See the International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea (London, 20 October 1972; TS 77 (1977); Cmnd 6962). Vessels to which the Merchant Shipping (Distress Signals and Prevention of Collisions) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/75, apply must comply with the provisions of the International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea 1972: see PARA 715 et seq. See also the International Convention on certain Rules concerning Civil Jurisdiction in matters of Collision 1952 (Brussels, 10 May 1952; Cmd 8954), to which the Administration of Justice Act 1956 (largely repealed) gave effect in English law (see now the Supreme Court Act 1981 Pt II (ss 15-52), especially s 22 (cited in PARA 94); and note 4).

8 Ie the International Convention for Safe Containers (Geneva, 2 December 1972; TS 40 (1979); Cmnd 7535). See PARA 660 et seq; and CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS.

9 Ie the International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea 1974 (London, 1 November 1974 to 1 July 1975; TS 46 (1980); Cmnd 7874), with Protocol (London, 1 June 1978 to 1 March 1979; TS 40 (1981); Cmnd 8277). The Convention covers safety measures (see PARA 591 et seq), including matters such as the seaworthiness of vessels (as to which see PARA 599 et seq) and the carriage of goods (as to which see PARA 660 et seq; and CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS).

10 Ie the Convention on Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims (London, 1 to 19 November 1976; TS 13 (1990); Cm 955), implemented by the Merchant Shipping Act 1979 s 17, Sch 4 (repealed) (see now the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 185(1), Sch 7 Pt I; and PARA 1042 et seq).

11 Ie the Merchant Shipping (Minimum Standards) Convention 1976 (ILO No 147) (Cmnd 7183), implemented by the Merchant Shipping (Safety at Work Regulations) (Non-UK Ships) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/2274 (an amending provision); the Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320 (as to which see PARAS 490, 497 et seq); the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/2962 (as to which see PARA 623 et seq); and the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411 (as to which see PARAS 503, 504).

12 Ie the Convention on the International Maritime Satellite Organisation (INMARSAT) (with Operating Agreement) (London, 3 September 1976; TS 94 (1979); Cmnd 7722) (as to which see TELECOMMUNICATIONS vol 97 (2010) PARA 63).

13 le the Torremolinos International Convention for the Safety of Fishing Vessels (London, 1 October 1977 to 13 June 1978; Misc 17 (1978); Cmnd 7252). Compliance with the Torremolinos Protocol (Cmnd 3339) relating to the Torremolinos International Convention for the Safety of Fishing Vessels 1977 is provided for by EC Council Directive 97/70 of 11 December 1997 (OJ L34, 09.02.1998, p 1) setting up a harmonised safety regime for fishing vessels of 24 metres in length and over (amended by EC Commission Directive 1999/19 of 18 March 1999 (OJ L83, 27.03.1999, p 48); EC Commission Directive 2002/35 of 25 April 2002 (OJ L112, 27.04.2002, p 21); and EC Directive 2002/84 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 5 November 2002 (OJ L324, 29.11.2002, p 53)) which is implemented in the United Kingdom by the Fishing Vessels (EC Directive on Harmonised Safety Regime) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/2998 (as to which see PARAS 604, 605; and AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1022).

14 le the International Convention on Standards of Training, Certification and Watchkeeping for Seafarers 1978 (London, 1 December 1978 to 30 November 1979; TS 50 (1984); Cmnd 9266), implemented by the Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320 (as to which see PARAS 490, 497 et seq), and the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348 (as to which see PARA 496).

15 le the International Convention on Maritime Search and Rescue (Hamburg, 9 to 27 April 1979; Misc 19 (1980); Cmnd 7994) (see further EC Council Recommendation 83/419 (OJ L237, 26.8.83, p 34) on the ratification of or accession to the International Convention on Maritime Search and Rescue 1979; and PARA 15).

16 le the Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Maritime Navigation (Rome, 10 March 1988; TS 64 (1995); Cm 2947); and see the Protocol for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Fixed Platforms located on the Continental Shelf, supplementary to the Rome Convention (Rome, 10 March 1988; TS 64 (1995); Cm 2947). These Conventions (which both entered into force for the United Kingdom on 1 March 1992) have been implemented in the United Kingdom by the Aviation and Maritime Security Act 1990: see PARA 1210 et seq.

17 le the International Convention on Salvage (London, 28 April 1989; Cm 1526), implemented by the Merchant Shipping (Salvage and Pollution) Act 1994 s 1(1), Sch 1 Pt I (repealed) (see now the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11 Pt I; and PARA 891 et seq).

18 le the International Convention on the Removal of Wrecks (Nairobi, 18 May 2007).

19 The most important are: the International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships (London, 8 October to 2 November 1973; Misc 26 (1974); Cmnd 5748), with Protocol (London, 1 June 1978 to 31 May 1979; Misc 27 (1978); Cmnd 7347) ('MARPOL') (as to which see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 404); and the International Convention on Civil Liability for Oil Pollution Damage (Brussels, 29 November 1969 to 31 December 1970; TS 106 (1975); Cmnd 6183) with Protocol (London, 27 November 1992) ('CLC') (as to which see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 442). As to conventions relating to arbitration and legal procedure see ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1288 et seq; and as to conventions relating to the carriage of goods and passengers by sea see CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS. As to the Convention on Facilitation of International Maritime Traffic (London, 9 April 1965; TS 46 (1967); Cmnd 3299 (amended by TS 63 (1972); Cmnd 5006; annex amended by TS 63 (1978); Cmnd 7243) see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 121.

20 As to the entry into force provisions of the Convention for the Establishment of the Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organisation (1958) (TS 54 (1958); Cmnd 589) see Pt XX (arts 74-77). On 22 May 1982, the name of the Organisation was changed to the International Maritime Organisation. As to the Organisation see PARA 13.

9. United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea 1958.

On 29 April 1958, four Conventions were adopted, following the first United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea held from 24 February to 27 April in that year at Geneva, on the following subjects¹:

- 23 (1) the territorial sea and the contiguous zone²;
- 24 (2) the high seas³;
- 25 (3) fishing and conservation of the living resources of the high seas⁴; and
- 26 (4) the continental shelf⁵.

There was also an optional Protocol of signature concerning the compulsory settlement of disputes, and nine resolutions were adopted relating to nuclear tests on the high seas, the pollution of the high seas by radioactive materials, the humane killing of marine life and other matters⁶.

1 See the Report on the First United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea, with Final Act, Conventions and Resolutions (1958) (Cmnd 584). Certain provisions of the 1958 conference were made effective by the Continental Shelf Act 1964 (see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 172) and by the Tokyo Convention Act 1967 s 4 (now repealed) (definition of 'piracy').

10. United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982.

On 10 December 1982, the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 ('UNCLOS') was adopted at Montego Bay, Jamaica after nine years of work by the Third United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea¹. The 1982 Convention entered into force on 16 November 1994, 12 months after the sixtieth instrument of ratification was received².

The 1982 Convention lays down a comprehensive regime of law and order in the world's oceans and seas³, establishing rules governing all uses of the oceans and their resources, including measures relating to:

- 27 (1) the territorial sea and contiguous zone⁴;
- 28 (2) straits used for international navigation⁵;
- 29 (3) archipelago states⁶;
- 30 (4) the exclusive economic zone⁷;
- 31 (5) the continental shelf⁸;
- 32 (6) the high seas⁹;
- 33 (7) regime of islands¹⁰;
- 34 (8) enclosed or semi-enclosed seas¹¹;
- 35 (9) right of access of land-locked states to and from the sea and freedom of transit¹²;
- 36 (10) the Area¹³;
- 37 (11) protection and preservation of the marine environment¹⁴;
- 38 (12) marine scientific research¹⁵;
- 39 (13) development and transfer of marine technology¹⁶;
- 40 (14) settlement of disputes¹⁷; and
- 41 (15) supplementary matters which are contained in annexes to the Convention¹⁸.

The United Kingdom was not an original signatory to the 1982 Convention but became a party to the Convention on 24 August 1997¹⁹.

The 1982 Convention prevails, as between states parties, over the Geneva Conventions on the Law of the Sea of 1958²⁰.

1 le the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (Montego Bay, 10 December 1982 to 9 December 1984; TS 3 Misc 11 (1983); Cmnd 8941) (the 'United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982').

2 For many states, the conclusion of the Agreement relating to the Implementation of Part XI of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea of 10 December 1982 (New York, 28 July 1994; Misc 44 (1994); Cmnd 2705) (see note 13) provided the condition that allowed the entry into force of United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982. It is important to note that the 1982 Convention has still not been accepted by some significant sea-faring nations and coastal states, such as the United States of America.

3 As to the general introductory provision see the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt I (art 1) (use of terms and scope); as to the general provisions which cover the signatories' general rights and duties under the Convention see Pt XVI (arts 300-304); and as to the provisions which govern the signature, ratification, amendment etc of the Convention see Pt XVII (arts 305-320) (final clauses).

In order to administer and to enforce the regime established by the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982, the following bodies are established thereunder:

- 1 (1) the International Seabed Authority (see note 13);
 - 2 (2) the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (see note 18);
 - 3 (3) the Commission on the Limits of the Continental Shelf (see note 18).
- 4 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt II (arts 2-33) which relates to: general provisions (art 2); limits of the territorial sea (arts 3-16); innocent passage in the territorial sea (arts 17-32); and contiguous zone (art 33).
- 5 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt III (arts 34-45) which relates to: general provisions (arts 34-36); transit passage (arts 37-44); and innocent passage (art 45).
- 6 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt IV (arts 46-54).
- 7 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt V (arts 55-75).
- 8 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt VI (arts 76-85).
- 9 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt VII (arts 86-120) which relates to: general provisions (arts 86-115); and management and conservation of the living resources of the high seas (arts 116-120).
- 10 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt VIII (art 121).
- 11 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt IX (arts 122, 123).
- 12 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt X (arts 124-132).
- 13 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt XI (arts 133-191) which relates to: general provisions (arts 133-135); principles governing the Area (arts 136-149); development of resources of the Area (arts 150-155); the Authority (arts 156-185); and settlement of disputes and advisory opinions (arts 186-191). 'Area' means the seabed and ocean floor and subsoil thereof, beyond the limits of national jurisdiction (art 1(1)(1)); and 'Authority' means the International Seabed Authority (art 1(1)(2)). As to the International Seabed Authority see PARA 12. There is also a supplementary Agreement relating to the Implementation of Part XI of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea of 10 December 1982 (New York, 28 July 1994; Misc 44 (1994); Cmnd 2705), which sought a compromise on the controversial provisions on deep seabed mining and significantly alters certain provisions of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt XI in favour of a more market orientated approach.
- 14 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt XII (arts 192-237) which relates to: general provisions (arts 192-196); global and regional co-operation (arts 197-201); technical assistance (arts 202, 203); monitoring and environmental assessment (arts 204-206); international rules and national legislation to prevent, reduce and control pollution of the marine environment (arts 207-212); enforcement (arts 213-222); safeguards (arts 223-233); ice-covered areas (art 234); responsibility and liability (art 235); sovereign immunity (art 236); and obligations under other Conventions on the protection and preservation of the marine environment (art 237).
- 15 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt XIII (arts 238-265) which relates to: general provisions (arts 238-241); international co-operation (arts 242-244); conduct and promotion of marine scientific research (arts 245-257); scientific research installations or equipment in the marine environment (arts 258-262); responsibility and liability (art 263); and settlement of disputes and interim measures (arts 264, 265).
- 16 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt XIV (arts 266-278) which relates to: general provisions (arts 266-269); international co-operation (arts 270-274); national and regional marine scientific and technological centres (arts 275-277); and co-operation among international organisations (art 278).
- 17 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt XV (arts 279-299) which relates to: general provisions and general obligations (arts 279-285); compulsory procedures entailing binding decisions (arts 286-296); and limitations and exceptions to applicability of arts 286-296 (arts 297-299).
- 18 Ie the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Annex I (highly migratory species); Annex II (Commission on the Limits of the Continental Shelf); Annex III (basic conditions of prospecting, exploration and exploitation); Annex IV (statute of the Enterprise); Annex V (conciliation); Annex VI (statute of the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea); Annex VII (arbitration); Annex VIII (special arbitration); Annex IX (participation by international organisations). As to the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea see PARA 11. The purpose of the Commission on the Limits of the Continental Shelf is to facilitate the implementation of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 in respect of the establishment of the outer limits of the continental shelf beyond 200 nautical miles from the baselines from which the breadth of the territorial sea is measured (as to which see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 123 et seq).

19 See the London Gazette 29 August 1997; and note 2. Prior to the United Kingdom becoming a signatory to the 1982 Convention, certain provisions had been enacted in primary and secondary legislation which gave effect to the 1982 Convention in part: see eg the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 129(1) (as to which see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 362); the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 s 26, Sch 5 (cited in PARA 1249) and s 28 (cited in PARA 11); the International Sea-Bed Authority (Immunities and Privileges) Order 1996, SI 1996/270 (revoked) (see now the International Sea-Bed Authority (Immunities and Privileges) Order 2000, SI 2000/1815) (cited in PARA 12); and the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (Immunities and Privileges) Order 1996, SI 1996/272 (revoked) (see now the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (Immunities and Privileges) Order 2005, SI 2005/2047) (cited in PARA 11).

20 See the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 Pt XVII art 311(1). As to the Geneva Conventions on the Law of the Sea of 1958, which continue to exist and are not abrogated by the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982, see PARA 9.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/1. INTRODUCTION/(2) CONVENTIONS AND LEGISLATION/(i) International Conventions and Organisations/11. International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea.

11. International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea.

The International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (the 'Tribunal') was established in accordance with Annex VI to the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 to deal with the settlement of disputes¹.

Except in so far as in any particular case any privilege or immunity is waived by the Tribunal, the members of the Tribunal enjoy, when engaged on the business of the Tribunal, the like privileges and immunities as are² accorded to the head of a diplomatic mission³. The members of the Tribunal and the registrar of the Tribunal have exemption from income tax in respect of emoluments received by them as members or as the registrar⁴.

If in any proceedings a question arises whether a person is or is not entitled to any privilege or immunity by virtue of the above provisions, a certificate issued by or under the authority of the Secretary of State stating any fact relating to that question is conclusive evidence of that fact⁵.

As from a day to be appointed⁶, the Tribunal has conferred upon it the legal capacities of a body corporate⁷. Privileges and immunities are also conferred on the Tribunal⁸ and, when engaged on the business of the Tribunal and as necessary for the independent exercise of their functions, on members of the Tribunal⁹, the Registrar¹⁰ and other officials of the Tribunal¹¹, as well as on appointed experts¹², agents, counsel and advocates before the Tribunal¹³, and witnesses, experts and persons performing missions by order of the Tribunal¹⁴.

1 See the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (Montego Bay, 10 December 1982 to 9 December 1984; TS 3 Misc 11 (1983); Cmnd 8941) (the 'United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982') Annex VI; and PARA 10. The Tribunal is an international court with its seat in Hamburg and has jurisdiction to hear disputes submitted to it in accordance with the 1982 Convention and all matters specifically provided for in any other agreement which confers jurisdiction on it.

2 In accordance with the 1961 Convention Articles (as to which see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 265 et seq): see the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (Immunities and Privileges) Order 1996, SI 1996/272, art 3 (prospectively revoked). For these purposes, '1961 Convention Articles' means the Articles, being certain Articles of the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations (Vienna, 18 April 1961; TS 19 (1965); Cmnd 2565), which are set out in the Diplomatic Privileges Act 1964 s 2(1), Sch 1 (as to which see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 265 et seq): see the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (Immunities and Privileges) Order 1996, SI 1996/272, art 2 (prospectively revoked).

The International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (Immunities and Privileges) Order 1996, SI 1996/272 is revoked, and the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (Immunities and Privileges) Order 2005, SI 2005/2047 (as to which see notes 6-14) comes into force, on the date, specified in the London, Edinburgh and Belfast Gazettes, on which the Agreement on the Privileges and Immunities of the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (New York, 1 July 1997) (the 'ITLOS Privileges and Immunities Agreement') enters into force in respect of the United Kingdom. However, at the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been specified.

The International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (Immunities and Privileges) Order 2005, SI 2005/2047, confers privileges and immunities in accordance with the ITLOS Privileges and Immunities Agreement, which the United Kingdom signed but did not ratify because it was not possible to implement the provisions of the Agreement relating to the Tribunal itself using any of the enabling provisions of the International Organisations Act 1968 (as to which see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 309 et seq). The International Organisations Act 2005 was enacted in order to bring the Tribunal within the scope of the International Organisations Act 1968 and thus, in exercise of the powers conferred by ss 1, 5 and by the International Organisations Act 2005 s 8 (as to which see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 309), the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (Immunities and Privileges) Order 2005, SI 2005/2047, was made.

12. International Sea-Bed Authority.

The International Sea-Bed Authority was established under the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982¹; and it is the organisation through which States Parties² organise and control all activities of exploration for, and exploitation of, the resources of the sea bed and ocean floor and subsoil thereof, beyond the limits of national jurisdiction³. The Enterprise is the organ of that Authority which carries out all those activities, as well as the transporting, processing and marketing of minerals recovered from the sea bed and ocean floor and subsoil thereof, beyond the limits of national jurisdiction⁴.

The International Sea-Bed Authority and the Enterprise have conferred upon them the legal capacities of a body corporate⁵. Privileges and immunities⁶ are also conferred on: (1) the Authority⁷ and (separately) the Enterprise⁸; (2) representatives of members of the Authority⁹; (3) the Secretary-General of the Authority (or any official acting on his behalf during his absence from duty) and the Director-General of the Enterprise¹⁰; (4) all officials of the Authority¹¹; and (5) experts (other than officials of the Authority) performing missions on behalf of the Authority¹².

1 See the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (Montego Bay, 10 December 1982 to 9 December 1984; TS 3 Misc 11 (1983); Cmnd 8941) (the 'United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982') art 156(1); and PARA 10.

The relevant provisions of the 1982 Convention which establish the International Seabed Authority and set out how it should function are contained in Pt XI Section 4 (arts 156-185), as follows:

- 4 (1) Subsection A (General Provisions), covering the establishment of the Authority (art 156); the nature and fundamental principles of the Authority (art 157); and the organs of the Authority (art 158);
- 5 (2) Subsection B (the Assembly), covering the composition, procedure and voting in and relating to the Assembly (art 159) as well as its powers and functions (art 160);
- 6 (3) Subsection C (the Council), covering the composition, procedure and voting in and relating to the Council (art 160), its powers and functions (art 161) as well as the establishment of organs of the Council, namely an Economic Planning Commission and a Legal and Technical Commission (arts 162-165).
- 7 (4) Subsection D (the Secretariat) (arts 166-169);
- 8 (5) Subsection E (the Enterprise) (art 170);
- 9 (6) Subsection F (the financial arrangements of the Authority) (arts 171-175);
- 10 (7) Subsection G (legal status, privileges and immunities of and connected with the Authority) (arts 176-183);
- 11 (8) Subsection H (suspension of the exercise of rights and privileges of members) (arts 184, 185).

13. The International Maritime Organisation.

The International Maritime Organisation (the 'IMO') was established under a Convention which came into force in 1958¹. The purposes of the IMO are:

- 42 (1) to provide machinery for co-operation among governments in the field of governmental regulation and practices relating to technical matters of all kinds affecting shipping engaged in international trade, and to encourage the general adoption of the highest practicable standards in matters concerning maritime safety, efficiency of navigation and prevention and control of marine pollution from ships²;
- 43 (2) to encourage the removal of discriminatory action and unnecessary restrictions by governments affecting shipping engaged in international trade so as to promote the availability of shipping services to the commerce of the world without discrimination³;
- 44 (3) to provide for the consideration by the IMO of matters concerning unfair restrictive practices by shipping concerns⁴;
- 45 (4) to provide for the consideration by the IMO of any matters concerning shipping that may be referred to it by any organ or specialised agency of the United Nations⁵;
- 46 (5) to provide for the exchange of information among governments on matters under consideration by the IMO.

In general, membership of the organisation is open to all states⁷. Decisions are made by a majority vote, each member having one vote⁸.

The IMO consists of an assembly, a council, a maritime safety committee, a legal committee, a marine environment protection committee ('MEPC'), a technical co-operation committee, together with such subsidiary organs as the IMO may at any time consider necessary, as well as a secretariat⁹.

The headquarters of the IMO are in London¹⁰.

Provision is made to regulate the IMO's relationships and co-operation with the United Nations (including a duty to co-operate with the United Nations' specialised agencies), as well as with intergovernmental organisations and non-governmental organisations¹¹.

The Convention under which the IMO was established may be amended¹²; and provision is made for the settlement of disputes concerning its interpretation¹³.

In the United Kingdom, the IMO has the legal capacity of a body corporate¹⁴. Privileges and immunities¹⁵ are conferred on: (a) the IMO¹⁶; (b) representatives of members of the IMO on any of its organs at meetings convened by it¹⁷; (c) every person designated by a member of the IMO as its principal permanent representative or acting principal permanent representative to the IMO in the United Kingdom (and on members of their family forming part of their household)¹⁸; (d) its officers¹⁹; and (e) experts (other than officers of the IMO) serving on any committee of the IMO or employed on missions on behalf of the IMO²⁰.

On 22 May 1982, the name of the organisation was changed from the Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organisation to the International Maritime Organisation (the 'IMO').
- 2 See the IMO Convention 1958 Pt I art 1(a). A further purpose is to deal with administrative and legal matters related to the purposes set out in Pt I art 1: see Pt I art 1(a).
- 3 See the IMO Convention 1958 Pt I art 1(b). Assistance and encouragement given by a government for the development of its national shipping and for purposes of security do not in themselves constitute discrimination, provided that such assistance and encouragement is not based on measures designed to restrict the freedom of shipping of all flags to take part in international trade: see Pt I art 1(b).
- 4 See the IMO Convention 1958 Pt I art 1(c). The purpose set out under head (3) in the text must be conducted in accordance with Pt II (arts 2, 3) (functions), which state that the IMO provides for the drafting of conventions, agreements or other suitable instruments, provides machinery for consultation among members and exchange of information and facilitates technical co-operation (see Pt II art 2); and that, for matters capable of settlement through the normal processes of international shipping business, the IMO should recommend their resolution in that manner (see Pt II art 3): see Pt I art 1(c).

14. Comité Maritime International.

The Comité Maritime International is a non-governmental not-for-profit international organisation established in Antwerp in 1897, the object of which is to contribute by all appropriate means and activities to the unification of maritime law in all its aspects; to that end it promotes the establishment of national associations of maritime law and co-operates with other international organisations¹. The domicile of the Comité Maritime International is established in Belgium².

The Comité Maritime International consists of national, or multinational, associations of maritime law, the objects of which conform to that of the Comité Maritime International and the membership of which is open to persons, individuals or bodies corporate, who either are involved in maritime activities or are specialists in maritime law³.

The Assembly of the Comité Maritime International consists of all its members and the members of the Executive Council⁴; and the functions of the Assembly are:

- 47 (1) to elect the officers of the Comité Maritime International⁵;
- 48 (2) to elect members of and to suspend or expel members from the Comité Maritime International⁶;
- 49 (3) to fix the amounts of subscriptions payable by members to the Comité Maritime International⁷;
- 50 (4) to elect auditors⁸ and to consider and, if thought fit, approve the accounts and the budget⁹;
- 51 (5) to consider reports of the Executive Council and to take decisions on the future activity of the Comité Maritime International¹⁰;
- 52 (6) to approve the convening and decide the agenda of, and ultimately approve resolutions adopted by, international conferences¹¹;
- 53 (7) to adopt rules governing the expulsion of members¹²;
- 54 (8) to adopt rules of procedure not inconsistent with the provisions of the Constitution¹³; and
- 55 (9) to amend the Constitution of the Comité Maritime International¹⁴.

The Comité Maritime International meets in International Conference upon dates and at places approved by the Assembly, for the purpose of discussing and adopting resolutions upon subjects on an agenda likewise approved by the Assembly¹⁵.

1 See the Constitution of the Comité Maritime International (2001) art 1.

2 See the Constitution of the Comité Maritime International (2001) art 2. The Comité Maritime International is domiciled in the City of Antwerp, and its registered office is at Everdijstraat 43 B-2000 Antwerp, Belgium: see art 2.

(ii) EC Legislation

15. Shipping- and maritime-related measures of the European Community.

The policy of the European Community in relation to measures governing international shipping and seaborne trade concentrated initially on encouraging member states to ratify, or to accede to, existing international Conventions, which were often promulgated under the auspices of other multi-national organisations like the United Nations or the International Maritime Organisation¹. Member states were, however, reluctant to accept a legal obligation to conclude Conventions (generally because they wished to retain competence in the relevant areas for themselves) so Community encouragement began to take the form of EC Council Recommendations, as follows:

- 56 (1) an EC Council Recommendation of 26 June 1978² on the ratification of the International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea 1974 ('SOLAS')³, the International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships ('MARPOL')⁴, and an International Labour Convention concerning minimum standards in merchant ships⁵;
- 57 (2) an EC Council Recommendation of 21 December 1978⁶ on the ratification of the International Convention on Standards of Training, Certification and Watchkeeping for Seafarers 1978⁷;
- 58 (3) an EC Council Recommendation of 23 September 1980⁸ on the ratification of the Torremolinos International Convention for the Safety of Fishing Vessels⁹;
- 59 (4) an EC Council Recommendation of 25 July 1983¹⁰ on the ratification of or accession to the International Convention on Maritime Search and Rescue (SAR)¹¹.

Also of note is an EC Council Decision of 13 September 1977¹² on setting up a consultation procedure on relations between member states and third countries in shipping matters and on action relating to such matters in international organisations.

Increasingly, however, Community measures have sought to regulate spheres of activity in the area of shipping and maritime law, the main such measures being:

- 60 (a) an EC Council Directive of 21 December 1978¹³ on pilotage in the North Sea;
- 61 (b) an EC Council Directive of 31 March 1992¹⁴ on the minimum safety and health requirements for improved medical treatment onboard vessels;
- 62 (c) an EC Council Directive of 22 November 1994¹⁵ on common rules and standards for ship inspection and survey organisations and for the relevant activities of maritime administrations;
- 63 (d) an EC Council Directive of 19 June 1995¹⁶ on port state control of shipping;
- 64 (e) an EC Council Directive of 25 June 1996¹⁷ establishing a common model for an identity card for inspectors carrying out port state control;
- 65 (f) an EC Council Directive of 20 December 1996¹⁸ on marine equipment;
- 66 (g) an EC Council Directive of 29 April 1999¹⁹ on a system of mandatory surveys for the safe operation of regular Ro-Ro ferry and high-speed passenger craft services;

- 67 (h) an EC Council Directive of 21 June 1999²⁰ concerning the Agreement on the organisation of working time of seafarers concluded by the European Community Shipowners' Association ('ECSA') and the Federation of Transport Workers' Unions in the European Union ('FST');
- 68 (i) a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council of 13 December 1999²¹ concerning the enforcement of provisions in respect of seafarers' hours of work on board ships calling at Community ports;
- 69 (j) a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council of 4 April 2001²² on the minimum level of training of seafarers;
- 70 (k) a Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 February 2002²³ on the accelerated phasing-in of double hull or equivalent design requirements for single hull oil tankers;
- 71 (l) a Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 June 2002²⁴ establishing a European Maritime Safety Agency;
- 72 (m) a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 June 2002²⁵ establishing a Community vessel traffic monitoring and information system;
- 73 (n) a Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council of 5 November 2002²⁶ establishing a Committee on Safe Seas and the Prevention of Pollution from Ships ('COSS');
- 74 (o) a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council of 4 November 2003²⁷ concerning certain aspects of the organisation of working time;
- 75 (p) a Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council of 31 March 2004²⁸ on enhancing ship and port facility security;
- 76 (q) a Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council of 21 April 2004²⁹ on the transfer of cargo and passenger ships between registers within the Community;
- 77 (r) a Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council of 15 February 2006³⁰ on the implementation of the International Safety Management Code within the Community.
- 78 (s) a Council Regulation of 25 September 2006³¹ applying EC competition law to liner conferences.

Other measures govern related activities such as carriage by sea or marine pollution and are discussed elsewhere in this work³².

1 As to a survey of the international Conventions which apply to shipping and maritime law see PARA 8 et seq. The policy of the European Community cited in the text served not only to promote higher standards but also to secure a harmonisation of the conditions of competition between the fleets of the member states.

(iii) United Kingdom Legislation

A. THE PRESENT STATUTE LAW

16. In general.

There are two principal consolidating Acts relating to merchant shipping:

- 79 (1) the Merchant Shipping Act 1995¹; and
- 80 (2) the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995².

In addition, there is a considerable body of subordinate legislation made, or having effect as if made, thereunder³.

The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 consolidated the Merchant Shipping Acts 1894 to 1994⁴ and certain other enactments relating to merchant shipping⁵; the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 consolidated certain enactments for the protection of shipping and trading interests⁶.

In addition to the statutory controls imposed by the two consolidating Acts, the following related matters are subject to special statutory control:

- 81 (a) hovercraft⁷;
- 82 (b) collisions⁸;
- 83 (c) the protection of wrecks⁹;
- 84 (d) pilotage¹⁰;
- 85 (e) the hijacking etc of ships¹¹;
- 86 (f) port state control¹².

1 Notwithstanding the fact that the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 is stated to have come into force on 1 January 1996 (see s 316), certain provisions relating to masters of ships and seamen, namely s 60 (breaches by seamen of codes of conduct) (see PARA 506), s 80(2), (4) (regulations making provision regarding discharge books) (see PARA 551), and certain provisions relating to skippers of fishing vessels and seamen, namely s 111 (regulations making provision regarding wages and deductions) (see PARA 480), s 115 (regulations making provision regarding hours of work) (see PARA 626), s 116 (production of crew certificates and other documents of qualification) (see PARA 502), s 118 (offences relating to unauthorised alcohol on board a United Kingdom fishing vessel) (see PARA 1165), s 119(2), (3) (regulations making provision regarding disputes about local industrial agreements) (see PARA 506) and s 127 (regulations making provision for securing that the skipper of and every seaman employed or engaged in a United Kingdom fishing vessel is trained in safety matters) (see PARA 594) do not have effect until the Secretary of State by order appoints a day for them to come into force (see s 314(3), Sch 14 para 5(1), (2)). At the date at which this volume states the law, such a day had been appointed in relation to s 116 only: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 (Appointed Day No 2) Order 1997, SI 1997/3107, art 2. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38; and as to his power to make subordinate legislation under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 generally see PARA 41.

2 The Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 came into force on 1 January 1996: see s 9(4).

3 See PARA 39 et seq.

4 Ie including provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1894, the Merchant Shipping Act 1906, the Merchant Shipping Act 1964, the Merchant Shipping (Load Lines) Act 1967, the Merchant Shipping Act 1979, the Merchant Shipping Act 1984, the Merchant Shipping Act 1988, the Merchant Shipping (Registration, etc) Act 1993 and the Merchant Shipping (Salvage and Pollution) Act 1994. The Merchant Shipping Act 1894 and most of the subsequent Acts were to be construed as one: see eg the Merchant Shipping (Salvage and Pollution) Act 1994 s 10(2) (repealed).

5 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 preamble. However, nothing in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 affects the Behring Sea Award Act 1894: Sch 14 para 13. As to the Behring Sea Award Act 1894, which regulates sealing in the Behring Sea and adjacent waters, see AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1091.

Subsequent to the passing of the two consolidating Acts, the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 was passed to amend the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 and various other statutory provisions: see the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 preamble. Certain of the provisions in the 1997 Act came into force on 19 March 1997 (see s 31(4)); and the remainder of the provisions come into force on such day as the Secretary of State may by order made by statutory instrument appoint (see s 31(3)).

6 See the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 preamble.

7 See the Merchant Shipping (High Speed Craft) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/302 (cited in PARA 614 et seq); the Hovercraft Act 1968 (cited in PARA 381 et seq); and the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348, Pt III (regs 22-24) (cited in PARA 496).

8 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 85(3)(k) (regulation-making power); the Merchant Shipping (Distress Signals and Prevention of Collisions) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/75; the International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea (London, 20 October 1972; TS 77 (1977); Cmnd 6962); and PARA 715 et seq. See also the more general provisions relating to safety at sea (cited in PARA 591 et seq) and accident investigations and inquiries (cited in PARA 844 et seq).

10 See the Pilotage Act 1987; and PARA 562 et seq.

11 See the Aviation and Maritime Security Act 1990 Pt II (ss 9-17) (offences against the safety of ships and fixed platforms); Pt III (ss 18-46) (protection of ships and harbour areas against acts of violence); and PARA 1210 et seq.

12 See the Merchant Shipping (Port State Control) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/3128, and PARA 690 et seq. See also PARA 15 (EC Directives on port state control).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/1. INTRODUCTION/(2) CONVENTIONS AND LEGISLATION/(iii) United Kingdom Legislation/A. THE PRESENT STATUTE LAW/17. Territorial extent.

17. Territorial extent.

The Merchant Shipping Act 1995¹ extends to England and Wales², Scotland and Northern Ireland³.

Her Majesty may by Order in Council direct that any provision of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 (and instruments made under the 1995 Act), with such exceptions, adaptations and modifications (if any) as may be specified in the Order, is to extend to any relevant British possession⁴. Such an Order in Council may make such transitional, incidental or supplementary provision as appears to Her Majesty to be necessary or expedient⁵.

Her Majesty may, in relation to any relevant British possession, by Order in Council direct that, with such exceptions, adaptations and modifications, if any, as may be specified in the Order, any of the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 are to have effect as if references in them to the United Kingdom included a reference to that possession⁶.

Either such Order in Council may⁷, in its application to any relevant British possession, provide for such authority in that possession as is specified in the Order to furnish the Secretary of State⁸ or the registrar⁹ with such information with respect to the registration of ships in that possession under its law as is specified in the Order or as the Secretary of State may from time to time require, and for any such information to be so furnished at such time or times and in such manner as is or are so specified or, as the case may be, as the Secretary of State may so require¹⁰.

1 le except for the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 18 (provision for regulating registration in relevant British possessions of ships other than small ships and fishing vessels by reference to categories of registries) (see PARA 246) and s 193(5) (prospectively repealed) (general lighthouse authority as respects Gibraltar, the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man) (see PARA 1068): see s 315(1).

2 'England' means, subject to any alteration of boundaries of local government areas, the area consisting of the counties established by the Local Government Act 1972 s 1 (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARAS 5, 24), Greater London and the Isles of Scilly: Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1. 'Wales' means the combined area of the counties which were created by the Local Government Act 1972 s 20 (as originally enacted) (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARAS 5, 37), but subject to any alteration made under s 73 (consequential alteration of boundary following alteration of watercourse) (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 90): Interpretation Act 1978 Sch 1 (definition substituted by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 1(3), Sch 2 para 9). As to local government areas see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 22 et seq; and as to boundary changes see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 56 et seq. As to Greater London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 29.

3 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 315(1).

Without prejudice to s 315(1), the repeals made by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 do not affect the law in force in any country or territory which is outside the United Kingdom: s 314(3), Sch 14 para 1(1). In particular, the repeal of the Merchant Shipping Act 1894 s 735 does not affect the power of Her Majesty in Council to confirm any legislation made by the legislature of a British possession under s 735 (repealed) as it extends to that possession: Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 14 para 1(2). The provisions of the 1995 Act, including the repeal of any power by Order in Council to extend any enactment to a relevant British possession, or of any enactment which has been so extended, do not extend to any such possession, except in so far as they are extended to that possession by an Order in Council under s 315(2) (see the text and note 4): Sch 14 para 1(3). 'United Kingdom' means Great Britain and Northern Ireland: Interpretation Act 1978 Sch 1. 'Great Britain' means England, Scotland and Wales: Union with Scotland Act 1706, preamble art I; Interpretation Act 1978 s 22(1), Sch 2 para 5(a). In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'relevant British possession' means the Isle of Man, any of the Channel Islands and any colony: s 313(1). As to the meaning of 'colony' see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1383. As to the legal status of the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man (neither of which are within the United Kingdom) see COMMONWEALTH vol 13 (2009) PARA 790 et seq; and see also CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 3.

4 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 315(2).

As to the making of Orders under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 generally see PARA 41. At the date at which this volume states the law, the following Orders had been made under s 315(2): the Merchant Shipping (Liability and Compensation for Oil Pollution Damage) (Transitional Provisions) (Overseas Territories) Order 1997, SI 1997/2578; the Merchant Shipping (Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims) (Overseas Territories) Order 1997, SI 1997/2579; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Anguilla) Order 1997, SI 1997/2580; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (British Antarctic Territory) Order 1997, SI 1997/2582; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (British Indian Ocean Territory) Order 1997, SI 1997/2583; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Falkland Islands) Order 1997, SI 1997/2584; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Pitcairn) Order 1997, SI 1997/2585 (amended by SI 1998/1067); the Merchant Shipping (Salvage Convention) (Overseas Territories) Order 1997, SI 1997/2586; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Sovereign Base Areas) Order 1997, SI 1997/2587 (amended by SI 1998/1068); the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands) Order 1997, SI 1997/2588; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Turks and Caicos Islands) Order 1997, SI 1997/2589; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Virgin Islands) Order 1997, SI 1997/2590; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Jersey) Order 1997, SI 1997/2598; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution and General Provisions) (Guernsey) Order 1998, SI 1998/260; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Pitcairn) (Amendment) Order 1998, SI 1998/1067; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Sovereign Base Areas) (Amendment) Order 1998, SI 1998/1068; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Cayman Islands) Order 1998, SI 1998/1261; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Montserrat) Order 1998, SI 1998/1262; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Saint Helena) Order 1998, SI 1998/1263; the Merchant Shipping (Revocation) (Bermuda) Order 2002, SI 2002/3147; the Merchant Shipping (Confirmation of Legislation and Repeals) (Jersey) Order 2004, SI 2004/1284; the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution and General Provisions) (Isle of Man) Order 2004, SI 2004/3041; and the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution) (Gibraltar) Order 2004, SI 2004/3042.

18. Non-United Kingdom ships.

The Secretary of State may make regulations¹ specifying any description of non-United Kingdom ships² and directing that such of the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 and of instruments thereunder³ as may be specified in the regulations⁴:

- 87 (1) are to extend to non-United Kingdom ships of that description and to masters⁵ and seamen⁶ employed in them⁷; or
- 88 (2) are to so extend in such circumstances as may be so specified, with such modifications, if any, as may be so specified⁸.

Regulations so made may contain such transitional, supplementary and consequential provisions as appear to the Secretary of State to be expedient⁹.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38; and as to his power to make subordinate legislation, including his power to appoint committees for the purpose of advising him when considering the making or alteration of any regulations, see PARA 41.

2 For these purposes, 'non-United Kingdom ships' means ships which are not registered in the United Kingdom: Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 307(3). As to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229; and as to the meaning of 'registered' see PARA 254 note 2.

3 As to which see PARAS 16, 17.

INTRODUCTION/(2) CONVENTIONS AND LEGISLATION/(iii) United Kingdom Legislation/B. APPLICATION OF THE MERCHANT SHIPPING ACT 1995 TO CERTAIN DESCRIPTIONS OF SHIPS ETC/19. Meaning of 'qualifying foreign ship'.

19. Meaning of 'qualifying foreign ship'.

For the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, 'qualifying foreign ship' means any ship¹ other than:

- 89 (1) a British ship²; or
- 90 (2) a ship which is not registered³ under Part II of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁴ and which (although not⁵ a British ship) is both:
 - 1
 - 1. (a) wholly owned by any of the following persons⁶: (i) British citizens⁷; (ii) British overseas territories citizens⁸; (iii) British Overseas citizens⁹; (iv) persons who under the British Nationality Act 1981 are British subjects¹⁰; (v) persons who are British Nationals (Overseas) within the meaning of the British Nationality Act 1981¹¹; (vi) persons who are British protected persons within the meaning of the British Nationality Act 1981¹²; or (vi) bodies corporate incorporated in the United Kingdom or in any relevant British possession¹³ and having their principal place of business in the United Kingdom or in any relevant British possession¹⁴; and
 - 2. (b) not registered under the law of a country outside the United Kingdom¹⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

2 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313A(1)(a) (s 313A added by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 Sch 6 para 20). In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'qualifying foreign ship' has the meaning given in s 313A: see s 313(1) (definition added by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 Sch 6 para 19(2)(c)). 'Foreign', in relation to a ship, means that it is neither a United Kingdom ship nor a small ship, as defined in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 1(2) (see PARA 230), which is a British ship: s 313(1). As to the meanings of 'British ship' and 'United Kingdom ship' see PARA 230; and as to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

INTRODUCTION/(2) CONVENTIONS AND LEGISLATION/(iii) United Kingdom Legislation/B. APPLICATION OF THE MERCHANT SHIPPING ACT 1995 TO CERTAIN DESCRIPTIONS OF SHIPS ETC/20. Government ships.

20. Government ships.

Subject to any of its other provisions, the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 does not apply to ships¹ belonging to Her Majesty².

However, Her Majesty may by Order in Council make regulations with respect to the manner in which government ships³ may be registered as British ships⁴ under Part II of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁵; and the 1995 Act, subject to any exceptions and modifications which may be made by Order in Council, either generally or as respects any special class of government ships, applies to government ships registered in accordance with the Order as if they were registered in accordance with Part II of the 1995 Act⁶.

2 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 308(1).

3 For these purposes, 'government ships' means ships not forming part of Her Majesty's navy which belong to Her Majesty, or are held by any person on behalf of or for the benefit of the Crown (and for that reason cannot be registered under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Pt II (ss 8-23) (as to which see PARA 237 et seq)): s 308(4). In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'government ship' has the meaning given in s 308: see s 313(1). As to the meaning of 'registered' see PARA 254 note 2.

4 As to the meaning of 'British ship' see PARA 230.

5 Ie under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Pt II (see PARA 237 et seq): see s 308(2).

6 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 308(2). Any Order in Council under s 308(2) must be laid before Parliament after being made: see s 308(3). As to the making of Orders under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 generally see PARA 41.

At the date at which this volume states the law, no such Orders in Council had been made but, by virtue of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b), the following Orders have effect as if made under the Merchant Shipping Act s 308(2), (3): Order in Council dated 9 February 1920 (Registration of Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries Vessels), SR & O 1920/260; Order in Council dated 14 July 1921 (Registration of Board of Trade Vessels), SR & O 1921/1211 (amended by SI 1978/1533); Order in Council dated 8 December 1924 (Registration of Australian Government Vessels), SR & O 1924/1391; Order in Council dated 10 August 1926 (Registration of Straits Settlements Vessels), SR & O 1926/1036; Order in Council dated 5 November 1929 (Registration of Vessels in the Service of the Indian Government), SR & O 1929/986; Order in Council dated 15 May 1930 (Registration of Northern Ireland Government Vessels), SR & O 1930/336; the Merchant Shipping (Registration of New Zealand Government Ships) Order 1946, SR & O 1946/1086; the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Sierra Leone Government Ships) Order 1951, SI 1951/143; the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Federation of Nigeria Government Ships) Order 1957, SI 1957/861; the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Scottish Fishery Cruisers, Research Ships etc) Order 1960, SI 1960/2217 (amended by SI 1972/2001); the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) (Highlands and Islands Shipping Services) Order 1961, SI 1961/1514; the Registration of Government Ships (British Antarctic Territory) Order 1963, SI 1963/1494; the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Colonial Government Ships) Order 1963, SI 1963/1631 (amended by SI 1965/1867; SI 1967/1903; SI 1978/1628; SI 1985/1200); the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Western Australia Government Ships) Order 1964, SI 1964/270; the Merchant Shipping (Ministry of Technology Ships) Order 1966, SI 1966/269; the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Queensland Government Ships) Order 1968, SI 1968/1092; the Merchant Shipping (Registration of South Australian Government Ships) Order 1971, SI 1971/872; the Merchant Shipping (Ministry of Defence Ships) Order 1989, SI 1989/1991 (amended by SI 1992/1293; SI 1992/1294); the Merchant Shipping (Ministry of Defence Commercially Managed Ships) Order 1992, SI 1992/1293; and the Merchant Shipping (Ministry of Defence Yachts) Order 1992, SI 1992/1294.

Ships chartered by demise to the Crown.

21. Ships chartered by demise to the Crown.

If, for the time being¹:

- 91 (1) a ship² is registered³ in the United Kingdom⁴ and is in the service of a government department⁵ (the 'relevant department') by reason of a charter by demise to the Crown⁶; and
- 92 (2) there is in force⁷ an Order in Council providing for the registration of government ships⁸ in the service of the relevant department⁹, then the following statutory provisions, namely:

- 93 (a) the provisions of the Order in Council referred to in head (2) above (excluding those relating to registration under the Order)¹⁰; and
- 94 (b) the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 as they so apply¹¹, have the same effect¹² in relation to that ship as they have in relation to a government ship in the service of the relevant department (whether referred to as such or as such a ship registered in pursuance of that Order in Council)¹³.

Part II of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995¹⁴ has effect¹⁵ in relation to such a ship in like manner as if it were not, for the purposes of the 1995 Act, a ship belonging to Her Majesty¹⁶. However, Her Majesty may by Order in Council provide that any such statutory provision¹⁷ specified in the Order¹⁸:

- 95 (i) does not have effect¹⁹ in relation to such a ship²⁰; or
- 96 (ii) is to so have effect in relation to such a ship, but subject to such modifications as are specified in the Order²¹.

Any such Order in Council may make such transitional, incidental or supplementary provision as appears to Her Majesty to be necessary or expedient²².

22. Hovercraft.

The enactments and instruments with respect to which provision may be made by Order in Council under the Hovercraft Act 1968¹ include the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 (except the provisions relating to British ships² and to the registration of ships³) and any instrument made thereunder⁴.

The provisions of the Merchant Shipping (High Speed Craft) Regulations 2004⁵ apply to certain hovercraft⁶.

Provision made for shipping legislation to apply to structures etc.

23. Provision made for shipping legislation to apply to structures etc.

The Secretary of State¹ may by order²:

- 97 (1) provide for a shipping provision³ to apply (with or without modification) in relation to specified things which are used, navigated or situated wholly or partly in or on water⁴;
- 98 (2) provide for a shipping provision not to apply in relation to specified things which are used, navigated or situated wholly or partly in or on water⁵;
- 99 (3) modify a shipping provision in its application in relation to specified things which are used, navigated or situated wholly or partly in or on water⁶.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003 s 112(1). As to the making of such orders see s 112(5), (7). At the orders made under s 112 see note 4. As to the Secretary of State's power to make subordinate legislation see PARA 41.

3 For these purposes, 'shipping provision' means a provision which is made by or by virtue of an Act (including the Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003), and is expressed to apply in relation to ships, vessels or boats (or a specified class or description of ship, vessel or boat): s 112(2). An order under s 112(1) may, in particular, be made in respect of a provision which either confers power to legislate, or creates an offence (s 112(3)); and such an order has effect despite (and may amend) any provision which forms part of or relates to the shipping provision concerned, and defines 'ship', 'vessel' or 'boat' or in any other way limits or determines the application of the shipping provision concerned (s 112(4)).

4 Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003 s 112(1)(a). An order under s 112(1)(a) may provide for the shipping provision not to apply, or to apply with specified modifications, where it would conflict with a specified provision or class of provision made by or by virtue of an enactment: see s 112(6).

In exercise of the power conferred by s 112(1)(a), the Merchant Shipping (Prevention of Pollution) (Drilling Rigs and Other Platforms) Order 2005, SI 2005/74, has been made. Accordingly, the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 128(1)(e) (giving effect to certain international agreements which have been ratified by the United Kingdom and which relate to the prevention, reduction or control of pollution of the sea or other waters by matter from ships) (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 360) applies in relation to drilling rigs and other platforms which are used, navigated or situated wholly or partly in or on water, as it applies in relation to ships: see the Merchant Shipping (Prevention of Pollution) (Drilling Rigs and Other Platforms) Order 2005, SI 2005/74, art 2.

5 Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003 s 112(1)(b).

6 Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003 s 112(1)(c). An order under s 112(1)(c) may provide for the shipping provision not to apply, or to apply with specified modifications, where it would conflict with a specified provision or class of provision made by or by virtue of an enactment: see s 112(6).

(iv) Cognate Law

25. Reports of craft movement for customs control.

For the purposes of the statutory prohibitions and restrictions, including duty, on the import and export of goods and animals¹, reports must be made of every ship arriving at, and clearance must be obtained of every ship departing from, a port appointed for those purposes from or to any place outside the United Kingdom².

Notification of the arrival of pleasure craft in the United Kingdom from a place outside the customs territory of the European Community or from certain other territories must be given to an officer of Revenue and Customs as soon as possible after the arrival of the craft³.

¹ As to such prohibitions generally see ANIMALS vol 2 (2008) PARA 868 et seq; CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARAS 999 et seq, 1027 et seq.

26. Regulation of craft to prevent smuggling.

The Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs¹ may make general regulations with respect to small ships² and any such regulations may in particular make provision as to the purposes for which and the limits within which such ships may be used³. Different provision may be made by such regulations for different classes or descriptions of small ships⁴.

The Commissioners may, in respect of any small ship, grant a licence exempting that ship from all or any of the provisions of any regulations so made⁵; and any such licence may be granted for such period, for such purposes and subject to such conditions and restrictions as the Commissioners see fit, and may be revoked at any time by the Commissioners⁶. Any small ship which, except under and in accordance with the terms of a licence so granted, is used contrary to any regulations so made, and any ship granted such a licence which is found not to have that licence on board, is liable to forfeiture⁷.

Every boat belonging to a British ship and every other vessel not exceeding 100 tons register, not being a fishing vessel registered under Part II of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁸, and every hovercraft, must be marked in such manner as the Commissioners may direct; and any such boat, vessel or hovercraft which is not so marked is liable to forfeiture⁹.

The Commissioners may make regulations:

- 100 (1) prescribing the procedure for making a report of a ship arriving, or expected to arrive, at a port from any place outside the United Kingdom or carrying any goods brought in that ship from some place outside the United Kingdom and not yet cleared on importation¹⁰;
- 101 (2) prescribing the procedure to be followed by a ship arriving at a port¹¹.

1 As to the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 900 et seq.

2 For these purposes, 'small ships' means: (1) ships not exceeding 100 tons register; and (2) hovercraft of whatever size: Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 81(1). 'Ship' and 'vessel' include any boat or other vessel whatsoever (and, to the extent provided in s 2, any hovercraft): s 1(1). 'Tons register' means the tons of a ship's net tonnage as ascertained and registered according to the tonnage regulations of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 (see PARA 248) or, in the case of a ship which is not registered under that Act, ascertained in like manner as if it were to be so registered: Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 1(1) (amended by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 314(2), Sch 13 para 53(1), (2)(b)). 'Hovercraft' means a hovercraft within the meaning of the Hovercraft Act 1968 (see PARA 381): Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 1(1).

3 Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 81(2) (amended by virtue of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (2), (7)). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made.

10 See the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 35(1) (amended by SI 1992/3095), the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 35(2), (4) (s 35(2) amended by the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006 s 35). In exercise of the powers conferred by the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 35, the Commissioners made the Ship's Report, Importation and Exportation by Sea Regulations 1981, SI 1981/1260 (amended by SI 1986/1819; SI 1992/3095) (see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARAS 953-954); and the Pleasure Craft (Arrival and Report) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1406 (see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 955).

As to the disclosure and sharing of information which is obtained or held in the exercise of specified powers and relates to passengers or freight on a ship, the crew of a ship, or to voyages (or to such other matters in respect of travel or freight as the Secretary of State and the Treasury may jointly specify by order) and which is obtained or held to the extent that the information is likely to be of use for immigration purposes, police purposes, or Revenue and Customs purposes see the Immigration, Asylum and Nationality Act 2006 ss 36-39; and CUSTOMS AND EXCISE.

27. Public health precautions.

The masters of ships arriving in, or departing from, the United Kingdom must observe the regulations for preventing danger to health from, or the spread of infection by means of, those ships; and these requirements are enforced by the port health authorities¹.

Certain statutory obligations in relation to the infestation of food apply to all vessels used for the transport or storage of food; and certain other obligations in relation to the destruction of rats and mice apply to any vessel which is not a sea-going ship².

1 See the Public Health (Ships) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/1435 (amended by SI 2001/1149; in relation to England by SI 2007/1446; and in relation to Wales by SI 2007/1901); and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 46 (2010) PARA 933 et seq.

29. Births and deaths at sea.

The Secretary of State may make regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 in relation to births and deaths in ships¹; and such regulations may require the master of any United Kingdom ship to make a return to a superintendent or proper officer of the birth or death of any person occurring in the ship and the death of any person employed in the ship, wherever occurring outside the United Kingdom, and to notify any such death to such person, if any, as the deceased may have named to him as his next of kin².

The Registrar General must preserve any returns made in the marine register book³.

Similar duties are imposed in relation to births and deaths on board Her Majesty's ships⁴ and on hovercraft⁵.

1 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 108; and PARA 654. As to the regulations so made see the Merchant Shipping (Returns of Births and Deaths) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/1577; and PARA 655.

31. Control of loading, unloading, coaling etc of ships in docks, harbours, canals etc.

Certain provisions of the Factories Act 1961¹ apply to the process of loading, unloading or coaling of any ship in any dock, harbour or canal, and to all machinery or plant (including any gangway or ladder used by any person employed to load or unload or coal a ship) used in those processes as if the processes were carried on in a factory and the machinery or plant were machinery or plant in a factory, and the person who carries on those processes were the occupier of a factory².

32. Control of work carried out in relation to ships or vessels.

Many of the provisions of the Factories Act 1961¹ apply to certain work carried out in a harbour or wet dock or in a ship but not to such work done either by the master or crew or during a trial run².

Detailed requirements as to safety and health in carrying out specified operations in relation to ships or vessels (including construction, reconstruction, repairing, refitting, painting and finishing, the scaling, scurfing or cleaning of boilers etc) are imposed by regulations which are generally in addition to and not in substitution for the requirements of the Factories Act 1961³.

34. Ships as goods; marine insurance.

Ships are personal chattels and as such are goods within the meaning of the law relating to the sale of goods¹.

Ships are also goods for the purposes of the statutory controls over mergers² and market investigations³ and for the purposes of enforcing certain consumer legislation⁴.

Ships, goods, freight, profits and every lawful marine adventure may be the subject of a contract of marine insurance against maritime perils, the law as to such insurance being codified in the Marine Insurance Act 1906⁵.

(3) ADMINISTRATION

(i) The Secretary of State and the Welsh Authorities

38. The Secretary of State and the Welsh Authorities.

Despite the fact that older statutes refer to ministers (occasionally, to specific ministers) or to government departments, the office of Secretary of State is a unified office, and in law each Secretary of State is capable of performing the duties of all or any of the departments¹. Accordingly, many modern statutes refer simply to the 'Secretary of State' without reference to a particular department or ministry². However, at the date at which this volume states the law, and unless the context otherwise requires, the functions of the Secretary of State under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 are performed by the Secretary of State for Transport³.

Many statutory functions vested in a Secretary of State or a Minister of the Crown are transferred so as to be exercisable in relation to Wales⁴ by the Welsh Ministers⁵. However, for the purposes of this title, the functions so transferred⁶ are limited to functions under the Protection of Wrecks Act 1973⁷. Nor does the legislative competence of the National Assembly for Wales extend to shipping, apart from: (1) financial assistance for shipping services to, from or within Wales⁸; and (2) regulation of the use of vessels carrying animals for the purposes of protecting human, animal, fish or plant health, animal welfare or the environment⁹.

1 See CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 355.

2 In any enactment, 'Secretary of State' means one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State: see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1; and STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1382. 5 Functions were previously transferred to the National Assembly for Wales by Order in Council under the Government of Wales Act 1998 s 22 (see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, arts 2, 3, Sch 1) or, in the case of functions conferred under enactments subsequent to the Government of Wales Act 1998, by virtue of particular provision made under those enactments: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. As to the National Assembly for Wales see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

Further transfers of ministerial functions to the Welsh Ministers may be effected by Order in Council pursuant to s 58, Sch 3 paras 1-8. INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/(i) The Secretary of State and the Welsh Authorities/39. General functions of the Secretary of State under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995.

39. General functions of the Secretary of State under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995.

Under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, the Secretary of State¹ continues to have the general superintendence of all matters relating to merchant shipping and seamen² and is authorised to carry into execution the provisions of that Act and of all Acts relating to merchant shipping and seamen for the time being in force, except where otherwise provided or so far as relating to revenue³.

Under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, the Secretary of State continues also to have the functions of taking, or co-ordinating, measures to prevent, reduce and minimise the effect of, marine pollution⁴.

40. Secretary of State's general power under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 to dispense.

The Secretary of State¹ may, if he thinks fit, and upon such conditions, if any, as he thinks fit to impose, exempt any ship² from any specified requirement of, or prescribed under, the Merchant Shipping Act 1995³, or dispense with the observance of any such requirement in the case of any ship, if he is satisfied, as respects that requirement, of the following matters⁴, namely:

- 102 (1) that the requirement has been substantially complied with in the case of that ship or that compliance with it is unnecessary in the circumstances⁵; and
- 103 (2) that the action taken or provision made as respects the subject matter of the requirement in the case of the ship is as effective as, or more effective than, actual compliance with the requirement⁶.

The Secretary of State must annually lay before both Houses of Parliament a special report stating: (a) the cases in which he has exercised his powers to dispense⁷ during the preceding year⁸; and (b) the grounds upon which he has acted in each case⁹.

INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/(i) The Secretary of State and the Welsh Authorities/41. Secretary of State's power to make regulations, orders, rules and directions under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995.

41. Secretary of State's power to make regulations, orders, rules and directions under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995.

Provision is made in relation to the Secretary of State's power to make regulations, orders, rules and directions under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995¹.

The Secretary of State may, if he thinks fit, appoint committees for the purpose of advising him when considering the making or alteration of any regulations, rules or scales for the purposes² of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995³. Committees may be so appointed to advise the Secretary of State, particularly as regards any special regulations, rules or scales or generally as regards any class or classes of regulations, rules or scales which the Secretary of State may assign to them⁴.

1 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 306(1)-(3) (amended by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 s 29(1), Sch 6 para 18(1)-(4); and SI 1998/2241).

Before making the following regulations or rules, namely:

- 12 (1) regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Pt III (ss 24-84) (masters and seamen) (see PARA 423 et seq) or s 108 (returns of births and deaths in ships) (see PARA 654) or s 130A (waste reception facilities at harbours) (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 421); or

- 13 (2) rules under Pt V Ch II (ss 121-127) (fishing vessels (safety)) (see PARA 604 et seq), the Secretary of State must consult with organisations in the United Kingdom appearing to him representative of persons who will be affected by the regulations or rules: s 306(4) (amended by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 Sch 6 para 18(1), (5)). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

Any direction, notice, order or authorisation under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 given or made by the Secretary of State must be in writing (s 306(5)); and any power to give a direction includes power to vary or revoke the direction by a subsequent direction (s 306(6)).

2 Ie other than for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Pt VI Ch II (ss 131-151) (oil pollution) (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 425 et seq): see s 301(1).

3 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 301(1). A committee so appointed must consist of persons representing the interests principally affected or having special knowledge of the subject matter (s 301(2)); and the Secretary of State must pay to the members of any such committee such travelling and other allowances as the Secretary of State determines with the consent of the Treasury (s 301(3)). INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/(i) The Secretary of State and the Welsh Authorities/42. Secretary of State's power to prepare and approve forms required under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995.

42. Secretary of State's power to prepare and approve forms required under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995.

The Secretary of State¹ may prepare and approve forms for any book, instrument or paper required under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, and may alter such forms as he thinks fit².

The Secretary of State must cause every such form to be marked with the distinguishing mark of his department and, before finally issuing any form or making any alteration in a form, must cause public notice thereof to be given in such manner as he thinks requisite in order to avoid inconvenience³.

The Secretary of State must cause such forms to be supplied at offices of Revenue and Customs and at offices of the Department of Transport, free of charge or at such reasonable prices as the Secretary of State may fix, or he may license any persons to print and sell the forms⁴.

Every such book, instrument or paper must be made in the form, if any, approved by the Secretary of State, or as near as circumstances permit; and, unless so made, is not admissible in evidence in any civil proceedings on the part of the owner or master⁵ of any ship⁶.

Every such book, instrument or paper, if made in a form purporting to be the proper form and to be marked with the distinguishing mark⁷, is deemed to be in the form required by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the contrary is proved⁸.

If any person prints, sells or uses any document purporting to be a form approved by the Secretary of State knowing that the document is not the form approved for the time being or that the document has not been prepared or issued by the Secretary of State, that person is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 2 on the standard scale⁹.

43. Secretary of State's power to require returns etc from officers under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995.

All superintendents¹ must make and send to the Secretary of State² such returns or reports on any matter relating to British merchant shipping³ or seamen⁴ as he may require⁵. All superintendents must also, when required by the Secretary of State, produce to him or to his officers all official log books⁶ and other documents which are delivered to them under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁷.

All consular officers⁸ abroad and all officers of revenue and customs abroad must make and send to the Secretary of State such returns or reports on any matter relating to British merchant shipping or seamen as he may require⁹.

All surveyors of ships¹⁰ must make such returns to the Secretary of State as he may require with respect to:

- 104 (1) the build, dimensions, draught, burden, speed and room for fuel of ships surveyed by them¹¹; and
- 105 (2) the nature and particulars of machinery and equipment of such ships¹².

The owner, master¹³ and engineer of any ship being surveyed must, when required to do so, give to the surveyors all such information and assistance within his power as the surveyors require for the purpose of such returns¹⁴.

The following duties also are imposed on all superintendents, and on all officers of revenue and customs (see the text and notes 8-9), as respects all documents which are delivered or transmitted to or retained by them in pursuance of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 (s 298(1) (amended by virtue of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (2), (7))), namely:

- 14 (1) they must take charge of the documents and keep them for such time, if any, as may be necessary for the purpose of settling any business arising at the place where the documents come into their hands, or for any other proper purpose (Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 298(2)); and
- 15 (2) they must, if required, produce them for any of those purposes, and must then transmit them to the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen (s 298(3)), who must retain documents transmitted to him in this way for such period as the Secretary of State may direct (s 298(4) (substituted by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 s 23)).

As from a day to be appointed by the Secretary of State by order under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 314(3), Sch 14 para 6(1), s 298 ceases to have effect: see Sch 14 para 6(1), (2). However, at the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed. As to the Secretary of State's power to give directions under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 41. As to the appointment of officers of Revenue and Customs see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 901 et seq.

Documents transmitted to the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen under s 298 (prospectively repealed) are admissible in evidence and, when in the custody of the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen, are open to public inspection: see s 287(1)(e); and PARA 1109. Secretary of State's power to require statistical returns in respect of carriage of goods and passengers by sea.

44. Secretary of State's power to require statistical returns in respect of carriage of goods and passengers by sea.

The Secretary of State¹ may require by notice in writing any person carrying on business or trade in the maritime transport sector² to furnish, in such form and manner and within such time as may be specified, such periodical or other returns about cargo, vessel and passenger movement information (including information about the vessel and additional particulars in relation to the transport of containers or ro-ro units)³ in relation to the carriage of goods and passengers by sea going vessels as may be specified⁴.

The failure to furnish returns as so required, or to furnish a false return, is an offence⁵.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 For these purposes, 'person carrying on business or trade in the maritime transport sector' includes any maritime transport operator and any person who acts as an agent on behalf of a maritime transport operator in relation to a contract for the transport of goods or persons by sea concluded with a shipper or a passenger; and 'maritime transport operator' means any person by whom or on behalf of whom a contract for the transport of goods or persons by sea is concluded with a shipper or a passenger: Statistical Returns (Carriage of Goods and Passengers by Sea) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/2330, reg 2(1).

3 I.e. such periodical or other returns about such of the matters set out in the Statistical Returns (Carriage of Goods and Passengers by Sea) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/2330, reg 3, Schedule: see reg 3.

4 Statistical Returns (Carriage of Goods and Passengers by Sea) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/2330, reg 3. The Secretary of State may require a harbour authority also to furnish returns under reg 3: see PORTS AND HARBOURS.

The Statistical Returns (Carriage of Goods and Passengers by Sea) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/2330, implement EC Council Directive 95/64 of 8 December 1995 (OJ L320, 30.12.1995, p 25) on statistical returns in respect of carriage of goods and passengers by sea (amended by EC Commission Decision 98/385 of 13 May 1998 (OJ L174, 18.06.1998, p 1); EC Commission Decision 2000/363 of 28 April 2000 (OJ L132, 05.06.2000, p 1); EC Regulation 1882/2003 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 29 September 2003 (OJ L284, 31.10.2003, p 1); EC Commission Decision 2005/366 of 4 March 2005 (OJ L123, 17.05.2005, p 1); and EC Commission Regulation 1304/2007 of 7 November 2007 (OJ L290, 08.11.2007, p 14)).

As to the Secretary of State's power to direct returns as to passengers to be furnished to him by masters of ships see PARA 653.

5 See the Statistical Returns (Carriage of Goods and Passengers by Sea) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/2330, reg 4; and PARA 1183.

45. The Admiralty Registrar and Registry.

In general, the Admiralty Registrar¹ deals with all applications in Admiralty claims² on matters which elsewhere in the Queen's Bench Division would be dealt with on application by a master³. However, the Admiralty Court⁴ may refer to the Admiralty Registrar any question or issue for his determination (a 'reference') at any stage in a claim⁵.

All Admiralty claims must be issued in the Admiralty and Commercial Registry⁶, which is the administrative office for the Admiralty Court and the Commercial Court⁷.

1 As to the Admiralty Registrar see PARA 140.

2 As to the procedure in Admiralty claims generally see PARA 91 et seq.

3 See PARA 141 et seq. Accordingly, the Admiralty Registrar may refer to a judge any matter which he thinks should properly be decided by a judge: see Practice Direction--Applications PD 23A para 1.

4 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court see PARA 79 et seq.

5 See Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 13; and PARA 143 et seq. However, the court will not order a reference if it can satisfactorily dispose of the question: see PARA 143.

6 See Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58 para 2 (which is applied by Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 1); and PARA 143 et seq.

(iii) Enforcement Officers and their Powers

A. ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS

46. Appointment of inspectors and surveyors.

The Secretary of State¹ may, if he thinks fit, appoint any person as an inspector² to report to him:

- 106 (1) upon the nature and causes of any accident³ or damage which any ship⁴ has or is alleged to have sustained or caused⁵;
- 107 (2) whether any requirements, restrictions or prohibitions imposed by or under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁶ have been complied with or, as the case may be, contravened⁷;
- 108 (3) whether the hull and machinery of a ship⁸ are sufficient and in good condition⁹;
- 109 (4) what measures have been taken to prevent the escape of oil¹⁰ or mixtures containing oil¹¹.

The Secretary of State may, at such ports¹² as he thinks fit, appoint persons to be surveyors of ships for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 and he may remove any person so appointed¹³. A surveyor of ships may be appointed either as a ship surveyor or as an engineer surveyor or as both¹⁴; and surveyors of ships may be appointed either generally or for any particular case or purpose¹⁵. The Secretary of State may also appoint a surveyor general of ships for the United Kingdom¹⁶ and such other officers in connection with the survey of ships and other matters incidental thereto as he thinks fit¹⁷.

The Secretary of State may also appoint persons to be inspectors for the purposes of the statutory provisions relating to improvement notices and prohibition notices¹⁸.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'departmental inspector' means an inspector appointed under s 256(1): ss 256(9)(a), 313(1). As to the powers of an inspector so appointed see PARA 46; and as to the payment of the salary etc of an inspector see PARA 64. Every inspector appointed under s 256(1) is to be treated as appointed under s 256(6) (see the text and note 18): s 256(7) (amended by the Merchant Shipping and Marine Safety Act 1997 s 29(1), Sch 6 para 15).

In relation to a vessel, an inspector appointed under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 256 is an 'authorised person' for the purposes of the Licensing Act 2003 Pt 3 (ss 11-59) (see s 13(2); and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 54) (premises licences) and Pt 4 (ss 60-97) (see s 69(2); and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 89) (clubs).

12 In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'port' includes place: s 313(1).

13 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 256(2). In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'surveyor of ships' means a surveyor appointed under s 256(2): ss 256(9)(b), 313(1). Every surveyor of ships is to be treated as a person appointed generally under s 256(1) (see the text and notes 1-11) to report to the Secretary of State in every kind of case falling within s 256(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text) and s 256(1)(d) (see head (4) in the text) in relation to Pt VI Ch II (ss 131-151) (oil pollution) (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 425 et seq): s 256(8). As to returns required to be made by surveyors and the giving of information to surveyors see PARA 43; and as to the salaries etc of surveyors of ships see PARA 64.

In relation to a vessel, a surveyor of ships appointed under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 256 is an 'authorised person' for the purposes of the Licensing Act 2003 Pt 3 (ss 11-59) (see s 13(2); and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 54) (premises licences) and Pt 4 (ss 60-97) (see s 69(2); and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 89) (clubs).

INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/ (iii) Enforcement Officers and their Powers/B. POWERS OF INSPECTION ETC/47. Power to require production of ship's documents.

B. POWERS OF INSPECTION ETC

47. Power to require production of ship's documents.

Powers are conferred by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995¹:

- 110 (1) to require the owner, master² or any of the crew to produce any official log books³ or other documents relating to the crew or any member of the crew in their possession or control⁴;
- 111 (2) to require the master to produce a list of all persons on board his ship⁵, and take copies of or extracts from the official log books or other such documents⁶;
- 112 (3) to muster the crew⁷; and
- 113 (4) to require the master to appear and give any explanation concerning the ship or her crew or the official log books or documents produced or required to be produced⁸.

The powers so conferred⁹ are conferred in relation to United Kingdom ships¹⁰ and are available to any of the following officers, namely:

- 114 (a) any Departmental officer¹¹;
- 115 (b) any commissioned naval officer¹²;
- 116 (c) any British consular officer¹³;
- 117 (d) the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen¹⁴ or any person discharging his functions¹⁵;
- 118 (e) any officer of Revenue and Customs¹⁶;
- 119 (f) any superintendent¹⁷,

whenever the officer has reason to suspect that the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 or any law for the time being in force relating to merchant seamen or navigation is not complied with¹⁸.

If any person, on being duly required¹⁹ by an officer to produce a log book or any document, fails without reasonable excuse to produce the log book or document, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale²⁰.

If any person, on being duly required²¹ by any officer: (i) to produce a log book or document, refuses to allow the log book or document to be inspected or copied²²; (ii) to muster the crew, impedes the muster²³; or (iii) to give any explanation, refuses or neglects to give the explanation or knowingly misleads or deceives the officer²⁴, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale²⁵.

INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/ (iii) Enforcement Officers and their Powers/B. POWERS OF INSPECTION ETC/48. Powers to inspect ships and their equipment etc.

48. Powers to inspect ships and their equipment etc.

For the purpose of seeing that the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 (other than certain provisions relating to oil pollution¹) and of regulations and rules so made² are complied with, or that the terms of any approval, licence, consent, direction or exemption given by virtue of such regulations are duly complied with, the following persons, namely³:

- 120 (1) a surveyor of ships⁴;
- 121 (2) a superintendent⁵;
- 122 (3) any person appointed by the Secretary of State⁶, either generally or in a particular case, to exercise the powers⁷ to inspect ships and their equipment etc⁸, may at all reasonable times go on board a ship in the United Kingdom⁹ or in United Kingdom waters¹⁰ and inspect the ship and its equipment or any part thereof, any articles on board and any document carried in the ship in pursuance of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 or in pursuance of regulations or rules made thereunder¹¹.

A person exercising these powers¹² to inspect ships and their equipment etc must not unnecessarily detain or delay a ship but may, if he considers it necessary in consequence of an accident¹³ or for any other reason, require a ship to be taken into dock for a survey of its hull or machinery¹⁴.

Where any such person as is mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above has reasonable grounds for believing that there are on any premises provisions or water intended for supply to a United Kingdom ship which, if provided on the ship, would not be in accordance with safety regulations¹⁵ containing requirements as to provisions and water to be provided on ships¹⁶, he may enter the premises and inspect the provisions or water for the purpose of ascertaining whether they would be in accordance with the regulations¹⁷.

If any person obstructs a person in the exercise of these powers¹⁸, or fails to comply with a requirement made by a person exercising his powers, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale¹⁹.

2 le made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, other than ss 131-141, 143-151 (oil pollution) (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 425 et seq): see s 258(1) (as amended: see note 3).

4 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 258(1)(a). As to the meaning of 'surveyor of ships' see PARA 46 note 13.

5 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 258(1)(b). As to the meaning of 'superintendent' see PARA 60 note 1.

6 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

7 le under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 258: see s 258(1)(c).

8 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 258(1)(c). As to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

9 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

10 In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, 'United Kingdom waters' means the sea or other waters within the seaward limits of the territorial sea of the United Kingdom: see s 313(2)(a). See note 11. As to the territorial sea generally see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 123.

11 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 258(1) (as amended: see note 3).

The powers conferred by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 258(1) are, if the ship is a United Kingdom ship, also exercisable outside United Kingdom waters and may be so exercised by a proper officer as well as the persons mentioned in heads (1) to (3) in the text: Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 258(2) (amended by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 Sch 1 para 4(4)). In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'proper officer' means a consular officer appointed by Her Majesty's government in the United Kingdom and, in relation to a port in a country outside the United Kingdom which is not a foreign country, also any officer exercising in that port functions similar to those of a superintendent; 'consular officer', in relation to a foreign country, means the officer recognised by Her Majesty as a consular officer of that foreign country: s 313(1). As to consular officers in the United Kingdom see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 290 et seq. However, the powers conferred by s 258(1) are not exercisable in relation to a qualifying foreign ship while the ship is exercising the right of innocent passage or the right of transit passage through straits used for international navigation: s 258(1A) (added by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 Sch 1 para 4(3)). As to the meaning of 'port' see PARA 46 note 12; as to the meaning of 'qualifying foreign ship' see PARA 19; as to the meanings of 'right of innocent passage', 'right of transit passage' and 'straits used for international passage' see PARA 68; and as to the meaning of 'United Kingdom ship' see PARA 230. As to innocent passage generally see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 133; and as to transit passage generally see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 143.

Ships when in ports in the United Kingdom, and also in the case of United Kingdom ships when elsewhere, are subject to inspection for the purpose of checking that the master and crew are familiar with essential procedures and operations relating to the safety of the ship: see the Merchant Shipping (Port State Control) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/3128, reg 20(1); and PARA 707. Accordingly, the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 258 applies in relation to a ship in a port in the United Kingdom as if, in s 258(1), after 'articles on board' there were inserted 'the familiarity of the crew with essential procedures and operations relating to the safety of the ship': see the Merchant Shipping (Port State Control) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/3128, reg 20(2); and PARA 707.

The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 258 applies both to the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Control of Noise at Work) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3075, and to the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Carcinogens and Mutagens) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3100, as if they were for all purposes made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 85 (see PARA 591 et seq) and accordingly s 258 applies in relation to government ships: see the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Control of Noise at Work) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3075, reg 19; the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Carcinogens and Mutagens) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3100, reg 22; and PARAS 636, 638. As to government ships see PARA 20.

13 As to the power to make provision by safety regulations with respect to the steps to be taken in consequence of any collision involving a ship see PARA 591; and as to accident investigations and inquiries see PARA 844 et seq.

14 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 258(3).

15 As to the meaning of 'safety regulations' see PARA 591.

INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/ (iii) Enforcement Officers and their Powers/B. POWERS OF INSPECTION ETC/49. Powers of inspectors in relation to premises and ships.

49. Powers of inspectors in relation to premises and ships.

In relation to any premises in the United Kingdom¹ or any United Kingdom ship² wherever it may be, and any other ship which is present in the United Kingdom or in United Kingdom waters³, an inspector⁴:

- 123 (1) may at any reasonable time (or, in a situation which in his opinion is or may be dangerous, at any time) enter any premises or board any ship if he has reason to believe that it is necessary for him to do so⁵;
- 124 (2) may, on entering any premises by virtue of head (1) above or on boarding a ship by virtue of head (1) above, take with him any other person authorised for the purpose by the Secretary of State and any equipment or materials he requires⁶;
- 125 (3) may make such examination and investigation as he considers necessary⁷;
- 126 (4) may give a direction requiring that the premises or ship or any part of the premises or ship or any thing in the premises or ship or such a part are to be left undisturbed (whether generally or in particular respects) for so long as is reasonably necessary for the purposes of any examination or investigation under head (3) above⁸;
- 127 (5) may take such measurements and photographs and make such recordings as he considers necessary for the purpose of any examination or investigation under head (3) above⁹;
- 128 (6) may take samples of any articles or substances found in the premises or ship and of the atmosphere in or in the vicinity of the premises or ship¹⁰;
- 129 (7) may, in the case of any article or substance which he finds in the premises or ship and which appears to him to have caused or to be likely to cause danger to health or safety, cause it to be dismantled or subjected to any process or test (but not so as to damage or destroy it unless that is in the circumstances necessary)¹¹;
- 130 (8) may, in the case of any such article or substance as is mentioned in head (7) above, take possession of it and detain it for so long as is necessary for all or any of the following purposes¹², namely: (a) to examine it and do to it anything which he has power to do under head (7) above¹³; (b) to ensure that it is not tampered with before his examination of it is completed¹⁴; (c) to ensure that it is available for use as evidence in any proceedings for an offence under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 or any instrument made under it¹⁵;
- 131 (9) may require any person who he has reasonable cause to believe is able to give any information relevant to any examination or investigation under head (3) above¹⁶: (a) to attend at a place and time specified by the inspector¹⁷; and (b) to answer, in the absence of persons other than any persons whom the inspector may allow to be present and a person nominated to be present by the person on whom the requirement is imposed, such questions as the inspector thinks fit to ask¹⁸; and (c) to sign a declaration of the truth of his answers¹⁹;
- 132 (10) may require the production of, and inspect and take copies of or of any entry in²⁰: (a) any books or documents which by virtue of any provision of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 are required to be kept²¹; and (b) any other books or documents which he considers it necessary for him to see for the purposes of any examination or investigation under head (3) above²²;

- 133 (11) may require any person to afford him such facilities and assistance with respect to any matters or things within that person's control or in relation to which that person has responsibilities as the inspector considers are necessary to enable him to exercise any of the powers conferred on him by heads (1) to (10) above²³.

However, nothing in these powers²⁴ authorises a person unnecessarily to prevent a ship from proceeding on a voyage²⁵.

A person who:

- 134 (i) intentionally obstructs an inspector in the exercise of any power available to him²⁶ in relation to premises and ships²⁷; or 135 (ii) without reasonable excuse does not comply with a requirement duly imposed²⁸ or prevents another person from complying with such a requirement²⁹; or is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine, or to both, or on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum³¹.

2 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(1)(b). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom ship' see PARA 230; and as to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

3 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(1). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom waters' see PARA 48 note 10. As to the exercise of certain powers under s 259(1) see further notes 5, 7, 20.

4 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2). The powers conferred by s 259 are available to any Departmental inspector, or any inspector appointed under s 256(6) (see PARA 46), for the purpose of performing his functions: see s 259(1). As to the meaning of 'Departmental inspector' see PARA 46 note 2.

The powers conferred on a Departmental inspector by s 259 are conferred also on a superintendent or proper officer holding an inquiry under s 272: see s 272(2); and PARA 874. As to the meaning of 'proper officer' see PARA 48 note 11; and as to the meaning of 'superintendent' see PARA 60 note 1.

The powers conferred on an inspector by s 259 are conferred also on:

- 16 (1) an arbitrator to whom certain matters are referred in relation to a detention notice issued under s 95 (see PARA 1204) (see s 96(8); and PARA 1205);
 17 (2) (with the exception of s 259(3), (4), (6) (see the text and notes 5, 7, 20)) arbitrators to whom certain questions arising in relation to ss 261-263 (see PARAS 50-52) are referred (see s 264(7); and PARA 53);
 18 (3) inspectors of marine accidents (see s 267(8); and PARA 844) and certain persons specified in regulations made under s 267 with respect to the investigation of such accidents (see s 267(4) (i); the Merchant Shipping (Accident Reporting and Investigation) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/881, reg 10; and PARA 852);
 19 (4) a superintendent or proper officer (see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 271(4); and PARA 873);
 20 (5) (with the exception of s 259(2)(d)-(h) (see heads (4) to (8) in the text)) an inspector appointed for the purpose of determining whether a fishing vessel is eligible to be registered on Part II of the central register of British ships (see the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 16; and PARA 265);
 21 (6) an arbitrator to whom certain matters are referred in relation to a detention notice or access refusal notice in pursuance of a power of detention or refusal of access to which the

Merchant Shipping (Port State Control) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/3128, reg 11 (right of appeal and compensation) applies (see reg 11(8); and PARA 700);

- 22 (7) an authorised person exercising functions under the Merchant Shipping (ISM Code) (Ro-Ro Passenger Ferries) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/3022, reg 4 (powers of inspection, suspension of service and detention) (see reg 4(4); and PARA 632);
- 23 (8) an authorised person exercising functions under the Merchant Shipping (International Safety Management (ISM) Code) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/1561, reg 16 (powers of audit, inspection, suspension of service and detention) (see PARA 632); and
- 24 (9) an authorised person exercising functions under the Merchant Shipping (Domestic Passenger Ships) (Safety Management Code) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3209, reg 9 (enforcement) (see PARA 633).

The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259 and s 260 apply both to the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Control of Noise at Work) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3075, and to the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Carcinogens and Mutagens) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3100, as if they were for all purposes made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 85 (see PARA 591 et seq) and accordingly ss 259, 260 apply in relation to government ships: see the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Control of Noise at Work) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3075, reg 19; the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Carcinogens and Mutagens) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3100, reg 22; and PARAS 636, 638. As to government ships see PARA 20.

5 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(a).

The powers conferred by s 259(2)(a) are also exercisable, in relation to a ship in a harbour in the United Kingdom, by the harbour master or other persons appointed by the Secretary of State for the purpose, for the purpose of ascertaining the circumstances relating to an alleged discharge of oil or a mixture containing oil from the ship into the harbour: s 259(6). In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'harbour' includes estuaries, navigable rivers, piers, jetties and other works in or at which ships can obtain shelter or ship and unship goods or passengers: s 313(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

The powers conferred by s 259(2) to inspect premises are also exercisable, for the purposes of Pt VI Ch II (ss 131-151) (oil pollution) (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 425 et seq), in relation to any apparatus used for transferring oil: s 259(4). In this context, and in relation to places on land in Northern Ireland and apparatus located in Northern Ireland otherwise than on board ships, see further s 259(5). See note 4.

6 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(b). See notes 4, 5.

7 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(c). See notes 4, 5.

The powers conferred by s 259(2)(c) are also exercisable, in relation to a ship in a harbour in the United Kingdom, by the harbour master or other persons appointed by the Secretary of State for the purpose, for the purpose of ascertaining the circumstances relating to an alleged discharge of oil or a mixture containing oil from the ship into the harbour: s 259(6).

8 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(d). See notes 4, 5.

9 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(e). See notes 4, 5.

10 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(f). See notes 4, 5.

The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision as to the procedure to be followed in connection with the taking of samples under s 259(2)(f) and provision as to the way in which samples that have been so taken are to be dealt with: s 259(8). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made. As to the Secretary of State's power to make regulations generally, and as to his power to appoint committees for the purpose of advising him when considering the making or alteration of any regulations, see PARA 41.

11 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(g). See notes 4, 5.

Where an inspector proposes to exercise the power conferred by s 259(2)(g) in the case of an article or substance found in any premises or ship, he must, if so requested by a person who at the time is present and has responsibilities in relation to the premises or ship, cause anything which is to be done by virtue of that power to be done in the presence of that person unless the inspector considers that its being done in that person's presence would be prejudicial to the safety of that person: s 259(9). Before exercising the power conferred by s 259(2)(g), an inspector must consult such persons as appear to him appropriate for the purpose of ascertaining what dangers, if any, there may be in doing anything which he proposes to do under that power: s 259(10).

12 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(h). See notes 4, 5.

Where, under the power conferred by s 259(2)(h), an inspector takes possession of any article or substance found in any premises or ship, he must leave there, either with a responsible person or, if that is impracticable, fixed in a conspicuous position, a notice giving particulars of that article or substance sufficient to identify it and stating that he has taken possession of it under that power; and, before taking possession of any such substance under that power, an inspector must, if it is practicable for him to do so, take a sample of the substance and give to a responsible person at the premises or on board the ship a portion of the sample marked in a manner sufficient to identify it: s 259(11). The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision as to the procedure to be followed in connection with the taking of samples under s 259(11) and provision as to the way in which samples that have been so taken are to be dealt with: s 259(8). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made. As to the service of documents under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 generally see s 291; and PARA 73.

17 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(i)(i). See notes 4, 5.

A person who complies with a requirement imposed on him in pursuance of s 259(2)(i)(i) is entitled to recover from the person who imposed the requirement such sums in respect of the expenses incurred in complying with the requirement as are prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State: s 260(3). Such regulations may make different provision for different circumstances: s 260(4). Any payments so made must be made out of money provided by Parliament: s 260(5). However, at the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made.

18 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(i)(ii). See notes 4, 5.

No answer given by a person in pursuance of a requirement imposed under s 259(2)(i) is admissible in evidence against that person or the husband or wife of that person in any proceedings except proceedings in pursuance of s 260(1)(c) (see head (iii) in the text) in respect of a statement in or a declaration relating to the answer; and a person nominated as mentioned in s 259(2)(i) is entitled, on the occasion on which the questions there mentioned are asked, to make representations to the inspector on behalf of the person who nominated him: s 259(12).

19 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(i)(iii). See notes 4, 5.

20 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(j). See notes 4, 5.

The powers conferred by s 259(2)(j) are also exercisable, in relation to a ship in a harbour in the United Kingdom, by the harbour master or other persons appointed by the Secretary of State for the purpose, for the purpose of ascertaining the circumstances relating to an alleged discharge of oil or a mixture containing oil from the ship into the harbour: s 259(6).

The powers conferred by s 259(2) to require the production of any document and copy it include, in relation to oil record books required to be carried under s 142 (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 432), power to require the master to certify the copy as a true copy: s 259(3). As to the meaning of 'master' see PARA 424.

However, nothing in s 259 is to be taken to compel the production by any person of a document of which he would on grounds of legal professional privilege be entitled to withhold production on an order for discovery in an action in the High Court: s 260(2). As to legal professional privilege see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARAS 558 et seq, 972; CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(3) (2006 Reissue) PARA 1479. 23 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(k). See notes 4, 5.

A person who complies with a requirement imposed on him in pursuance of s 259(2)(k) is entitled to recover from the person who imposed the requirement such sums in respect of the expenses incurred in complying with the requirement as are prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State: s 260(3). Such regulations may make different provision for different circumstances: s 260(4). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made. Any payments so made must be made out of money provided by Parliament: s 260(5).

C. POWERS IN CONNECTION WITH IMPROVEMENT NOTICES AND PROHIBITION NOTICES

50. Improvement notices.

If an inspector appointed by the Secretary of State¹ is of the opinion that a person:

- 137 (1) is contravening one or more of the relevant statutory provisions²; or
- 138 (2) has contravened one or more of those provisions in circumstances that make it likely that the contravention³ will continue or be repeated⁴, he may serve on that person a notice (an 'improvement notice')⁵.

An improvement notice must:

- 139 (a) state that the inspector is of such opinion, specify the provision or provisions as to which he is of that opinion, and give particulars of the reasons why he is of that opinion⁶; and
- 140 (b) require the person on whom the notice is served to remedy the contravention in question or, as the case may be, the matters occasioning it within such period as may be specified in the notice⁷.

The period specified in pursuance of head (b) above must not expire before the end of the period within which a notice can be given to the inspector⁸ requiring questions relating to the improvement notice to be referred to arbitration⁹.

1 le an inspector appointed under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 256(6) (see PARA 46); see s 261(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 261(1)(a). See note 5. For these purposes, 'relevant statutory provisions' means:

25 (1) s 43 (see PARA 485), s 44 (see PARA 487), s 46 (see PARA 489), s 47 (see PARA 490), s 48 (see PARA 491), s 49 (see PARA 1136), s 50 (see PARA 501), s 51 (see PARA 492), s 52 (see PARA 1140), s 53 (see PARA 493), s 54 (see PARA 494), s 55 (see PARA 503), s 85 (see PARA 591), s 86 (see PARA 592), s 88 (and Sch 2) (see PARAS 595-598), s 99 (see PARA 1208), s 109 (see PARA 458), s 115 (see PARA 626), s 116 (see PARA 502), s 121 (see PARA 604), s 122 (see PARA 605), s 123 (see PARA 606), s 124 (see PARA 606), s 125 (see PARA 607), s 126 (see PARA 608), ss 128-130A (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARAS 360, 362, 364, 421), ss 131-151 (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 425 et seq) and s 272 (see PARA 874) (s 261(4)(a) (amended by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 s 29(1), Sch 6 para 16; SI 1998/2241; and SI 1998/2647)); and 26 (2) the provisions of any instrument of a legislative character having effect under any of those provisions (Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 261(4)(b)).

3 For these purposes, 'contravention' includes failure to comply; and 'failure' includes refusal: Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313(1).

4 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 261(1)(b). See note 5.

5 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 261(1). A notice served on a person under s 261 is referred to in ss 262-266 (see PARAS 51-54, 1241) as an improvement notice: see s 261(1). As to the service of documents under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 generally see s 291; and PARA 73. As to the content and effect of improvement notices see PARA 52; and as to offences arising from the contravention of any requirement imposed by an improvement notice see PARA 1241.

The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 261 applies both to the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Control of Noise at Work) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3075, and to the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Carcinogens and Mutagens) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3100, as if they were for all purposes made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 85 (see PARA 591 et seq) and accordingly s 261 applies in relation to government ships: see the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Control of Noise at Work) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3075, reg 19; the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Carcinogens and Mutagens) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3100, reg 22; and PARAS 636, 638. INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/ (iii) Enforcement Officers and their Powers/C. POWERS IN CONNECTION WITH IMPROVEMENT NOTICES AND PROHIBITION NOTICES/51. Prohibition notices.

51. Prohibition notices.

If, as regards any relevant activities¹ which are being or are likely to be carried on on board any ship² by or under the control of any person, an inspector appointed by the Secretary of State³ is of the opinion that, as so carried on or as likely to be so carried on, the activities involve or, as the case may be, will involve the risk of serious personal injury to any person (whether on board the ship or not) or serious pollution of any navigable waters, the inspector may serve on the first-mentioned person a notice (a 'prohibition notice')⁴.

A prohibition notice must:

- 141 (1) state that the inspector is of such opinion⁵;
- 142 (2) specify the matters which in his opinion give or, as the case may be, will give rise to such risk⁶;
- 143 (3) where in his opinion any of those matters involve or, as the case may be, will involve a contravention⁷ of any of the relevant statutory provisions state that he is of that opinion, specify the provision or provisions as to which he is of that opinion, and give particulars of the reasons why he is of that opinion⁸; and
- 144 (4) direct:
 - 3 3. (a) that the activities to which the notice relates are not to be carried on by or under the control of the person on whom the notice is served⁹; or
 - 4 4. (b) that the ship is not to go to sea¹⁰,
- 145 (or both of those things) unless the matters specified in the notice in pursuance of head (2) above, and any associated contraventions of any provision so specified in pursuance of head (3) above, have been remedied¹¹.

A direction contained in a prohibition notice in pursuance of head (4) above takes effect at the end of the period specified in the notice or, if the direction is given in pursuance of head (4)(b) above or the notice so declares, immediately¹².

1 For these purposes, 'relevant activities' means activities to or in relation to which any of the relevant statutory provisions apply or will, if the activities are carried on as mentioned in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 262(1), apply: see s 262(2). INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/ (iii) Enforcement Officers and their Powers/C. POWERS IN CONNECTION WITH IMPROVEMENT NOTICES AND PROHIBITION NOTICES/52. Contents and effect of notices.

52. Contents and effect of notices.

An improvement notice¹ or a prohibition notice² may, but need not, include directions as to the measures to be taken to remedy any contravention³ or matter to which the notice relates; and any such directions may be framed so as to afford the person on whom the notice is served a choice between different ways of remedying the contravention or matter⁴.

An improvement notice or a prohibition notice must not direct any measures to be taken to remedy the contravention of any of the relevant statutory provisions⁵ that are more onerous than those necessary to secure compliance with that provision⁶.

Where an improvement notice or a prohibition notice that is not to take immediate effect has been served: (1) the notice may be withdrawn by an inspector at any time before the end of the period specified in it⁷; and (2) the period so specified may be extended or further extended by an inspector at any time when a reference to arbitration in respect of the notice is not pending⁸.

1 As to the meaning of 'improvement notice' see PARA 50.

2 As to the meaning of 'prohibition notice' see PARA 51.

3 As to the meaning of 'contravention' see PARA 50 note 3.

4 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 263(1).

The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 263 applies both to the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Control of Noise at Work) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3075, and to the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Carcinogens and Mutagens) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3100, as if they were for all purposes made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 85 (see PARA 591 et seq) and accordingly s 263 applies in relation to government ships: see the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Control of Noise at Work) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3075, reg 19; the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Carcinogens and Mutagens) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3100, reg 22; and PARAS 636, 638. 8 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 263(3)(b). The text refers to a reference to arbitration which is not pending under s 264 (see PARA 53): see s 263(3)(b). See note 4.

INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/ (iii) Enforcement Officers and their Powers/C. POWERS IN CONNECTION WITH IMPROVEMENT NOTICES AND PROHIBITION NOTICES/53. References of notices to arbitration.

53. References of notices to arbitration.

Any question:

- 146 (1) as to whether any of the reasons or matters specified in an improvement notice¹ or a prohibition notice² in connection with any opinion formed by the inspector³ constituted a valid basis for that opinion⁴; or
- 147 (2) as to whether any directions included in such a notice⁵ were reasonable⁶, must, if the person on whom the notice was served so requires by a notice given to the inspector⁷ within 21 days from the service of the improvement or prohibition notice, be referred to a single arbitrator appointed by agreement between the parties for that question to be decided by him⁸.

Where a notice to arbitration is so given by a person⁹, then:

- 148 (a) in the case of an improvement notice, the giving of the notice has the effect of suspending the operation of the improvement notice until the decision of the arbitrator is published to the parties or the reference is abandoned by that person¹⁰;
- 149 (b) in the case of a prohibition notice, the giving of the notice has the effect of so suspending the operation of the prohibition notice if, but only if, on the application of that person the arbitrator so directs, and then only from the giving of the direction¹¹.

Where, on a reference to arbitration¹², the arbitrator decides as respects any reason, matter or direction to which the reference relates, that in all the circumstances either: (i) the reason or matter did not constitute a valid basis for the inspector's opinion¹³; or (ii) the direction was unreasonable¹⁴, he must either cancel the notice or affirm it with such modifications as he may in the circumstances think fit; and in any other case the arbitrator must affirm the notice in its original form¹⁵. However, where any such reference¹⁶ involves the consideration by the arbitrator of the effects of any particular activities or state of affairs on the health or safety of any persons, he must not on that reference make any such decision as is mentioned either in head (i) or head (ii) above except after:

- 150 (A) in the case of an improvement notice, affording an opportunity of making oral representations to him with respect to those effects to a member of any such panel of representatives of maritime trade unions as may be appointed by the Secretary of State for these purposes¹⁷; or
- 151 (B) in the case of a prohibition notice, affording an opportunity of making such representations to him to either a representative of a trade union representing persons whose interests it appears to him that the notice was designed to safeguard or a member of any such panel as is referred to in head (A) above, as he thinks appropriate¹⁸; and
- 152 (C) (in either case) considering any representations made to him in pursuance of head (A) or head (B) above¹⁹.

1 le specified in an improvement notice in pursuance of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 261(2)(a) (see PARA 50): see s 264(1)(a). As to the meaning of 'improvement notice' see PARA 50.

2 le specified in a prohibition notice in pursuance of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 262(3)(b) or s 262(3)(c) (see PARA 51): see s 264(1)(a). As to the meaning of 'prohibition notice' see PARA 51.

3 le an inspector appointed by the Secretary of State under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 256(6): see PARA 46. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

6 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 264(1)(b).

7 As to the service of documents under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 generally see s 291; and PARA 73. Any notice authorised by s 264 to be given to an inspector may be given by delivering it to him or by leaving it at, or sending it by post to, his office: see s 291(5); and PARA 73.

8 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 264(1). As to references to an arbitrator in Scotland see s 264(8). The provisions of the Arbitration Act 1996 Pt I (ss 1-84) apply to every arbitration under an enactment (a 'statutory arbitration') (see s 94), subject to certain adaptations and exclusions (see ss 95-98); and see ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1209 et seq.

In connection with his functions under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 264, an arbitrator has the powers conferred on an inspector by s 259, other than s 259(3), (4), (6) (see PARA 49): s 264(7). However, a person is not qualified for appointment as an arbitrator under s 264 unless he is:

27 (1) a person holding a certificate of competency as a master mariner or as a marine engineer officer class 1, or a person holding a certificate equivalent to any such certificate (s 264(5)(a));

28 (2) a naval architect (s 264(5)(b));

29 (3) a person who satisfies the judicial-appointment eligibility condition on a seven-year basis (see LEGAL PROFESSIONS), is an advocate or solicitor in Scotland of at least seven years' standing, or is a member of the bar of Northern Ireland or a solicitor of the Supreme Court of Northern Ireland of at least seven years' standing (s 264(5)(c), (6) (s 264(6) amended by the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 s 50, Sch 10 Pt 1 para 26(1)-(3))); or 30 (4) a person with special experience of shipping matters, of the fishing industry or of activities carried on in ports (Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 264(5)(d)).

As to the meaning of 'port' see PARA 46 note 12. As to the judicial-appointment eligibility condition see the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 ss 50-52. As from a day to be appointed under the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 148(1), the reference in head (3) to a 'solicitor of the Supreme Court of Northern Ireland' is amended to read 'solicitor of the Court of Judicature of Northern Ireland': see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 264(6) (prospectively amended by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59(5), Sch 11 Pt 3 para 5). However, at the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed.

In the operation of s 264, as it is applied by the Merchant Shipping (Survey and Certification) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1210, reg 25 (see PARA 600) and as it applies in relation to a detention notice or order so served on the master of a ship which is not a British ship, the giving of a notice under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 264 (as so applied) does not operate to suspend the operation of the detention notice or order: see the Merchant Shipping (Port State Control) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/3128, reg 10(4); and PARA 700.

The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 264 applies both to the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Control of Noise at Work) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3075, and to the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Carcinogens and Mutagens) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3100, as if they were for all purposes made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 85 (see PARA 591 et seq) and accordingly s 264 applies in relation to government ships: see the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Control of Noise at Work) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3075, reg 19; the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Carcinogens and Mutagens) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3100, reg 22; and PARAS 636, 638. 53 References of notices to arbitration

NOTE 8--Appointed day is 1 October 2009: SI 2009/1604.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/1. INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/ (iii) Enforcement Officers and their Powers/C. POWERS IN CONNECTION WITH IMPROVEMENT NOTICES AND PROHIBITION NOTICES/54. Compensation in connection with invalid prohibition notices.

54. Compensation in connection with invalid prohibition notices.

If, on a reference to arbitration¹ relating to a prohibition notice²:

- 153 (1) the arbitrator³ decides that any reason or matter did not constitute a valid basis for the inspector's opinion⁴; and
- 154 (2) it appears to him that there were no reasonable grounds for the inspector to form that opinion⁵, the arbitrator may award the person on whom the notice was served such compensation in respect of any loss suffered by him in consequence of the service of the notice as the arbitrator thinks fit⁶.

If, on any such reference, the arbitrator decides that any direction included in the notice⁷ was unreasonable, the arbitrator may award the person on whom the notice was served such compensation in respect of any loss suffered by him in consequence of the direction as the arbitrator thinks fit⁸.

An arbitrator must not, however, award any such compensation⁹ in the case of any prohibition notice unless:

- 155 (a) it appears to him that the direction given¹⁰ contained a specific requirement that the ship was not to go to sea¹¹; or
- 156 (b) it appears to him that the inspector was of the opinion that there would be such a risk of injury or pollution as is referred to in the notice if the ship went to sea and that the effect of the direction so given¹² was to prohibit the departure of the ship unless the matters, or (as the case may be) the matters and contraventions¹³, referred to in the direction were remedied¹⁴.

Any compensation so awarded¹⁵ is payable by the Secretary of State¹⁶.

(iv) Lighthouse Authorities

55. The Lighthouse Authorities.

There are three General Lighthouse Authorities (GLAs)¹, each with separate geographical responsibilities, namely:

- 157 (1) the Trinity House which is the GLA as respects England and Wales and the adjacent seas and islands²;
- 158 (2) the Northern Lighthouse Board (Commissioners of Northern Lighthouses) which is the GLA as respects Scotland and the adjacent seas and islands, as well as respects the Isle of Man and the seas adjacent thereto³; and
- 159 (3) the Commissioners of Irish Lights who constitute the GLA as respects Northern Ireland and the adjacent seas and islands, as well as the Republic of Ireland⁴.

The three GLAs provide, for example, lighthouse services and navigational aids and other aids for the safety of ships⁵.

The GLAs are funded exclusively through the General Lighthouse Fund (GLF) which is administered by the Secretary of State⁶. Its income is mainly derived from the payment of general light dues charged predominantly on commercial shipping in the United Kingdom and Ireland (both Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland)⁷ but the fund is supplemented by a grant from the Irish government.

All lighthouses were automated by 1998, with controls centralised at each GLA's headquarters, and the GLAs have focused since on continuing to reduce costs and on investing inwardly in both depots and ships.

1 As to the lighthouse authorities generally see PARA 1068 et seq.

2 See PARA 1069.

3 See PARA 1070.

4 See PARA 1071.

5 See PARA 1074 et seq.

6 See PARA 1089 et seq.

The current funding arrangements were established by the Merchant Shipping (Mercantile Marine Fund) Act 1898 (repealed), which separated the funding for aids to navigation from other marine items. The GLAs, however, predate the establishment of the Fund by over 350 years, although it was not until 1836 that the GLAs had compulsory powers to buy out private lighthouses, which had up to that point shared with the GLAs the right (generally purchased from the Treasury or the Crown) to provide the aid to navigation and to levy a charge on passing ships.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/1. INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/(v) Other Bodies and Agencies/56. The Maritime and Coastguard Agency.

(v) Other Bodies and Agencies

56. The Maritime and Coastguard Agency.

The Maritime and Coastguard Agency ('MCA'), which is an executive agency of the Department for Transport¹, is responsible throughout the United Kingdom² for implementing the government's maritime safety policy³. This includes providing Maritime Safety Information ('MSI') to ships at sea (including the broadcast of warnings and forecasts), co-ordinating search and rescue ('SAR') at sea through Her Majesty's Coastguard⁴, and checking that ships (both United Kingdom ships and ships of other flags visiting United Kingdom ports) meet United Kingdom and international safety rules⁵.

1 As to the Department of Transport see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARAS 509-511. As to the functions of the Secretary of State under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 39 et seq.

Executive agencies are more or less autonomous units, operating within a framework document and business plan, with key performance targets set annually by the appropriate Minister and announced to Parliament. Each executive agency has a chief executive, directly accountable to the Minister: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 551.

2 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

3 See the Maritime and Coastguard Agency's website which, at the date at which this volume states the law, was available at <http://www.mcga.gov.uk>. The MCA came into being in 1998 when the Coastguard Agency and Marine Safety Agency ('MSA') merged.

4 As to Her Majesty's Coastguard see PARA 57.

5 As to the MCA's statutory obligation to conduct International Safety Management ('ISM') audits within the shipping industry and to ensure compliance with the ISM Code see PARA 631 et seq.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/1. INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/(v) Other Bodies and Agencies/57. Her Majesty's Coastguard.

57. Her Majesty's Coastguard.

Her Majesty's Coastguard consists of such numbers of officers and men as the Secretary of State¹ may with the consent of the Treasury from time to time think fit, and is raised, maintained, equipped and governed by the Secretary of State and employed as a coast-watching force².

The management and control of Her Majesty's Coastguard is vested in the Secretary of State³. However, whenever any emergency arises which, in the opinion of the Secretary of State for Defence⁴, renders it advisable that the coastguard should be placed under his control, he may by order direct that its management and control be transferred to him, and, whilst such an order is in force, the officers and men of the coastguard become subject to the Naval Discipline Act 1957⁵ with such rank and rating and such pay and emoluments as may be determined by him⁶. As soon as the Secretary of State for Defence is of the opinion that the emergency has ended, the order must be revoked, but this is without prejudice to anything done under the order⁷.

1 As to the Secretary of State for these purposes see the text and notes 3-7.

2 See the Coastguard Act 1925 s 1(1); and ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 181. As to the function of the coastguard in relation to wrecks see PARAS 123, 987 et seq. As to remuneration under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 for coastguard services especially see PARA 990.

The Maritime and Coastguard Agency ('MCA') co-ordinates search and rescue ('SAR') at sea through Her Majesty's Coastguard: see PARA 56. There is no duty of care owed by the coastguard to persons in distress in the context of a search and rescue operation: OLL Ltd v Secretary of State for Transport [1997] 3 All ER 897.

3 I.e. primarily the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform: see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 181. As to the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (formerly the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry) see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 506.

4 As to the Secretary of State for Defence see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 2.

5 The provisions of the Naval Discipline Act 1957 specifying the classes of persons who are subject to it (see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARAS 306, 309 et seq) do not affect the application of the Act to any person to whom it applies by virtue of the Coastguard Act 1925: see the Naval Discipline Act 1957 s 138(2); and ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 181. As from a day to be appointed under the Armed Forces Act 2006 s 383(2), the Naval Discipline Act 1957 s 138(2) is repealed: see the Armed Forces Act 2006 ss 378(2), 382, Sch 17 (which provides for the expiry of the Naval Discipline Act 1957 on 8 November 2007 unless continued in force by Order in Council). The Armed Forces, Army, Air Force and Naval Discipline Acts (Continuation) Order 2008, SI 2008/1780, has been made under the Armed Forces Act 2006 s 382 and, accordingly, the Naval Discipline Act 1957 continues in force until 8 November 2009: see the Armed Forces, Army, Air Force and Naval Discipline Acts (Continuation) Order 2008, SI 2008/1780, art 2. However, such an Order may not provide for the continuation of the Naval Discipline Act 1957 beyond the end of the year 2011: see the Armed Forces Act 2006 s 382(4).

6 See the Coastguard Act 1925 s 2(1); and ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 181. As from a day to be appointed under the Armed Forces Act 2006 s 383(2), the Coastguard Act 1925 s 2 is repealed: see the Armed Forces Act 2006 s 378(2), Sch 17. However, at the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed.

7 See the Coastguard Act 1925 s 2(2); and ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 181. See note 6.

NOTE 3--The functions of the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform have been transferred to the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills: see the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills Order 2009, SI 2009/2748.

TEXT AND NOTES 4-7--Appointed day for the repeal of the Coastguard Act 1925 s 2 is 31 October 2009: SI 2009/1167.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/1. INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/(v) Other Bodies and Agencies/58. Wreck commissioners.

58. Wreck commissioners.

The Lord Chancellor¹ may appoint such number of persons as he thinks fit to be wreck commissioners and may remove any wreck commissioners appointed by him².

A wreck commissioner must vacate his office on the day on which he attains the age of 70 years³.

There must be paid to any wreck commissioner such remuneration, out of money provided by Parliament, as the Lord Chancellor may with the consent of the Treasury determine⁴; and there must be paid to any assessor appointed under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 such remuneration, out of money provided by Parliament, as the Lord Chancellor may with the consent of the Treasury determine⁵.

1 As to the Lord Chancellor see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 477 et seq.

2 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 297(1). The Lord Chancellor's function under s 297(1) is a protected function for the purposes of the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 19: see s 19(5), Sch 7 para 4; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. However, any appointment to the office of wreck commissioner in exercise of the function under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 297(1) must be made (by virtue of the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 85, Sch 14 Pt 3) in accordance with ss 85-93, 96: see COURTS.

The Lord Chancellor may remove a wreck commissioner from office only with the concurrence of the Lord Chief Justice of England and Wales or (if the commissioner was appointed to act in Northern Ireland) the Lord Chief Justice of Northern Ireland: Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 297(3A) (added by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 15(1), Sch 4 Pt 1 para 239). As to the appointment of a person to act as wreck commissioner in Northern Ireland see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 297(3).

As to the function of the coastguard in relation to wrecks see PARA 987 et seq.

3 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 297(2). However, s 297(2) is subject to the Judicial Pensions and Retirement Act 1993 s 26(4)-(6) (power to authorise continuance in office up to the age of 75 years) (see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 535): see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 297(2).

60. Mercantile marine superintendents.

Under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, there continue to be officers known as mercantile marine superintendents¹. They are appointed, and may be removed, by the Secretary of State². Mercantile marine superintendents exercise the functions conferred on superintendents by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995³.

1 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 296(1). In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'superintendent' means a mercantile marine superintendent appointed under s 296: s 313(1).

61. Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen.

Under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, there continues to be an officer known as the Registrar General of Shipping and Seaman¹. He is appointed, and may be removed, by the Secretary of State²; and he must exercise such functions as are conferred on him by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 and must keep such records and perform such other duties as the Secretary of State may direct³.

The Secretary of State may appoint and remove persons to perform on behalf of the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen such of his functions⁴ as the Secretary of State or the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen may direct⁵.

(vi) General Financial Provisions under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995

62. Power to make regulations prescribing fees.

The Secretary of State¹ may, with the consent of the Treasury², make regulations³ prescribing fees to be charged in respect of either the issue or recording in pursuance of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 of any certificate, licence or other document, or the doing of any thing in pursuance of that Act⁴.

In the case of fees for the measurement of a ship's tonnage⁵ the fees may be prescribed as maximum fees⁶.

All fees received by the Secretary of State under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 must be paid into the Consolidated Fund⁷.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 As to the Treasury see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARAS 512-517.

3 As to the Secretary of State's power to make subordinate legislation, including his power to appoint committees for the purpose of advising him when considering the making or alteration of any regulations, see PARA 41.

4 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 302(1). In exercise of the power so conferred, the Secretary of State has made the Merchant Shipping (Fees) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/2055 (amended by SI 2006/3225); and the Merchant Shipping (Fees) (Amendment) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3225. The Merchant Shipping (Fees) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/2055 came into force on 11 September 2006 (see reg 1); and they specify (or allow to be determined) the fees payable in respect of the following services or other functions (see reg 3):

- 31 (1) surveys, inspections and applications for exemption (see Sch 1 Pt 1);
- 32 (2) certificates of competency and examinations for officers (see Sch 1 Pt 2);
- 33 (3) miscellaneous examinations and other certificates (see Sch 1 Pt 3);
- 34 (4) certificates of equivalent competency (see Sch 1 Pt 4);
- 35 (5) boatmasters' licences and certificates (see Sch 1 Pt 5 (substituted by SI 2006/3225));
- 36 (6) safe manning certificates (see the Merchant Shipping (Fees) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/2055, Sch 1 Pt 6);
- 37 (7) consideration of certain applications for exemption (see Sch 1 Pt 7);
- 38 (8) registration, transfer and mortgage of ships (other than fishing vessels) and related matters (see Sch 1 Pt 8);
- 39 (9) registration, transfer and mortgage of fishing vessels and related matters (see Sch 1 Pt 9);
- 40 (10) copies of, and extracts from, documents (see Sch 1 Pt 10);
- 41 (11) issue of seamen's documents (see Sch 1 Pt 11);
- 42 (12) compulsory insurance certificates (see Sch 1 Pt 12);

- 43 (13) additional charges (waiting time, attendance at unusual hours) (see Sch 1 Pt 13);
- 44 (14) waste management plans and exemptions (see Sch 1 Pt 14);
- 45 (15) exemption from manning requirements of strategic ships (see Sch 1 Pt 15).

As to the calculation of fees generally see reg 4; and as to payment for travel, subsistence and other expenses (whether included in the fee or not) see reg 5.

The Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, have also been made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 302(1) but only to the extent that references to the 'prescribed fee' in the Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, Pt 2 (regs 5-26) (boatmaster's licences and boatmasters' certificates) are to the fee prescribed by the Secretary of State under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 302 (see the Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, reg 5); and transitional provision is made therein to set fees for holders of Thames watermen's licences which were issued under the Port of London Act 1968 to make applications for a boatmaster's licence (see reg 33).

In exercise of the power conferred under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 302, the Secretary of State also made the Oil Pollution (Compulsory Insurance) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1820, reg 5 (revoked by SI 2006/2055); the Merchant Shipping (Small Workboats and Pilot Boats) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/1609, reg 2 (revoked by SI 2006/2055); and the Merchant Shipping (High Speed Craft) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/302, Schedule para 15 (revoked by SI 2006/2055) but see now the Merchant Shipping (Fees) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/2055.

INTRODUCTION/(3) ADMINISTRATION/(vi) General Financial Provisions under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995/63. Payments to be made into the Consolidated Fund.

63. Payments to be made into the Consolidated Fund.

The following sums must be paid into the Consolidated Fund¹:

- 160 (1) all fees, charges and expenses payable in respect of the survey and measurement of ships²;
- 161 (2) any fees received by receivers of wrecks³;
- 162 (3) any sums received by the Secretary of State under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 or which are, by any provision of it, required to be paid into the Consolidated Fund⁴.

All such fees⁵ must be paid at such time and in such manner as the Secretary of State directs⁶.

64. Expenses charged on money provided by Parliament.

The following expenses and other amounts are payable out of money provided by Parliament:

- 163 (1) the expenses incurred by the Secretary of State¹ under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995²;
- 164 (2) the salaries, pensions, gratuities and allowances of surveyors of ships³, Departmental inspectors⁴ and superintendents⁵;
- 165 (3) the sums required for the contribution from the United Kingdom⁶ towards maintaining, in accordance with the Safety Convention⁷, a service in the North Atlantic for the study and observation of ice and for the ice patrol⁸;
- 166 (4) the expenses of obtaining depositions, reports and returns respecting wrecks and casualties⁹;
- 167 (5) such sums as the Secretary of State may in his discretion think fit to pay in respect of claims on account of the proceeds of wreck¹⁰;
- 168 (6) the expenses incurred in respect of receivers of wrecks¹¹ and the performance of their duties¹²;
- 169 (7) such expenses as the Secretary of State directs¹³ for:
 - 5. (a) establishing and maintaining on the coasts of the United Kingdom proper lifeboats with the necessary crews and equipment¹⁴;
 - 6. (b) affording assistance towards the preservation of life and property in cases of shipwreck and distress at sea¹⁵; or
 - 7. (c) rewarding the preservation of life in such cases¹⁶;
 - 170 (8) any other amounts which are by virtue of any provision of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 payable out of money provided by Parliament¹⁷.

(vii) Funding of Maritime Services

65. In general.

Regulations made by the Secretary of State¹ under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 in relation to the funding of maritime services² may make provision:

- 171 (1) for the Secretary of State to impose charges in order to recover costs incurred by him in connection with his maritime functions³;
- 172 (2) for charges relating to expenses payable out of the General Lighthouse Fund⁴ which may be recoverable otherwise than by the levying of general light dues⁵;
- 173 (3) with regard to ships⁶ in respect of which charges may be imposed⁷;
- 174 (4) with regard to the persons by whom charges are to be paid⁸.

Such regulations may impose a charge of a fixed amount or of an amount to be determined in accordance with the regulations, and may impose different charges in relation to ships of different descriptions or in different circumstances⁹. Supplementary provision is made giving powers to require such information as the collecting authority may reasonably require for the purposes of the regulations¹⁰ and with respect to the collection and recovery of charges¹¹.

The legislative competence of the National Assembly for Wales¹² does not extend to shipping generally, but it does have power to provide financial assistance for shipping services to, from or within Wales¹³.

Regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11A must be made by the Secretary of State with the consent of the Treasury (Sch 11A para 16(1) (as so added)); and must not be made unless a draft of them has been laid before, and approved by a resolution of, the House of Commons (Sch 11A para 16(2) (as so added)). Such regulations may include such transitional, incidental or supplementary provision as appears to the Secretary of State to be necessary or appropriate: Sch 11A para 14 (as so added). However, at the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made. 66. Charges in respect of maritime matters.

Regulations made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 in relation to the funding of maritime services¹ may make provision imposing charges for the purpose of recovering the whole or a part of the costs incurred by the Secretary of State² in connection with his maritime functions³. For these purposes, 'maritime functions' means:

- 175 (1) functions conferred by or under any provision of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 (apart from the provisions relating to registration⁴ and to lighthouse authorities)⁵;
- 176 (2) functions under any international agreement⁶ relating to the safety of ships, to the prevention of pollution from ships, or to living and working conditions on board ships⁷; and
- 177 (3) other functions relating to the promotion of the safety of ships⁸.

As to the making of regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11A see PARA 65; and as to further provision which may be made by such regulations see PARA 67 et seq. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made.

67. Charges relating to expenses payable out of the General Lighthouse Fund.

If:

- 178 (1) any Community obligation¹; or
- 179 (2) any international agreement made between any three or more countries including the Republic of Ireland and ratified by the United Kingdom², requires the United Kingdom to provide for any of the costs incurred by General Lighthouse Authorities³ in respect of lighthouses, buoys and beacons⁴ to be recovered otherwise than by means of the levying of general light dues⁵, regulations made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 in relation to the funding of maritime services⁶ may make provision imposing charges for the purposes of recovering all or any part of the costs required to be so recovered⁷.

If such regulations make any such provision as to charges for expenses payable out of the General Lighthouse Fund⁸, regulations may also⁹:

- 180 (a) provide for payments which, apart from the regulations, would fall to be made out of the General Lighthouse Fund to be made by the Secretary of State¹⁰ out of money provided by Parliament¹¹;
- 181 (b) provide for amounts which, apart from the regulations, would fall to be paid into the General Lighthouse Fund¹² to be paid by the Secretary of State into the Consolidated Fund¹³;
- 182 (c) provide for the payment out of money provided by Parliament into the General Lighthouse Fund of amounts representing the whole or part of any charges imposed by such regulations¹⁴; and
- 183 (d) make such amendments, repeals or other modifications of any of the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 relating to the General Lighthouse Fund or general light dues as appear to the Secretary of State to be necessary or expedient in consequence of, or in connection with, the provision made by virtue of the provisions allowing charges to be imposed by such regulations¹⁵ or head (a), (b) or (c) above¹⁶.

If such regulations confer on General Lighthouse Authorities functions relating to the collection and recovery of charges¹⁷, regulations made in relation to the funding of maritime services¹⁸ may also provide for the making by the Secretary of State to each general lighthouse authority out of money provided by Parliament of payments in respect of expenses incurred by that authority in connection with the collection or recovery of charges¹⁹.

4 For these purposes, 'buoys and beacons' includes equipment which is intended as an aid to the navigation of ships and, subject to that, expressions used in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11A para 3 and in Pt VIII (see PARA 1068 et seq) have the same meaning as in Pt VIII: see Sch 11A para 3(2) (as added: see note 1). 68. Ships in respect of which charges may be imposed.

Regulations made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 in relation to the funding of maritime services¹ may not require a charge to be paid except in respect of:

- 184 (1) a ship² which has entered a port³ in the United Kingdom⁴;
- 185 (2) a ship which is anchored off a port in the United Kingdom⁵; or
- 186 (3) a ship which is anchored within 500 metres of an installation⁶ which is in United Kingdom waters or a part of the sea specified⁷ for purposes which relate to the protection and preservation of the marine environment⁸.

Nothing in any such regulations is to be construed as requiring a charge to be paid in respect of a qualifying foreign ship⁹ which is exercising the right of innocent passage¹⁰, or the right of transit passage¹¹ through straits used for international navigation¹², except to the extent that international law allows such a charge to be imposed¹³.

Subject to these restrictions¹⁴, the regulations may impose a charge in respect of such description of ship as may be prescribed¹⁵. In particular:

- 187 (a) regulations may impose a charge in respect of a ship even though no service has been provided or function exercised in the case of that ship¹⁶; and
- 188 (b) regulations may provide that no charge is imposed in respect of a ship which does not exceed a prescribed tonnage or does not exceed a prescribed length¹⁷.

1 The regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 302A, Sch 11A: see Sch 11A para 4(1) (Sch 11A added by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 s 13, Sch 2 para 2). As to the making of regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11A see PARA 65; and as to further provision which may be made by such regulations see PARAS 66, 67, 69 et seq. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made.

4 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11A para 4(1)(a) (as added: see note 1). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

For these purposes, the circumstances in which a ship is to be regarded as entering a port in the United Kingdom include circumstances in which the ship enters any United Kingdom waters which are regulated or managed by a harbour authority: see Sch 11A para 4(5) (as so added). In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'harbour authority' means, in relation to a harbour, the person who is the statutory harbour authority for the harbour or (if there is no statutory harbour authority for the harbour) the person (if any) who is the proprietor of the harbour or who is entrusted with the function of managing, maintaining or improving the harbour: s 313(1) (definition substituted by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 s 29(1), Sch 6 para 19(2)(a)). 'Statutory harbour authority' means, in relation to Great Britain, a harbour authority within the meaning of the Harbours Act 1964 (see PORTS AND HARBOURS vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 619); Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313(1) (definition substituted by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 Sch 6 para 19(2)(d)). 69. Persons by whom charges are to be paid.

Regulations made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 in relation to the funding of maritime services¹ may not require a charge to be paid in respect of a ship² by a person who is not:

- 189 (1) the owner of the ship³;
- 190 (2) the person registered⁴ as the owner of the ship⁵;
- 191 (3) the operator of the ship⁶;
- 192 (4) the manager of the ship⁷;
- 193 (5) the charterer of the ship⁸; or
- 194 (6) the agent of a person mentioned in any of heads (1) to (5) above⁹.

Subject to these restrictions¹⁰, charges imposed by the regulations are payable by such persons as may be prescribed¹¹.

70. Amount of charges.

Regulations made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 in relation to the funding of maritime services¹ may impose a charge of a fixed amount or of an amount determined in accordance with the regulations, and may impose different charges in relation to ships² of different descriptions or in different circumstances³.

Such regulations may in particular impose in respect of a ship a charge whose amount depends on⁴:

- 195 (1) whether action has been or is being taken with a view to enforcing international shipping standards in the case of that ship or with a view to preventing, reducing or minimising the effects of pollution from that ship⁵, and (if any such action has been or is being so taken) the nature of the action⁶;
- 196 (2) the tonnage or length of the ship⁷.

71. Powers to require information and to disclose information.

Regulations made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 in relation to the funding of maritime services¹ may include provision requiring any relevant authority² or any person who is or may be liable to pay charges under the regulations in respect of a ship³ to provide any collecting authority⁴ with such information as the collecting authority may reasonably require for the purposes of the regulations⁵.

No obligation as to secrecy or other restriction on the disclosure of information, whether imposed by statute or otherwise, prevents a Minister of the Crown⁶ or a Northern Ireland department from disclosing:

- 197 (1) to the Secretary of State⁷; or
- 198 (2) to a person appointed by the Secretary of State to collect charges under regulations so made in relation to the funding of maritime services⁸, information for the purpose of enabling or assisting the Secretary of State to perform his functions under the regulations⁹. Information so obtained by any person must not be disclosed by him to any other person except where the disclosure is made either to a person falling within head (1) or head (2) above or for the purposes of any legal proceedings arising out of the regulations¹⁰.

1 The regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 302A, Sch 11A: see Sch 11A para 7(1) (Sch 11A added by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 s 13, Sch 2 para 2). As to the making of regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11A see PARA 65; and as to further provision which may be made by such regulations see PARAS 66-70, 72 et seq. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made.

2 For these purposes, 'relevant authority' means a harbour authority, the Commissioners of Revenue and Customs and a conservancy authority: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11A para 7(2) (Sch 11A as added (see note 1); Sch 11A para 7(2) amended by virtue of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (2), (7)). In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'conservancy authority' includes all persons entrusted with the function of conserving, maintaining or improving the navigation of a tidal water, as defined in s 255 (see PARA 987 note 6): s 313(1). As to the meaning of 'harbour authority' see PARA 68 note 4. As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARAS 900-933.

3 As to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

4 For these purposes, 'collecting authority' means the Secretary of State, a Departmental officer and a general lighthouse authority: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11A para 7(2) (as added: see note 1). As to the meaning of 'departmental officer' see PARA 47 note 11; and as to the meaning of 'general lighthouse authority' for these purposes see PARA 67 note 3. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

5 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11A para 7(1) (as added: see note 1).

6 In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'Minister of the Crown' has the same meaning as in the Ministers of the Crown Act 1975 (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 363); Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313(1) (definition added by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 s 29(1), Sch 6 para 19(1), (2)(b)).

72. Collection and recovery etc.

Regulations made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 in relation to the funding of maritime services¹ may make provision:

- 199 (1) with respect to the collection and recovery of charges, and for charges which fall due under the regulations but which are not paid to carry interest²;
- 200 (2) for appeals against decisions that charges are due in respect of ships³;
- 201 (3) for authorising distress to be levied on any ship in respect of which the owner or master⁴ has failed to pay charges due under the regulations, and on any goods, equipment or other thing belonging to, or on board, the ship⁵;
- 202 (4) for the disposal of any ship, goods, equipment or other thing on which distress is levied in accordance with the regulations⁶; and
- 203 (5) for the imposition and recovery of costs, charges, expenses and fees in connection with anything done under regulations made by virtue of head (3) or (4) above⁷.

1 The regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 302A, Sch 11A: see Sch 11A para 9(1) (Sch 11A added by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 s 13, Sch 2 para 2). As to the making of regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11A see PARA 65; and as to further provision which may be made by such regulations see PARAS 66-71. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made.

2 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11A para 9(1) (as added: see note 1).

Regulations so made by virtue of Sch 11A para 9(1) may in particular confer on general lighthouse authorities functions relating to the collection and recovery of charges: Sch 11A para 9(2) (as so added). If regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 11A make any such provision, such regulations may also provide for the making by the Secretary of State to each general lighthouse authority out of money provided by Parliament of payments in respect of expenses incurred by that authority in connection with the collection or recovery of charges: see Sch 11A para 13; and PARA 67. (viii) Service of Documents under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995

73. Service of documents.

Any document authorised or required to be served on any person may be served on that person by delivering it to him, by leaving it at his proper address or by sending it by post to him at his proper address¹.

Any such document required to be served on the master² of a ship³ may be served:

- 204 (1) where there is a master, by leaving it for him on board the ship with the person appearing to be in command or charge of the ship⁴;
- 205 (2) where there is no master, on the managing owner of the ship or, if there is no managing owner, on any agent of the owner or, where no such agent is known or can be found, by leaving a copy of the document fixed to the mast of the ship⁵.

Any document authorised or required to be served on any person may:

- 206 (a) in the case of a body corporate, be served on the secretary or clerk of that body⁶;
- 207 (b) in the case of a partnership, be served on a partner or a person having the control or management of the partnership business⁷.

Any notice authorised or required by or under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 provisions relating to the registration of ships in the United Kingdom⁸ to be served on the Secretary of State⁹ may be served by post¹⁰.

Any notice authorised by the provisions relating to improvement notices and prohibition notices¹¹ to be given to an inspector¹² may be given by delivering it to him or by leaving it at, or sending it by post to, his office¹³.

Any document authorised or required by or under any enactment to be served on the registered¹⁴ owner of a United Kingdom ship¹⁵ is treated as duly served on him if served on such persons, in such circumstances and by such method, as may be specified in registration regulations¹⁶.

The proper address of any person on whom any document is to be served is¹⁷ his last known address¹⁸, except that:

- 208 (i) in the case of a body corporate or its secretary or clerk, it is the address of the registered or principal office of that body¹⁹;
- 209 (ii) in the case of a partnership or a person having the control or management of the partnership business, it is the principal office of the partnership²⁰; and, for these purposes, the principal office of a company registered outside the United Kingdom or of a partnership carrying on business outside the United Kingdom is its principal office in the United Kingdom²¹.

If the person to be served with any notice has, whether in pursuance of the registration regulations or otherwise, specified an address in the United Kingdom other than his proper address²² as the one at which he or someone on his behalf will accept notices of the same description as that notice, that address is also treated²³ as his proper address²⁴.

A letter containing a notice to be served on any person²⁵ or a notice authorised or required to be served under registration regulations on a representative person²⁶ is deemed²⁷ to be properly addressed if it is addressed to that person at the address for the time being recorded in relation to him in the register²⁸; and a letter containing any other notice under registration regulations is deemed to be properly addressed if it is addressed to the last known address of the person to be served, whether of his residence or of a place where he carries on business²⁹.

INTRODUCTION/(4) SHIPPING AND TRADING INTERESTS/(i) Protection of Shipping etc Interests from Foreign Action/74. Power to regulate the provision of shipping services in the event of foreign action.

(4) SHIPPING AND TRADING INTERESTS

(i) Protection of Shipping etc Interests from Foreign Action

74. Power to regulate the provision of shipping services in the event of foreign action.

The Secretary of State¹ may exercise his powers to regulate the provision of shipping services² if he is satisfied that:

- 210 (1) a foreign government³; or
- 211 (2) persons purporting to exercise governing authority over any territory outside the United Kingdom⁴; or
- 212 (3) any agency or authority of a foreign government or of such persons⁵, has adopted, or proposes to adopt, measures or practices concerning or affecting any shipping services⁶ which:

- 213 (a) are damaging or threaten to damage the shipping or trading interests of the United Kingdom⁷; or
- 214 (b) are damaging or threaten to damage the shipping or trading interests of another state⁸, and if, in the latter case, the Secretary of State is satisfied that such action⁹ would be in fulfilment of the obligations of the United Kingdom to that other state or would be appropriate in view of any arrangements made between Her Majesty's government and the government of that other state¹⁰.

The Secretary of State may by order¹¹ make provision for requiring persons in the United Kingdom carrying on any trade or business to provide the Secretary of State with all such information as he may require for the purpose of enabling him to determine what further action so to take¹² and to ensure compliance with any orders or directions so made or given¹³.

The Secretary of State may by order (a 'protective order') provide for¹⁴:

- 215 (i) regulating the provision of any shipping services and the rates, fares or other amounts which may or must be charged for providing those services¹⁵;
- 216 (ii) regulating¹⁶ the admission and departure of ships to and from the United Kingdom ports¹⁷, the nature of the shipping services they may be used to provide (whether by reference to the cargoes or passengers they may carry or otherwise)¹⁸, and the loading or unloading of cargoes, the embarkation or disembarkation of passengers, or the doing of other things in connection with the provision of any shipping services¹⁹;
- 217 (iii) regulating the making and implementation of agreements (including charterparties) whose subject matter relates directly or indirectly to the provision of any shipping services, and requiring such agreements to be subject to the Secretary of State's approval in such cases as he may specify²⁰;

- 218 (iv) imposing charges in respect of ships which enter United Kingdom ports in connection with the provision of any shipping services²¹;
- 219 (v) imposing, in pursuance of any Community obligation²², such tax or duty payable by such persons and in such circumstances as the Secretary of State may specify²³.

Such an order may authorise the Secretary of State to give directions to any person for the purposes of the order²⁴.

Any order or direction so made or given²⁵ may be either general or special, and may be subject to such conditions or exceptions as the Secretary of State specifies (including conditions and exceptions operating by reference to the giving or withholding of his approval for any course of action)²⁶; and may be in terms that require compliance either generally or only in specified cases²⁷.

A recital in such an order²⁸ that the persons who have adopted, or propose to adopt, the measures or practices in question are such persons as are mentioned in head (1), (2), or (3) above is conclusive²⁹.

A protective order made under either head (iv) or head (v) above is referred to as a 'charging order'³⁰; and a charging order may³¹:

- 220 (A) apply to ships of any description specified in the order, and may apply in particular to ships registered in a specified country, or to ships carrying goods or cargoes of a specified description or providing any other specified shipping services³²;
- 221 (B) contain such provisions as appear to the Secretary of State expedient to enable the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs to collect any charge, tax or duty imposed by the order³³; and
- 222 (C) apply, subject to any modifications or exceptions specified in the order, any of the enactments for the time being in force relating to duties, whether for revenue or customs, chargeable on goods imported into the United Kingdom³⁴.

Any charge, tax or duty imposed by a charging order may be a fixed amount or an amount depending on the tonnage of the ship and is payable to the Secretary of State³⁵. Any sum received by the Secretary of State must be paid into the Consolidated Fund³⁶.

A charging order is not to be made except with the consent of the Treasury³⁷.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 I.e. the powers conferred by the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1: see s 1(1). As to the meaning of 'shipping services' see note 6.

3 Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(1)(a). For these purposes, 'foreign government' means the government of any state other than the United Kingdom: s 1(9)(a). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

4 Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(1)(b). See note 5.

5 Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(1)(c). For these purposes, references to an agency or authority of a foreign government, or of such persons as are mentioned in s 1(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text), include references to any undertaking appearing to the Secretary of State to be, or to be acting on behalf of, an undertaking which is in effect owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by a state other than, or by a territory outside, the United Kingdom: s 1(9)(b).

6 For these purposes, 'shipping services' means services provided by means of ships, and includes the carriage of goods or passengers at sea, cable laying, dredging and services provided by offshore support vessels: Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(9)(d). For these purposes, 'ship' includes every description of vessel used in navigation: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313(1); definition applied by virtue of the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 9(2). For the purposes of s 1 only, references to ships are to ships of any registration: s 1(9)(e).

7 Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(1)(i). In a case falling within s 1(1)(i), a protective order (as to which see the text and notes 14-24) must specify the measures or practices which in the opinion of the Secretary of State are damaging or threaten to damage shipping or trading interests of the United Kingdom: s 1(4). As to the enforcement of such orders see PARA 1243.

8 Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(1)(ii).

9 The action under the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1: see s 1(1).

10 Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(1).

11 The power to make an order under the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1 is exercisable by statutory instrument (s 1(7)); but, before the Secretary of State makes such an order, he must consult such representatives of the shipping or trading interests of the United Kingdom, and such other persons, as appear to him appropriate (s 1(8)). As to Parliamentary control of such orders see PARA 75. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such order had been made. See note 7.

12 Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(2)(a). The text refers to further action to be taken under s 1: see s 1(2)(a).

13 Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(2)(b). The text refers to orders or directions made or given under s 1: see s 1(2)(b). As to orders which may authorise the Secretary of State to give directions under s 1 to any person for the purposes of the order see the text and note 24.

An order made under s 1 with the consent of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs may provide for the enforcement and execution of any order or direction under s 1 by officers of Revenue and Customs: s 3(1) (amended by virtue of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (2), (7)). Officers of Revenue and Customs acting under any provision made under the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 3(1) have power to enter any premises or ship: s 3(2) (amended by virtue of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (2), (7)). The Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 65 (power to refuse or cancel clearance of a ship or an aircraft: see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1023) applies as if the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1, s 2 (as to which see the text and notes 30-37) and s 3 were contained in the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979: Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 3(3). As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs, and the appointment of officers of Revenue and Customs, see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARAS 900-933.

14 Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(3). In the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995, 'protective order' has the meaning given by s 1(3): see s 9(2).

15 Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(3)(a).

16 For these purposes, 'regulating', except in relation to rates, fares or other amounts which may or must be charged as mentioned in the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(3)(a) (see head (i) in the text), includes imposing a prohibition: see s 1(3).

17 Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 1(3)(b)(i). For these purposes, 'port' includes place: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313(1); definition applied by virtue of the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 9(2). For the purposes of s 1 only, 'port' includes an offshore terminal; and references to entering or leaving a port include references to using or ceasing to use an offshore terminal: s 1(9)(c).

INTRODUCTION/(4) SHIPPING AND TRADING INTERESTS/(i) Protection of Shipping etc Interests from Foreign Action/75. Parliamentary control of orders to regulate the provision of shipping services in the event of foreign action.

75. Parliamentary control of orders to regulate the provision of shipping services in the event of foreign action.

No protective order¹ may be made unless a draft of it has been approved by resolution of each House of Parliament or unless it is declared in the order that it appears to the Secretary of State² that by reason of urgency it is necessary to make the order without a draft having been so approved³. A protective order made without a draft having been approved by resolution of each House of Parliament ceases to have effect at the expiration of a period of 28 days beginning with the date on which it was made⁴ unless before the expiration of that period it has been approved by resolution of each House of Parliament, but without prejudice to anything previously done, or to the making of a new order⁵. However, these restrictions⁶ do not apply to a protective order which is made for the purpose only of implementing any Community obligation⁷.

An order to regulate the provision of shipping services in the event of foreign action⁸ which is not a protective order is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament⁹. If such an order recites that it is made for the purpose only of implementing any Community obligation¹⁰, or that it is not a protective order, the recital is conclusive¹¹.

INTRODUCTION/(4) SHIPPING AND TRADING INTERESTS/(ii) Protection of Coastal Shipping Services/76. Power to prohibit provision of coastal shipping services which are not British-based.

(ii) Protection of Coastal Shipping Services

76. Power to prohibit provision of coastal shipping services which are not British-based.

The Secretary of State¹ may by order² provide for the provision of the following shipping services³ to be prohibited, except where such services are provided from one or more permanent places of business maintained in the British Islands⁴:

- 223 (1) the carriage of goods or passengers by sea between ports⁵ in the United Kingdom⁶ or between a port in the United Kingdom and an offshore installation⁷ in United Kingdom controlled waters⁸ or between offshore installations in United Kingdom controlled waters⁹;
- 224 (2) the carriage of passengers by sea on voyages or excursions beginning and ending at the same port in the United Kingdom, other than voyages or excursions which involve calling at any port or ports outside the British Islands, whether passengers disembark there or not¹⁰; or
- 225 (3) shipping services, other than the carriage of goods or passengers by sea, which are provided by means of ships out of ports in the United Kingdom, whether so provided within United Kingdom controlled waters or not, or provided within United Kingdom controlled waters by means of ships operating out of ports outside the United Kingdom¹¹.

Such an order may make provision:

- 226 (a) with respect to the circumstances in which shipping services are to be regarded for the purposes of the order as being provided from one or more permanent places of business maintained in the British Islands¹²;
- 227 (b) authorising the Secretary of State to issue licences sanctioning the provision of shipping services mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above, notwithstanding that they are not provided as mentioned in head (a) above, in cases where he is satisfied that there is no one willing and able to provide the services in question as mentioned in that head¹³;
- 228 (c) requiring the payment, in connection with applications for such licences, of fees determined with the approval of the Treasury¹⁴;
- 229 (d) exempting any prescribed¹⁵ class or description of shipping services from any prohibition so imposed¹⁶;
- 230 (e) authorising the Secretary of State, or a person appointed by him for the purposes, to serve notices requiring the production or furnishing of documents or information appearing to the Secretary of State or any such person to be necessary to enable him to determine such matters as may be prescribed¹⁷;
- 231 (f) with respect to the manner of service of notices in pursuance of head (e) above¹⁸.

The provisions of such an order must not discriminate between shipping services provided by different persons on the basis of the place of registration of the ships by means of which the services are provided¹⁹.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 The power to make an order under the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 5 is exercisable by statutory instrument, but no such order may be made unless a draft of it has been laid before and approved by resolution of each House of Parliament: s 5(7). Any such order may make different provision for different circumstances, and may make such transitional, incidental or supplementary provision as appears to the Secretary of State to be necessary or expedient: s 5(4). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such order had been made. As to the enforcement of such orders see PARA 1244.

The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 256(1) (appointment of inspectors) (see PARA 46) has effect in relation to any order under the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 5 or any licence issued by virtue of s 5(3) (b) (see head (b) in the text), as the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 256(1) has effect in relation to any such regulations or licence as is referred to in s 256(1)(b), (9); but s 259 (see PARA 49) has effect in relation to any inspector appointed by virtue of the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 5 with the omission of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 259(2)(f)-(h): Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 5(6).

3 For these purposes, 'shipping services' means the carriage of goods or passengers by sea, services provided by offshore support vessels, and such other services provided by means of ships as the Secretary of State may specify in an order under the Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 5: s 5(8). As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 74 note 6.

4 Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 5(1). As to the meaning of 'British Islands' see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1383.

5 As to the meaning of 'port' see PARA 74 note 17.

6 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

7 For these purposes, 'offshore installation' has the same meaning as in the Mineral Workings (Offshore Installations) Act 1971 (see FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1684): Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 5(8).

8 For these purposes, 'United Kingdom controlled waters' means waters within the seaward limits of the territorial sea of the United Kingdom and waters in any area designated under the Continental Shelf Act 1974 s 1(7) (see FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1636): Shipping and Trading Interests (Protection) Act 1995 s 5(8). 77. Code of conduct for liner conferences.

The desire of the developing countries to obtain a greater share of the market in liner traffic¹ gave rise to the Convention on a Code of Conduct for Liner Conferences², which was negotiated under the auspices of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development. The Convention lays down rules relating to membership of conferences³, the participation in the trade⁴, internal procedures on conferences⁵, availability of conference agreements⁶, relations with shippers⁷, freight rates⁸, miscellaneous matters⁹ and the settlement of disputes¹⁰.

1 Liner traffic is traffic by merchant ships which provide a regular service on particular routes.

2 I.e. the Convention on a Code of Conduct for Liner Conferences (Geneva, 6 April 1974). 'Liner conference' or 'conference' means a group of two or more vessel-operating carriers providing international liner services for the carriage of cargo on a particular route or routes within specified geographical limits and which has an agreement or arrangement within the framework of which they operate under uniform or common freight rates and any other agreed conditions with respect to the provision of liner services: see Ch I (definitions). These other conditions often include conditions as to market sharing. As to the position of liner conferences under EC competition law see PARA 78.

78. Liner conferences and EC competition law.

Despite the manifest imperfections of the Code of Conduct for Liner Conferences¹, an EC Council Regulation gave effect to the Code within the European Community, albeit with reservations². This required a block exemption from the EC Treaty articles governing competition law³ to be granted in respect of liner shipping conferences⁴, but this is no longer supported⁵. As a consequence, the Code no longer has effect within the Community⁶, and the EC Treaty articles governing competition law⁷ now apply to scheduled maritime transport services operating in trade to or from the ports of the member states.

1 As to the Code see PARA 77.

2 See EC Council Regulation 954/79 (OJ L121, 17.5.79, p 1) concerning the ratification by Member States of, or their accession to, the United Nations Convention on a Code of Conduct for Liner Conferences. The aim of this Regulation was to support the aspirations of the developing countries by bringing the Code of Conduct into effect but to neutralise the member states of the European Community and such other OECD countries as wished to participate in the package.

4 See EC Council Regulation 4056/86 (OJ L378, 31.12.1986, p 4). The exemption was based on the assumption that the fixing of prices and the regulation of capacity was required in order to provide reliable services and stable rates for freight.

(1) INTRODUCTION

(i) In general

79. Outline of jurisdiction.

The Admiralty Court is part of the Queen's Bench Division¹ and has jurisdiction in all causes and matters assigned by the Supreme Court Act 1981² to that division involving either the exercise of the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court³ or its jurisdiction as a prize court⁴. The Admiralty jurisdiction is invoked by other statutes, most notably the Hovercraft Act 1968⁵ and the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁶.

Admiralty claims may be either in rem⁷ or in personam (now referred to as 'other claims')⁸. Limitation claims (being the statutory right afforded to shipowners and other persons to limit their liability in connection with a ship or other property) are also heard in the Admiralty Court⁹. Any such proceedings (whatever their exact nature) are subject to the jurisdictional rules now contained in EC legislation¹⁰.

A ship, as well as being liable to arrest as the subject of a claim in rem, may be seized in execution by the sheriff under a writ of fieri facias¹¹ because the ordinary remedies for enforcing a judgment in the High Court¹² are applicable to Admiralty claims.

1 The Administration of Justice Act 1970 abolished the Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division of the High Court (see s 1(1) (repealed)), and provided for the constitution of the Admiralty Court of the Queen's Bench Division (see s 2(1) (repealed) (see now the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 6(1); and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 603)). As to the distribution of business between divisions of the High Court see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 610; and as to the Queen's Bench Division generally see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 613. The judges of the Admiralty Court are puisne judges of the High Court nominated from time to time to be Admiralty judges: see s 6(2); and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 603. However, jurisdiction over some questions of assessment of damages and investigation of accounts is exercised by the Admiralty Registrar: Maid of Kent (1881) 6 PD 178. As to the Admiralty Registrar see PARA 140. As to the development of the law that is administered in Admiralty see PARA 80 et seq.

There is no longer any jurisdiction in the county court in Admiralty matters: see the Civil Courts (Amendment) (No 2) Order 1999, SI 1999/1011 (which amended the Civil Courts Order 1983, SI 1983/713, so that, as from 26th April 1999, all Admiralty proceedings must be commenced in the High Court); and PARA 209. As to the jurisdiction of the High Court generally see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 606 et seq; and as to county courts generally see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 701 et seq.

2 As from a day to be appointed, the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales and the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 accordingly: see the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59, Sch 11 para 1; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 601 et seq. However, at the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed.

3 The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court is provided for in the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20-24 (see PARA 85 et seq) and is defined by s 20(1) as being:

46 (1) jurisdiction to hear and determine any of the questions and claims mentioned in s 20(2) (see s 20(1)(a); and PARA 93 et seq);

47 (2) jurisdiction in relation to any of the proceedings mentioned in s 20(3) (see s 20(1)(b); and PARAS 91, 180, 194 et seq);

- 48 (3) any other Admiralty jurisdiction which it had immediately before 1 January 1982 (that is, before the commencement of the Supreme Court Act 1981) (see ss 20(1)(c), 153(2); and PARA 85); and
- 49 (4) any jurisdiction connected with ships or aircraft which is vested in the High Court apart from s 20 and is for the time being by rules of court made or coming into force after the commencement of the Supreme Court Act 1981 assigned to the Queen's Bench Division and directed by the rules to be exercised by the Admiralty Court (see s 20(1)(d); and PARA 85).

The Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20-24 (see PARA 85 et seq) may be extended, with such exceptions, adaptations and modifications as may be specified, to any of the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man by Order in Council: see s 150(1); and PARA 216.

4 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 62(2); and PARA 85. As to the High Court's jurisdiction as a prize court see PARA 89; and PRIZE.

5 See the Hovercraft Act 1968; and PARA 87 et seq.

6 As to liability for oil pollution: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 166; and PARA 88. As to merchant shipping and liability for oil pollution generally see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 348 et seq.

7 As to the commencement of claims in rem see PARA 158 et seq.

8 As to the commencement of claims in personam ('other claims') see PARA 186 et seq.

9 As to limitation claims generally see PARA 194 et seq.

10 As to the rules relating to conflicts of jurisdiction see PARA 95 et seq. As to restrictions on jurisdiction generally see PARA 90.

11 As to writs of fieri facias see PARA 208; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1266 et seq. A person who maliciously, and without reasonable and probable cause, procures the arrest of a ship by Admiralty proceedings is liable to pay damages to the person aggrieved: see The Strathnaver (1875) 1 App Cas 58, PC; and TORT vol 45(2) (Reissue) PARAS 498-499.

12 As to enforcement generally see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1223 et seq.

(ii) Origins of Jurisdiction

80. Origin and conflict with common law courts.

The jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court in respect of offences committed upon the high seas is of ancient origin¹. As a result of possessing this criminal jurisdiction, the Court of the Lord High Admiral began to hear disputes also in all civil matters connected with the sea² and gradually usurped the jurisdiction of the common law courts in matters arising in inland tidal waters, in consequence of which two statutes were passed in the reign of Richard II confining the jurisdiction of the admirals and their deputies to things done upon the sea and in the main streams of great rivers to the seaward side of the bridges³.

The criminal jurisdiction of the Admiralty as adjusted by these statutes continued until 1537, when it was to a great extent transferred to commissioners of oyer and terminer under the Great Seal, of whom one was the judge of the High Court of Admiralty⁴. All proceedings on indictment for offences within the jurisdiction of the Admiralty of England are now to be brought before the Crown Court⁵.

The civil jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court continued within the limits laid down by the statutes of Richard II⁶, but its exercise involved the Admiralty Court in a long struggle with the superior courts of common law. The Admiralty Court asserted the highest and fullest jurisdiction over everything which might happen upon the high seas, but it was obliged to give way to the common law courts and ceased to exercise jurisdiction to the full extent which it had formerly claimed⁷. Nevertheless in the reign of William IV it still retained a curtailed jurisdiction which included a number of important subjects⁸.

1 Whether or not Admiralty jurisdiction in England took its origin from Saxon times (see 2 Co Litt 260b; Prynne's Animadversions on the 4th Institute 123), by the reign of Edward III the authority of the Crown to administer justice in respect of piracy or spoil and other offences committed upon the sea was undisputed (see R v Keyn (1876) 2 ExD 63 at 167 per Cockburn CJ; and see The Zeta [1892] P 285 at 300, CA, per Lord Esher MR).

The jurisdiction of the Admiralty over criminal offences committed at sea was subsequently regulated by the Central Criminal Court Act 1834 s 22 (repealed by the Administration of Justice Act 1964 s 41(8), Sch 5, and replaced by Sch 1 para 5 (repealed)), and the Admiralty Offences Act 1844 (repealed). 81. Advent of statutory jurisdiction.

The Admiralty Court Act 1840 was passed to improve the practice and extend the jurisdiction of the High Court of Admiralty in England¹. This was the first of a series of Acts which enlarged or defined the jurisdiction, the latest of which is the Supreme Court Act 1981 as amended by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995. Part II of the Supreme Court Act 1981² derives substantially from Part I of the Administration of Justice Act 1956³, which redefined the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court so as, among other things, to give effect by domestic legislation to certain international conventions⁴. In addition to specifying in detail the questions or claims within the Admiralty jurisdiction⁵, the Supreme Court Act 1981 expressly preserves any other Admiralty jurisdiction vested in the High Court immediately before its commencement⁶.

82. Law administered in Admiralty.

Maritime law¹ is the law developed and administered in the Admiralty Court in exercising both its original jurisdiction² and the jurisdiction derived from statute³. Outside the special field of prize⁴, in times of hostilities there is no maritime law of the world, as distinct from the internal municipal laws of the individual countries, that is capable of giving rise to rights or liabilities enforceable in English courts; but, because of the subject matter and historic derivation from sources common to many maritime nations⁵, the internal municipal laws of different countries show greater similarity to one another than is found in law relating to what happens on land⁶.

Although maritime law was developed in a separate court in England, its development was nevertheless related to the law being developed in other courts, and the effect of the merger, in 1875, of the High Court of Admiralty with the High Court of Justice⁷ was to foster the development of common concepts between the common law courts and the Admiralty Court, which began at least as early as 1840 with the passing of the Admiralty Court Act 1840⁸. Since the mid 19th century, the development of English maritime law has continued to be greatly influenced by changes in concepts of the common law, and to regard it as constituting today a system of law entirely separate from the general law may lead to error⁹. In one sense, maritime law is part of the common law and it has been referred to as such¹⁰. The maritime law of England and Scotland is the same law and House of Lords decisions on appeals from Scotland are therefore authoritative in England¹¹.

1 In relation to navigation upon the high seas beyond the territorial limits of the United Kingdom, it has been said that the maritime law consisted of 'those rules of navigation which usually prevail among nations navigating the seas where the collision takes place': see The Zollverein (1856) Sw 96 at 99 per Dr Lushington. This statement was made in reference to the law as it was before the passing of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act 1862 s 25 (repealed), which established collision regulations. Breach by the master of a ship of the collision regulations does not give rise to any statutory presumption of fault: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 92(3); and PARA 756. However, such breach will be evidence of negligence. For the enactments now in force with regard to the prevention of collisions see s 85; and PARAS 591, 715 et seq.

2 The original and common law jurisdiction of the court must be ascertained from the continuous practice and the judgments of its judges and from the judgments of the courts at Westminster; the former, in their court, using the law of the Rhodians, of Wisbey, the Hanse towns, of Oleron (incorporated in the 15th Century Black Book of Admiralty), the Digest and French and other ordinances, which, though they are not part of the law of England, contain many valuable principles and statements of marine practice: see The Gas Float Whitton No 2 [1896] P 42 at 48, 8 Asp MLC 110 at 111, CA, per Lord Esher MR, quoting Abbott's Law of Merchant Ships and Seamen (5th Edn) Preface to the 1st Edn xi.

83. Origin of claims in rem.

Originally, a suit in Admiralty was commenced by the arrest either of the person of the defendant or of his goods, whether or not the ship or goods in question constituted the subject matter of the offence, the purpose being to make the defendant put up bail or provide a fund for securing compliance with the judgment, if any, when it was obtained against him¹. The result of the conflict between the Court of Admiralty and the common law courts² was that this method of procedure became obsolete³, but the Admiralty Court succeeded in establishing a right to arrest property which was the subject matter of a dispute, and to enforce its judgments against the property so arrested, on the theory that a maritime lien⁴ to the extent of the claim attached to the property from the moment of the creation of such claim. Such a claim became known as an action in rem. The right to enforce a maritime lien by an action in rem was confined to the property by which the damage was caused or in relation to which the claim arose, and was enforceable against the property in the hands of an innocent purchaser⁵.

The present law preserves the jurisdiction based upon the maritime lien⁶ and extends the right to proceed in rem to many claims which do not give rise to a maritime lien⁷. In addition, in many cases jurisdiction may now be established by the commencement of proceedings against any other ship in the same beneficial ownership as the ship in connection with which the claim arose⁸.

84. Origin of claims in personam ('other claims').

The inherent jurisdiction possessed by the Court of Admiralty was exercised not only by proceedings in rem brought to enforce the maritime liens¹ attaching to the res (that is, the subject property of the claim) in each case, but, where the ship was lost or for some other reason could not be arrested, a claimant having a claim cognisable by the court, other than a claim on a bottomry or respondentia bond² or to the possession of the ship, might take proceedings in personam against the owners of the property which would have been arrested if the proceedings had been in rem³. Subsequently, in 1854, the High Court of Admiralty was empowered by statute to institute proceedings by personal service of a monition upon the owners of the property the subject matter of the dispute, without the necessity of issuing a warrant to arrest the property⁴.

A claim in personam may be brought in the High Court in all cases within the Admiralty jurisdiction of that court⁵, although the exercise of jurisdiction may be inhibited by the operation of rules of court relating to service of proceedings out of the jurisdiction⁶, and in collision and other similar cases the jurisdiction of the court cannot in any event be exercised unless certain special conditions are fulfilled⁷.

(iii) Present Jurisdiction

85. Jurisdiction under the Supreme Court Act 1981.

The Admiralty Court takes Admiralty business, that is to say causes and matters assigned to the Queen's Bench Division¹ and involving the exercise of either the High Court's Admiralty jurisdiction² or its jurisdiction as a prize court³.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice is derived partly from statute and partly from the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court of Admiralty⁴. The Supreme Court Act 1981 lists the specific areas of jurisdiction of the High Court in this regard⁵ and includes any such jurisdiction which either it had immediately before 1 January 1982 (that is, before the commencement of the Supreme Court Act 1981)⁶, or is connected with ships⁷ (or aircraft⁸) and is vested in the High Court and is for the time being assigned by rules of court to the Queen's Bench Division and directed by the rules to be exercised by the Admiralty Court⁹. Although the jurisdiction of the High Court is concerned mainly with questions and claims arising in relation to ships¹⁰, it extends to hovercraft¹¹ and, in respect of certain questions and claims, also to aircraft¹².

However, nothing in the provisions of the Supreme Court Act 1981 that set out the Admiralty jurisdiction¹³:

- 232 (1) is to be construed as limiting the jurisdiction of the High Court to refuse to entertain an action for wages by the master¹⁴ or a member of the crew of a ship, not being a British ship¹⁵;
- 233 (2) affects the power of a receiver of wreck to detain a ship in respect of a salvage claim¹⁶; or
- 234 (3) authorises proceedings in rem¹⁷ in respect of any claim against the Crown, or the arrest, detention or sale of any of Her Majesty's ships¹⁸ or Her Majesty's aircraft¹⁹, or²⁰ Her Majesty's hovercraft²¹, or of any cargo or other property belonging to the Crown²².

1 As to the distribution of business between divisions of the High Court see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 610. As to the Queen's Bench Division generally see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 613.

2 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice see the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20-24; and the text and notes 4-22. As to the mode of exercise of this jurisdiction see s 21; and PARAS 93-94. As to foreign aspects of the Admiralty jurisdiction see PARA 86. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court extends also to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

3 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 62(2). As to the High Court's jurisdiction as a prize court see PARA 89.

4 As to the development of the law that is administered in Admiralty see PARA 80 et seq.

5 The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court is defined by the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1) as being: (1) jurisdiction to hear and determine any of the questions and claims mentioned in s 20(2) (see s 20(1)(a); and PARA 93 et seq); and (2) jurisdiction in relation to any of the proceedings mentioned in s 20(3) (see s 20(1)(b); and PARAS 91, 180, 194 et seq), and includes the areas set out in the text and notes 6-9.

The jurisdiction established by s 20 creates no new rights of action or maritime liens but extends to all ships whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, and to all claims, wherever arising: see s 20(7)(a), (b); and PARA 86. The areas of jurisdiction so defined must be considered in conjunction with the mode of exercise of that jurisdiction (see s 21; and PARAS 93-94) and the restrictions placed on that jurisdiction (see s 22 (cited in PARA 94); and s 23 (cited in PARA 86)).

6 Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20(1)(c), 153(2).

The Supreme Court Act 1981 s 152(4), Sch 7 repealed the Administration of Justice Act 1956 s 1(1), which conferred upon the High Court any other jurisdiction which either was vested in the High Court of Admiralty before 1 November 1875 or was conferred on the High Court as being a court with Admiralty jurisdiction by or under any Act which came into operation on or after that date, and also any other jurisdiction connected with ships or aircraft vested in the High Court which was for the time being assigned by the rules of court to the Queen's Bench Division and directed by the rules to be exercised by the Admiralty Court. In The Queen of the South [1968] P 449 at 455, [1968] 1 All ER 1163 at 1168, Brandon J expressed the view (obiter) that the effect of the Administration of Justice Act 1956 s 1(1) was to preserve, independently of, and concurrently with, any jurisdiction conferred by s 1(1)(a)-(s) (repealed), the jurisdiction which was formerly conferred by the Admiralty Court Act 1840, the Admiralty Court Act 1861, the Supreme Court of Judicature Act 1873, the Supreme Court of Judicature Act 1875, and the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act 1925 (all repealed). It seems doubtful, however, whether jurisdiction 'is conferred' within the meaning of the Administration of Justice Act 1956 s 1(1) (repealed), by for example the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act 1925 s 22 (which was repealed by the Administration of Justice Act 1956 ss 7(2), 57(2), Sch 2). See also the Interpretation Act 1978 ss 16(1), 17(2)(a), Sch 2 para 3; and STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1381 et seq. The same would apply to the Supreme Court of Judicature Act 1873, which was wholly repealed in 1956. Cf the wording of the Administration of Justice Act 1956 s 1(1) (repealed) in relation to jurisdiction vested in the High Court of Admiralty immediately before the commencement of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act 1873. See also PARA 91.

7 For the purposes of the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20-23, unless the context otherwise requires, 'ship' includes any description of vessel used in navigation and, except in the definition of 'port' in s 22(2) (see PARA 94), and in s 24(2)(c) (see head (3) in the text), includes, subject to the Hovercraft Act 1968 s 2(3) (see PARA 383), a hovercraft: Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(1).

8 As to the application of wreck and salvage law to aircraft see AIR LAW vol 2 (2008) PARA 599; and as to the jurisdiction in civil matters that arises in relation to aircraft or air navigation see AIR LAW vol 2 (2008) PARA 615.

9 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(d). As to the procedure that applies to Admiralty claims and to the distribution of business to the Admiralty Court (including rules of court, practice directions and other guidance) see PARA 157 et seq.

10 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(7); and PARA 86. See also PARAS 87, 110. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court also includes jurisdiction to hear and determine expenses and compensation claims arising from a safety direction made by the Secretary of State: see PARA 688.

11 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction in respect of hovercraft see PARA 87.

12 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(j) (claims in the nature of salvage in respect of aircraft) (see PARAS 113, 114) and s 20(1)(a), (2)(k), (l) (claims in the nature of towage and pilotage in respect of aircraft) (see PARA 125). For the purposes of ss 20-23, 'towage' and 'pilotage', in relation to an aircraft, mean towage and pilotage while the aircraft is waterborne: see s 24(1); and PARA 93 note 40.

13 Ie nothing in the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20-23 (see PARA 85 et seq): see s 24(2).

14 For the purposes of the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20-23, unless the context otherwise requires, 'master' has the same meaning as in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313(1) (see PARA 424) and accordingly includes every person (except a pilot) having command or charge of a ship: Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(1) (definition amended by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 314(2), Sch 13 para 59(3)).

15 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(2)(a). As to British ships under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 229 et seq.

16 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(2)(b) (amended by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 13 para 59(3)). The text refers to the power of a receiver of wreck contained in the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 226 (as to which see PARA 885): see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(2)(b).

17 As to proceedings in rem see PARAS 83 et seq, 92 et seq.

18 For these purposes, 'Her Majesty's ships' has the meaning given by the Crown Proceedings Act 1947 s 38(2) (see CROWN PROCEEDINGS AND CROWN PRACTICE vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 103): Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(3).

19 For these purposes, 'Her Majesty's aircraft' has the meaning given by the Crown Proceedings Act 1947 s 38(2) (see CROWN PROCEEDINGS AND CROWN PRACTICE vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 103): Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(3).

20 Is subject to the Hovercraft Act 1968 s 2(3) (see PARA 383): see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(2)(c).

21 For these purposes, 'Her Majesty's hovercraft' means hovercraft belonging to the Crown in right of Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom or Her Majesty's Government in Northern Ireland: Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(3). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

86. Foreign aspects of Admiralty jurisdiction.

The jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court has long extended both to foreign ships on the high seas¹, except ships in the ownership or possession of a foreign sovereign state and used for public purposes², and over injurious acts done on the high seas³. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court applies⁴: (1) in relation to all ships⁵ or aircraft⁶, whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be⁷; (2) in relation to all claims, wherever arising (including, in the case of cargo or wreck salvage, claims in respect of cargo or wreck found on land)⁸; and (3) so far as they relate to mortgages and charges, to all mortgages or charges, whether registered or not and whether legal or equitable, including mortgages and charges created under foreign law⁹. The extent of the jurisdiction is subject to statutory rules governing the mode of exercise of jurisdiction¹⁰ and to restrictions in collision and other similar cases where the claim is in personam¹¹.

The general jurisdictional provisions contained in Part II of the Supreme Court Act 1981¹² are based, in part at least, on the International Convention relating to the Arrest of Sea-going Ships¹³ and the International Convention on certain Rules concerning Civil Jurisdiction in matters of Collision¹⁴, to both of which the United Kingdom is a signatory¹⁵. Where the meaning of the Act is not clear, the court may look to the terms of these Conventions to assist in the construction of the Act¹⁶.

5 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 85 note 7. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court also extends to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

6 The wording of the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(7) extends its jurisdiction to all aircraft but only in respect of those claims or questions with regard to which the word 'aircraft' is used in the legislation: see Re Glider Standard Austria SH 1964 [1965] P 463, [1965] 2 All ER 1022, [1965] 2 Lloyd's Rep 189. 8 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(7)(b). See note 4. However, the High Court does not have jurisdiction to determine any claim or question certified by the Secretary of State to be a claim or question which, under the Rhine Navigation Convention 1868, falls to be determined in accordance with the provisions of that Convention; and any proceedings to enforce such a claim which are commenced in the High Court must be set aside: Supreme Court Act 1981 s 23. 'Rhine Navigation Convention' means the Convention of the 7 October 1868 as revised by any subsequent Convention (see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(1)), which established Rhine Courts to deal with certain matters of civil and criminal jurisdiction in relation to navigation on the Rhine (see art 33 et seq). A number of shipping and insurance companies have undertaken that they will not seek the Secretary of State's certificate in cases of claims by United Kingdom citizens for death or personal injury, if the ship concerned was British or was insured with one of the companies giving the undertaking: see the written answer of the Minister of Transport in the House of Commons, 599 HC Official Report (5th Series), 5 February 1959, written answers col 125. The Supreme Court Act 1981 Pt II (ss 15-52) follows the terms of the international conventions mentioned in notes 10, 13, which do not apply in cases covered by the Rhine Navigation Convention. As to this and other limitations on the jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court see PARA 90.

As to jurisdictional issues in particular see art 7, especially art 7(2) (security in case of stay), which is implemented in England and Wales by the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982 s 26. Accordingly, where in England and Wales a court stays or dismisses Admiralty proceedings on the ground that the dispute in question should be submitted to the determination of the courts of another part of the United Kingdom or of an overseas country, the court may, if in those proceedings property has been arrested or bail or other security has been given to prevent or obtain release from arrest, order as follows (Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982 s 26(1) (amended by the Arbitration Act 1996 s 107(2), Sch 4)):

- 50 (1) that the property arrested be retained as security for the satisfaction of any award or judgment which is given in respect of the dispute in the legal proceedings in favour of which those proceedings are stayed or dismissed, and which is enforceable in England and Wales (Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982 s 26(1)(a) (amended by the Arbitration Act 1996 Sch 4)); or
- 51 (2) that the stay or dismissal of those proceedings be conditional on the provision of equivalent security for the satisfaction of any such award or judgment (Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982 s 26(1)(b)).

Where a court makes such an order, it may attach such conditions to the order as it thinks fit, in particular conditions with respect to the institution or prosecution of the relevant legal proceedings (s 26(2) (amended by the Arbitration Act 1996 Sch 4)); and, subject to any provision made by rules of court and to any necessary modifications, the same law and practice applies in relation to property retained in pursuance of such an order as would apply if it were held for the purposes of proceedings in that court (Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982 s 26(3)). As to the meanings of 'England' and 'Wales' see PARA 17 note 2.

90. Restrictions on jurisdiction.

The jurisdiction of the English courts may be excluded or limited in Admiralty matters, or generally, as a result of (for example):

- 235 (1) conflicts of jurisdiction, and disputes as to the forum in which claims should be heard¹;
- 236 (2) statutory rules governing the mode of exercise of the jurisdiction² and statutory restrictions on the entertainment of actions in collision and other similar cases where the claim is in personam³;
- 237 (3) restrictions on the entertainment of claims for wages by the master or a member of the crew of a foreign ship, in cases where the consul in London objects⁴;
- 238 (4) restrictions on the entertainment of claims against the Crown, or the arrest, detention or sale of any of Her Majesty's ships or aircraft, or of any cargo or other property belonging to the Crown⁵;
- 239 (5) the general immunity enjoyed by certain individuals and bodies from the jurisdiction of the English courts⁶;
- 240 (6) the general restriction, except by leave of the court and subject to such terms as it may impose, on claims or proceedings against companies or their property in cases where a winding-up order has been made or a provisional liquidator has been appointed in respect of that company⁷.

1 The matters mentioned in head (1) in the text are subject to relevant agreements and commitments which are binding on the United Kingdom: see PARA 95 et seq. See also PARA 85. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

As well as the mechanisms that exist for resolving such conflicts and disputes that arise as mentioned in head (1) in the text, restrictions are placed on the court's jurisdiction in relation to claims or questions which are certified by the Secretary of State to be a claim or question falling to be determined, under the terms of specific international conventions, by the court of a foreign country: see eg the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 23 in relation to the Rhine Navigation Convention (cited in PARA 86); and the Nuclear Installations Act 1965 s 17(1) (cited in FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1507) in relation to relevant international agreements with respect to third-party liability in the field of nuclear energy to which the United Kingdom or Her Majesty's Government therein are party, other than agreements relating to liability in respect of nuclear reactors comprised in means of transport (see s 26(1); and FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1487). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21; and PARA 93 et seq. See also PARAS 85, 95 et seq.

3 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 22; and PARA 94. The power of a receiver of wreck to detain a ship in respect of a salvage claim is also unaffected by the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court: see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(2)(b); and PARA 85.

4 See the Consular Relations Act 1968 s 4; and PARA 128. See also the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(2)(a); and PARA 85. As to the requirements as to notice to the consul of the foreign state when a foreign ship is arrested see PARA 161.

5 See the Crown Proceedings Act 1947 s 29(1); and PARA 179. See also the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(2)(c); and PARA 85.

6 Predominant among the persons mentioned in head (5) in the text are states, and others entitled to plead sovereign or diplomatic immunity, although the nature and extent of the immunity varies according to the identity of the claimant and the nature of the claim brought: see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010)

(iv) Procedural Matters

91. Assignment of business to Admiralty Court.

All jurisdiction vested in the High Court under the Supreme Court Act 1981 belongs to all the divisions alike¹, and all the judges of that court have equal power, authority and jurisdiction². However, the following claims must be started in the Admiralty Court³:

- 241 (1) a claim in rem⁴; a claim for damage done by a ship⁵; a claim concerning the ownership of a ship⁶; a claim under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁷; a claim for loss of life or personal injury as specified in the Supreme Court Act 1981⁸; a claim by a master or member of a crew for wages⁹; a claim in the nature of towage¹⁰; or a claim in the nature of pilotage¹¹;
- 242 (2) a collision claim¹²;
- 243 (3) a limitation claim¹³; or
- 244 (4) a salvage claim¹⁴.

Any other Admiralty claim may be started in the Admiralty Court¹⁵.

All proceedings by which any application is made to the High Court under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 are also taken by the Admiralty Court¹⁶.

The procedural rule that allows the High Court to order proceedings in any Division of the High Court to be transferred to another Division, and allows a judge dealing with claims in a specialist list to order proceedings to be transferred to or from that list¹⁷, applies to claims in the Admiralty Court except that the Admiralty Court may order the transfer of a claim to the Commercial List¹⁸, to a Mercantile Court¹⁹, to the Mercantile list at the Central London County Court²⁰, or to any other appropriate court²¹.

1 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 5(5); and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 603. This is without prejudice to the provisions of the Supreme Court Act 1981 relating to the distribution of business in the High Court: see s 5(5). As to the distribution of business between divisions of the High Court see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 610.

2 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 4(3); and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 602.

3 CPR 61.2(1) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). For these purposes, 'Admiralty Court' means the Admiralty Court of the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice (CPR 61.1(2)(b) (as so added)); and 'Admiralty claim' means a claim within the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court as set out in the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20 (see PARAS 85 et seq, 92 et seq) (CPR 61.1(2)(a) (as so added)). CPR Pt 61 applies to Admiralty claims (CPR 61.1(1) (as so added)); and see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N1.1) but CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (CPR 61.1(3) (as so added)). Similarly, the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61: see para 1.1. As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 157 et seq. As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615.

The Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide is published with the approval of the Lord Chief Justice and the Head of Civil Justice in consultation with the Judges of the Admiralty and Commercial Courts and with the advice and support of the Admiralty Court and Commercial Court Committees: see para A1.2. It is intended to provide guidance about the conduct of proceedings in the Admiralty and Commercial Courts and, within the framework of the Civil Procedure Rules and Practice Directions, to establish the practice to be followed in those courts: see para A1.2; and PARA 157 et seq. As to the Commercial Court Committee see para A3; and as to the Admiralty Court Committee see para N2.

4 CPR 61.2(1)(a)(i) (as added: see note 3). For these purposes, 'claim in rem' means a claim in an admiralty action in rem: CPR 61.1(2)(c) (as so added). As to claims in rem see PARAS 83 et seq, 92 et seq; and as to the procedure that applies to claims in rem see PARA 158 et seq.

5 CPR 61.2(1)(a)(ii) (as added: see note 3). For these purposes, 'ship' includes any vessel used in navigation: CPR 61.1(2)(k) (as so added). As to claims for damage done by a ship see PARA 110 et seq.

6 CPR 61.2(1)(a)(iii) (as added: see note 3). As to claims concerning the ownership of a ship see PARA 104 et seq.

7 CPR 61.2(1)(a)(iv) (as added: see note 3). Specifically, the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court to hear and determine any claim for damage done by a ship (as to which see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(e); and PARA 110 et seq) extends to claims in respect of liability for damage from oil pollution incurred under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Pt VI Ch III (ss 152-171) (see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(5)(a); and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 441 et seq) or under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Pt VI Ch IV (ss 172-182C) (see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(5)(b); and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 459 et seq): see PARA 88.

8 CPR 61.2(1)(a)(v) (as added: see note 3). The text refers to a claim that is specified in the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(f) (as to which see PARA 112): see CPR 61.2(1)(a)(v) (as so added).

9 CPR 61.2(1)(a)(vi) (as added: see note 3). As to claims by a master or member of a crew for wages see PARA 127 et seq.

10 CPR 61.2(1)(a)(vii) (as added: see note 3). As to claims in the nature of towage see PARA 125 et seq.

11 CPR 61.2(1)(a)(viii) (as added: see note 3). As to claims in the nature of pilotage see PARA 125 et seq.

12 CPR 61.2(1)(b) (as added: see note 3). For these purposes, 'collision claim' means a claim within the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(b), (3)(b) (see PARA 180): see CPR 61.1(2)(d) (as so added).

13 CPR 61.2(1)(c) (as added: see note 3). For these purposes, 'limitation claim' means a claim under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 for the limitation of liability in connection with a ship or other property (see PARA 195 et seq): see CPR 61.1(2)(e) (as so added). See also the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(b), (3)(c); and PARA 194.

14 CPR 61.2(1)(d) (as added: see note 3). For these purposes, 'salvage claim' means a claim:

- 52 (1) for or in the nature of salvage (see PARAS 113, 876 et seq) (CPR 61.1(2)(f)(i) (as so added));
- 53 (2) for special compensation under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 224(1), (2), Sch 11 art 14 (ie regarding salvage operations in respect of a vessel which by itself or its cargo threatened damage to the environment) (see PARAS 113, 905) (CPR 61.1(2)(f)(ii) (as so added));
- 54 (3) for the apportionment of salvage (as to which see PARAS 113, 119, 887 et seq) (CPR 61.1(2)(f)(iii) (as so added)); and
- 55 (4) arising out of or connected with any contract for salvage services (as to which see PARA 113) (CPR 61.1(2)(f)(iv) (as so added)).

15 CPR 61.2(2) (as added: see note 3).

16 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(b), (3)(a) (s 20(3)(a) amended by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 314(2), Sch 13 para 59(2)).

17 Ie CPR 30.5 (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 67): see CPR 61.2(3) (as added: see note 3). As to specialist proceedings see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq. If a claim is to be in one of the specialist High Court lists, and the High Court is to issue the claim form, the form must state that the claim is to be in one of the specialist lists and also state which list: see CPR 16.3; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 586.

18 CPR 61.2(3)(a) (as added: see note 3). As to the Commercial List see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq.

19 CPR 61.2(3)(b) (as added: see note 3). As to the Mercantile Courts and business lists see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1545.

20 CPR 61.2(3)(c) (as added: see note 3). As to the Mercantile list at the Central London County Court see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1545.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(1) INTRODUCTION/(iv) Procedural Matters/92. Nature of claims in rem and claims in personam ('other claims').

92. Nature of claims in rem and claims in personam ('other claims').

A claim in rem is a claim against the ship itself¹, but the view that, if the owners of the vessel do not acknowledge service of the claim form in order to defend their property, then no personal liability can be established against them² has been questioned³. It has been stated that, if the defendant acknowledges service, a claim in rem becomes (or continues also as) a claim in personam⁴; but the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court may now in all cases be invoked by a claim in personam, although this is subject to certain restrictions in the case of collision and similar cases, except where the defendant submits or agrees to submit to the jurisdiction of the court⁵.

The foundation of a claim in rem is the lien resulting from the personal liability of the owner of the res (that is, the subject property of the claim)⁶. Therefore, a claim in rem cannot be brought to recover damages for injury caused to a ship by the malicious act of the master of the defendant's ship⁷, or for damage done at a time when the ship was in the control of third parties by reason of compulsory requisition⁸. On the other hand, in several cases, ships allowed by their owners to be in the possession and control of charterers have been successfully proceeded against to enforce liens which arose whilst the ships were in control of such third parties⁹.

The defendant in an Admiralty claim in personam is liable, as in other claims in the High Court, for the full amount of the claimant's proved claim¹⁰. Equally, in a claim in rem, a defendant who acknowledges service is now liable for the full amount of the judgment¹¹, even though it exceeds the value of the res or of the bail provided¹². The right to recovery of damages may, however, be affected by the right of the defendant to the benefit of statutory provisions relating to limitation of liability¹³.

1 As to the origin of claims in rem see PARA 83.

2 The traditional view is that, where there has been no acknowledgment of service (formerly entry of appearance) in a claim in rem, the claimant's only remedy is the sale of the arrested res, so that he can neither obtain execution for any unsatisfied balance of his claim, nor claim any remedy such as an order for specific performance against the defendant: see The Burns [1907] P 137 at 149, CA (a case decided under the Public Authorities Protection Act 1893 (repealed) limiting the time within which action may be taken against certain persons, and following The Longford (1889) 14 PD 34, CA). See also The Banco [1971] P 137 at 151, [1971] 1 All ER 524 at 531, [1971] 1 Lloyd's Rep 49 at 52, CA, per Lord Denning MR.

3 See The Conoco Britannia [1972] 2 All ER 238 at 245 per Brandon J, where it was said that the point did not, strictly speaking, arise for decision in any of the cases cited in note 2, and, to this extent, has not been decided.

4 The Gemma [1899] P 285 at 292, CA, per AL Smith LJ. Cf The Broadmayne [1916] P 64 at 77, CA, proposing the view that the claim proceeds only as if it were a claim in personam whilst still retaining the characteristics of a claim in rem. As to the origin of claims in personam (now known as 'other claims') see PARA 84; and as to claims in personam ('other claims') generally see PARA 92 et seq.

After acknowledgment of service in an Admiralty claim in rem, the claim does not lose its in rem character, but proceeds as a hybrid, being both in rem and in personam even though the res may have been released by the court: see The Maciej Rataj [1992] 2 Lloyd's Rep 552, CA. See also The Indian Grace (No 2) [1998] 1 Lloyd's Rep 1, HL. See further The Banco [1971] P 137 at 151, [1971] 1 All ER 524 at 531, [1971] 1 Lloyd's Rep 49 at 51, CA, per Lord Denning MR; and The August 8 [1983] 2 AC 450, [1983] 1 Lloyd's Rep 351, PC. It has not yet been decided whether or not, in a claim in rem where the defendant has not acknowledged service, the claimant claiming equitable relief may enforce an order for specific performance or granting an injunction: see The 9 The Ruby Queen (1861) Lush 266; The Lemington (1874) 2 Asp MLC 475; The Tasmania (1888) 13 PD 110. The authorities differ as to whether the right to proceed in rem against the ship in the possession and control of charterers arises on the basis that the charterers are deemed to have authority from the owner to subject the ship to the lien (The Ripon City [1897] P 226 at 244), or whether the lien arises by reason of the charterers being 'owners' for this purpose (see the remarks of Brandon J in The Andrea Ursula [1973] QB 265 at 269-270, [1971] 1 All ER 821 at 824-825, [1971] 1 Lloyd's Rep 145 at 147-148, where the issue is regarded as irrelevant since the Administration of Justice Act 1956). Charterers having possession and control as above are usually described as charterers by demise or bareboat charterers. See also PARA 93.

10 This follows from the unification of jurisdiction and of law on the creation of the High Court by the Supreme Court of Judicature Act 1873 (repealed).

In any event, since the Supreme Court of Judicature Consolidation Acts 1873 and 1875, the defendant who acknowledges service renders himself liable to all the remedies enforceable by the High Court of Justice: see The Joannis Vatis (No 2) [1922] P 213 at 222 per Duke P. As to the position where the defendant in a claim in rem does not acknowledge service see the text and notes 2-3.

UPDATE

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(1) INTRODUCTION/(iv) Procedural Matters/93. Claims in rem and the ship or property which is the subject.

93. Claims in rem and the ship or property which is the subject.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ may be invoked, and an action in rem brought against the ship² or property in connection with which any of the following claims or questions arise³:

- 245 (1) any claim to the possession of a ship or ownership of a ship or to the ownership of a share in a ship⁴;
- 246 (2) any question arising between the co-owners of a ship as to possession, employment or earnings of that ship⁵;
- 247 (3) any claim in respect of a mortgage or charge on a ship or any share in a ship⁶; and
- 248 (4) any claim for the forfeiture or condemnation of a ship, or of goods which are being or have been carried, or have attempted to be carried, in a ship, or for the restoration of a ship or any such goods after seizure, or for droits of Admiralty⁷.

Where a dispute under a charterparty has gone to arbitration, current case law is uncertain as to whether a claim in rem may be brought to enforce the award⁸. Jurisdiction exists even though the claimant's purpose in invoking it is simply to obtain security in arbitration proceedings, but exercise of the power of arrest is discretionary, not mandatory⁹.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court may be invoked also to hear and determine a number of other claims¹⁰, as follows:

- 249 (a) any claim for damage done by a ship¹¹;
- 250 (b) any claim for loss of life or personal injury sustained in consequence of any defects in a ship or in her apparel or equipment, or in consequence of the wrongful act, neglect or default of certain persons¹², being an act, neglect or default in the navigation or management of the ship, in the loading, carriage or discharge of goods on, in or from the ship, or in the embarkation, carriage or disembarkation of persons on, in or from the ship¹³;
- 251 (c) any claim for loss of or damage to goods carried in a ship¹⁴;
- 252 (d) any claim arising out of any agreement relating to the carriage of goods in a ship or for the use or hire of a ship¹⁵;
- 253 (e) any of the following claims (whether in connection with a ship or an aircraft), namely: (i) any claim under the International Convention on Salvage 1989¹⁶; (ii) any claim under any contract for or in relation to salvage services¹⁷; or (iii) any claim in the nature of salvage not falling within head (i) or head (ii) above¹⁸;
- 254 (f) any claim in the nature of towage in respect of a ship or an aircraft¹⁹;
- 255 (g) any claim in the nature of pilotage in respect of a ship or aircraft²⁰;
- 256 (h) any claim in respect of goods or materials supplied to a ship for her operation or maintenance²¹;
- 257 (i) any claim in respect of the construction, repair or equipment of a ship or dock charges or dues²²;
- 258 (j) any claim by a master or member of the crew of a ship for wages (including any sum allotted out of wages or adjudged by a superintendent to be due by way of wages)²³;

- 259 (k) any claim by a master, shipper, charterer or agent in respect of disbursements made on account of a ship²⁴;
- 260 (l) any claim arising out of an act which is or is claimed to be a general average act²⁵; and
- 261 (m) any claim arising out of bottomry²⁶.

However, in the case of any claim falling within heads (a) to (m) above²⁷, where the claim arises in connection with a ship²⁸, and where the person who would be liable in a claim in personam (the 'relevant person')²⁹ was, when the cause of action arose, the owner or charterer of, or in possession or in control of, the ship³⁰, the jurisdiction may be invoked by a claim in rem³¹ either: (A) against that ship (if at the time when the claim is brought the relevant person is either the beneficial owner³² of that ship as respects all the shares in it or the charterer of it under a charter by demise)³³; or (B) against any other ship of which, at the time when the claim is brought³⁴, the relevant person is the beneficial owner as respects all the shares in it³⁵. The purpose of this provision is to confer the right to arrest either the ship in respect of which the cause of action is alleged to have arisen or any other ship in the same ownership (that is, against what is generally referred to as a 'sister' ship which is owned by the person who would be liable in a claim in personam)³⁶. This right is conferred whether or not the claim in rem gives rise to a maritime lien on the ship mentioned in head (A) above³⁷. Where, as regards any such claim falling within heads (a) to (m) above³⁸, a ship has been served with a claim form or arrested in a claim in rem brought to enforce that claim, no other ship may be served with a claim form or arrested in that or any other claim in rem brought to enforce that claim, but this does not prevent the issue, in respect of any one such claim, of a claim form naming more than one ship or of two or more claim forms each naming a different ship³⁹.

In the case of a claim in the nature of towage or pilotage in respect of an aircraft⁴⁰, a claim in rem may be brought in the High Court against that aircraft if, at the time when the claim is brought, it is beneficially owned by the person who would be liable on the claim in a claim in personam⁴¹.

In any case where there is a maritime lien⁴² or other charge⁴³ on any ship, aircraft or other property for the amount claimed, a claim in rem may be brought in the High Court against that ship, aircraft or property⁴⁴. A maritime lien may be so invoked against the ship, aircraft or other property, even in the hands of an innocent purchaser⁴⁵.

Where, in the exercise of its Admiralty jurisdiction, the High Court orders any ship, aircraft or other property to be sold, the court has jurisdiction to hear and determine any question arising as to the title to the proceeds of sale⁴⁶.

Nothing in the Crown Proceedings Act 1947 authorises proceedings in rem in respect of any claim against the Crown, or the arrest, detention or sale of any of His Majesty's ships or aircraft, or of any cargo or other property belonging to the Crown, or gives to any person any lien on any such ship, aircraft, cargo or other property⁴⁷.

1 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice generally see PARA 85 et seq. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court extends also to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

2 As to the origin of claims in rem see PARA 83; and as to claims in rem generally see PARA 92. As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 85 note 7.

3 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(2). As to claims where the right is conferred to arrest either the ship in respect of which the cause of action is alleged to have arisen or any other ship in the same ownership see heads (a) to (m) in the text. As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims see PARA 157 et seq.

10 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a); and PARA 104 et seq. The other claims referred to in the text are those mentioned in s 20(1)(a), (2)(e)-(r) (see heads (a) to (m) in the text): see s 20(1)(a); and PARA 110 et seq.

11 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(e); and PARA 110. Claims in respect of damage received by a ship (as to which see s 20(1)(a), (2)(d); and PARA 110) no longer give rise to proceedings in rem, this being the combined effect of s 21(2), (4) (see heads (1) to (4) and heads (a) to (m) in the text), neither of which mentions s 20(1)(a), (2)(d).

12 The persons specified for these purposes are: (1) the owners, charterers or persons in possession or control of a ship; or (2) the master or crew of a ship, or any other person for whose wrongful acts, neglects or defaults the owners, charterers or persons in possession or control of a ship are responsible: see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(f); and PARA 112.

13 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(f); and PARA 112.

14 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(g); and PARA 111.

15 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(h); and PARA 111. To fall within the provisions, an agreement must have a reasonably direct connection with the carriage of goods in a ship: Gatol International Inc v Arkwright-Boston Manufacturers Mutual Insurance Co [1985] AC 255, [1985] 1 All ER 129, [1985] 1 Lloyd's Rep 181, HL. See also Petrofina SA v AOT Ltd, The Maersk Nimrod [1992] QB 571, [1991] 3 All ER 161 (agreement relating to carriage of goods in a ship does not cover cif contract for sale of goods, since carriage of goods by sea was merely one matter to which contract related and was not its central concern).

26 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(r); and PARA 134.

27 Is any such claim as is mentioned in the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(e)-(r) (see heads (a) to (m) in the text): see s 21(4).

28 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(4)(a).

29 In determining for the purposes of the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(4) whether a person would be liable on an in personam claim, it must be assumed that he has his habitual residence or place of business within England and Wales: s 21(7). As to the meanings of 'England' and 'Wales' see PARA 17 note 2. As to a discussion of habitual residence in European and domestic law see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 59. As to a person's place of business see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 122. The purpose of the words 'the person who would be liable on the claim in an action in personam' is to identify the person or persons whose ship or ships may be arrested and they do not require the claimant to prove that he has a good cause of action before making an arrest: see The St Elefterio [1957] P 179 at 186, [1957] 2 All ER 374 at 377, [1957] 1 Lloyd's Rep 283 at 287 per Willmer J. See also The Giuseppe di Vittorio [1998] 1 Lloyd's Rep 136, CA. As to the origin of claims in personam see PARA 84; and as to claims in personam generally see PARA 92 et seq.

30 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(4)(b). See Aluflet SA v Vinave Empresa de Navegação Marítima LDA, The Faial [2000] 1 Lloyd's Rep 473.

31 The claim form may be served effectively upon a ship, and security obtained by the arrest of the ship even in cases where no maritime lien attaches, despite a change in ownership of the vessel between the time of issue of the claim form and service: The Monica S [1968] P 741, [1967] 3 All ER 740; but see the views expressed obiter in The Banco [1971] P 137 at 153, [1971] 1 All ER 524 at 533, [1971] 1 Lloyd's Rep 49 at 53, CA, per Lord Denning MR and at 159, 538 and 57 per Megaw LJ. See also The Helene Roth [1980] QB 273, [1980] 1 All ER 1078, [1980] 1 Lloyd's Rep 477, where the change in ownership of the defendant vessel was held to be no bar to the renewal of the claim form. See also The Giuseppe di Vittorio [1998] 1 Lloyd's Rep 136, CA.

32 'Beneficial owner' has been held to mean a person who lawfully has full possession and control, and to include a charterer by demise: The Andrea Ursula [1973] QB 265, [1971] 1 All ER 821, [1971] 1 Lloyd's Rep 145 (not following The St Merriel [1963] P 247, [1963] 1 All ER 537). This decision was not followed in The I Congreso del Partido [1978] QB 500 at 538-543, [1978] 1 All ER 1169 at 1201-1204, [1977] 1 Lloyd's Rep 536 at 560-562 per Goff J, where it was held that the phrase 'beneficially owned' did not apply to a demise charterer but has its ordinary meaning of equitable owner. As to beneficial ownership see also The Nazym Khikmet [1996] 2 Lloyd's Rep 362, CA. Where the transfer of a vessel (whether British or not) is a sham, the original owner will retain beneficial ownership: The Tjaskemolen (now named Visvliet) [1997] 2 Lloyd's Rep 465. See also The Giuseppe di Vittorio [1998] 1 Lloyd's Rep 136, CA.

33 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(4)(i). The 'relevant person' can be a demise charterer, even in the absence of a consensual agreement between the parties in the nature of a demise charter, if the legal relationship between the parties invests the 'relevant person' with the right of a demise charterer against the owner of the vessel: The Giuseppe di Vittorio [1998] 1 Lloyd's Rep 136, CA. A slot charterer of spaces on a container ship for the carriage of goods is capable of coming within the definition of a charterer in the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(4)(b), despite the fact that the slot charter gave control of only part of the vessel to the charterer: The Tychy [1999] 2 Lloyd's Rep 11, CA. See also The Giuseppe di Vittorio.

35 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(4)(ii).

36 See The St Elefterio [1957] P 179 at 185-186, [1957] 2 All ER 374 at 377, [1957] 1 Lloyd's Rep 283 at 287 per Willmer J (discussing the Administration of Justice Act 1956 s 3(4) (now repealed, and re-enacted, by the Supreme Court Act 1981: see now s 21(4)), the Administration of Justice Act 1956 s 3(4) having conferred this right for the first time in England). See also The Aventicum [1978] 1 Lloyd's Rep 184 (court empowered by the Administration of Justice Act 1956 s 3(4) (repealed: see now the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(4)) to look behind registered owner to determine true beneficial owner); The Maritime Trader [1981] 2 Lloyd's Rep 153 (ship owned by wholly-owned subsidiary company not 'beneficially owned' by defendant holding company). The Maritime Trader concerned a vertical relationship between a holding company and a subsidiary. The horizontal relationship between 'one-ship companies' was considered in the Court of Appeal in The Evpo Agnic [1988] 3 All ER 810, [1988] 1 WLR 1090, [1988] 2 Lloyd's Rep 411, CA. It has been held that the right of arrest under the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(4) does not extend to a ship owned by a sister company of the company owning the ship in connection with which the claim arose: see The Nazym Khikmet [1996] 2 Lloyd's Rep 362, CA. See also The Giuseppe di Vittorio [1998] 1 Lloyd's Rep 136, CA.

37 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(4). For a general discussion of maritime liens see PARA 1014 et seq.

38 In any such claim as is mentioned in the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(e)-(r) (see heads (a) to (m) in the text): see s 21(8).

39 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(8). See also The Banco [1971] P 137, [1971] 1 All ER 524, [1971] 1 Lloyd's Rep 49, CA. A claim form naming more than one vessel must be amended when one vessel has been selected for service of the proceedings by deleting the names of the other vessels: see The Banco; and PARA 158. Although the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(8) prevents the service of an in rem claim form and arrest of more than one ship in respect of the same claim, where a ship is served with an in rem claim form and arrested in the mistaken belief that it was a ship against which a claim in rem can be brought, this will not bar a subsequent claim against and arrest of a ship against which a claim can properly be brought: The Stephan J [1985] 2 Lloyd's

Rep 344. The affidavit in support of the application for the second arrest should refer to the previous mistaken arrest and the reasons for it: The Stephan J.

40 For the purposes of the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20-23, unless the context otherwise requires, 'towage' and 'pilotage', in relation to an aircraft, mean towage and pilotage while the aircraft is waterborne: s 24(1). As to towage and pilotage see PARA 125.

41 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(5). In determining for the purpose of s 21(5) whether a person would be liable on a claim in personam, it must be assumed that he has his habitual residence or place of business within England and Wales: s 21(7).

42 The principal claims in respect of which the law recognises maritime liens are bottomry, salvage, wages, master's wages, disbursements and liabilities, and damage done by a ship: see The Ripon City [1897] P 226, 8 Asp MLC 304 per Gorrell Barnes J. As to the extent of Admiralty jurisdiction regarding salvage claims see PARA 113 et seq; as to wages and master's wages see PARA 127 et seq; and as to disbursements and liabilities see PARAS 131-132.

UPDATE

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(1) INTRODUCTION/(iv) Procedural Matters/94. Claims in personam ('other claims').

94. Claims in personam ('other claims').

A claim in personam¹ may be brought in the High Court in all cases that fall within the Admiralty jurisdiction of that court², except where a restriction applies³ in relation to any claim for damage, loss of life or personal injury arising out of⁴:

- 262 (1) a collision between ships⁵;
- 263 (2) the carrying out of (or omission to carry out) a manoeuvre in the case of one or more of two or more ships⁶; or
- 264 (3) non-compliance, on the part of one or more of two or more ships, with the collision regulations⁷.

The High Court must not entertain any claim in personam to enforce a claim⁸ which falls within heads (1) to (3) above unless⁹:

- 265 (a) the defendant has his habitual residence or place of business within England and Wales¹⁰;
- 266 (b) the cause of action arose within inland waters¹¹ of England and Wales or within the limits of a port¹² of England and Wales¹³; or
- 267 (c) a claim arising out of the same incident or series of incidents is proceeding in the court or has been heard and determined in the court¹⁴.

Nor may the High Court entertain any claim in personam to enforce a claim which falls within heads (1) to (3) above until any proceedings previously brought by the claimant in any court outside England and Wales against the same defendant in respect of the same incidents or series of incidents¹⁵ have been discontinued or otherwise come to an end¹⁶. The High Court has jurisdiction otherwise¹⁷ to entertain such a claim whenever any of the conditions specified in heads (a) to (c) above is satisfied, and the rules of court relating to the service of process outside the jurisdiction¹⁸ make such provision as may appear to the rule-making authority to be appropriate having regard to this purpose¹⁹.

The restrictions on jurisdiction contained in these provisions²⁰ do not prevent a claim or a counterclaim which is duly brought in the High Court²¹ being transferred, in accordance with the enactments in that behalf²², to some other court²³.

1 As to the origin of claims in personam see PARA 84.

2 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(1). As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice generally see PARA 85 et seq. As to the mode of exercise of this jurisdiction see also PARA 93. Where claims are made in personam and the defendant is outside the jurisdiction, the exercise of jurisdiction may be inhibited because permission to serve must be granted in such cases generally: see CPR Pt 6; the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para B7.1-B7.2; PARA 188; CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 156 et seq; CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 62. See also the text and notes 17-23.

Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 12 ('other claims') applies to Admiralty claims which, before the coming into force of CPR Pt 61 (ie before 25 March 2002: see the Civil Procedure (Amendment No 5) Rules 2001, SI 2001/4015, r 1), would have been called claims in personam: see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 12.1; and PARA 186 et seq. As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims see PARA 157 et seq.

As to CPR Pt 61, Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 and the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide generally see PARA 91 note 3.

3 Ie because the jurisdiction conferred by the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21 (as to which see the text and notes 1-2) is subject to s 22 (as to which see the text and notes 4-23): see s 21(1). For the avoidance of doubt, s 22 applies in relation to the jurisdiction of the High Court not being Admiralty jurisdiction, as well as in relation to its Admiralty jurisdiction: s 22(8).

6 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 22(1)(b).

7 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 22(1)(c). For the purposes of ss 20-23, unless the context otherwise requires, 'collision regulations' means safety regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 85 (see PARA 715 et seq): Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(1) (definition amended by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 314(2), Sch 13 para 59(3)).

8 The Supreme Court Act 1981 s 22(2), (3) (see the text and notes 9-16) applies to counterclaims (except counterclaims in proceedings arising out of the same incident or series of incidents) as it applies to claims: s 22(4). Accordingly, in the application of s 22(2), (3) to counterclaims, references to the claimant and defendant are to be construed as references to the claimant on the counterclaim and the defendant to the counterclaim respectively: see s 22(4). However, s 22(2), (3) does not apply to any claim or counterclaim if the defendant submits or has agreed to submit to the jurisdiction of the court: s 22(5).

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(1) INTRODUCTION/(v) Conflicts of Jurisdiction/A. IN GENERAL/95. Conflicts of jurisdiction in Admiralty proceedings.

(v) Conflicts of Jurisdiction

A. IN GENERAL

95. Conflicts of jurisdiction in Admiralty proceedings.

The international nature of maritime affairs, and the right to proceed in rem¹, readily produce conflicts of jurisdiction, and disputes as to the forum in which claims should be heard².

Where a claim is brought in personam³, the position is in general the same as in non-Admiralty proceedings, namely that a defendant who is liable to be served with a claim form (whether within or out of the jurisdiction) is subject to the jurisdiction of the court⁴. No such procedure exists for proceedings brought in rem, which necessarily involve service on a vessel in the territorial waters of the United Kingdom⁵. However, provided that the claim is one which by its nature may be enforced by a claim in rem⁶, service on the ship⁷ is sufficient to found jurisdiction, even in the absence of any other factor connecting the case with the United Kingdom⁸. Nevertheless, even where jurisdiction has been established by service on the defendant or on the res (that is, the subject property of the claim), the court has inherent power, preserved by statute, to order a stay of proceedings⁹.

In cases governed by the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982¹⁰, the court may be obliged to decline jurisdiction¹¹, although this does not prejudice the right of a claimant to take advantage of particular rules on jurisdiction contained in other international conventions¹². Further conventions apply, in particular, to: (1) claims arising out of the international carriage of passengers by sea¹³; (2) collisions at sea¹⁴; (3) oil pollution by ships¹⁵; and (4) proceedings relating to the remuneration of officers or crew of ships or aircraft¹⁶.

For the circumstances in which a stay may be ordered see PARA 100 et seq. The court also has specific statutory powers under the Arbitration Act 1996 s 9 to stay proceedings brought in breach of an arbitration agreement: see ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1222. As to arbitration agreements see PARA 103.

10 The Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982, as amended and supplemented by the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Order 2001, SI 2001/3929, makes provision for EC Council Regulation 44/2001 (OJ L12, 16.01.2001, p 1) on jurisdiction and the recognition and enforcement of judgments in civil and commercial matters ('the 'Brussels I' Regulation') and preserves the effect of the Convention on Jurisdiction and Enforcement of Judgments in Civil and Commercial Matters (Lugano, 16 September 1988, OJ L319, 25.11.88, p 9) (the 'Lugano Convention'): see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 65 et seq.

11 See PARA 96 et seq. In one sense, the rules of the 'Brussels I' Regulation and of the Lugano Convention, and subordinate legislation relating to them, may be seen as a partial definition or redefinition of whether it is lawful to serve process upon a defendant: see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 95.

12 See CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 125. But the provisions of the Regulation and of the Convention as to lis alibi pendens (see PARA 101) may still operate to prevent the exercise of such jurisdiction: Case C-406/92 The Tatry (cargo owners) v The Maciej Rataj (owners) [1994] ECR I-5439, [1995] All ER (EC) 229, ECJ.

95 Conflicts of jurisdiction in Admiralty proceedings

NOTE 4--See now The Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide (8th Edn, 2009) para B8.1-B8.3.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(1) INTRODUCTION/(v) Conflicts of Jurisdiction/B. EFFECT OF THE CIVIL JURISDICTION AND JUDGMENTS ACT 1982/96. Cases governed by the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982.

B. EFFECT OF THE CIVIL JURISDICTION AND JUDGMENTS ACT 1982

96. Cases governed by the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982.

The Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982¹ makes provision for EC Council Regulation 44/2001 on jurisdiction and the recognition and enforcement of judgments in civil and commercial matters ('the 'Brussels I' Regulation')² and preserves the effect of the Lugano Convention on Jurisdiction and the Enforcement of Judgments in Civil and Commercial Matters (the 'Lugano Convention')³. Accordingly, it assumes fundamental importance in determining the jurisdiction of the court in cases where one or more of the parties is domiciled in a Regulation or contracting state⁴, and where the courts of another Regulation or contracting state are already seised of the same or a related matter⁵.

However, neither the 'Brussels I' Regulation nor the Lugano Convention contains provisions specifically concerned with maritime matters⁶, and no distinction is drawn between Admiralty claims in personam and those in rem⁷. It is assumed that the English courts will apply the Regulation and Convention equally to Admiralty claims in personam and in rem⁸.

1 Ie the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982, as amended and supplemented by the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Order 2001, SI 2001/3929: see PARA 95.

2 Ie EC Council Regulation 44/2001 (OJ L12, 16.01.2001, p 1) on jurisdiction and the recognition and enforcement of judgments in civil and commercial matters ('the 'Brussels I' Regulation'): see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 65 et seq. The 'Brussels I' Regulation has replaced in its entirety the Brussels Convention on Jurisdiction and Enforcement of Judgments in Civil and Commercial Matters (Brussels, 27 September 1968; Cmnd 7395), which it resembled in all essential respects.

3 Ie the Convention on Jurisdiction and Enforcement of Judgments in Civil and Commercial Matters (Lugano, 16 September 1988, OJ L319, 25.11.88, p 9) (the 'Lugano Convention'), which was signed by the United Kingdom on 18 September 1989: see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 65 et seq. The Lugano Convention enables European Free Trade Association countries, subject to minor modifications, to join the regime that was established by the Brussels Convention (see now the 'Brussels I' Regulation): see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 65 et seq.

4 As to jurisdiction based on domicile for these purposes see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 83 et seq. As to the meanings of 'contracting state' and 'Regulation state' see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 65.

5 See CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 127 et seq.

6 Nevertheless, certain provisions have been held to have the effect of indirectly incorporating into English law the International Convention for the Unification of Certain Rules Relating to the Arrest of Sea-Going Ships (Brussels, 10 May, 1952; Cmd 8954): see The Nordglint [1988] 1 QB 183, [1988] 2 All ER 531, [1987] 2 Lloyd's Rep 470 (overruled on other grounds by the House of Lords in India (Republic) v India Steamship Co Ltd (Indian Endurance and Indian Grace) (No 2) [1998] AC 878, [1997] 4 All ER 380, HL); The Deichland [1990] 1 QB 361, [1989] 2 All ER 1066, CA; and The Anna H [1994] 1 Lloyd's Rep 287; The Bergen [1997] 1 Lloyd's Rep 380.

7 Claims in personam are now referred to as 'other claims': see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 12.1; and PARA 186 et seq. The European Court of Justice has held that, for the purposes of the Brussels Convention (as to which see note 2), the distinction drawn by the law of a contracting state between a claim in rem and a claim in personam (a peculiarly common law distinction not recognised in civil law jurisdictions) is not material: Case C-406/92 The Maciej Rataj [1995] All ER (EC) 229, [1995] 1 Lloyd's Rep 302, ECJ. As to the origin of claims in rem see PARA 83; as to the origin of claims in personam see PARA 84; and as to claims in rem and claims in personam generally see PARA 92 et seq. As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims see PARA 157 et seq.

8 This would be consistent with the reasoning of the Court of Appeal in The Deichland [1990] 1 QB 361, [1989] 2 All ER 1066, CA, in which the court's overriding consideration seems to have been to give the words used in the Brussels Convention (as to which see note 2) a broad and purposive construction which would not be thwarted by peculiar concepts of national law. It is not clear, however, whether the same reasoning would apply to a claim which is truly in rem, when it really is the ship that is being sued. The court may not wish to make any distinctions between claims quasi in rem and claims truly in rem in order to be consistent with the overall scheme and purpose of the 'Brussels I' Regulation and the Lugano Convention, which is to prevent conflicting judgments.

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(1) INTRODUCTION/(v) Conflicts of Jurisdiction/B. EFFECT OF THE CIVIL JURISDICTION AND JUDGMENTS ACT 1982/97. Claims in rem under the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982.

97. Claims in rem under the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982.

The 'Brussels I' Regulation¹ and the Lugano Convention² are silent on the question of Admiralty proceedings in rem³, and no guidance is given in the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982 itself⁴. The traditional view was that the defendant in an Admiralty action in rem (now a claim in rem) is the ship itself, and not the owners or other persons interested in it⁵. Although ships are frequently arrested at the same time as being served with proceedings in rem, arrest is normally unnecessary in order to found jurisdiction, for which service alone is sufficient⁶. However, it had been held that special features of English Admiralty law could not affect the interpretation of the predecessor Brussels Convention⁷, and that the court's jurisdiction may be contested if the owner of the ship, or other person liable to be adversely affected by the result of the proceedings, is domiciled in another contracting state⁸.

Both the 'Brussels I' Regulation and the Lugano Convention provide that they do not affect any other conventions to which the contracting states are or will be parties and which, in relation to particular matters, govern jurisdiction or the recognition or enforcement of judgments⁹. It has been held that these include the International Convention relating to the Arrest of Sea-going Ships 1952 (the 'Brussels Arrest Convention')¹⁰, which makes provision¹¹ for the courts of a country in which a ship is arrested to have jurisdiction to determine the case on its merits¹². Consequently, where a ship can be arrested in the United Kingdom in proceedings in rem¹³, and is so arrested, the court will retain jurisdiction based upon the arrest, irrespective of the domicile of the shipowner or other person interested in the res (that is, the subject property of the claim)¹⁴. Another Convention held to be included is the International Convention for the Unification of Certain Rules Concerning Civil Jurisdiction in matters of Collision¹⁵, which goes further than the Brussels Arrest Convention in one important respect: the court will retain jurisdiction if the vessel could have been arrested but was not because bail or other security was furnished¹⁶.

Stay of proceedings under the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982.

99. Stay of proceedings under the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982.

The 'Brussels I' Regulation¹ and the Lugano Convention² provide that, where proceedings involving the same cause of action and between the same parties are brought in the courts of different Regulation or contracting states³, any court other than the court first seised must of its own motion stay its proceedings until such time as the jurisdiction of the court first seised is established⁴. Where the jurisdiction of the court first seised is established, any court other than the court first seised must decline jurisdiction in favour of that court⁵. Where 'related actions'⁶ are brought in the courts of different Regulation or contracting states, any court other than the court first seised may, while the actions are pending at first instance, stay its proceedings⁷.

The above provisions apply irrespective of whether the defendant is domiciled in a Regulation or contracting state⁸. The English court will be 'seised' of proceedings in rem⁹ when the claim form is served¹⁰. This is probably also true for claims in personam¹¹.

These provisions do not preclude the issue and service on a ship in the United Kingdom of a claim form in rem, and the words 'decline jurisdiction' have been interpreted in this context to mean 'decline to exercise jurisdiction'¹². However, the European Court of Justice has held that, for the purposes of the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982, the distinction drawn by the law of a Regulation or contracting state between a claim in rem and a claim in personam is immaterial¹³. Where the parties and cause of action are the same, the court's approach depends solely on which court was first seised of the matter, and questions of forum conveniens¹⁴ have no application¹⁵.

The 'Brussels I' Regulation has replaced in its entirety the Brussels Convention on Jurisdiction and Enforcement of Judgments in Civil and Commercial Matters (Brussels, 27 September 1968; Cmnd 7395), which it resembled in all essential respects.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(1) INTRODUCTION/(v) Conflicts of Jurisdiction/C. STAY OF PROCEEDINGS UNDER NATIONAL LAW/100. Forum non conveniens.

C. STAY OF PROCEEDINGS UNDER NATIONAL LAW

100. Forum non conveniens.

Subject to the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982¹, the court may stay proceedings if there is another forum in which the case can be more conveniently tried². Account is taken not only of convenience and expense, but also of other factors, such as the law governing the transaction, which point to the most appropriate or natural forum³. In ascertaining the most appropriate forum, the court searches for the country with which the case has its most real and substantial connection⁴.

If a foreign court is found to be a more appropriate forum, a stay may still be refused if its effect would be to deprive the claimant of some real and legitimate personal or juridical advantage available to him by suing in England⁵. A common instance of this in Admiralty proceedings is the opportunity for the claimant to secure his claim by the arrest of the vessel in a claim in rem⁶. Other examples from the decided cases are the availability in England of a more generous limitation period⁷, a speedier or cheaper trial⁸, a more generous measure of damages⁹, or a more favourable rule of substantive law¹⁰. Particular weight may be attached to juridical advantages which do not involve a corresponding disadvantage to the defendant¹¹. Normally, however, the court will not compare the quality of justice available in England with that dispensed elsewhere, and allegations that a fair trial would not be obtainable in the foreign jurisdiction must be supported by cogent evidence¹².

Ultimately, the court's task is to weigh the balance of factors both for and against a stay¹³, so that even if the claimant can point to a legitimate advantage in suing in England, this will not be decisive if another jurisdiction is clearly the more appropriate forum¹⁴.

1 As to cases which are subject to the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982 see PARA 96.

2 English law on this topic has developed considerably to the point where it is now indistinguishable from the (originally) Scottish legal doctrine of forum non conveniens: The Abidin Daver [1984] AC 398 at 411, [1984] 1 All ER 470 at 476, HL, per Lord Diplock; Spiliada Maritime Corp v Cansulex Ltd, The Spiliada [1987] AC 460 at 474, [1986] 3 All ER 843 at 854, HL, per Lord Goff of Chieveley. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(1) INTRODUCTION/(v) Conflicts of Jurisdiction/C. STAY OF PROCEEDINGS UNDER NATIONAL LAW/101. Lis alibi pendens.

101. Lis alibi pendens.

Subject to the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982¹, the court may intervene to prevent possible injustice where two claims are pending, one in England and the other in a foreign country between the same parties².

Where the two claims are begun by different parties, the court may stay the English proceedings on grounds which in principle are those of *forum non conveniens*³. A stay will not necessarily be ordered by reason only that proceedings were instituted first in the foreign jurisdiction⁴, or that the refusal of a stay would result in a multiplicity of proceedings⁵. The fact that proceedings are already pending abroad will, however, weigh in the scales in favour of granting a stay, particularly if substantial progress in the foreign proceedings has already been made⁶.

Where both claims have been begun by the same party, the court may more readily stay the English proceedings, particularly if it results in no additional advantage to the claimant⁷. Alternatively, the claimant will be required to elect which set of proceedings he wishes to pursue, and if he elects to pursue the proceedings abroad, the English claim will be dismissed and not merely stayed⁸. The court may also grant an injunction restraining the institution⁹ or continuance¹⁰ of foreign proceedings.

Whilst the foregoing principles are of general application, the court is specifically precluded by statute from entertaining any claim in personam¹¹ to enforce a claim for damage, loss of life or personal injury arising out of a collision between ships¹², or out of certain other matters¹³, unless any foreign proceedings previously brought by the claimant against the defendant in respect of the same incident or series of incidents have been discontinued or otherwise come to an end¹⁴.

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(1) INTRODUCTION/(v) Conflicts of Jurisdiction/C. STAY OF PROCEEDINGS UNDER NATIONAL LAW/102. Stay of proceedings under a foreign jurisdiction clause.

102. Stay of proceedings under a foreign jurisdiction clause.

The court may stay proceedings in England where these are brought in breach of an agreement to refer disputes to the exclusive jurisdiction of a foreign tribunal¹. The court is not bound to grant a stay but has a discretion whether to do so or not². The conditions material to the exercise of the court's discretion whether to grant a stay or not do not differ in substance from the exercise of the court's discretion upon an application to set aside service of a claim form by reason of such a clause. The factors relevant to the exercise of the discretion are also broadly similar to the criteria considered under the doctrine of forum non conveniens³. However, the position is not precisely the same, for it is a prima facie rule that the parties should honour their agreement to refer disputes to the foreign tribunal, and accordingly the burden is on the claimant, or in the case of a counterclaim, on the defendant, to show a strong cause for a stay to be refused⁴.

The following matters are relevant in considering the exercise of the discretion to stay: (1) the country in which the evidence on the issues of fact is situated, or more readily available, and the effect of that on the relative convenience and expense of a trial as between the English and the foreign courts; (2) whether the law of the foreign court applies and, if so, whether it differs from English law in any material respects; (3) with what country either party is connected, and how closely; (4) whether the defendants genuinely desire trial in the foreign country, or are only seeking procedural advantages; and (5) whether the claimants would be prejudiced by having to sue in the foreign court because they would: (a) be deprived of security for their claim; (b) be unable to enforce any judgment obtained; (c) be faced with a time bar not applicable in England; or (d) for political, racial, religious or other reasons be unlikely to get a fair trial⁵.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(1) INTRODUCTION/(v) Conflicts of Jurisdiction/C. STAY OF PROCEEDINGS UNDER NATIONAL LAW/103. Stay of proceedings under an arbitration agreement.

103. Stay of proceedings under an arbitration agreement.

A party to an arbitration agreement¹, against whom legal proceedings are brought, whether by way of a claim or counterclaim, in respect of a matter which under the agreement is to be referred to arbitration may, upon notice to the other parties to the proceedings, apply to the court in which proceedings have been brought to stay the proceedings as far as they concern that matter². The court must³ grant a stay unless satisfied that the arbitration agreement is null and void⁴, inoperative⁵, incapable of being performed⁶, or if there is not in fact any dispute between the parties⁷.

1 For these purposes, 'arbitration agreement' means an agreement to submit to arbitration present or future disputes, whether they are contractual or not: see the Arbitration Act 1996 s 6(1); and ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1213.

2 See the Arbitration Act 1996 s 9(1); and ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1222.

3 As from a day to be appointed under the Arbitration Act 1996 s 109(1), s 86 has the effect of taking domestic arbitration agreements outside s 9(4) (see the text and notes 4-6), thereby giving the court a discretion whether or not to stay the proceedings: see s 86; and ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1222. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed. As to the meaning of 'domestic arbitration agreement' for these purposes see s 85(2) (not yet in force); and ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1222.

6 See the Arbitration Act 1996 s 9(4); and ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1222. The words 'incapable of being performed' refer only to the question whether an arbitration agreement is capable of being performed up to the stage when it results in an award, and do not extend to the question whether the party against whom it is made will be capable of satisfying it: see The Rena K [1979] QB 377, [1979] 1 All ER 397, [1978] 1 Lloyd's Rep 545 (decided under the Arbitration Act 1975; see now the Arbitration Act 1996).

7 These words appeared in the Arbitration Act 1975 but were omitted from the Arbitration Act 1996. In Hayter v Nelson [1990] 2 Lloyd's Rep 265, it was held that there can be a dispute between the parties even though it was clear from the outset that one party was right and the other was wrong. The Court of Appeal has held that there will be a dispute until the sums claimed are admitted as being due and owing (Halki Shipping Corp v Sopex Oils Ltd, The Halki [1998] 2 All ER 23, [1998] 1 WLR 726, [1998] 1 Lloyd's Rep 465, CA) but, in considering a deemed dispute clause, the Court of Appeal has held that a dispute persisted after liability was admitted, as the applicant was entitled to an arbitration award which he could enforce (see Glencore Grain Ltd v Agros Trading Co Ltd [1999] 2 All ER (Comm) 288, [1999] 2 Lloyd's Rep 410, CA).

(2) PARTICULAR SUBJECTS OF JURISDICTION

(i) Possession or Ownership

104. Extent of jurisdiction regarding possession or ownership of a ship.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction to hear and determine any claim relating to the possession or ownership of a ship², or to the ownership of any share in a ship³. The jurisdiction extends to all ships whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, and to all claims wherever arising (including, in the case of cargo or wreck salvage, claims in respect of cargo or wreck found on land)⁴. This jurisdiction does not extend to aircraft⁵.

The jurisdiction to entertain claims for possession is derived from the inherent jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court to take ships or vessels out of the hands of wrongdoers and restore them to the owners⁶, and to dispossess masters who ought to be removed⁷. Jurisdiction was originally limited to disputes as to possession alone, for the common law courts declared that where any bona fide claim of ownership was set up as a defence, the Admiralty Court had no jurisdiction to deal with the question of title⁸. To remedy this limitation, a statutory jurisdiction was conferred in 1840 upon the Admiralty Court to decide any question of title to the subject matter of claims for possession⁹.

As to the doctrine of forum non conveniens see PARA 100. In addition, the court's discretion to refuse to entertain claims for wages by the master or member of the crew of a ship, not being a British ship, is expressly preserved: see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(2)(a); and PARAS 85, 128. The court may in a fit case make an order for the delivery up to the persons entitled to the certificate of registry of a British ship⁵.

The jurisdiction in respect of co-owners includes power to settle any account outstanding and unsettled between the parties in relation to the ship, and to direct that the ship, or any share of the ship, must be sold, and to make such other order as the court thinks fit⁵. In a claim for an account between part-owners, where one of the parties had before the claim parted with all his interest in the ship, the court held that it had jurisdiction to entertain the proceedings and ordered him to give security in respect of the shares he formerly possessed in the ship⁶.

(iv) Damage done by or to a Ship

110. Extent of jurisdiction regarding claims for damage done by or to a ship.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction to hear and determine any claim for damage done by a ship² and any claim for damage received by a ship³. The jurisdiction extends to all ships, whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, and to all claims wherever arising⁴.

It is not necessary that there should be actual contact causing damage to establish jurisdiction for damage done by a ship⁵. The jurisdiction has been found to extend to claims for damage caused by a ship's wash⁶, for damage done by part of a ship⁷, for damage done by a ship to a wreck⁸, for expenses of removing a wreck sunk as a result of damage done by another ship⁹, and for loss or damage suffered by a ship in negligent salvage operations¹⁰. Jurisdiction in respect of damage done by a ship also includes claims in respect of statutory liability for damage from oil pollution¹¹. Damage received by a ship includes damage caused by a fixed object, such as a pierhead¹².

Claims for loss of or damage to cargo carried on a ship by the fault of another ship may be the subject of an Admiralty claim against the colliding ship¹³. Although a claim against the carrying ship is now within the jurisdiction of the courts¹⁴, the terms of the contract of carriage will generally exclude liability as between the owner of the cargo and the carrying ship¹⁵.

Subject to a statutory exception in respect of certain occurrences involving the carriage of nuclear matter¹⁶, damage done by a ship gives rise to a maritime lien¹⁷.

2 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(e). As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 85 note 7. A jet ski is not a ship: Steedman v Schofield [1992] 2 Lloyd's Rep 163. In the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act 1925 s 22(3) (repealed), the expression 'ship' included any description of vessel used in navigation not propelled by oars. Although it has been held that Admiralty jurisdiction does not include claims arising out of collision between two dumb barges (Everard v Kendall (1870) LR 5 CP 428), or two craft solely propelled by oars (Edwards v Quickenden and Forester [1939] P 261, 63 Ll L Rep 189, CA), these decisions may now be questioned in the light of the omission of the words 'not propelled by oars' from the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 24(1), and the decision in Marine Craft Constructors Ltd v Erland Blomqvist (Engineers) Ltd [1953] 1 Lloyd's Rep 514, where the court emphasised the importance of the purpose for which the craft was being used. 14 It was held in The Victoria (1887) 12 PD 105, 6 Asp MLC 120, that under the Admiralty Court Act 1861 s 12 (repealed), the words 'damage done by a ship' did not extend the jurisdiction of the court to include a claim by owners of cargo against the carrying ship, but this question is academic in the light of the fact that jurisdiction in respect of claims for damage to cargo carried in a ship is now expressly given by the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(g) (as to which see PARA 111).

It is questionable whether damage by oil pollution gives rise to a maritime lien: see generally LIEN. As to maritime liens generally, and priorities in relation to such liens see PARA 1037 et seq.

Subject to the Hovercraft Act 1968 s 2(3), the law relating to maritime liens applies in relation to hovercraft and property connected with hovercraft as it applies in relation to ships and property connected with ships, and applies notwithstanding that the hovercraft is on land at any relevant time: see s 2(2); and PARA 383.

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(2) PARTICULAR SUBJECTS OF JURISDICTION/(v) Claims relating to Cargo or to Contracts of Carriage or Hire/111. Extent of jurisdiction regarding claims relating to cargo and carriage.

(v) Claims relating to Cargo or to Contracts of Carriage or Hire

111. Extent of jurisdiction regarding claims relating to cargo and carriage.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction to hear and determine: (1) any claim for loss of or damage to goods² carried in a ship³; and (2) any claim arising out of any agreement relating to the carriage of goods in a ship or to the use or hire of a ship⁴. The jurisdiction extends to all ships, whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, and to all claims wherever arising⁵.

Under head (2) above, the words 'arising out of' should be given the wider meaning of 'connected with' and not the narrower meaning of 'arising under'⁶; and the words 'agreement relating to use or hire of a ship' are not to be given a restricted meaning⁷. The jurisdiction is wide enough to cover claims in tort arising out of any agreement relating to the carriage of goods in a ship⁸. An agreement relating to the use or hire of a ship includes a contract for services rendered by motor boats to a ship where those services involve more than some incidental and minor use of those boats⁹. The words 'use or hire of a ship' are also wide enough to cover the case of the hire of a tug under a towage contract¹⁰. A claim will only fall within the jurisdiction under head (2) above if the claim arises out of an agreement relating to carriage in a particular vessel, and it does not cover claims relating to carriage in unidentified vessels¹¹.

Claims in respect of damage to cargo do not, unless they result from damage done by a ship, give rise to a maritime lien¹².

1 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice generally see PARA 85 et seq. As to the mode of exercise of this jurisdiction see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21; and PARAS 93-94. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court extends also to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

2 For the purposes of the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20-23, unless the context otherwise requires, 'goods' includes baggage: s 24(1).

3 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(g). As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 85 note 7. Jurisdiction under this heading includes examples of claims based on contract as well as on tort arising out of an agreement relating to the carriage of goods in a ship: see The Fehmarn [1958] 1 All ER 333, [1958] 1 WLR 159, [1957] 2 Lloyd's Rep 551, CA; The St Elefterio [1957] P 179, [1957] 2 All ER 374, [1957] 1 Lloyd's Rep 283; The Moscanthy [1971] 1 Lloyd's Rep 37. As to division of loss where two or more vessels are at fault see PARA 800 et seq.

The words

'arising out of' are not wide enough to include a claim to enforce an arbitration award, even though the arbitration provision is in a charter party: The Bumbest [2000] QB 559, [2000] 2 All ER 692, [1999] 2 Lloyd's Rep 481.

Extent of jurisdiction regarding claims for loss of life or personal injury.

(vi) Loss of Life or Personal Injury

112. Extent of jurisdiction regarding claims for loss of life or personal injury.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction to hear and determine any claim for loss of life² or personal injury³ sustained in consequence of:

- 268 (1) any defect in a ship⁴ or in its apparel or equipment⁵; or
- 269 (2) in consequence of the wrongful act, neglect or default of⁶:
- 7
- 8. (a) the owners, charterers or persons in possession or control of a ship⁷; or
- 9. (b) the master⁸ or crew of a ship, or any other person for whose wrongful acts, neglects or defaults the owners, charterers or persons in possession or control of a ship are responsible⁹.
- 8

Jurisdiction under either head (1) or head (2) above requires an act, neglect or default: (i) in the navigation or management of the ship¹⁰; (ii) in the loading, carriage or discharge of goods¹¹ on, in or from the ship¹²; or (iii) in the embarkation, carriage or disembarkation of persons on, in or from the ship¹³.

The jurisdiction extends to all ships, whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, and to all claims wherever arising¹⁴.

1 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice generally see PARA 85 et seq. As to the mode of exercise of this jurisdiction see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21; and PARAS 93-94. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court extends also to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

2 I.e. a claim under the Fatal Accidents Act 1976: see NEGLIGENCE vol 78 (2010) PARA 24 et seq. It has been held that Admiralty jurisdiction does not extend to a claim for an indemnity in respect of statutory compensation paid for loss of life: The Molière [1925] P 27, 16 Asp MLC 470, distinguishing The Annie [1909] P 176, 11 Asp MLC 213.

4 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 85 note 7.

5 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(f). The court, on the application of any party to an action to be tried in the Queen's Bench Division, has a discretion to order that the damages be assessed by a jury (see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 69; and DAMAGES vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 1155) and provision is made for trial by jury if there is in issue any question or issue of a kind prescribed for these purposes (see The Kwasind (1915) 84 LJP 102, CA). However, by the rules of court, save where on a case management conference an order is made for trial with a jury on the ground that there are special reasons, trial is by a judge without a jury, and in practice such assessment is nearly always carried out by the Admiralty Registrar: see PARA 143.

6 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(f). The phrase 'wrongful act, neglect or default' derives from the Fatal Accidents Act 1846 s 1 (repealed) (see now the Fatal Accidents Act 1976 s 1; and NEGLIGENCE vol 78 (2010) PARA 25) and covers the breach of a term against negligence in a contract: see Grein v Imperial Airways Ltd [1937] 1 KB 50, [1936] 2 All ER 1258, CA; Quinn v Burch Bros (Builders) Ltd [1966] 2 QB 370, [1965] 3 All ER 801.

(vii) Salvage

A. IN GENERAL

113. Extent of jurisdiction regarding salvage claims.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction to hear and determine any claim:

- 270 (1) under the Salvage Convention 1989²;
- 271 (2) under any contract for or in relation to salvage services³; or
- 272 (3) in the nature of salvage not falling within head (1) or head (2) above⁴, or any corresponding claim in connection with an aircraft⁵. The jurisdiction extends to all ships, whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, and to all claims wherever arising (including, in the case of cargo or wreck salvage, claims in respect of cargo or wreck found on land)⁶.

The High Court originally acquired jurisdiction in respect of claims for salvage of property from the inherent jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court⁷. The jurisdiction to award salvage for services in the preservation of life is, except where some property is also salvaged, entirely statutory⁸.

Salvage, whether of property or of life, confers a maritime lien on the property salvaged⁹, but not all claims under this head of jurisdiction will give rise to a maritime lien¹⁰.

1 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice generally see PARA 85 et seq. As to the mode of exercise of this jurisdiction see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21; and PARAS 93-94. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court extends also to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

2 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(j)(i) (s 20(2)(j) substituted by the Merchant Shipping (Salvage and Pollution) Act 1994 s 1(6), Sch 2 para 6(2)). For these purposes, the 'Salvage Convention 1989' means the International Convention on Salvage 1989 (London, 28 April 1989; Cm 1526) (as to which see PARA 8) as it has effect under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 224 (as to which see PARAS 878, 891 et seq): Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(6)(a) (s 20(6) substituted by the Merchant Shipping (Salvage and Pollution) Act 1994 Sch 2 para 6(3); Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(6)(a) amended by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 314(2), Sch 13 para 59(2) (c)).

3 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(j)(ii) (as substituted: see note 2). For these purposes, the reference to salvage services includes services rendered in saving life from a ship, and the reference to any claim under any contract for or in relation to salvage services includes any claim arising out of such a contract whether or not arising during the provision of the services: s 20(6)(b) (as substituted: see note 2). As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 85 note 7. As to salvage generally see PARA 876 et seq.

5 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(j) (as substituted: see note 2). The reference to a corresponding claim in connection with an aircraft is a reference to any claim corresponding to any claim in head (1) or in head (2) in the text which is available under the Civil Aviation Act 1982 s 87 (application of law of wreck and salvage to aircraft) (see AIR LAW vol 2 (2008) PARA 599): Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(6)(c) (as substituted: see note 2). 114. Salvage in respect of aircraft.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction to hear and determine any claim under the Salvage Convention 1989² or under any contract for or in relation to salvage services³. Any services rendered in assisting, or in saving life⁴ from, or in saving the cargo or apparel of, an aircraft in, on or over the sea or any tidal water, or on or over the shores of the sea or any tidal water, are to be deemed to be salvage services in all cases in which they would have been salvage services if they had been rendered in relation to a vessel⁵.

Where salvage services are rendered by an aircraft to any property or person, the owner of the aircraft is entitled to the same reward for those services as he would have been entitled to if the aircraft had been a vessel⁶.

1 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice generally see PARA 85 et seq. As to the mode of exercise of this jurisdiction see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21; and PARAS 93-94. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court extends also to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

3 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(j)(ii); and PARA 113. The salvage services are those which are available under the Civil Aviation Act 1982 s 87 (see AIR LAW vol 2 (2008) PARA 599): see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(6)(b), (c); and PARA 113. Under the Civil Aviation Act 1982 s 87, Her Majesty may by Order in Council direct that any provisions of any Act for the time being in force which relate to wreck, to salvage of life or property or to the duty of rendering assistance to vessels in distress, with such modifications, if any, as may be specified in the Order, are to apply in relation to aircraft as they apply in relation to vessels: s 87(4). For these purposes, any provisions of an Act which relate to vessels laid by or neglected as unfit for sea service are deemed to be provisions relating to wreck (s 87(5)(a)); and 'Act' includes any local or special Act and any provisions of the Harbours, Docks and Piers Clauses Act 1847, as incorporated with any local or special Act (see PORTS AND HARBOURS vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 602 et seq), whenever passed (Civil Aviation Act 1982 s 87(5)(b)). See also the Aircraft (Wreck and Salvage) Order 1938, SR & O 1938/136 (amended by SI 1964/489), which has effect as if made under the Civil Aviation Act 1982 s 87 by virtue of s 105(3), and see AIR LAW vol 2 (2008) PARA 599. As to salvage and wreck see further PARAS 122 et seq, 876 et seq.

4 As to life salvage see PARAS 120-121.

5 Civil Aviation Act 1982 s 87(1). The provisions of s 87(1), (2) have effect notwithstanding that the aircraft concerned is a foreign aircraft and notwithstanding that the services in question are rendered elsewhere than within the limits of the territorial waters adjacent to any part of Her Majesty's dominions: s 87(3). As to the extent of the jurisdiction see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(7)(a), (b); and PARA 86. For an example of services to an aircraft see Watson v RCA Victor Co Inc (1934) 50 Ll L Rep 77, where, however, jurisdiction under the Air Navigation Act 1920 s 11 (repealed) was restricted to aircraft wrecked within Her Majesty's jurisdiction.

B. SALVAGE OF PROPERTY

115. Services for which remuneration is payable.

The High Court¹ has jurisdiction to award salvage remuneration for services rendered to a ship, its cargo or apparel or any other property belonging to it². Salvage remuneration may not, however, be recovered for services rendered to a raft of timber which has not formed part of the cargo of a ship³, or to a structure afloat on the water, provided for storing gas to be used for lighting a tidal river⁴. There is no jurisdiction to award salvage in respect of services rendered to a vessel in non-tidal waters⁵. The court has power to award interest on a salvage award⁶.

4 Wells v Gas Float Whitton No 2 (Owners) [1897] AC 337, 8 Asp MLC 272, HL. Whether, however, this decision would be applicable to cases where, no owner appearing within a year and a day, similar structures to that in Wells v Gas Float Whitton No 2 (Owners) would be the subject of condemnation as droits of Admiralty to the Crown (as to which see PARA 139), may be doubted. Probably in such cases the persons who rendered the salvage services would be held entitled to be rewarded on salvage principles out of the proceeds of the structures salvaged, as it is questionable that the Crown would be entitled to the droit of Admiralty without any payment to the finders at all. On this point see Stackpoole v R (1875) IR 9 Eq 619, CA, where it was held that logs of timber found floating in the sea were droits of Admiralty and not wreck. See also Williams and Bruce's Admiralty Practice (3rd Edn) 127n, where many instances of property, other than the property which the House of Lords has declared to be the subject of salvage, are referred to as being salvaged and condemned as droits of Admiralty after salvage had been paid to the salvors. 116. Persons liable to pay salvage remuneration.

In the absence of agreement to the contrary, the respective owners of different property salvaged will each be individually liable to the salvor for the amount payable in respect of the salvage to his property and usually the award against each interest will be in proportion to salvaged values¹. (This is the position also where the International Convention on Salvage 1989 applies)².

Bailees of the property salvaged, who would have been liable to the owners if the property had been lost, have been held liable in an action in personam to pay the salvor's remuneration³. Freight earned or in the course of being earned on the voyage during which the services are rendered will generally be at the risk of shipowner or cargo owner and will contribute to the salvage remuneration as part of the ship or cargo value, as the case may be⁴. It is uncertain whether a claim for salvage lies in respect of voyage freight at the risk of a time charterer, but it seems doubtful⁵. It is generally accepted, but there is no authority on the point, that bunkers owned by time charterers constitute a separate contributory salvaged interest.

If by negligence the salvor causes the loss of the property which is the subject of the salvage operation, he will be liable in damages¹. If in performing the services he negligently causes damage to the salvaged property, he will be liable in damages even though he has done more good than harm². In assessing the damages, in such circumstances, there must be a deduction of the hypothetical salvage remuneration which would have been awarded but for negligence³. The court takes a lenient view of the conduct of salvors and is slow to find them guilty of negligence, as the policy of the law is to encourage the rendering of salvage services, but it will still make such a finding in a proper case⁴.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(2) PARTICULAR SUBJECTS OF JURISDICTION/(vii) Salvage/B. SALVAGE OF PROPERTY/118. Application of salvage law to the Crown.

118. Application of salvage law to the Crown.

Subject to certain exceptions¹, the law relating to civil salvage, whether of life or property², applies in relation to salvage services in assisting any of Her Majesty's ships³, or in saving life from any such ship, or in saving any cargo or equipment belonging to Her Majesty in right of her government in the United Kingdom⁴, in the same manner as if the ship, cargo or equipment belonged to a private person⁵.

Where salvage services are rendered by or on behalf of Her Majesty, whether in right of her government in the United Kingdom or otherwise, Her Majesty is entitled to claim salvage in respect of those services to the same extent as any other salvor, and has the same rights and remedies in respect of those services as any other salvor⁶. Where a ship is requisitioned by the Crown and the terms of requisition do not amount to a demise or sub-demise, it would appear that a claim for salvage should be made by the owners of the ship and not by the Crown⁷.

Civil proceedings by the Crown may be instituted either by an authorised government department in its own name, whether that department was or was not⁸ authorised to sue, or by the Attorney General⁹. No claim for salvage services by the commander or crew or part of the crew of any of Her Majesty's ships¹⁰ will be finally adjudicated upon without the consent of the Secretary of State¹¹ to the prosecution of the claim¹². Any document purporting to give the consent of the Secretary of State for these purposes¹³ and to be signed by an officer of the Ministry of Defence is evidence of that consent¹⁴. If the claim is prosecuted without the required consent¹⁵ the claim must be dismissed with costs¹⁶.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(2) PARTICULAR SUBJECTS OF JURISDICTION/(vii) Salvage/B. SALVAGE OF PROPERTY/119. Apportionment of salvage remuneration.

119. Apportionment of salvage remuneration.

A power to apportion amongst the salvors the amount of salvage remuneration was and is incident to the jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court in claims for salvage¹. Where the aggregate amount of salvage payable in respect of salvage services rendered in United Kingdom waters² has been finally determined and exceeds the statutory threshold³, or where the aggregate amount of salvage payable in respect of salvage services rendered outside United Kingdom waters (of whatever amount) has been finally determined, but where, in either case, any delay or dispute arises as to the apportionment of the amount, the court⁴ may cause the amount of salvage to be apportioned among the persons entitled to it in such manner as it thinks just⁵. For the purpose of making that apportionment, the court may:

- 273 (1) appoint any person to carry that apportionment into effect⁶;
- 274 (2) compel any person in whose hands or under whose control the amount may be to distribute it or to pay it into court to be dealt with as the court directs⁷; and
- 275 (3) issue such process as it thinks fit⁸.

In the case of salvage services rendered by the owners, master and crew of a foreign ship, the apportionment must be in accordance with the law of the flag of that vessel⁹.

1 The power is derived from the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 229(1)-(3): see the text and notes 2-8. Any decision of the court under s 229 must be made on the basis of the criteria contained in the International Convention on Salvage 1989 (London, 28 April 1989; Cm 1526) art 13 (as to which see PARA 904): see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 229(2); and PARA 888. As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court in relation to salvage etc see PARAS 113-114.

2 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3; and as to the meaning of 'United Kingdom waters' see PARA 48 note 10.

3 It exceeds £5,000: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 229(1). Where the aggregate amount of salvage payable in respect of salvage services rendered in United Kingdom waters has been finally determined and does not exceed £5,000, but a dispute arises as to the apportionment of the amount among several claimants, the person liable to pay the amount may apply to the receiver for leave to pay it to him: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 228; and PARA 887.

4 For these purposes, 'court' means the High Court: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 229(4).

5 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 229(1); and PARA 888. As to the principles of apportionment see The Enchantress (1860) Lush 93; and PARAS 961-962.

C. LIFE SALVAGE

120. Nature of life salvage.

Where no property ('res') had been saved and life alone had been preserved from destruction, no suit for a salvage reward could be maintained in the Admiralty Court, one reason being that there could be no proceedings in rem, which was the ancient foundation of the salvage suit¹. Where, however, both life and property had been saved by one set of salvors, it was and still is the practice to give an enhanced award, the enhancement being a reflection of the value of the services rendered in the saving of life². Statutory provisions were introduced³ to protect persons who could not be justly compensated because they had saved life only, or very little property⁴, but there is still no right of action⁵ where no res is saved⁶. Moreover in certain circumstances a salvor may obtain a true life salvage award under the statutory provisions⁷ where, even though he himself has rendered no salvage services to ship and cargo⁸, some property is preserved⁹.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(2) PARTICULAR SUBJECTS OF JURISDICTION/(vii) Salvage/C. LIFE SALVAGE/121. Statutory jurisdiction with respect to life salvage.

121. Statutory jurisdiction with respect to life salvage.

A salvor of human life, who has taken part in the services rendered on the occasion of the accident giving rise to salvage, is entitled to a fair share of the payment awarded to the salvor for saving the vessel or other property or preventing or minimising damage to the environment¹. Where services are rendered wholly or in part in United Kingdom waters² in saving life from a vessel of any nationality or elsewhere in saving life from any United Kingdom ship and either the vessel and other property are destroyed³, or the sum to which the salvor is entitled⁴ is less than a reasonable amount for the services rendered in saving life, the Secretary of State⁵ may, if he thinks fit, pay to the salvor such sum or, as the case may be, such additional sum as he thinks fit in respect of the services rendered in saving life⁶.

1 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 224; and the International Convention on Salvage 1989 (London, 28 April 1989; Cm 1526) art 16(2). No remuneration is due from persons whose lives are saved, but art 16 does not affect the provisions of national law on this subject: art 16(1). As to the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 224 and the International Convention on Salvage 1989 generally see PARAS 878, 891 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom waters' under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 48 note 10. The previous legislation (ie the Merchant Shipping Act 1894 s 544 (repealed)) referred to 'British waters', meaning waters within the territorial limits of the United Kingdom, ie in ordinary cases waters within three miles of the coast: see The Johannes (1860) 1 Lush 182; The Leda (1856) Sw 40 at 43. In respect of a foreign vessel the question whether the services were rendered in British waters or not is one of fact: see The Willem III (1871) LR 3 A & E 487, 1 Asp MLC 129; The Cairo (1874) LR 4 A & E 184; The Pacific [1898] P 170, 8 Asp MLC 422; The Fulham [1898] P 206 at 213, 8 Asp MLC 425 at 426-427 (on appeal [1899] P 251, 8 Asp MLC 559, CA); Jorgensen v Neptune Steam Fishing Co Ltd 1902 4 F 992, Ct of Sess. D. SALVAGE OF WRECK AND DERELICT

122. Nature of wreck and derelict.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court in claims for salvage¹ includes jurisdiction in respect of claims for services rendered in preserving cargo, apparel or wreck², including, in the cases of cargo or wreck salvage, claims in respect of cargo or wreck found on land³. Furthermore, as part of its inherent jurisdiction, the Admiralty Court recognises as a class of salvage service work done in saving derelict or its contents, and this jurisdiction is not restricted by the locality of the services⁴.

The Crown is entitled to all unclaimed wreck found in the United Kingdom⁵ or in United Kingdom waters⁶, except where the right has been granted to some other person⁷. Wreck includes flotsam, jetsam, lagan and derelict⁸ found in or on the shores of the sea or any tidal water⁹. All things found derelict on the sea, including flotsam, jetsam or lagan which have not touched the ground¹⁰ and which are brought within the United Kingdom¹¹, are prima facie droits of Admiralty but do not become actual droits unless there is no claim to ownership, and until then they are only derelict¹².

Where any function is conferred on the receiver⁸ by any of those provisions relating to vessels in distress⁹, that function may be discharged by any officer of revenue and customs or any principal officer of the coastguard¹⁰. An officer discharging any such functions of the receiver is to be treated, with respect to any goods or articles belonging to a vessel the delivery of which to the receiver is required by any of the statutory provisions relating to wreck¹¹, as the agent of the receiver¹². However, an officer discharging such functions is not entitled to any fees payable to receivers; nor is he deprived of any right to salvage¹³ to which he would otherwise be entitled¹⁴.

(viii) Towage and Pilotage

125. Extent of jurisdiction regarding claims in the nature of towage or pilotage in respect of a ship or an aircraft.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction to hear and determine any claim in the nature of towage in respect of a ship or an aircraft², and any claim in the nature of pilotage in respect of a ship or an aircraft³. The jurisdiction extends to all ships, whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, and to all claims wherever arising⁴.

A claim in the nature of towage is not confined to actual towage but extends to escorting services by a tug from outside a port into a port⁵. Ordinary towage, that is towage which is only required for expediting the progress of a vessel not in distress⁶, is to be distinguished from salvage⁷. Although there is a maritime lien in respect of salvage⁸, there is no maritime lien in respect of towage⁹. It is doubtful whether there is a maritime lien in respect of pilotage¹⁰, even though the remuneration of a pilot is similar to wages of master and crew, in respect of which there is a lien¹¹.

126. Extent of jurisdiction regarding supplies, repairs and dock charges.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction to hear and determine any claim in respect of goods² and materials supplied to a ship³ for its operation and maintenance⁴, and any claim in respect of the construction, repair or equipment⁵ of a ship or in respect of dock charges or dues⁶. The jurisdiction extends to all ships, whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, and to all claims wherever arising⁷.

The supply of goods and materials to and the repair of a ship do not confer a maritime lien⁸. The repairer has, however, a common law possessory lien⁹.

1 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice generally see PARA 85 et seq. As to the mode of exercise of this jurisdiction see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21; and PARAS 93-94. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court extends also to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

The supply of crew services comes within the meaning of goods and materials for the purposes of the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(m): Lavington International Ltd v The Nore Challenger and The Nore Commander (Bareboat Charterers) [2001] 2 All ER (Comm) 667, [2001] 2 Lloyd's Rep 103.

The term 'necessaries', used to describe claims similar to the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(m) in earlier legislation (see eg the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act 1925 s 22(1)(a)(vii) (repealed)), does not appear in the Supreme Court Act 1981. The jurisdiction under the Administration of Justice Act 1956 s 1(1) (repealed) was no narrower, however, than the old jurisdiction in respect of necessities (see The Fairport (No 5) [1967] 2 Lloyd's Rep 162, in which it was held that money lent for the purchase of supplies could be recovered under the Administration of Justice Act 1956 s 1(1)(m) (repealed)), and the existing jurisdiction is maintained by the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(c) (see PARA 85). The question whether the supply of services could be brought under the Administration of Justice Act 1956 s 1(1)(m) (now the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)(m)) was raised, but not decided, in The Queen of the South [1968] P 449, [1968] 1 All ER 1163, [1968] 1 Lloyd's Rep 182, where Brandon J at 455, 1168, 188, respectively, suggested that the effect of the 'sweeping-up' provision at the end of the Administration of Justice Act 1956 s 1(1) (now the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(c), (d): see PARA 85) is to preserve to the court, independently of, and concurrently with, any jurisdiction specifically conferred by the lettered paragraphs of the Administration of Justice Act 1956 s 1(1) (now the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(a), (2)) over claims for, inter alia, necessities, the same jurisdiction as was formerly conferred by the repealed enactments. (x) Wages and Disbursements

127. Extent of jurisdiction regarding wages and master's disbursements.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction to hear and determine any claim by a master² or member of a crew of a ship³ for wages (including any sum allotted out of wages or adjudged by a superintendent to be due by way of wages)⁴; and any claim by the master of a ship in respect of disbursements made on account of a ship⁵. The jurisdiction extends to all ships, whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, and to all claims wherever arising⁶.

There is a maritime lien in respect of seamen's wages⁷, and the master of a ship has the same lien for his remuneration and all disbursements or liabilities properly made or incurred by him on account of the ship⁸.

1 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice generally see PARA 85 et seq. As to the mode of exercise of this jurisdiction see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21; and PARAS 93-94. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court extends also to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

7 The Sydney Cove (1815) 2 Dods 11; The Nymph (1856) Sw 86. The maritime lien in respect of wages due under an ordinary mariner's contract appears always to have existed; it would seem that the effect of the Admiralty Court Act 1861 s 10 (repealed) was to extend the jurisdiction, but not the maritime lien, to cases where wages are due under a special contract: see The Sara (1889) 14 App Cas 209, 6 Asp MLC 413, HL. In The British Trade [1924] P 104, 16 Asp MLC 296, it was conceded that wages under a special contract, so far as earned on board, conferred a maritime lien, but it was decided that the lien did not extend to damages for breach of a service contract; cf The Halcyon Skies [1977] QB 14, [1976] 1 All ER 856 (maritime lien in respect of pension fund contributions). The requirement that the wages be 'earned on board' is no longer relevant to the jurisdiction under the Supreme Court Act 1981, but would seem still to be the test as respects the lien. There will be no lien in respect of severance pay: see The Tacoma City [1991] 1 Lloyd's Rep 330, CA. The scope of the master's lien for wages will be the same as that of a seaman: The Ever Success [1999] 1 Lloyd's Rep 824. The maritime lien will extend to any wages paid via an agency to seamen's dependants: The Turiddu [2000] ICR 354, [1999] 2 Lloyd's Rep 401, CA. A seaman's lien is not capable of being renounced by any agreement: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 39; and PARA 476. As to the priority ranking of wages claims as a maritime lien see The Ruta [2000] ICR 1024 at 1028, [2000] 1 Lloyd's Rep 359 at 361 per Steel J. As to maritime liens generally see PARA 1014 et seq.

8 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 41; and PARA 477. As to the limits of the lien for disbursements see The Castlegate [1893] AC 38, 7 Asp MLC 284, HL. A volunteer who pays the wages of the master and crew without the sanction of the court does not acquire by subrogation or otherwise the rights of the master and crew as regards the recovery of those wages: see The Leoborg (No 2) [1964] 1 Lloyd's Rep 380; following The Petone [1917] P 198 at 208 per Hill J. Payment may, however, be made with the leave of the court, and the payer be subrogated to those rights: see Sameiet Stavos (OH Meling Rederi) v The Berostar (Owners) [1970] 2 Lloyd's Rep 403.

The jurisdiction extends to all ships, whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, and to all claims wherever arising³.

The shipowner has a lien for general average on the cargo for its contribution and may require, before he parts with the cargo, security for the due payment of general average, whether the claim is on his own behalf or on behalf of other cargo owners⁴. The shipowner also has the right to enforce contribution by bringing proceedings⁵; this right is shared by any other person claiming contribution⁶.

See also Birkley v Presgrave (1801) 1 East 220; and CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS.

It is usual for contracts for the carriage of goods by sea to provide for the adjustment of general average according to the York-Antwerp Rules 1974, a voluntary international code on the subject which differs in a number of respects from the rules of the maritime law. For those rules see INSURANCE vol 25 (2003 Reissue) PARA 426 et seq. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(2) PARTICULAR SUBJECTS OF JURISDICTION/(xii) Bottomry/134. Extent of jurisdiction regarding claims arising out of bottomry.

(xii) Bottomry

134. Extent of jurisdiction regarding claims arising out of bottomry.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction to hear and determine any claim arising out of bottomry². Claims of bottomry (and respondentia³) are brought for the purpose of enforcing bottomry bonds⁴, which are contracts in the nature of mortgage of a ship or cargo on which the owner, or master acting for the owner⁵, borrows money in circumstances of unforeseen necessity or in case of distress to enable him to repair the ship or to pay for the repairs and dispatch of the vessel for the completion of her voyage⁶, and pledges the ship or cargo pars pro tota for repayment⁷. If the ship is lost in the course of the voyage the lender on the bottomry bond loses his money unless the terms of the bond otherwise provide; but if the ship arrives safe, then he may recover the loan, with interest, which is sometimes called 'maritime interest' and may be in proportion to the risks of the voyage⁸.

The jurisdiction in respect of claims arising out of bottomry⁹ extends to all ships, whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, and to all claims wherever arising¹⁰.

There is a maritime lien in respect of bottomry¹¹.

As long ago as 1926 bottomry bonds were uncommon¹²; today they are obsolete in practice.

1 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice generally see PARA 85 et seq. As to the mode of exercise of this jurisdiction see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21; and PARAS 93-94. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court extends also to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

4 See The Sultan (cargo ex) (1859) Sw 504 at 510 per Dr Lushington. It is suggested that claims arising out of bottomry for the purposes mentioned in the text include claims on any instruments used to effect bottomry, whether bonds, bills or otherwise.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction to hear and determine any claim for the forfeiture or condemnation of a ship or of goods which are being or have been carried, or have been attempted to be carried, in a ship, or for the restoration of a ship or any such goods after seizure². The jurisdiction extends to all ships, whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, and to all claims wherever arising³.

As the court has jurisdiction in respect of any claim for forfeiture or condemnation of a ship or goods, it may grant a declaration in respect of the proceeds of sale of a ship held by the Admiralty Marshal⁴.

137. Forfeiture of dangerous goods under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995.

Under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, the High Court may condemn as forfeited any dangerous goods¹ sent or carried, or attempted to be sent or carried, on board any vessel, British or foreign², without being properly marked, or without a written notice having been given of the description of the goods, or under a false description or with a false description of the sender or carrier³.

1 For these purposes, 'dangerous goods' means goods designated as dangerous goods by safety regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995: see s 87(5); and PARA 656.

2 For these purposes, 'foreign', in relation to a ship, means that it is neither a United Kingdom ship nor a small ship (as defined in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 1(2) (see PARA 230)) which is a British ship: see s 313(1); and PARA 19 note 2. As to the meanings of 'British ship' and 'United Kingdom ship' for these purposes see PARA 230; as to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229; and as to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

138. Cases under the Foreign Enlistment Act 1870.

All proceedings for the condemnation and forfeiture of a ship, or ship and equipment, or arms and munitions of war, in pursuance of the Foreign Enlistment Act 1870¹, are directed to be taken in the Court of Admiralty, and not in any other court², and accordingly now fall within the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court³. In such cases, in addition to any power granted by that Act, the Court of Admiralty has all powers over a ship or any other matter brought before it which it has in the case of a ship or matter brought before it in the exercise of its ordinary jurisdiction⁴.

1 Ships built or equipped without authority for a foreign naval service where the foreign state is at war with a friendly state, and ships fitted out for expeditions against a friendly state are liable to forfeiture under the Foreign Enlistment Act 1870: see ss 8, 11; and WAR AND ARMED CONFLICT vol 49(1) (2005 Reissue) PARAS 413-414.

(xiv) Droits of Admiralty

139. Extent of jurisdiction.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction to hear and determine any claim, on behalf of the Crown, for droits of Admiralty². The jurisdiction extends to all claims wherever arising³. Things found derelict⁴ on the sea, including flotsam⁵, jetsam⁶ or lagan⁷ which, if they have not touched the ground, are Admiralty droits⁸. Such things must be returned to their true owner, if he appears in time; if not, they must be condemned as droits⁹. Property found in the possession of convicted pirates and clearly belonging to them is also included in the term droits of Admiralty, but not property in the possession of pirates but belonging to others¹⁰. Remuneration in the nature of salvage is also payable to the captors of royal fish (whales and sturgeons, which are droits of Admiralty¹¹), and is recoverable in an Admiralty claim of salvage¹².

As there is a statutory procedure under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 for dealing with wreck (which for this purpose includes jetsam, flotsam, lagan and derelict¹³) and a statutory method of dealing with disputes as to title to wreck¹⁴ summarily, in most cases little occasion arises for the exercise of the jurisdiction of the High Court under this head. The Crown's right to claim wreck does not extend to unclaimed wreck found outside United Kingdom territorial waters¹⁵.

1 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice generally see PARA 85 et seq. As to the mode of exercise of this jurisdiction see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21; and PARAS 93-94. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court extends also to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

A. THE ADMIRALTY REGISTRAR AND REGISTRY

140. The Admiralty Registrar.

The Admiralty Registrar is a Queen's Bench Division Master¹ and a senior officer of the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry². In order to qualify for appointment as an Admiralty Registrar, a person must have a seven year general qualification³.

The Admiralty Registrar has responsibility for Admiralty claims⁴ and has all the powers of the Admiralty judge except where a rule or practice direction provides otherwise⁵. Although much of the practice that applies in the Admiralty Court is the same as that which applies in the Commercial Court⁶, one significant area of difference is that many interim applications are heard by the Admiralty Registrar⁷.

1 See CPR 61.1(2)(l) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015), which defines 'Registrar' for the purposes of CPR Pt 61 as the Queen's Bench Division Master with responsibility for Admiralty claims. As to the meaning of 'Admiralty claim' for these purposes, and as to the application of CPR Pt 61, see PARA 91 note 3. As to Queen's Bench Masters generally see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 654.

2 As to the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry see PARA 142. There was a Registrar attached to the old High Court of Admiralty and his office was preserved by the Supreme Court of Judicature Act 1873 s 77 (repealed).

3 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 88, Sch II Pt II; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 660. A person has a 'general qualification' if he has a right of audience in relation to any class of proceedings in any part of the Supreme Court, or all proceedings in county courts or magistrates' courts: see the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 71(3); and LEGAL PROFESSIONS. The Admiralty Registrar is barred from legal practice: see the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 75, Sch 11; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 660.

4 See note 1.

5 CPR 61.1(4) (as added: see note 1). As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 157 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615.

6 See note 5.

7 See the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N1.3. As to interim applications in the Admiralty Court see PARA 204.

The Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide provides additional guidance about the conduct of proceedings in the Admiralty and Commercial Courts and, within the framework of the Civil Procedure Rules and the associated Practice Directions, establishes the practice to be followed in those courts: see para A1.2; and PARA 157 et seq.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(i) The Admiralty Registrar/A. THE ADMIRALTY REGISTRAR AND REGISTRY/141. General jurisdiction of the Admiralty Registrar.

141. General jurisdiction of the Admiralty Registrar.

In general, the Admiralty Registrar¹ deals with all applications in Admiralty claims² on matters which elsewhere in the Queen's Bench Division would be dealt with on application by a Master³. In addition to the power of the Admiralty Registrar to hear references⁴, he has the power as a judge of the Queen's Bench Division to transact all such business and exercise all such authority and jurisdiction as under the Supreme Court Act 1981 may generally be transacted and exercised by a Queen's Bench Division judge in private⁵.

Appeal from an order or decision of the Admiralty Registrar lies to a single judge of the High Court⁶.

1 As to the Admiralty Registrar see PARA 140.

2 As to the meaning of 'Admiralty claim' for the purposes of CPR Pt 61 see PARA 91 note 3. As to CPR Pt 61 see further note 5.

3 See PARA 140. A Master may refer to a judge any matter which he thinks should properly be decided by a judge, and the judge may either dispose of the matter or refer it back to the Master: see Practice Direction--Applications PD 23A para 1; and CIVIL PROCEDURE. As to Queen's Bench Masters generally see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 654.

5 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 61(1), Sch 1 para 2; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 613. The Admiralty Registrar also has the procedural powers conferred on him by the Civil Procedure Rules: see especially CPR Pt 61; and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (cited in PARA 157 et seq). CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). The Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry is the administrative office for the Admiralty Court¹, to which all Admiralty claims² are (or, in certain cases, may be) assigned³. Applications made for Admiralty claims together with the requisite documents may be posted to the Admiralty and Commercial Registry⁴.

Except for orders made by the court on its own initiative and unless the court orders otherwise, every judgment or order made in Admiralty proceedings will be drawn up by the parties⁵.

B. REFERENCES TO THE REGISTRAR

143. References to the Admiralty Registrar.

The Admiralty Court¹ may at any stage in a claim² refer any question or issue for determination by the Admiralty Registrar³ (a 'reference')⁴. For a reference to be valid, it is necessary to have an order for reference, which can be an order of the court, an order made following the parties' agreement, or as a term of a decree for limitation. The court will not order a reference if it can satisfactorily dispose of the question⁵.

In collision claims⁶, it is usual for liability to be tried first and for the assessment of damages and interest to be referred to the Admiralty Registrar⁷. The following matters are normally also referred to the Admiralty Registrar: questions as to consequential damage in general⁸; the assessment of damage to cargo; the assessment of damages in salvage claims when damage has been done to the salvaged or salvaging vessel in the course of the services⁹; the investigation of accounts, for example in claims for goods or materials, or for repairs or disbursements and in wages and mortgage claims¹⁰; the assessment of damages in respect of loss of life and personal injuries¹¹; in limitation claims¹², the determination, after a decree limiting the claimant's liability has been made in court, of the right of the claimants to share in the fund, and the amounts due to each of them out of that fund¹³; and the decision as to which claimants for salvage are entitled to preferential treatment¹⁴.

In modern practice, the Admiralty Registrar decides questions without the assistance of merchants, but he may be assisted by a nautical assessor or assessors if questions of navigation or seamanship, or both, may arise on the reference¹⁵.

1 As to the meaning of the 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3.

2 Ie an 'Admiralty claim': see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91. As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 157 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). See also The Gertrude (1888) 13 PD 105, CA (interest on damages was properly awarded by the registrar; the parties, having proceeded on the understanding that the Admiralty practice should apply, had impliedly consented to abide by such practice).

6 As to collision claims see PARA 180 et seq.

7 See the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide section N10.1. If both vessels are damaged and found partly to blame, two references, one in respect of the claim of the claimant and the other in respect of the claim of the defendant, may be necessary.

There is no hard and fast rule as to the dividing line between questions of liability and questions of damages; accordingly such questions as to whether certain consequential loss was or was not caused by the act of the defendant may either be determined by the court or included in the reference to the Registrar: see The Maid of Kent (1881) 6 PD 178; The Guildford as reported in [1956] 2 All ER 915 at 917, [1956] 2 Lloyd's Rep 74 at 82 per Lord Merriman. Which of these courses is to be adopted may be decided at the case management conference: see The Guildford. As to the case management conference see PARA 204.

The Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide provides additional guidance about the conduct of proceedings in the Admiralty and Commercial Courts and, within the framework of the Civil Procedure Rules and the associated Practice Directions, establishes the practice to be followed in those courts: see para A1.2; and PARA 157 et seq.

The practice and procedure of the Commercial Court¹ should, except where inapplicable, be followed in Admiralty proceedings, subject to any Admiralty practice direction and to any order that may be made in an individual case².

The ordinary rules of evidence apply on the hearing of a reference but are frequently in practice, by agreement between the parties, relaxed in order to save time and expense³.

In practice, if any question of seamanship or nautical skill is likely to arise at the reference, a nautical assessor will usually attend⁴.

147. Hearing of reference and decision.

The hearing of a reference made to the Admiralty Registrar¹ proceeds in open court. The Admiralty Registrar, when sitting with merchants and nautical assessors², who are assumed to have wide experience in maritime matters, is not bound to accept the evidence of expert witnesses even though the evidence is all one way³. Where the decision is as to damages, it shows in a schedule in parallel columns the items claimed and those allowed, and from what period and at what rate interest will run⁴.

The Admiralty Registrar's decision will be in writing. The Admiralty Registrar may refer a matter to a judge for decision, either on any particular point arising in the course of the proceedings at the reference, or as to questions involved in the reference generally⁵. The judge may either dispose of the matter or refer it back to the Admiralty Registrar with such directions as he thinks fit⁶.

148. Costs.

On a reference made to the Admiralty Registrar¹, the Registrar himself may decide whether any (and what part) of the costs are payable by one party to another, the amount of those costs, and when they are to be paid, the allowance or disallowance of these costs being wholly discretionary². Such costs do not depend in any way on how the costs of the claim are to be borne, but are in the discretion of the court as the costs of a new litigation³.

Each instance is decided on its own merits⁴. Usually, the claimant will be awarded his costs of the reference if he recovers the major part of the sum claimed; however, where an offer has been made and the amount awarded in the reference is less, the party making the offer will usually be entitled to his costs after the date of the offer⁵.

In relation to the costs of reference in a limitation claim⁶, normally the limiting party pays the claimants' costs of proving their claims and investigating the claims of other parties interested in the limitation fund⁷ where this results in reducing the costs of the reference, but not where excessive claims have been submitted⁸.

Where claimants against a limitation fund dispute issues between them, the costs of such issues will normally be awarded as between them and follow the event rather than being ordered to be paid by the limiting party⁹.

149. Appeal against the Admiralty Registrar's decision on the reference.

In accordance with the usual rules on appeals, the court, in an appeal against a decision of the Admiralty Registrar on a reference made to him¹, has power to order that it receives evidence which was not before the Admiralty Registrar and may draw any inference of fact which it considers justified on any of the evidence before it². No objection may be taken on the appeal to any item which was not contested at the reference³.

The court attaches great weight to the experience of the Admiralty Registrar and will not interfere with the decision on a question of quantum unless there is an error of principle, or an obvious mistake in calculation, or a clear misunderstanding of evidence on a material point⁴.

Instead of merely allowing the appeal against a decision of the Admiralty Registrar on a reference made to him¹, or varying that decision, the court may refer the decision back to the Registrar and direct him to make a further decision, either on the case generally, or on any special point². Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(ii) Limitation of Time for Admiralty Claims/152. Claims against owners or ship for damage, loss, personal injury or death.

152. Claims against owners or ship for damage, loss, personal injury or death.

No proceedings may be brought¹ to enforce any claim² or lien against a ship³ or its owners⁴ in respect of any damage or loss caused by the fault⁵ of that ship to another ship, its cargo or freight, or any property on board it, or damages for loss of life or personal injuries suffered by any person on board it other than passengers⁶, the extent of fault being immaterial⁷, unless brought within two years⁸ of the date when the damage or loss was caused or the loss of life or injury was suffered⁹. This provision applies to proceedings against a sister ship¹⁰. The Crown is bound by these provisions, which apply to Her Majesty's ships¹¹ as to other ships¹².

Any claim for damages arising out of the death of, or personal injury to, a passenger or for the loss of, or damage to, luggage is time-barred after a period of two years from, in the case of personal injury, the date when disembarkation took place or ought to have taken place, or if death occurred after that date, from the date of death, provided the period does not exceed three years from the disembarkation¹³. The law of the court seized of the case governs the grounds of suspension and interruption of limitation periods; but the period of limitation may be extended by a declaration of the carrier or by agreement of the parties after the cause of action has arisen provided the declaration or agreement is in writing¹⁴.

1 The protection afforded by statute is not waived by acknowledging service of a claim form: see The Llandovery Castle [1920] P 119; The Alnwick [1965] P 357, [1965] 2 All ER 569, [1965] 1 Lloyd's Rep 320, CA. See note 9.

2 The limitation applies to counterclaims and cross-claims: The Fairplay XIV [1939] P 57, 65 Ll L Rep 108. See also The Gniezno [1968] P 418, [1967] 2 All ER 738, [1967] 1 Lloyd's Rep 441. A decree of limitation of liability does not override the two year period and rival claimants are therefore entitled to object to claims of persons who have not commenced proceedings within the statutory period, but, where limitation decrees are made, this may be a good reason for not issuing a claim form, so that in general an extension of time will be granted: see The Disperser [1920] P 228 at 235, 15 Asp MLC 112 at 114 per Hill J. See note 9. As to the court's discretion to extend the time see PARA 153.

3 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 229. This includes hovercraft: see the Hovercraft (Civil Liability) Order 1986, SI 1986/1305, art 7 (and see note 9). In Steedman v Schofield [1992] 2 Lloyd's Rep 163, a claim for damages against the operator of a jet ski was held not to be time-barred by the Maritime Conventions Act 1911 s 8 (repealed) (see now the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 190; but see note 9). This case would probably be decided similarly under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 190 (see PARA 1063).

4 For this purpose, 'owners' includes any person responsible for the fault of the vessel, and charterers are to be substituted for owners where the owners are not responsible for navigation and management: see HMS Archer [1919] P 1; The Sobieski [1949] P 313, [1949] 1 All ER 701, CA. See note 9.

5 'Fault' includes fault in the management of the ship: John Franetovich & Co v Ministry of Defence, The Norwhale [1975] QB 589, [1975] 1 Lloyd's Rep 610. See note 9.

6 Passenger claims will be governed by the Convention relating to the Carriage of Passengers and their Luggage by Sea (Athens, 13 December 1974; TS 40 (1987); Cm 202) (the 'Athens Convention') art 16: see the text and note 13.

7 These words apply only to claims in respect of damage or loss to cargo or property, or loss of life or personal injury, arising on board a ship which lie against another ship. Claims which arise on board a ship and which lie against owners of that ship, are not affected by this provision as to limitation: The Niceto de Larringa [1966] P 80, [1965] 2 All ER 930. See note 9.

8 The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 is complied with if the claim form is issued within two years, even though it is not served: see The Espanoleto [1920] P 223, 15 Asp MLC 287. See note 9.

9 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 190(1)-(3); and PARA 1063. This section is derived from the Maritime Conventions Act 1911 s 8 (repealed), although there are significant differences. In particular, the earlier provision did not specify that the extent of fault was immaterial. The cases cited in notes 1-8, which were all based on the Maritime Conventions Act 1911 s 8 (repealed) should, therefore, be treated with some caution when interpreting provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 190.

10 See The Preveze [1973] 1 Lloyd's Rep 202 (which considered the Administration of Justice Act 1956: see now the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20, 21(4) (see PARA 93)).

11 As to the meaning of 'Her Majesty's ships' see the Crown Proceedings Act 1947 s 38(2); and CROWN PROCEEDINGS AND CROWN PRACTICE vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 103.

12 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 192; and PARA 1065.

13 See the Athens Convention art 16 (as to which see CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS) given the force of law by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 183(1), Sch 6 Pt I. This article applies to arbitral proceedings as it applies to a claim: see s 183(2), Sch 6 Pt II para 7; and CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS. These provisions are not affected by the Limitation Act 1980 s 33 (discretionary exclusion of time limit for claims in respect of personal injury or death) (see LIMITATION PERIODS; and Higham v Stena Sealink Ltd [1996] 3 All ER 660, [1996] 1 WLR 1107, CA).

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(ii) Limitation of Time for Admiralty Claims/153. Extension of period for claims against owners or ship.

153. Extension of period for claims against owners or ship.

Any court having jurisdiction to deal with proceedings to enforce a claim or lien against a ship¹ or its owners for damage, loss, personal injury or death² may extend the period of limitation that applies, in accordance with rules of court³, to such extent and on such conditions as it thinks fit⁴. If satisfied that there has not within the period been any reasonable opportunity of arresting the defendant vessel within the jurisdiction of the court, or within the territorial waters of the country to which the claimant's ship belongs or in which the claimant resides or has his principal place of business, the court is bound to extend the period so as to give such reasonable opportunity⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 229. This includes hovercraft: see PARA 152 note 3.

2 See PARA 152.

3 Although no rules have been made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 190 (see PARAS 152, 1063), it is thought that the court's discretion is not thereby affected. This was the position under the Maritime Conventions Act 1911 (repealed): see HMS Archer [1919] P 1.

4 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 190(5); and PARA 1063. In an application for an extension of time there is a two stage test: the court must first consider the question of fact as to whether good reason for the extension has been demonstrated by the claimants and only if the claimant has established good reason should the court proceed to exercise its discretion, taking into account the balance of hardship, as to whether such an extension should be granted: The Al Tabith and The Alanfushi [1995] 2 Lloyd's Rep 336, CA (distinguishing The Zirje [1989] 1 Lloyd's Rep 493). Mere oversight on the part of the claimant in failing to protect the time limit was not a good reason: The Al Tabith and The Alanfushi. There is much case law under the Maritime Conventions Act 1911 (repealed) as to how the discretion is to be exercised but these decisions all need now to be considered in light of the two stage test in The Al Tabith and The Alanfushi. See also PARA 152 note 9. The exercise of the discretion ought not to be interfered with except on substantial grounds: The Arraiz (1924) 132 LT 715, 16 Asp MLC 451, CA. The claim will be allowed to proceed if satisfactory grounds are shown for the delay (The Cambric [1912] WN 272), but the party who wishes to have time extended must show substantial reasons why the other party should be deprived of the right to limitation of action which the law gives (see The Kashmir [1923] P 85 at 89, 16 Asp MLC 81 at 83, CA). The discretion has been exercised where the claimant was induced by correspondence with the defendants' solicitors to delay whilst awaiting settlement of liability in the collision action arising from the same incident: The Vadne [1959] 2 Lloyd's Rep 480. In the exercise of its discretion, the court has allowed a statement of claim in a salvage action to be amended to include allegations of further services arising out of the same occurrence: The Katcher I [1969] P 65, [1968] 3 All ER 344, [1968] 2 Lloyd's Rep 232. As to the exercise of discretion see also The Alnwick [1965] P 357, [1965] 2 All ER 569, [1965] 1 Lloyd's Rep 320, CA; The Disperser [1920] P 228, 15 Asp MLC 112. Applications for an extension have been dismissed where the delay was due to difficulty in ascertaining the amount of the claim (The James Westoll [1923] P 94n, 16 Asp MLC 453n, CA), where agreement had been reached on liability but there was no binding agreement to waive the time limit and there was undue delay (The Sauria and The Trent [1957] 1 Lloyd's Rep 396, CA), where the claimant was ignorant that she had a claim (The Kashmir), where a deliberate decision was taken not to start proceedings (The Lu Shan [1991] 2 Lloyd's Rep 386), where unsuccessful proceedings were first taken against another ship (The PLM 8 [1920] P 236, 15 Asp MLC 51), where the institution of proceedings was postponed while diplomatic representations were made (HMS Archer [1919] P 1), where owners elected not to sue in the United Kingdom and let time run out (The Nedenes (1925) 23 Ll L Rep 57), where the matter had been allowed to go to sleep and any claim by the defendant against third parties was also statute barred (The Hesselmoor, The Sergeant [1951] 1 Lloyd's Rep 146) and where proceedings were not allowed to run while the parties were in negotiations (see The Albany and The Marie Josaine [1983] 2 Lloyd's Rep 195; and see The Mouna [1991] 2 Lloyd's Rep 221, CA).

5 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 190(6); and PARA 1063. The test of whether there has been any reasonable opportunity to arrest a vessel is to be determined objectively, without regard to whether steps have actually been taken in an attempt to arrest in a particular jurisdiction: Santos v Owners of the Baltic Carrier [2001] 1 Lloyd's Rep 689. A period of ten days during which a ship is under requisition has been held not to constitute reasonable opportunity: The Largo Law (1920) 123 LT 560. The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 190 has no application to cases in which the defendant vessel is permanently immune from arrest: see HMS Archer [1919] P 1.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(ii) Limitation of Time for Admiralty Claims/154. Claims under the Salvage Convention 1989.

154. Claims under the Salvage Convention 1989.

Any claim relating to payment under the International Convention on Salvage¹ is time-barred if judicial or arbitral proceedings have not been instituted within a period of two years, the limitation period commencing on the day on which the salvage operations are terminated². The person against whom a claim is made may at any time during the running of the limitation period extend that period by a declaration to the claimant and this period may in the like manner be further extended³. A claim for indemnity by a person liable may be instituted even after the expiration of the limitation period so provided, if brought within the time allowed by the law of the state where proceedings are instituted⁴.

1 See the International Convention on Salvage (London, 28 April 1989; Misc 8 (1991); Cm 1526); the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 224(1), Sch 11 Pt I; and PARA 891 et seq. As to salvage see also PARA 115 et seq.

2 See the International Convention on Salvage art 23(1); and PARA 914. Article 23 suggests that the date the final salvage service was performed will be the relevant date from which the time limit will be calculable.

3 See the International Convention on Salvage art 23(2); and PARA 914. The extension of the time limit under art 23(2) is only available where a declaration is made to the salvor; the court has no discretion to extend the time limit.

4 See the International Convention on Salvage art 23(3); and PARA 914. 155. Claims for liability in respect of oil pollution.

No proceedings to enforce a claim in respect of a liability for oil pollution¹ may be entertained by any court in the United Kingdom² unless the proceedings are commenced not later than three years after the claim arose or, in cases where the damage occurs after the incident, not later than six years after the occurrence or first of the occurrences resulting in the discharge or escape³, or, as the case may be, in the relevant threat of contamination⁴, by reason of which the liability was incurred⁵.

No proceedings to enforce a claim against the International Fund established by the International Convention on the Establishment of an International Fund for Compensation for Oil Pollution Damage⁶ may be entertained by a court in the United Kingdom unless the proceedings are commenced or a third party notice⁷ of proceedings to enforce a claim against the owner or his guarantor in respect of same damage is given to the fund, not later than three years after the damage occurred⁸. In cases where the damage occurs after an incident takes place the claim must be brought within six years of the occurrence or first of the occurrences resulting in the discharge or escape, or, as the case may be, in the relevant threat of contamination, by reason of which the claim against the fund arose⁹. These provisions apply (with appropriate modification) in relation to claims against the Supplementary Fund as they apply in relation to claims against the International Fund¹⁰.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(ii) Limitation of Time for Admiralty Claims/156. Claims on contracts for carriage of goods.

156. Claims on contracts for carriage of goods.

In the case of contracts for the carriage of goods by sea to which the Hague Rules or the Hague-Visby Rules apply¹, the carrier and the ship are discharged from all liability in respect of loss or damage unless suit is brought² within one year³ after delivery of the goods or the date when the goods should have been delivered⁴.

1 The Hague Rules were set out in the Schedule to the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act 1924 (repealed). For the Hague-Visby Rules see the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act 1971 s 1(2), Schedule; and CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS.

2 It has been held that the words 'suit is brought' in this context include the commencement of arbitration proceedings: see The Merak [1965] P 223 at 261, [1965] 1 All ER 230 at 240, CA, per Russell LJ. The words refer to the bringing of the suit in the proceedings before the court and not the bringing of some other proceedings before a court in another jurisdiction: see Compagnia Colombiana de Seguros v Pacific Steam Navigation Co [1965] 1 QB 101, [1964] 1 All ER 216, where other proceedings had been brought in New York within time but by the wrong party; see also Parker LJ's comments on this decision in Hispanica de Petroleos SA v Vencedora Oceanica Navegacion SA, The Kapetan Markos [1986] 1 Lloyd's Rep 211 at 231, CA, per Parker LJ; and The Nordglimt [1988] 1 QB 183, [1988] 2 All ER 531, [1987] 2 Lloyd's Rep 470 (since overruled on other grounds by the House of Lords in Republic of India v India Steamship Co Ltd (No 2) [1998] AC 878, [1997] 4 All ER 380, HL). If the claimants have no title to sue at the date of bringing the proceedings, the defect cannot be cured by assignment of title to them after the time limit has expired: see Associated Herring Merchants v Reitsma 1958 SLT 57, Sh Ct.

3 Under an agreement known as the Gold Clause Agreement, entered into between British shipowners and underwriters, the year's time limit under the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act 1924 was in practice generally extended to two years. This agreement continues to be effective under the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act 1971: see CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS.

4 See the Hague-Visby Rules; the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act 1971 s 1(2), Schedule art III para 6; and CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS. An extension to the period of one year may be authorised if the parties so agree after the cause of action has arisen: see Schedule art III para 6; and CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS. It has been held by the United States District Court that 'delivery of the goods' is not synonymous with discharge: see American Hoesch Inc and Riblet Products Inc v SS Aubade etc and Maritime Commercial Corp Inc [1971] 2 Lloyd's Rep 423. The rule does not bar defences: see Goulandris Bros Ltd v B Goldman & Sons Ltd [1958] 1 QB 74, [1957] 3 All ER 100, where a cargo owner's defence to a shipowner's claim for a general average contribution, on the ground that the ship was unseaworthy or that the shipowner did not exercise due diligence to make her seaworthy, was held not to be barred.

An action for indemnity against a third person may be brought even after the expiration of the year provided for in the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act 1971 Schedule art III para 6 if brought within the time allowed by the law of the court seized of the case and so long as the time allowed is not less than three months (commencing from the day when the person bringing such action for indemnity has settled the claim or has been served with process in the action against himself): see Schedule art III para 6bis; and CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iii) Admiralty Claims except Limitation Claims/A. IN GENERAL/157. Outline of procedure in Admiralty claims.

(iii) Admiralty Claims except Limitation Claims

A. IN GENERAL

157. Outline of procedure in Admiralty claims.

Proceedings in the Admiralty Court are governed by the Civil Procedure Rules ('CPR') and Practice Directions¹. The specific procedure that applies for the purposes of making an Admiralty claim differs according to the specific nature of the claim, as follows: (1) a claim in personam (an 'other claim') commences and proceeds under the CPR as if it were a claim proceeding in the Commercial List²; (2) a claim in rem proceeds differently from other claims in its early stages³; (3) subject to the preparation of a collision statement of case⁴, a collision claim commenced in rem proceeds generally as under head (2) above⁵ but where a collision claim is not commenced in rem it proceeds generally as under head (1) above⁶.

The procedure governing the early stages of a limitation claim differs significantly from the analogous stages of other claims⁷.

¹ As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

The Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide has been prepared in consultation with the Admiralty judge and has been adopted to provide guidance about the conduct of proceedings in the Admiralty Court: see paras A1.2, A1.4, N1.2. The Guide must be followed in the Admiralty Court unless the content of CPR Pt 61, its associated practice direction, or the terms of the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras N1-N14 require otherwise: see paras A1.1, A1.7, N1.2. As to the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide see PARA 91 note 3.

² In accordance with CPR Pt 58 (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq): see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras B1-B12, C1-C5, N3.1. Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 12 ('other claims') applies to Admiralty claims which, before the coming into force of CPR Pt 61 (ie before 25 March 2002: see the Civil Procedure (Amendment No 5) Rules 2001, SI 2001/4015, r 1), would have been called claims in personam: see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 12.1; and PARA 186 et seq.

³ See the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N4.1. The procedure is governed generally by CPR 61.3 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.1-3.11 (as to which see PARA 158 et seq): see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras N3.1, N4.1. As to the meaning of 'claim in rem' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 4.

⁴ As to which see PARA 182 et seq.

⁵ See the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras N3.1, N5.1. Accordingly, the procedure is governed generally by CPR 61.3 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 paras 3.1-3.11 (as to which see PARA 158 et seq) but subject to CPR 61.4 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 4.1-4.5 (as to which see PARA 182 et seq): see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras N4.1, N5.1. As to the meaning of 'collision claim' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 12.

6 See the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras N3.1, N5.2. Accordingly, the procedure is governed generally by CPR Pt 58 (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq) but subject to CPR 61.4 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 paras 4.1-4.5 (as to which see PARA 182 et seq): see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N5.2.

7 See the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras N3.1, N6.1. The procedure is contained in CPR 61.11 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.1 (as to which see PARA 194 et seq): see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N6.1. As to the meaning of 'limitation claim' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 13.

(A) COMMENCEMENT OF CLAIMS IN REM

(a) The in rem Claim Form

158. Issue and form of in rem claim form.

An Admiralty claim in rem¹ is started by the issue of an in rem claim form². The claimant in a claim in rem may be named or may be described (but if not named in the claim form must identify himself by name if requested to do so by any other party)³. The defendant must be described in the claim form⁴. As in other proceedings, the claim form must contain a concise statement of the nature of the claim and must specify the remedy sought by the claimant⁵. Applications made for any Admiralty claim, together with the requisite documents, may be posted to the Admiralty and Commercial Registry⁶.

The Admiralty Registrar⁷ must, after a claim form is issued, issue a direction in writing stating: (1) whether the claim should remain in the Admiralty Court or should be transferred to another court⁸; and (2) if the claim is to remain in the Admiralty Court, whether it should be dealt with by the Admiralty judge or by the Registrar, and whether the trial will be in London or elsewhere⁹.

Once a ship has been served with a claim form, or arrested in a claim in rem brought to enforce the claim being made, no other ship may be served with a claim form or arrested in that or any other claim in rem brought to enforce that claim¹⁰.

1 As to the origin of claims in rem see PARA 83; and as to the jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court in relation to claims in rem see PARA 92 et seq. As to the commencement of claims in personam see PARAS 186-188.

CPR 61.3 applies to an Admiralty claim in rem: see CPR 61.3(1) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

2 CPR 61.3(2) (as added: see note 1). The details concerning the issue of an in rem claim form are set out in Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3: see CPR 61.3(2) (as so added). A claim form in rem must be in Form ADM1 (Claim Form (Admiralty claim in rem)): see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.1. The procedure set out in the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras B3.3 (statement of value), B3.7-B3.11 (statement of truth, trial without service, interest, service when registry is closed), B6.4-B6.6 (applications for extension of time, certificate of service) applies to collision claims commenced in rem: see paras N4.2, N5.1. See also Apps 3, 4. As to the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide see PARAS 91 note 3, 157 note 1.

3 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.2.

4 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.3. If, after the issue of the form, a ship has been sold to a new owner, the new owner of the ship is a 'person interested' in the ship within the meaning of CPR 61.8(7) (as to which see PARA 169). In such circumstances, the correct procedure is for those who were the owners of the ship at the time when the claim form was issued to acknowledge service, and for the new owner to apply to be made a party to the claim under CPR 61.8(7). That rule, for example, provides the court with jurisdiction to allow a person who has no formal interest in property to be arrested to intervene if the arrest will cause serious hardship, difficulty or danger: see The Mardina Merchant [1974] 3 All ER 749, [1975] 1 WLR 147; The Mawan now named Mara [1988] 2 Lloyd's Rep 459.

In cases where the claimant contemplates a 'sister ship' claim (as to which see PARA 93), the claim form may, when issued, name not only the offending ship but also all the other ships which are at that time in the defendants' ownership: see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(4), (8); and PARA 93. However, this provision does not give the claimants the right to arrest a ship which was a ship owned by a sister company of the owning company of the particular ship involved in the claim unless the claimants are able to prove that beneficial ownership of all the shares in it lies in the hands of the same defendant: see s 21(4)(ii) (cited in PARA 93); and The Evpo Agnic [1988] 3 All ER 810, [1988] 1 WLR 1090, CA; The Nazym Khikmet [1996] 2 Lloyd's Rep 362, CA. The claim form must subsequently be amended by the striking out of all the names except the one chosen for the service of the claim form: see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(8) (which gives statutory effect to the ruling in The Banco [1971] P 137, [1971] 1 All ER 524, [1971] 1 Lloyd's Rep 49, CA) (cited in PARA 93); and see The Nord Sea and Freccia del Nord [1989] 1 Lloyd's Rep 388 at 391 per Sheen J. As to the further requirements to be complied with before a sister ship is arrested see PARA 161. For the conditions for the renewal of a claim form in a sister ship claim see The Berny [1979] QB 80, [1978] 1 All ER 1065, [1977] 2 Lloyd's Rep 533; The Helene Roth [1980] QB 273, [1980] 1 All ER 1078, [1980] 1 Lloyd's Rep 477.

5 See CPR 16.2; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 585. As to service see PARA 160.

Subject to CPR 61.4 (special provisions relating to collision claims) (see PARA 181 et seq), the particulars of claim must be contained in or served with the claim form or be served on the defendant by the claimant within 75 days after service of the claim form: CPR 61.3(3) (as added: see note 1). It is important that the defendant is made aware from the claim form itself on whose behalf it has been issued, in respect of what claim, and that the incident giving rise to the claim is identified: see The Tuyuti [1984] 2 Lloyd's Rep 51 at 52-53 per Sheen J; The Jangmi [1988] 2 Lloyd's Rep 462. In the case of a collision claim, the claim form need not contain or be followed by particulars of claim and CPR 7.4 (particulars of claim generally) (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 123) does not apply: see CPR 61.4(2); and PARA 181. As to the meaning of 'collision claim' see PARA 91 note 12.

6 As to the Admiralty and Commercial Registry and its functions see PARA 142.

7 As to the Admiralty Registrar see PARA 140.

8 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 2.1. In making these directions, the Admiralty Registrar must have regard both to the nature of the issues and the sums in dispute and the criteria set out in CPR 26.8 (ie the general rule for allocation) (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 270) in so far as they are applicable: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 2.2. As to case management in the Admiralty and Commercial Courts generally see PARA 204.

9 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 2.1. See note 8. Where the Admiralty Registrar directs that the claim should be dealt with by the Admiralty judge, case management directions will be given and any case management conference or pre-trial review will be heard by the Admiralty judge: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 2.3.

10 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21(8); and PARA 93. However, when a ship has been arrested in the mistaken belief that it was a sister ship (as to which see note 4), another sister ship may be arrested, provided that the documentation in support of the second arrest refers to the previous mistaken arrest and the reasons for it: The Stephan J [1985] 2 Lloyd's Rep 344; The Pioneer Container [1989] HKLR 465.

UPDATE

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

159. Right of owners of ship or cargo to sue as such.

By the practice of the Admiralty Court¹, the owners of a ship or cargo may sue as such, and this practice is in no way affected by the enabling provisions in the Civil Procedure Rules relating to parties to claims in rem², or to the joining of parties to existing proceedings³. The claimants to a claim in rem if not named in the in rem claim form must identify themselves by name on the request of any other party⁴.

UPDATE

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iii) Admiralty Claims except Limitation Claims/B. COMMENCEMENT OF CLAIMS/(A) Commencement of Claims in rem/(a) The in rem Claim Form/160. Service of the in rem claim form.

160. Service of the in rem claim form.

The in rem claim form, which may be served by the claimant's solicitor or any person on his behalf, should be served as soon as possible after it has been issued¹. In practice, a convenient opportunity for service on property occurs at the same time as the Admiralty Marshal or substitute enters into possession under a warrant². An order for service by an alternative method is inappropriate to an in rem claim form³.

Service of a claim form in rem may be made in one of the following ways:

- 278 (1) on the property against which the claim in rem is brought by fixing a copy of the claim form on the outside of the property proceeded against in a position which may reasonably be expected to be seen⁴;
- 279 (2) if the property to be served is in the custody of a person who will not permit access to it, by leaving a copy of the claim form with that person⁵;
- 280 (3) where the property has been sold by the Marshal⁶, by filing the claim form at the court⁷;
- 281 (4) where there is a notice against arrest⁸, on the person named in the notice as being authorised to accept service⁹;
- 282 (5) on any solicitor authorised to accept service¹⁰;
- 283 (6) in accordance with any agreement providing for service of proceedings¹¹; or
- 284 (7) in any other manner as the court may direct as allowed for under the Civil Procedure Rules¹² provided that the property against which the claim is brought (or part of it) is within the jurisdiction of the court¹³.

Accordingly, unless it is served in one of the ways permitted by the Civil Procedure Rules¹⁴, or where the defendant acknowledges service of the claim form¹⁵, the form, or a copy of it, must be served on the property against which the claim is brought¹⁶, except where that property is freight or where that property has been sold by the Admiralty Marshal¹⁷.

In claims where the property is to be arrested, or in claims where the property is already under arrest in current proceedings, the Marshal will serve the in rem claim form if the claimant requests the court to do so¹⁸. In all other cases, in rem claim forms must be served by the claimant¹⁹.

Service of the claim form on a ship, freight or cargo is effected in one of the ways specified in the Civil Procedure Rules²⁰. Service of the claim form must be made within the jurisdiction²¹, in accordance with the practice direction²², and within 12 months after the date of issue²³. If the claim form is amended²⁴, which in a fit case may be done even after judgment²⁵, the amended claim form must be served in the same way as an original claim form²⁶.

Any person who pays the prescribed fee may, during office hours, search for, inspect and take a copy of any claim form in rem whether or not it has been served²⁷.

Where there has been default in acknowledgment of service, the time for judgment in the claim is 14 days from the date of the service of the claim form²⁸.

1 As to the issue and form of an in rem claim form see PARA 158. As to the service of in rem claim forms see the text and notes 2-26. In certain circumstances, the Admiralty Marshal will effect service of the in rem claim form and where he has so agreed an undertaking (usually given by a solicitor) to pay on demand all expenses incurred by the Admiralty Marshal or his substitute in respect of the service of the claim form will normally be required: see the text and notes 18-19; and as to undertakings see PARA 162.

CPR 61.3 applies to an Admiralty claim in rem: see CPR 61.3(1) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

2 As to arrested property see PARA 164.

3 The Good Herald [1987] 1 Lloyd's Rep 236. This is because the property against which the claim is issued cannot be arrested unless that property is within the jurisdiction and can be served with the claim: see CPR 6.8 (cited in CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 143) and its predecessor RSC Ord 65 r 4. It is not established whether CPR 6.9 (cited in CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 153), which allows the court to dispense with service altogether in appropriate cases, may be applied to in rem claim forms.

4 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.6(1)(a). Where the property is freight, service may be made either on the cargo in respect of which the freight was earned or on the ship upon which that cargo was carried: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.6(1)(b).

5 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.6(2).

6 As to sales by the Admiralty Marshal see PARA 178. For the purposes of CPR Pt 61, references to 'Marshal' mean the Admiralty Marshal: see CPR 61.1(2)(j) (as added: see note 1).

7 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.6(3). The claim form is deemed to have been duly served on the day on which the copy was filed. In this instance, part of the proceeds of sale must still be in court: The Optima (1905) 74 LJP 94; The Fornjot (1907) 24 TLR 26. As to the filing of claims with the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry see PARA 142.

8 As to cautions against arrest see PARAS 166-167.

9 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.6(4).

10 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.6(5).

11 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.6(6).

12 Ie under CPR 6.8, by which the court may make an order permitting service by an alternative method (ie by a method not otherwise permitted by the Civil Procedure Rules) where it appears to the court that there is a good reason so to authorise (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 152): see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.6(7).

13 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.6(7). As to the jurisdiction of the court see PARA 85 et seq.

14 Ie by Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.6 (see heads (1)-(7) in the text).

15 See CPR 61.3(6); and PARA 168. The protection afforded by the Maritime Conventions Act 1911 s 8 (repealed) (see now the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 190; and PARA 1063), restricting proceedings after the lapse of two years, is not waived by acknowledgment of service: see PARA 152. A defendant who files an acknowledgment of service to an in rem claim form does not by doing so lose any right that he may have to dispute the court's jurisdiction: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.11. As to acknowledgment of service in general see CPR 10.1 (cited in CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 184); and the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para B8. As to the procedure for disputing the court's jurisdiction generally see CPR Pt 11 (cited in CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 206); and the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para B9. As to the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide see PARAS 91 note 3, 157 note 1.

16 Where the claim is issued against two or more ships, it must be served on one only: The Banco [1971] P 137 at 145, [1971] 1 All ER 524 at 529, [1971] 1 Lloyd's Rep 49 at 50, CA, per Lane J. A change in ownership of the defendant vessel subsequent to issue of the claim form is no bar to service thereof: see The Monica S [1968] P 741, [1967] 3 All ER 740 (but cf the reasoning of the majority of the Court of Appeal in The Banco). See also The Helene Roth [1980] QB 273, [1980] 1 All ER 1078, [1980] 1 Lloyd's Rep 477 (where a change in ownership of the defendant vessel was held to be no bar to renewal of the claim). If one ship is arrested in the mistaken belief that it is a sister ship, another ship may be arrested, provided that the affidavit in support of the application for the second arrest refers to the previous mistaken arrest and the reasons for it: The Stephan J [1985] 2 Lloyd's Rep 344.

17 See Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.6 (see heads (1)-(7) in the text).

18 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.7.

19 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.8.

20 See Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.6 (see heads (1)-(7) in the text).

21 Service must be made within the jurisdiction because the court will be seised of the in rem claim form from either the time the claim form is served, or from the time of the ship's arrest, whichever is earlier. The court cannot have in rem jurisdiction over a ship which does not come within the territorial waters of England and Wales: The Nord Sea and Freccia del Nord [1989] 1 Lloyd's Rep 388. As to the territorial jurisdiction of the Supreme Court see PARAS 187, 188.

The service of an in rem claim form upon property within the jurisdiction of the court is notice to all the world of the claim indorsed upon the claim form; hence the importance of complying with the proper mode of service: see The Prins Bernhard [1964] P 117 at 131, [1963] 3 All ER 735 at 745, [1963] 2 Lloyd's Rep 236 at 247 per Hewson J. Where, therefore, after the service of the claim form in rem, but before a warrant of arrest issued in the proceedings had been served, a foreign vessel proceeded against had left the jurisdiction without the owners appearing, on the action coming on for hearing as a default cause, the court ruled in favour of the claimants and awarded them their costs: The Nautik [1895] P 121. As to warrants of arrest see PARAS 161-165.

22 le Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3 (see note 1): see CPR 61.3(5) (as added: see note 1).

UPDATE

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

(b) Warrant of Arrest

161. Application for and issue of warrant of arrest.

In a claim in rem¹, the claimant and a judgment creditor may apply to have the property proceeded against arrested² by the Admiralty Court³. An application for arrest must contain an undertaking to pay all fees and expenses incurred or to be incurred⁴ and must be accompanied by a declaration in support⁵. When the court receives an application for arrest that complies with the Civil Procedure Rules and the practice direction, it will issue an arrest warrant⁶. Any party making an application for arrest must request a search to be made in the Register⁷ before the warrant is issued in order to determine whether there is a caution against arrest in force with respect to that property⁸, and file a declaration in the required form⁹. The declaration so required¹⁰ must be verified by a statement of truth¹¹ and must state:

- 285 (1) in every claim: (a) the nature of the claim or counterclaim and that it has not been satisfied and if it arises in connection with a ship, the name of that ship¹²; (b) the nature of the property to be arrested and, if the property is a ship, the name of the ship and her port of registry¹³; and (c) the amount of the security sought, if any¹⁴.
- 286 (2) in a claim against a ship (or a sister ship) over which the court has jurisdiction¹⁵: (a) the name of the person who would be liable on the claim if it were not commenced in rem¹⁶; (b) that the person referred to in head (2)(a) above was, when the right to bring the claim arose, either the owner (or charterer) of, or in possession or in control of, the ship in connection with which the claim arose¹⁷; and (c) that at the time the claim form was issued the person referred to in head (2)(a) above was either the beneficial owner of all the shares in the ship in respect of which the warrant is required or the charterer of it under a charter by demise¹⁸;
- 287 (3) where a warrant of arrest may not be issued against a ship owned by a state where by any convention or treaty, the United Kingdom¹⁹ has undertaken to minimise the possibility of arrest of ships of that state until notice has been served on a consular officer²⁰ at the consular office of that state in London or the port at which it is intended to arrest the ship²¹, that the relevant notice has been served²²;
- 288 (4) where a warrant of arrest may not be issued in a claim in rem against a foreign ship belonging to a port of a state in respect of which an order in council has been made²³, until the expiration of two weeks from appropriate notice to the consul²⁴, that the relevant notice has been sent²⁵; and
- 289 (5) in the case of a claim in respect of liability for oil pollution caused by tankers²⁶, the facts relied on as establishing that the court is not²⁷ prevented from considering the claim²⁸.

It is permissible and proper²⁹ that there should be an arrest of a vessel in one jurisdiction in support of a determination of the merits of a dispute by a court of competent jurisdiction in another contracting or regulation state³⁰ and to provide security for the satisfaction of the judgment given by that court³¹. Likewise, if an arbitration³² has been commenced and the claimants in the arbitration have not obtained security for any possible award in the arbitration, they may quite properly issue an in rem claim form if they know that a ship belonging to the respondents in the arbitration is coming within the jurisdiction and may arrest that ship in order to obtain security³³.

No warrant of arrest will be issued against a ship owned by a state where, by any convention or treaty, the United Kingdom has undertaken to minimise the possibility of arrest of ships of that state until notice³⁴ has been served on a consular officer at the consular office of that state in London or the port at which it is intended to arrest the ship³⁵ and a copy of that notice is attached to any declaration that has been filed with the application³⁶. Except with the permission of the court or where notice has been given to the consular officer³⁷, a warrant of arrest must not be issued in a claim in rem against a foreign ship belonging to a port of a state in respect of which an order in council has been made³⁸ until the expiration of two weeks from appropriate notice to the consul³⁹.

Where in respect of an in rem claim over which the court has jurisdiction⁴⁰, a ship has been served with a claim form or arrested in a claim in rem brought to enforce that claim, no other ship may be served with a claim form or arrested in that or any other claim in rem brought to enforce that claim; but this does not prevent the issue, in respect of any one such claim, of a claim form naming more than one ship or of two or more claim forms each naming a different ship⁴¹.

1 As to the origin of claims in rem see PARA 83; and as to the jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court in relation to claims in rem see PARA 92 et seq. As to the issue of an in rem claim form see PARA 158 et seq.

As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

2 There must be a tangible res in existence, and thus a warrant cannot be issued for the arrest of freight apart from a ship or some cargo, nor can freight collected and paid into a bank be arrested: The Kaleten (1914) 30 TLR 572.

3 CPR 61.5(1) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). The practice direction (ie Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61: see note 1) sets out the procedure for applying for arrest: CPR 61.5(2) (as so added). As to the filing of documents with the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry see PARA 142.

4 Ie the application must be in Form ADM4 (Application and undertaking for arrest and custody): see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 5.1(1).

5 Ie the application must be accompanied by a declaration in Form ADM5 (Declaration in support of application for warrant of arrest): see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 5.1(2).

6 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 5.2.

There are now no special provisions applicable to warrants for arrest where there is a claim arising out of bottomry (as to which see PARA 134), but it should be noted that no such claim has been made in the High Court for many years. It should also be noted that a warrant of arrest may not be issued as of right in the case of property in respect of which the beneficial ownership has, since the issue of the claim form, changed as a result of a sale or disposal by any court in any jurisdiction exercising Admiralty jurisdiction in rem: see CPR 61.5(4) (as added: see note 3). For the circumstances in which the warrant is intended to be issued as of right (ie so long as the statutory requirements are complied with) see also The Varna [1993] 2 Lloyd's Rep 253, CA.

7 For the purposes of CPR Pt 61, 'Register' means the Register of cautions against arrest and release which is open to inspection as provided by the practice direction: see CPR 61.1(2)(i) (as added: see note 3). As to cautions against arrest see PARAS 166-167.

8 CPR 61.5(3)(a) (as added: see note 3).

UPDATE

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iii) Admiralty Claims except Limitation Claims/B. COMMENCEMENT OF CLAIMS/(A) Commencement of Claims in rem/(b) Warrant of Arrest/162. Execution of warrant of arrest.

162. Execution of warrant of arrest.

A warrant of arrest¹ must be executed within the jurisdiction². A warrant of arrest is valid for 12 months but may only be executed if the claim form has been served or remains valid for service at the date of execution³. The arrest of property may only be effected by the Admiralty Marshal or his substitute⁴; and the warrant will not be executed without a written undertaking to pay the Marshal's fees and expenses incurred, or to be incurred, by him or on his behalf in respect of the arrest, or endeavours to arrest, the property⁵. The detainer of a vessel or other property in consequence of directions sent by fax is not unusual, and the disregard of a notice by telegram from the Admiralty Marshal that a warrant has been issued against property and that the property is not to be removed is a contempt of court⁶.

1 As to applications for and the issue of a warrant of arrest see PARA 161.

As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

2 This limitation has always been fundamental to Admiralty procedure in rem: see eg The Banco [1971] P 137 at 150, [1971] 1 All ER 524 at 531, [1971] 1 Lloyd's Rep 49 at 51, CA, per Lord Denning MR. As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court see PARA 85 et seq.

3 CPR 61.5(7) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). As to the Civil Procedure Rules that allow the calculation of any period of time for doing any act which is specified by the rules, by a practice direction or by a judgment or order of the court see CPR 2.8, CPR 2.9; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARAS 88, 89. There is no provision for the renewal of a warrant, but a fresh warrant may be applied for if the period has expired.

4 CPR 61.5(8) (as added: see note 3). As to the Admiralty Marshal see PARA 160 note 6. For a note on current procedures for the arrest of a ship see The Johnny Two [1992] 2 Lloyd's Rep 257 at 260 per Sheen J. Officers of Revenue and Customs act as the Admiralty Marshal's substitutes at outlying ports. As to the appointment of officers of Revenue and Customs see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 901 et seq.

5 The undertaking forms part of the application to arrest in Form ADM4 (Application and undertaking for arrest and custody): see PARA 161. Where, in CPR 61 or in Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, any undertaking to the Marshal is required it must be given in writing and to his satisfaction or in accordance with such other arrangements as he may require: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 14.1. Where any party is dissatisfied with a direction given by the Marshal in this respect he may apply to the Admiralty Registrar for a ruling: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 14.2. As to the Admiralty Registrar see PARA 140.

As to recovery of expenses from the proceeds of sale paid to the Marshal by an arresting party see The Falcon [1981] 1 Lloyd's Rep 13. The marshal's expenses of maintaining the arrest from the time of lodgment of a commission of appraisement and sale and the expenses of the sale are payable in the first instance by the party lodging the commission: The Falcon. As to liability for the expenses of second and subsequent arrests see The Falcon.

COMMENCEMENT OF CLAIMS/(A) Commencement of Claims in rem/(b) Warrant of Arrest/163. Mode of effecting service of warrant of arrest etc.

163. Mode of effecting service of warrant of arrest etc.

Warrants of arrest or in rem claim forms¹, because of the urgency associated with them, may be served on Sundays and other non-working days as required². Service of either an in rem claim form or a warrant³, if the property to be arrested is a ship, freight, or cargo on board, must be effected by affixing a copy on the outside of the property proceeded against in a position which may reasonably be expected to be seen⁴. If it is not reasonably practicable in the case of a warrant to serve the warrant itself, the property may be arrested by service of a notice of issue of the warrant on the property⁵ or by giving notice to those in charge of the property⁶. A ship may be arrested even when the sheriff is in possession, as the seizure by the sheriff can only be subject to any maritime liens with which the ship is incumbered⁷.

1 As to in rem claim forms see PARA 158 et seq; and as to applications for and the issue and execution of a warrant of arrest see PARAS 161-162.

As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

2 As to service of the in rem claim form see PARA 160; and as to service of a warrant see PARAS 161-162. For details of when service is deemed to take place generally see CPR 6.7; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 151.

3 Property is arrested by service on it of an arrest warrant in Form ADM9 (warrant of arrest): see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 5.5(1).

4 See Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 paras 3.6(1), 5.5(1); and CPR 61.8(1) (cited in PARA 164). A warrant against freight may be executed by service on the cargo or on the ship: see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 paras 3.6(1)(b), 5.5(1). However, where neither ship nor cargo can be arrested, a warrant cannot be issued for the arrest of freight only: The Kaleten (1914) 30 TLR 572 (service of warrant for arrest of freight on a clerk of the shipowner's agent held to be bad).

These methods of service are mandatory and service will be set aside if there is a substantial failure to carry out the proper procedure: The Prins Bernhard [1964] P 117, [1963] 3 All ER 735, [1963] 2 Lloyd's Rep 236. Minor irregularities may, however, be condoned: The Sullivar [1965] 2 Lloyd's Rep 350.

164. Custody of arrested property.

Property under arrest¹ may not be moved without an order of the Admiralty Court and the property may be immobilised or otherwise prevented from sailing in such manner as the Admiralty Marshal² may consider is appropriate³. Where property is under arrest, an in rem claim form⁴ may be served upon it and, in addition, it may be arrested by any other person claiming to have an in rem claim against it⁵.

A ship-keeper may be put in possession under the authority of the Admiralty Marshal during the time a ship is under arrest, and any person breaking the arrest or interfering with the property whilst it is under arrest is guilty of a contempt of court and liable to committal or a fine⁶. By the mere arrest of a ship the Marshal gains custody and not possession; subject to his control of the custody all possessory rights which previously existed continue to exist, including all the remedies which are based on possession⁷.

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

COMMENCEMENT OF CLAIMS/(A) Commencement of Claims in rem/(b) Warrant of Arrest/165. Forgoing of service where undertakings are made by solicitor.

165. Forgoing of service where undertakings are made by solicitor.

Where the solicitor of the defendant agrees to accept service and undertakes to provide security, no service on the property of the in rem claim form or warrant is required¹. Where a solicitor fails to comply with his written undertaking to acknowledge service of the claim form, or provide security, he is liable to committal² and the undertaking remains binding though no claim form has been issued³. The undertaking once given cannot be withdrawn on offering the ship, within the jurisdiction, for arrest, nor do the claimants, by arresting the ship under such circumstances, forfeit their rights under the undertaking⁴, and the fact that the undertaking has been given by the solicitor under a mistake as to his authority is no reason for setting it aside⁵. The value of the ship for the purpose of security in pursuance of the undertaking must be ascertained as at the date of the undertaking⁶.

1 It is submitted that the practice described in the text, which was formerly governed by RSC Ord 75 r 9, seems to be observed still, although the rule has been revoked and there is no direct replacement provision in the Civil Procedure Rules. (As to service under the CPR generally see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 138 et seq). As to service of the in rem claim form see PARA 160; and as to service of a warrant of arrest see PARA 163. As regards arrest, the situation is analogous to that which arises upon the entry of a caution against release: see PARA 167. As to undertakings in Admiralty proceedings generally see PARA 162.

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

166. Entry of caution against arrest.

Any person may file¹ a request for a caution against arrest², which must be in the prescribed form³. When a request is filed in this way, the court will enter the caution in the Register⁴ if the request is duly completed⁵ and if:

- 290 (1) the person filing the request undertakes to file an acknowledgment of service and to give sufficient security to satisfy the claim with interest and costs⁶; or
- 291 (2) where the person filing the request has constituted a limitation fund⁷, he states that such a fund has been constituted and he undertakes that the claimant will acknowledge service of the claim form by which any claim may be begun against the property described in the request⁸.

The entry of a caution against arrest is not treated as a submission to the jurisdiction of the English Court⁹.

A caution against arrest is valid for 12 months after the date it is entered in the Register¹⁰; but may be renewed for a further 12 months by filing a further request¹¹.

1 As to the filing of documents in the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry see PARA 142.

2 CPR 61.7(1) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). In modern practice, cautions are not often used and undertakings to provide sufficient security, given directly by the defendant's solicitors to the claimant, are more usual. Be that as it may, it is submitted that the provisions with regard to caution against arrest apply equally to arrests at the instance of defendants as to arrests at the instance of claimants. This practice was formerly governed by RSC Ord 75 rr 5(1), 6(1), 14(1) and it appears that the practice is still being observed, although the rule has been revoked and there is no direct replacement provision in the Civil Procedure Rules.

As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

3 See Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 6.2. Accordingly, the request must be in Form ADM7 (Request for caution against arrest): see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 6.2. See also the text and notes 5-8.

4 See CPR 61.7(2) (as added: see note 2); Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 6.3. As to the meaning of 'Register' for these purposes see PARA 161 note 7. The Register is open for inspection when the Admiralty and Commercial Registry is open: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 6.4. A caution entered in the Register under CPR 61.7 is known as a 'caution against arrest' for the purposes of CPR Pt 61: CPR 61.1(2)(g) (as so added).

5 If the request is in the form set out in the practice direction (ie Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61: see note 2): see CPR 61.7(2) (as added: see note 2).

6 CPR 61.7(2)(a) (as added: see note 2).

7 If in accordance with the Convention on Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims (London, 1 to 19 November 1976; Misc 31 (1978); Cmnd 7035) art 11 (see PARA 1053): see CPR 61.7(2)(b) (as added: see note 2). See also PARA 176.

8 CPR 61.7(2)(b) (as added: see note 2).

9 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 6.1.

10 CPR 61.7(3)(a) (as added: see note 2). As to the withdrawal of cautions see PARA 175.

11 CPR 61.7(3)(b) (as added: see note 2). The provisions of CPR 61.7(1), (2) (see the text and notes 1-8) apply to a further request under CPR 61.7(3)(b): CPR 61.7(4) (as so added).

167. Effect of caution against arrest.

The entry in the Register¹ of a caution against arrest² does not prevent the arrest of the subject property but, in such a case, the Admiralty Court³ may order that the arrest be discharged⁴ and that the party procuring the arrest pays compensation to the owner of or other persons interested in the property arrested⁵.

A solicitor, by signing a request for a caution without qualification⁶, renders himself personally liable to perform the undertaking contained therein, and where such an undertaking has been given the claimant is entitled to have a reasonable opportunity of seeing whether he ought to accept it or not; if it is not a satisfactory undertaking, or for any other good and sufficient reason he does not accept it, he will not be condemned in costs and damages for taking out a warrant for arrest⁷. A preliminary search in order to determine whether there is a caution against arrest in force with respect to the subject property is thus advisable in the interest of the claimant in addition to being compulsory before an arrest is made⁸.

Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

168. Acknowledgment of service of claim form in rem.

If the defendant to an Admiralty claim in rem¹ wishes to contest the proceedings, either on the merits or on a point of jurisdiction² or irregularity, he is required in all cases to acknowledge service of the in rem claim form³. A defendant who files an acknowledgment of service to an in rem claim does not lose any right he may have to dispute the jurisdiction of the court⁴.

After the acknowledgment of service has been filed, the claim will follow the procedure applicable to a claim proceeding in the Commercial List⁵ except that the claimant is allowed 75 days to serve the particulars of claim⁶.

If the defendant fails to acknowledge service within the prescribed time, the claimant may apply for judgment in default of notice of intention to defend⁷.

¹ As to in rem claims see PARA 158 et seq. As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). ³ An acknowledgment of service must be filed in every in rem claim within 14 days after service of the claim form: CPR 61.3(4) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). This period applies irrespective of whether the claim form contains particulars of claim: see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 3.5. As to service of the in rem claim form see PARA 160. For details of when service is deemed to take place generally see CPR 6.7; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 151. The acknowledgment of service must be in Form ADM2 (Acknowledgment of service) and the person who acknowledges service must identify himself by name therein: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para

3.4. If an in rem claim form has been issued (whether served or not), any person who wishes to defend the claim may file an acknowledgment of service: CPR 61.3(6) (as so added).

169. Persons who may acknowledge service of claim form in rem.

An acknowledgment of service must be filed in every in rem claim¹ and the person who acknowledges service must identify himself in it by name². Where the defendants are described and not named on the claim form (for example as 'The Owners of the Ship X'), any acknowledgment of service, in addition to stating that description which appears on the claim form, must also state the full names of the persons acknowledging service and the nature of their ownership³. Any person interested in property under arrest (or in the proceeds of sale of such property), or whose interests are affected by any order sought or made, may be made a party to any claim in rem against the property or proceeds of sale⁴. Examples of persons having an interest are mortgagees⁵, trustees in bankruptcy⁶, underwriters who have accepted abandonment⁷, charterers⁸, persons who have possessory liens⁹, or competing maritime liens¹⁰, owners who have purchased the property against which the claim is brought since the date of the issue of the in rem claim form¹¹, and generally persons who are claimants in other claims in rem against the same property¹². If, however, the intervention is unnecessary to protect the intervenor's rights he will be refused his costs¹³. Persons who intervene in order to defend the claim cannot set up defences which are not open to the owner of the property¹⁴.

If the claim form is served on a ship which has been sold since the date of issue of the claim form, the correct procedure is for those who were the owners of the ship at the time when the claim form was issued to acknowledge service; the new owners should make an application for leave to intervene in the claim under CPR 61.8(7) (as to which see the text and note 4): see The Mawan now named Mara [1988] 2 Lloyd's Rep 459.

4 CPR 61.8(7) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). See also PARA 173. These provisions are designed to allow those who have substantial interests in the res ('the property') to intervene, as their interests may otherwise be adversely affected by the claim. The rights of the interveners are limited to the protection of their interests in the property; interveners therefore will not be allowed to raise issues which are ancillary to that purpose: The Lord Strathcona [1925] P 143; The Byzantion (1922) 127 LT 756, 16 Asp MLC 19. Any party who wishes to resist an application for payment out must either intervene or enter a caution: The Eva [1921] P 454. As to cautions see PARAS 166-167. Parties who intervene in order to postpone the sale of the ship may be ordered to give security, which may be increased even after judgment: The Lord Strathcona (No 2) [1926] P 18. As to the provision of security see PARAS 171-172. Even where a party has no interest in the res ('the property') under arrest, there is an inherent jurisdiction to grant leave to intervene where justice requires to prevent serious hardship to that party: The Mardina Merchant [1974] 3 All ER 749, [1975] 1 WLR 147. (e) Provision of Security

171. Introduction.

The usual step following an acknowledgment of service in a claim in rem¹ is for the owner of the property arrested to procure its release² by giving security for the claimant's claim³. This may be done: (1) by paying the amount of the claimant's claim into court⁴; (2) by providing security in a sufficient amount⁵; or (3) by furnishing a guarantee acceptable to the claimant⁶. The third method is the most common in practice.

1 As to acknowledgment of service of a claim form in rem see PARAS 168-170.

2 For the procedure relating to release see PARAS 173-176.

3 It is submitted that the provisions with regard to caution against arrest or release, releases, security, payment into court and guarantees in lieu of bail apply equally to arrests at the instance of defendants as to arrests at the instance of claimants. This practice was formerly governed by RSC Ord 75 rr 5(1), 6(1), 14(1) and it appears that the practice is still being observed, although the rule has been revoked and there is no direct replacement provision in the Civil Procedure Rules.

4 Money paid into court as security must, in proceedings taking place in London, be paid into the Court Funds Office and such payment is subject to the Court Funds Rules 1987, SI 1987/821: see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1548 et seq. See also The Markland (1871) LR 3 A & E 340 at 344; The Fairport (No 4) [1967] 2 All ER 914n, [1967] 1 WLR 964, [1967] 1 Lloyd's Rep 602.

5 See PARA 172.

6 In practice, a guarantee or undertaking by a bank, insurance company, protection and indemnity association, or other guarantor satisfactory to the claimant, to pay any amount found to be due from the defendant and not paid by him is usually accepted in lieu of payment into court. In particular, the existence of the guarantee protects the ship against further arrest, for the purpose of obtaining further security in connection with the same cause of action, unless the arresting party has good reason to consider the guarantee insufficient or inoperative: see The Christiansborg (1885) 10 PD 141, CA; The Hartlepool (1950) 84 Ll L Rep 145; Westminster Bank Ltd v West of England Steamship Owners' Protection and Indemnity Association Ltd (1933) 46 Ll L Rep 101; The Tjaskemolen (No 2) [1997] 2 Lloyd's Rep 476.

COMMENCEMENT OF CLAIMS/(A) Commencement of Claims in rem/(e) Provision of Security/172. Security given to obtain release or to prevent arrest of property.

172. Security given to obtain release or to prevent arrest of property.

Where an in rem claim form has been issued¹ and security sought, any person who has filed an acknowledgment of service² may apply to the Admiralty Court for an order specifying the amount and form of security to be provided³.

Where, in relation to a claim in rem, security has been given either to obtain the release of property under arrest or to prevent the arrest of property⁴, the court may order: (1) that the amount of security be reduced (and the court may stay the claim until the order is complied with)⁵; or (2) that the claimant be permitted to arrest⁶ or re-arrest the property proceeded against in order to obtain further security⁷, provided that the total security to be so provided does not exceed the value of the property at the time of the original arrest or (if the property was not arrested) at the time security was first given⁸.

1 As to in rem claims see PARA 158 et seq. As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. 3 CPR 61.5(10) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). Historically, the provision of bail as security in Admiralty proceedings was known but this practice has been, and is expected to be, a rarity. Be that as it may, as to the form of bail bond see The Bulgaria [1964] 2 Lloyd's Rep 524 (bond expressly reserving the defendant's right to seek to set aside the claim on grounds of sovereign immunity was allowed); and The Cap Bon [1967] 1 Lloyd's Rep 543 (form cannot be so altered as to cover a purpose which is not the purpose of Admiralty proceedings in rem). 79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

173. Removal of property under arrest.

If it is necessary for measures to be taken with respect to property which is under arrest pursuant to an Admiralty claim in rem¹, for instance if it is necessary to remove the property to another place than that at which it was arrested, or for cargo to be unloaded from a ship under arrest, the Admiralty Marshal² or other interested party must apply to the court for directions³. The need for such an order is often avoided by the issue of an 'omnibus' order by the Admiralty Registrar⁴ at the time of the arrest, which normally sets out various measures with respect to the custody of the ship⁵. The Admiralty Marshal will not insure property under arrest for the benefit of parties at any time during the period of arrest (whether before or after the lodging of an application for sale, if any)⁶.

Where a ship is not under arrest (but cargo on board her is) or where a ship is under arrest (but cargo on board her is not), and persons interested in the ship or cargo wish to discharge the cargo, they may, without being made parties to the proceedings, request the Admiralty Marshal to authorise steps to discharge the cargo⁷. If the Admiralty Marshal considers such a request reasonable, and if the applicant gives an undertaking in writing acceptable to the Admiralty Marshal to pay his fees, and to pay all expenses to be incurred by him or on his behalf, on demand, the Admiralty Marshal will apply to the court for an order to permit the discharge of the cargo⁸. Where those persons interested in the ship or cargo are unable or unwilling to give such an undertaking, they may be made parties to the claim, and they may apply to the court for an order for discharge of the cargo and for directions as to the fees and expenses of the Admiralty Marshal with regard to the discharge and storage of the cargo⁹.

1 As to Admiralty claims in rem see PARA 158 et seq; and as to arrest see PARA 161 et seq.

As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). The same procedure will apply in respect of light dues but not in respect of mooring charges: see R v Carrick District Council, ex p Prankerd, The Winnie Rigg [1999] QB 1119, [1998] 2 Lloyd's Rep 675.

4 As to the Admiralty Registrar see PARA 140.

5 See Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 5.6; and PARA 164. When property is arrested, the Admiralty Registrar will issue standard directions in Form ADM10 (Standard Directions to the Admiralty Marshal): See Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 5.6; and PARA 164.

6 See Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 5.7; and Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N13.1. As to sale see PARA 178. The Admiralty Marshal will, however, use his best endeavours (but without any legal liability for failure to do so) to advise all parties known to him as being on the record in claims in rem against the arrested property, including those who have filed cautions against the release of that property, before any such property moves or is moved beyond the area covered by the usual port risks policy: Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N13.2. The usual port risks policy provides, among other things, for a ship to be moved or towed from one berth to another up to a distance of 5 miles within the port where she is lying: Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N13.3. The Guide also draws the attention of practitioners to the necessity of considering questions of insuring against port risks for the amount of their clients' interest in any property arrested in an Admiralty claim and the inclusion in any policy of a 'Held Covered' clause in case the ship moves or is moved outside the area covered by the usual port risks policy: see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N13.3. As to the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide see PARAS 91 note 3, 157 note 1.

7 CPR 61.8(8) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). There is a general principle that cargo owners must pay for the removal of their own cargo from an arrested ship and that such cost should not be met from the sale of the ship by the Admiralty Marshal: The Jogoo [1981] 3 All ER 634, [1981] 1 WLR 1376, [1981] 1 Lloyd's Rep 513.

174. Release where there is a caution against release or payment out.

Any person who claims to have an in rem¹ right against any property under arrest pursuant to an Admiralty claim in rem², and who wishes to be given notice of any application to the court in respect of that property or its proceeds of sale³, may file a request for a caution against release⁴. When such a request is filed, a caution against release will be entered in the Register⁵.

A search for cautions must be made before a release is issued⁶ and, if there is a caution in force, release may not be issued unless at the time of the issue of the release the property is sold by the Admiralty Court, or unless the court orders release⁷.

Where the release of any property under arrest is delayed by the entry of a caution against release⁸, any person having an interest in the property may apply for an order requiring the person who entered the caution to pay damages for losses suffered by the applicant because of the delay⁹. However, the court may not make such an order if it is satisfied that there was good reason both to request the entry of, and to maintain, the caution¹⁰. An objection to the sufficiency of security¹¹ which afterwards was shown to be groundless has been held not to be a sufficient reason for entering a caution against release¹².

175. Obtaining release from arrest.

Property will be released from arrest¹ if:

- 292 (1) it is sold² by the Admiralty Court³;
- 293 (2) the Admiralty Court orders release⁴ on an application made by any party⁵;
- 294 (3) the arresting party and all persons who have entered cautions against release⁶ file a request for release⁷; or
- 295 (4) any party files a request for release⁸ (which contains an undertaking to pay the fees of, and all expenses incurred by, the Admiralty Marshal⁹) and that party consents to the release of the arresting party and all persons who have entered cautions against release¹⁰.

Any request for the withdrawal of a caution against release must be in the prescribed form¹¹.

3 CPR 61.8(4)(a) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015).

4 The court has a discretion to order release and may consider factors such as the convenience of the parties and the risk of deterioration of the vessel: see The Gay Tucan [1968] 3 All ER 819, [1969] 1 WLR 163, [1968] 2 Lloyd's Rep 425. The court may order a release even if there is a caution against release: see PARA 174.

In The Golden Trader [1975] QB 348, [1974] 2 All ER 686, where the proceedings had been stayed under the Arbitration Act 1950 s 4(2) (repealed: see now the Arbitration Act 1996 s 9 (power to stay proceedings brought in breach of an arbitration agreement) (see ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1222)), an order for release was made. On the application for the release of a vessel held as security for a claim in arbitration, the court will only order the release on the provision of sufficient security to cover the amount of the claim, plus interest and costs: The Bazias 3 [1993] QB 673, [1993] 2 All ER 964, CA. In The Rena K [1979] QB 377, [1979] 1 All ER 397, an order was made but alternative security had to be provided because the stay was unlikely to be the end of the matter. In The Tuyuti [1984] QB 838, [1984] 2 All ER 545, CA, the arrest was continued, as it was shown that any arbitration award made was unlikely to be satisfied.

Under the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982 s 26 (see PARA 96), the court is at liberty if it thinks it appropriate to order the security to be preserved and made available to meet a judgment in foreign proceedings: The Nordglint [1988] 1 QB 183, [1988] 2 All ER 531, [1987] 2 Lloyd's Rep 470. For cases under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 185, Sch 7 (releases where security previously given) see PARA 176.

5 CPR 61.8(4)(b) (as added: see note 3).

6 As to cautions against release see PARA 174.

7 CPR 61.8(4)(c) (as added: see note 3). The request for release must be in the form set out in the practice direction (ie Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61: see note 1): see CPR 61.8(4)(c) (as so added). Accordingly, the request for release under CPR 61.8(4)(c) must be in Form ADM12 (Request and undertaking for release): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 7.4. As to the filing of documents in the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry, and as to the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry itself, see PARA 142. As to the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide generally see PARAS 91 note 3, 157 note 1.

8 It is in the form set out in Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61: see CPR 61.8(4)(d). Accordingly, the request for release under CPR 61.8(4)(d) must be in Form ADM12 (Request and undertaking for release): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 7.4. See note 7.

9 See CPR 61.8(4)(d); and Form ADM12 (Request and undertaking for release). As to the Admiralty Marshal see PARA 160 note 6. Where, in CPR 61 or in Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, any undertaking to the Marshal is required it must be given in writing and to his satisfaction or in accordance with such other arrangements as he may require: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 14.1. Where any party is dissatisfied with a direction given by the Marshal in this respect he may apply to the Admiralty Registrar for a ruling: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 14.2. 175 Obtaining release from arrest

NOTE 7--See now The Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide (8th Edn, 2009) para N11.1-N11.4.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iii) Admiralty Claims except Limitation Claims/B. COMMENCEMENT OF CLAIMS/(A) Commencement of Claims in rem/(f) Dealings with Arrested Property/176. Release where security previously given.

176. Release where security previously given.

Where a ship¹ or other property is arrested² within the jurisdiction of any state which is a party to the Convention on Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims³, and a limitation fund has been constituted⁴ by the person alleged to be liable for the claim in respect of which the arrest is made, or security has been given to prevent, or obtain release from, arrest, the court or other competent authority of such state may order release of the ship or other property⁵. Such release must be ordered if the limitation fund has been constituted:

- 296 (1) at the port where the occurrence took place, or if it took place out of port, at the first port of call thereafter⁶;
- 297 (2) in respect of claims for loss of life or personal injury at the port of disembarkation⁷;
- 298 (3) in respect of damage to cargo at the port of discharge⁸; or
- 299 (4) in the state where the arrest is made⁹.

Where a release is so ordered, the applicant is deemed to have submitted to the jurisdiction of the court to adjudicate on the claim for which the ship or property was arrested¹⁰.

Where a limitation fund has been constituted, any person having made a claim against the fund is barred from exercising any right in respect of such a claim against any other assets of a person by or on whose behalf the fund has been constituted¹¹.

The above rules apply only if the claimant may bring a claim against the limitation fund before the court administering that fund and the fund is actually available and freely transferable in respect of that claim¹².

1 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 229.

2 I.e. pursuant to an Admiralty claim in rem. As to Admiralty claims in rem see PARA 158 et seq; and as to arrest see PARA 161 et seq.

As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

3 I.e. the Convention on Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims (London, 1 to 19 November 1976; Misc 31 (1978); Cmnd 7035), implemented by the Merchant Shipping Act 1979 s 17, Sch 4 (repealed) (see now the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 185(1), Sch 7 Pt I; and PARA 1042 et seq). An Order in Council made for the purposes of Sch 7 Pt II para 13 and declaring that any state specified in the Order is a party to the Convention on Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims is, subject to the provisions of any subsequent Order made for those purposes, conclusive evidence that the state is a party to the Convention: Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt II para 13 (substituted by SI 1998/1258). Accordingly, see the Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims (Parties to Convention) Order 1986, SI 1986/2224, which has effect as if made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt II para 13, and which specifies the states being parties to the Convention and the territories in respect of which they are such a party: see the Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims (Parties to Convention) Order 1986, SI 1986/2224, art 3, Schedule.

4 See pursuant to the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 11 (as to which see PARA 1053): see Sch 7 Pt I art 13 para 2; and PARA 1055.

5 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 13 para 2; and PARA 1055. The power of the court is discretionary, but should be exercised unless there are substantial reasons to the contrary: The Putbus [1969] P 136 at 151, [1969] 2 All ER 676 at 680, [1969] 1 Lloyd's Rep 253 at 257, CA, per Lord Denning MR. COMMENCEMENT OF CLAIMS/(A) Commencement of Claims in rem/(f) Dealings with Arrested Property/177. Statement of value and appraisalment.

177. Statement of value and appraisalment.

In cases where the value of the arrested property is important¹, the value of the property should be agreed or a statement of value obtained from a relevant person before release². If it is not possible to agree the value or to obtain such a statement, an application for the property's appraisalment may be made to the court³. Without previous challenge, the statement normally cannot be contradicted by evidence at the hearing, nor is the deponent allowed to be cross-examined on it⁴. If the claimant considers the stated value to be incorrect, his proper course is to enter a caution against release⁵ and obtain an order from the judge or the Admiralty Registrar for an appraisalment by the Admiralty Marshal to ascertain the correct value⁶. Normally, an appraisalment by the Admiralty Marshal or his substitute is conclusive⁷, but if there appear to be special reasons for so doing, the judge may direct a further appraisalment or may himself vary the appraised value at the hearing⁸. The costs of the appraisalment are in the discretion of the court, but where the appraised value is considerably more than the value given in the statement of value, the costs of the appraisalment are usually ordered to be borne by the defendants⁹.

1 Eg where cargo has been arrested for freight only, and in salvage claims. As to arrest see PARA 161 et seq; and as to the extent of Admiralty jurisdiction regarding salvage claims see PARA 113 et seq.

2 The statement should not be made on information and belief, but by a person having actual knowledge of the value: see The Orangemoor (1915) 31 TLR 190.

3 An application for an order for the appraisalment of a ship may be made in a claim in rem at any stage by any party: see CPR 61.10(1); and PARA 178.

5 As to cautions against release see PARA 174.

6 As to the Admiralty Marshal see PARA 160 note 6; and as to the Admiralty Registrar see PARA 140. An order for appraisalment, as opposed to an order for appraisalment and sale (as to which see PARA 178 et seq), is rare; in practice, values are agreed between the solicitors for the parties without the need for an order for appraisalment or even a statement of value. In The Gay Tucan [1968] 3 All ER 819, [1969] 1 WLR 163, [1968] 2 Lloyd's Rep 245, however, the release of a yacht was ordered in a possession action subject to bail being given for the value which was to be determined by appraisalment.

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

178. Appraisalment and sale of ship by court.

An application for an order for the survey, appraisalment or sale of a ship may be made in a claim in rem¹ at any stage by any party². If the court makes an order for sale³, it may set a time within which notice of claims against the proceeds of sale must be filed and the time and manner in which such notice must be advertised⁴. Any party with a judgment against the property or proceeds of sale may at any time after such a time⁵ apply to the court for the determination of priorities⁶. Unless the Admiralty judge orders otherwise, a determination of priorities may only be made by the Admiralty judge⁷.

Any application to the court concerning either the sale of the property under arrest or the proceeds of sale of property sold by the court must be heard in public and the application notice must be served on all parties to the claim, all persons who have requested cautions against release⁸ with regard to the property or the proceeds of sale, and the Admiralty Marshal⁹.

Payment out of the proceeds of sale will be made only to judgment creditors and either in accordance with the determination of priorities or as the court orders¹⁰. So long as a fund remains in court, it is the court's duty to see that it is paid to the proper recipients; thus an order for priorities may be varied at any time before payment out, on application by an interested party¹¹. Payment out may nevertheless be ordered, even if other claimants are known to exist, if they have delayed excessively in establishing their claims¹².

1 As to Admiralty claims in rem see PARA 158 et seq; and as to arrest see PARA 161 et seq.

As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

See also The Myrto [1977] 2 Lloyd's Rep 243 (order made owing to the expense of a prolonged arrest); and Hobbs, Savill & Co Ltd v The Vasilis (Owners), Albaron Bay Corp [1972] 1 Lloyd's Rep 51 (permission was given to mortgagees to pay the master and crew for repatriation to enable the sale of the ship). As to liability for costs of discharging cargo not subject to order for sale see The Myrto [1978] 1 Lloyd's Rep 11, CA; The Jogoo [1981] 3 All ER 634, [1981] 1 WLR 1376, [1981] 1 Lloyd's Rep 513; The Myrto (No 2) [1984] 2 Lloyd's Rep 341. As to statements of value that may be agreed before release see PARA 177.

3 Unless the court orders otherwise, an order for sale must be in Form ADM14 (Order for sale of a ship): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 9.2. An order for sale before judgment may only be made by the Admiralty judge: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 9.3. As to Admiralty judges see PARA 140.

The Admiralty Marshal may choose one or more experienced persons to appraise the vessel and certify its true value in writing: see Form ADM14 para (2). He must sell the vessel for the highest price that can be obtained for it but he must not sell for less than the certified appraised value without an order of court: see Form ADM14 para (3). On completion of the sale the Marshal must pay the proceeds of sale into court and must countersign and file a certificate of value together with an account of his fees and expenses: see Form ADM14 paras (4), (5). Permission of the court should be obtained if any unusual item of expenditure is to be charged: see The Westport (No 2) [1965] 2 All ER 447, [1965] 1 WLR 871 (repairs needed to put ship in working order); The Queen of the South [1968] P 449, [1968] 1 All ER 1163, [1968] 1 Lloyd's Rep 182 (dock dues). As to payment of fees for a survey carried out by a classification society see The Honshu Gloria [1986] 2 Lloyd's Rep 63. As to the Admiralty Marshal see PARA 160 note 6.

The Admiralty Marshal may, if he thinks fit, offer for sale and sell the property for a price in a foreign currency: The Halcyon the Great [1975] 1 All ER 882, [1975] 1 WLR 515. When proceeds of sale are paid into court by the Admiralty Marshal, and such proceeds are in a foreign currency, the funds must be placed on one day call interest bearing account unless the court orders otherwise: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 9.5. Unless made at the same time as an application for sale (or other prior application) an application to place foreign currency on longer term deposit may be made to the Admiralty Registrar: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 9.6. Notice of the placement of foreign currency in an interest bearing account must be given to all parties interested in the fund by the party who made the application under para 9.6: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 9.7. Any interested party who wishes to object to the mode of investment of foreign currency paid into court may apply to the Registrar for directions: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 9.8. As to the Admiralty Registrar see PARA 140.

4 CPR 61.10(2) (as added: see note 2). As to the filing of documents with the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry see PARA 142. All claims against the property are transferred to the fund in court: see The Queen of the South [1968] P 449, [1968] 1 All ER 1163, [1968] 1 Lloyd's Rep 182. It seems, however, that this cannot apply to a dock authority's statutory right of retention for dock dues: The Emilie Millon [1905] 2 KB 817, CA; The Queen of the South. See also The Freightline One [1986] 1 Lloyd's Rep 266.

5 The time referred to in CPR 61.10(2) (see the text and notes 3-4): see CPR 61.10(3) (as added: see note 2).

6 CPR 61.10(3) (as added: see note 2). An application notice under CPR 61.10(3) must be served on all persons who have filed a claim against the property: CPR 61.10(4) (as so added). In cases in which property has been arrested or there is a fund in court, it is usual for any judgment in favour of a claimant to be expressed to be without prejudice to other claims against the vessel, and reserving all questions as to the priority of such claims: see The Africano [1894] P 141 at 150 per Sir Francis H Jeune. The application to the court for the determination of priorities may be dealt with at the same time as an application for payment out: The Westport (No 4) [1968] 2 Lloyd's Rep 559. As to claims which the claimant is entitled to bring in priority to all other claims on the fund see The World Star [1987] 1 Lloyd's Rep 452. See also The Jogoo [1981] 3 All ER 634, [1981] 1 WLR 1376, [1981] 1 Lloyd's Rep 513. 179. Proceedings against the Crown.

Nothing in the Crown Proceedings Act 1947¹ authorises proceedings in rem² in respect of any claim against the Crown, or the arrest³, detention or sale of any of Her Majesty's ships or aircraft⁴, or of any cargo or other property belonging to the Crown⁵. Nor does anything in the Crown Proceedings Act 1947 give to any person any lien on such ships, aircraft, cargo or property⁶.

Where proceedings in rem have been instituted against any such ship, aircraft, cargo or other property, an application may be made to the court by the claimant or the Crown, and if the court is satisfied that the proceedings were instituted by the claimant in the reasonable belief that the ship, aircraft, cargo or other property did not belong to the Crown, it may make an order that the proceedings be treated as if they were in personam, duly instituted against the Crown in accordance with the Crown Proceedings Act 1947⁷.

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

180. Jurisdiction of the court in relation to a collision claim.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction in relation to any action to enforce a claim for damage, loss of life or personal injury arising out of²:

- 300 (1) a collision between ships³; or
- 301 (2) the carrying out of or omission to carry out a manoeuvre in the case of one or more of two or more ships⁴; or
- 302 (3) non-compliance, on the part of one or more of two or more ships, with the collision regulations⁵.

The court is specifically precluded by statute from entertaining any claim in personam⁶ under heads (1) to (3) above unless some connection can be established between the claim and England or Wales⁷ and unless any foreign proceedings previously brought by the claimant against the defendant in respect of the same incident or series of incidents have been discontinued or otherwise come to an end⁸.

A party who wishes to dispute the court's jurisdiction in any claim under heads (1) to (3) above (a 'collision claim')⁹ must make an application¹⁰ within two months after filing his acknowledgment of service¹¹.

¹ As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice generally see PARA 85 et seq. As to the mode of exercise of this jurisdiction see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21; and PARAS 93-94. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court extends also to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). COMMENCEMENT OF CLAIMS/(B) Commencement of Collision Claims/(a) The Claim Form and Service/181. The claim form and acknowledgment of service in collision claims.

181. The claim form and acknowledgment of service in collision claims.

A collision claim¹ is begun by issuing a claim form which need not contain or be followed by particulars of claim². However, an acknowledgment of service must be filed³.

A claim form in a collision claim may not be served out of the jurisdiction unless:

- 303 (1) it is an action in personam to enforce a claim to which the relevant provisions of the Supreme Court Act 1981 apply⁴; or
- 304 (2) the defendant has submitted to (or agreed to submit to) the jurisdiction of the court⁵, and the court gives permission⁶. Where permission to serve a claim form out of the jurisdiction is given, the court will specify the period within which the defendant may file an acknowledgment of service and, where appropriate, a collision statement of case⁷.

1 As to the meaning of 'collision claim' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 12. CPR 61.4 applies to collision claims: CPR 61.4(1) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

2 CPR 61.4(2) (as added: see note 1). Accordingly, CPR 7.4 (particulars of claim) (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 123) does not apply to collision claims: see CPR 61.4(2) (as so added). The procedure set out in the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras B3.3 (statement of value), B3.7-B3.11 (statement of truth, trial without service, interest, service when registry is closed), B6.4-B6.6 (applications for extension of time, certificate of service) applies to collision claims commenced in rem: see paras N4.2, N5.1. Where a collision claim is not commenced in rem, the general procedure applicable to claims proceeding in the Commercial List (ie paras B1.1-B12.5) applies: see para N5.2. As to the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide see PARAS 91 note 3, 157 note 1.

3 CPR 61.4(3) (as added: see note 1). As to the filing of documents with the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry see PARA 142.

4 ie unless the case falls within the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 22(2)(a)-(c) (as to which see PARA 94): see CPR 61.4(7)(a) (as added: see note 1).

5 CPR 61.4(7)(b) (as added: see note 1).

6 CPR 61.4(7) (as added: see note 1). The court must give permission as mentioned in the text in accordance with CPR Pt 6 Section III (CPR 6.17-6.31) (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARAS 156, 168 et seq): see CPR 61.4(7) (as so added). Service of a claim form out of the jurisdiction in a collision claim (other than a claim in rem) is permitted in the circumstances identified in CPR 61.4(7) only and the procedure set out in the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide App 15 (Service out of the jurisdiction: related practice) should be adapted accordingly: Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N5.3.

7 CPR 61.4(8) (as added: see note 1). As to collision statements of case see PARA 182 et seq. Before the coming into force of CPR Pt 61 (ie before 25 March 2002: see the Civil Procedure (Amendment No 5) Rules 2001, SI 2001/4015, r 1), a collision statement of case was known as a preliminary act and the law relating to preliminary acts continues to apply to collision statements of case: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 4.5; Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N5.4. The preparation and filing by the parties of a collision statement of case is a particular feature of a collision action: see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N5.4.

182. Filing a collision statement of case.

In any collision claim¹, every party must, within two months after the defendant files the acknowledgment of service² or (where the defendant makes an application disputing the jurisdiction or the exercise by the court of its jurisdiction)³ within two months after the defendant files the further acknowledgment of service, file at the court a completed collision statement of case⁴. When he files his collision statement of case, each party must give notice to every other party that he has done so⁵; and, within 14 days after the last collision statement of case is filed, each party must serve a copy of his collision statement of case on every other party⁶.

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005

s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iii) Admiralty Claims except Limitation Claims/B. COMMENCEMENT OF CLAIMS/(B) Commencement of Collision Claims/(b) Collision Statement of Case/183. Contents of collision statement of case.

183. Contents of collision statement of case.

A collision statement of case¹ must be in the required form² and be verified by a statement of truth³. Accordingly, a collision statement of case must contain answers to the following questions⁴:

- 305 (1) the names of the ships which came into collision and their ports of registry⁵;
- 306 (2) the length, breadth, gross tonnage, horsepower and draught at the material time of the ship, and the nature and tonnage of any cargo carried by the ship⁶;
- 307 (3) the date and time (including the time zone) of the collision⁷;
- 308 (4) the place of the collision⁸;
- 309 (5) the direction and force of the wind⁹;
- 310 (6) the state of the weather¹⁰;
- 311 (7) the state, direction and force of the tidal or other current¹¹;
- 312 (8) the position, the course steered and speed through the water of the ship when the other ship was first seen or immediately before any measures were taken with reference to her presence, whichever was the earlier¹²;
- 313 (9) the lights or shapes, if any, carried by the ship¹³;
- 314 (10) the distance and bearing of the other ship if and when her echo was first observed by radar¹⁴; and the distance, bearing and approximate heading of the other ship when first seen¹⁵;
- 315 (11) what light or shape or combination of lights or shapes, if any, of the other ship was first seen¹⁶;
- 316 (12) what other lights or shapes or combinations of lights or shapes, if any, of the other ship were subsequently seen before the collision, and when¹⁷;
- 317 (13) what alterations, if any, were made to the course and speed of the ship after the earlier of the two times referred to in head (8) above up to the time of the collision, and when, and what measures, if any, other than alterations of course or speed, were taken to avoid the collision, and when¹⁸;
- 318 (14) the heading of the ship, the parts of each ship which first came into contact and the approximate angle between the two ships at the moment of contact¹⁹;
- 319 (15) what sound signals, if any, were given, and when²⁰;
- 320 (16) what sound signals, if any, were heard from the other ship, and when²¹.

The collision statement of case must also contain a statement of any other facts or matters upon which the party filing the collision statement of case relies, a statement of all allegations of negligence or other fault on which the party filing the collision statement of case relies, and a statement of the remedy which the party filing the collision statement of case claims²².

1 As to the requirement to file a collision statement of case see PARA 182.

2 Ie in the form set out in the practice direction (ie Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61): see CPR 61.4(6) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). Accordingly, a collision statement of case must be in Form ADM3 (Collision statement of case) and must contain the answers and statements specified in Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 4.2 (as to which see the text and notes 4-22): see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 paras 4.1, 4.2.

CPR 61.4 applies to collision claims: CPR 61.4(1) (as so added). As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

3 CPR 61.4(6) (as added: see note 2). Form ADM3 (Collision statement of case) (as to which see note 4) contains a pro forma statement of truth: see Form ADM3 (Collision statement of case). As to statements of truth generally see CPR Pt 22; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 613 et seq.

A statement of truth in a collision statement of case is a formal admission binding on the party making it and can only be departed from with the special leave of the court: see The Seacombe, The Devonshire [1912] P 21 at 59, CA, per Fletcher Moulton LJ; affd [1912] AC 634, HL (but the question of collision statements of case was not considered there). See also The Lady Belle [1933] P 275. Unless leave is given to admit evidence not in accordance with the collision statement of case, the court may hold the party to the statements in the collision statement of case: see The Semiramis [1952] 2 Lloyd's Rep 86 at 93.

4 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 4.2(1). The text refers to questions that are set out in Form ADM3 (Collision statement of case) Pt 1: see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 4.2(1). Every party is required, so far as it is able, to provide full and complete answers to the questions contained in Form ADM3 (Collision statement of case) Pt 1, and the answers should descend to a reasonable level of particularity: Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N5.6. If some of the required information is outside the party's knowledge, he must file the best collision statement of case that he can: The El Oso (1925) 133 LT 269; The Graingers No 4 [1964] 3 All ER 705, [1964] 1 WLR 1474, [1964] 2 Lloyd's Rep 415. The answers to the questions contained in Form ADM3 (Collision statement of case) Pt 1 are treated as admissions made by the party answering the questions and leave to amend such answers will be granted only in exceptional circumstances: Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N5.7. However, a party who files a defective collision statement of case may be ordered to amend it: The Godiva (1886) 11 PD 20. As to the principles applicable to the amendment of a collision statement of case see The Topaz [2003] EWHC 320 (Admlty) at [13], [2003] 2 Lloyd's Rep 19 at [13] per Gross J; and the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N5.7. 22 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 4.2(2); Form ADM3 Pt 2. The wording of Form ADM3 Pt 2 varies slightly in that a statement of 'the relief or remedy which the party filing the collision statement of case claims' is specified and a statement must be included to the effect that the information in Form ADM3 (Collision statement of case) Pt 1 is incorporated in Form ADM3 (Collision statement of case) Pt 2: see Form ADM3 (Collision statement of case) Pt 2. The provisions of the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide App 4 (statements of case) apply to Form ADM3 Pt 2 (but not to Form ADM3 Pt 1): Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N5.5.

184. Power of court to dispense with collision statement of case.

The obligation to file a collision statement of case¹ lies not only on parties who are the owners or operators of the colliding vessels, but also upon all other parties involved in collision claims, such as a widow making a fatal accident claim² or a dock authority whose acts are alleged to be a cause of the collision³. Although, in the exercise of the court's general discretionary power, such other parties may be excused from the obligation⁴, the power is one which the court exercises only in exceptional circumstances⁵. The principle of mutuality applies, so that, if one party is excused, other parties will usually not be required to file a collision statement of case⁶.

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

185. Stay of proceedings in collision claims pending security for counterclaim.

Where, in a collision claim¹ in rem, (the 'original claim'):

- 321 (1) either a Part 20 claim², or a cross claim in rem³ arising out of the same collision or occurrence is made⁴; and
- 322 (2) the party bringing the original claim has caused the arrest⁵ of a ship or has obtained security⁶ in order to prevent such arrest⁷, and the party bringing the Part 20 claim or cross claim is unable to arrest a ship or otherwise to obtain security⁸, then the party bringing the Part 20 claim or cross claim may apply to the Admiralty Court to stay the original claim until sufficient security is given to satisfy any judgment that may be given in favour of that party⁹.

1 As to the meaning of 'collision claim' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 12. CPR 61.4 applies to collision claims: CPR 61.4(1) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). 187. Service of claim form and acknowledgment of service where claim is in personam.

An Admiralty claim in personam¹ must be in the prescribed form². The claimant may be named or may be described in the claim form, but if not named there he must identify himself by name if requested to do so by any other party³. The defendant must also be named in the claim form⁴.

An Admiralty claim in personam must be served by the claimant⁵. Service within the jurisdiction⁶ is governed by the general rules applicable in other proceedings⁷, and acknowledgment of service is given in accordance with the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court⁸.

1 Except for certain requirements that are imposed in relation to the claim form (see also PARA 188) and the filing of a defence (see PARA 189), all Admiralty claims in personam proceed in accordance with the practice and procedure of the Commercial Court: see PARA 186. As to the origin of claims in personam see PARA 84; and as to claims in personam generally see PARA 92 et seq. Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 12 ('other claims') applies to Admiralty claims which, before the coming into force of CPR Pt 61 (ie before 25 March 2002: see the Civil Procedure (Amendment No 5) Rules 2001, SI 2001/4015, r 1), would have been called claims in personam: see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 12.1; and PARA 186 note 1.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iii) Admiralty Claims except Limitation Claims/B. COMMENCEMENT OF CLAIMS/ (C) Commencement of Claims in personam ('Other Claims')/188. Service out of jurisdiction of claim form where claim is in personam.

188. Service out of jurisdiction of claim form where claim is in personam.

The general rules governing service out of the jurisdiction¹ apply equally to Admiralty claims in personam².

Before issuing a claim form or seeking permission to serve out of the jurisdiction, it is necessary to consider whether the jurisdiction of the English courts is affected by the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982³. Where each claim in the claim form is a claim which the Court has by virtue of the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982 power to hear and determine, service of the claim form out of the jurisdiction may be effected without permission provided that the procedural requirements are satisfied⁴ and provided that the claim form is endorsed before issue with a statement that the court has power under the Act to hear and determine the claim against the defendant, and that no proceedings involving the same claim are pending between the parties in Scotland, Northern Ireland or another contracting or Regulation state⁵.

In cases where permission is required⁶, the general rules as to that mode of service apply⁷. Of most obvious relevance is the rule that permission to serve is required where the claim either is in the nature of salvage (and any part of the services took place within the jurisdiction)⁸ or is being made to enforce a claim under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁹. However, other rules of relevance in this context relate to cases where the claim is in respect of a tort committed within the jurisdiction¹⁰, where any person outside the jurisdiction is a necessary or proper party to a claim properly brought against some other person duly served within the jurisdiction¹¹, and where the claim is brought in respect of a contract which was either made within the jurisdiction, or made by or through an agent trading or residing within the jurisdiction, or is by its terms, or by implication, governed by English law¹². Where the applicant fails to show that his claim has a reasonable prospect of success, permission will not be granted for service out of the jurisdiction against another party; where there is a substantial question of fact in issue permission should be given; and where there is an exceptionally difficult and doubtful point of law permission may be given¹³.

NOTE 5--See now The Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide (8th Edn, 2009) App 15 para 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iii) Admiralty Claims except Limitation Claims/C. PROCEDURE FOLLOWING SERVICE/(A) Particulars of Claim, Defence and Reply/189. Particulars of claim etc.

C. PROCEDURE FOLLOWING SERVICE

(A) PARTICULARS OF CLAIM, DEFENCE AND REPLY

189. Particulars of claim etc.

For the purposes of an Admiralty claim in rem¹, a collision claim² and an Admiralty claim in personam³, the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court⁴ governs: (1) the form, content, serving and filing of particulars of claim⁵; (2) the form, content, serving and filing of a defence⁶; (3) the form, content, serving and filing of a reply⁷; and (4) amendments made to a statement of case⁸. A party may be ordered to supply further information to support any claim⁹. A counterclaim must be raised by a proceeding recognised by the rules of court for the purpose¹⁰, and it follows that unless he arrests the claimant's vessel, a defendant cannot set up a counterclaim before he has received the claimant's statement of case¹¹.

However, the court may order (either before or after the issue of a claim form) that the case is to proceed without the filing or service of particulars of claim or defence or of any other statement of case¹².

1 As to the origin of claims in rem see PARA 83; as to the jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court in relation to claims in rem see PARA 92 et seq; and as to commencing such a claim see PARA 158 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'collision claim' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 12. As to the jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court in relation to collision claims see PARA 180; and as to commencing such a claim see PARA 181 et seq.

3 As to the origin of claims in personam see PARA 84; as to claims in personam generally see PARA 92 et seq; and as to commencing such a claim see PARA 186 et seq.

4 As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies generally to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims generally, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

5 See the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras C1-C2. Section C of the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide applies in its entirety to Admiralty claims in personam (see para N3.1) and applies equally to claims in rem and collision claims except for paras C1.10 (effect of statement of case not verified by statement of truth) and C2.1(i) (period for serving particulars of claim) (see paras N3.1, N4.2-4.3, N5.1). As to the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide see PARAS 91 note 3, 157 note 1. As to the filing of documents with the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry see PARA 142.

6 See the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras C1, C3. Any person who files a defence to a claim in personam must identify himself by name in the defence: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 12.6.

If a defendant wishes to raise a limitation of liability defence under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 185 (as to which see PARA 195), this ought to be pleaded as a defence when there is only one claim made or apprehended:

see The Mekhanik Evgrafov and Ivan Derbenev (No 2) [1988] 1 Lloyd's Rep 330. In a salvage claim (as to which see PARA 113 et seq, and generally see PARA 876 et seq) where the defendant admits by his defence the facts alleged in the particulars of claim but challenges the inferences to be drawn from them, the claimant will not be allowed to call evidence as to the facts. The claimant may, however, put in the log of the defendant's vessel in support of the inference that the vessel was in danger: The Woodarra (1921) 38 TLR 160; followed in The Cornish Rose [1936] P 174, [1936] 2 All ER 805. Notice of intention to tender the log should be given to the other party so that he may be prepared with any other admissible document directed to the same issue: The Cornish Rose. See also The Buteshire [1909] P 170 (application for leave to put in the defendants' log in similar circumstances was refused); and The Sandefjord [1953] 2 Lloyd's Rep 789 (logs were admitted and a pilot who claimed for his personal services was allowed to give evidence).

The defence of tender before claim is rarely encountered in Admiralty proceedings but see Davys v Richardson (1888) 21 QBD 202, CA; and The Slaney [1951] 2 Lloyd's Rep 538 at 544-545 per Lord Merriman (tender before action of specified sum due under a towage contract).

7 See the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras C1, C4. See also Form ADM1C (Notes for defendant on replying to an admiralty claim form).

8 See the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para C5. An amendment may introduce a new cause of action, even after a period of limitation has expired, if the court thinks it just to allow the amendment and the new cause of action arises out of the same facts, or substantially the same facts: see CPR 17.4; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 610. For the application of these rules to a salvage case see The Katcher I [1969] P 65, [1968] 3 All ER 344, [1968] 1 Lloyd's Rep 232.

9 Parties have been ordered to supply particulars of allegations as to defects in a vessel (The Rory (1882) 7 PD 117, CA), negligent navigation (The Kanawha (1913) 108 LT 433) and salvage services (The Isis (1883) 8 PD 227).

10 The Gniezno [1968] P 418, [1967] 2 All ER 738, [1967] 1 Lloyd's Rep 441. See also The Saxicava [1924] P 131, CA; Impex Transport Aktieselskabet v AG Thames Holdings Ltd [1982] 1 All ER 897, [1981] 1 WLR 1547, [1981] 2 Lloyd's Rep 566. Furthermore, limitation claims may only be brought by way of counterclaim with permission of the Admiralty Court: see PARA 196.

11 A warrant of arrest may be issued in connection with a counterclaim at any time after the claimant's claim form has been issued: see PARA 161. See also The Gniezno [1968] P 418, [1967] 2 All ER 738, [1967] 1 Lloyd's Rep 441. The defendant may at any time issue a claim of his own and thus commence a separate cross claim instead of a counterclaim. It is advisable to proceed by cross claim rather than to rely on the counterclaim procedure if the expiry of a time limit is imminent when proceedings are begun: see The Fairplay XIV [1939] P 57 at 61, 62 LI L Rep 108 at 110 per Sir Boyd Merriman.

Further proceedings on the counterclaim are generally similar to those in the original claim. In certain circumstances, the person bringing the counterclaim may apply to the court to stay the original claim: see CPR 61.4(9); and PARA 185. A defendant in a claim in rem may set up a counterclaim in personam: The Clutha (1876) 45 LJ 108; The Newbattle (1885) 10 PD 33, CA. The court has refused to strike out a counterclaim as embarrassing, although the claimants were foreigners who could not have been served with a summons, and the counterclaim could, if the claimants had so chosen, have been tried by a jury: The Cheapside [1904] P 339, CA. It is thought that this decision is unaffected by the requirements of the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20(2), 22 as the commencement of the original claim by the claimant is a submission to the jurisdiction which satisfies s 22(5) (see PARA 94). It appears that a counterclaim may be entertained by the court notwithstanding that it is not within the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court, as all jurisdiction vested in the High Court belongs to all the divisions alike: see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 5(5); and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 603. See also PARA 91. But note, however, that under the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982 s 2(2), Sch 1 art 6(3), in relation to a claimant domiciled in a contracting or Regulation state, the counterclaim must arise from the same contract or facts on which the original claim was based, in the court in which the original claim is pending (see PARA 96).

12 See the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para B3.8; and CPR 58.11 (cited in CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1539), although it is stated therein that the facility described in the text is to be used with caution.

(B) JUDGMENT IN DEFAULT

190. Judgment in default in claim in rem.

In an Admiralty claim in rem¹ (other than a collision claim)² the claimant may obtain judgment in default of:

- 323 (1) an acknowledgment of service, but only if the defendant has not filed an acknowledgment of service and the time for doing so³ has expired⁴; and
- 324 (2) a defence, but only if a defence has not been filed and the relevant time limit for doing so has expired⁵.

An application for judgment in default⁶ in an in rem claim must be made by filing an application notice⁷, a certificate proving service of the claim form, and evidence proving the claim to the satisfaction of the court⁸. An application notice seeking judgment in default and, unless the court orders otherwise, all evidence in support, must be served on all persons who have entered cautions against release on the Register⁹.

The Admiralty Court may set aside or vary any judgment entered in pursuance of these provisions¹⁰. If, on the hearing of the application, the court is satisfied that the claim is well founded, it may give judgment for the claim, with or without a reference to the Admiralty Registrar¹¹ or district registrar, and may, at the same time, order the property against which the claim is brought to be appraised and sold¹² and the proceeds paid into court, or may make such order as it deems just in the circumstances¹³.

The decree in favour of the claimant's claim will usually be made without prejudice to other claims against the property, and reserving all questions as to the priority of such claims¹⁴.

(iv) Limitation Claims

A. RIGHT TO LIMIT LIABILITY

194. Jurisdiction of the court in relation to limitation claims.

The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court¹ includes jurisdiction in relation to any action by shipowners or other persons under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 for the limitation of the amount of their liability in connection with a ship² or other property³. Every claim in the exercise of that right, known as a limitation claim⁴, must be started in the Admiralty Court⁵.

Special provisions apply to such claims⁶, relating for example to parties, procedure, and payment into court⁷. The court must distribute among the claimants⁸ the amounts of their established claims, whether or not a limitation fund⁹ has been constituted¹⁰. The court has power, and in some circumstances an obligation, to release a ship or property arrested or attached, where a limitation fund has been constituted¹¹.

1 As to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice generally see PARA 85 et seq. As to the mode of exercise of this jurisdiction see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 21; and PARAS 93-94. The Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court extends also to hovercraft: see PARA 87.

2 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 85 note 7.

3 Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(1)(b), (3)(c). The right of limitation under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 referred to in the text derives from s 185(1), Sch 7, which implements the Convention on Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims (London, 1 to 19 November 1976; Misc 31 (1978); Cmnd 7035) (as to which see PARA 8); see PARAS 195, 1042 et seq.

6 The procedure governing the early stages of a limitation claim differs significantly from the analogous stages of other claims: see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras N3.1, N6.1; and PARA 196. The procedure is contained in CPR 61.11 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10 (as to which see PARA 196 et seq); see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N6.1. As to the procedure in other Admiralty claims see PARA 157 et seq. As to the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide see PARAS 91 note 3, 157 note 1.

7 See CPR 61.11; Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10; and PARA 196 et seq.

8 The claimants may include the Crown: see The Zoe (1886) 11 PD 72.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iv) Limitation Claims/A. RIGHT TO LIMIT LIABILITY/195. Limitation of liability under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995.

195. Limitation of liability under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995.

Shipowners and certain other persons have a statutory right to limit their liability¹. In exercise of this right, the claimant, normally the owner² of a ship³, seeks a decree by which his liability in respect of claims arising out of an occurrence is limited to an amount⁴ based upon the tonnage of the ship⁵. A decree of limitation will be denied if it is proved that the loss resulted from the claimant's personal act or omission, committed with the intent to cause such loss, or recklessly and with knowledge that such loss would probably result⁶.

Liability may be limited in respect of claims, whatever the basis of liability may be, for:

- 328 (1) claims in respect of loss of life or personal injury or loss of or damage to property (including damage to harbour works, basins and waterways and aids to navigation), occurring on board or in direct connection with the operation of the ship or with salvage operations, and consequential loss resulting from this⁷;
- 329 (2) claims in respect of loss resulting from delay in the carriage by sea of cargo, passengers or their luggage⁸;
- 330 (3) claims in respect of other loss resulting from infringement of rights other than contractual rights, occurring in direct connection with the operation of the ship or salvage operations⁹;
- 331 (4) claims in respect of the raising, removal, destruction or the rendering harmless of a ship which is sunk, wrecked, stranded or abandoned, including anything that is or has been on board such ship¹⁰;
- 332 (5) claims in respect of the removal, destruction or the rendering harmless of the cargo of the ship¹¹; and
- 333 (6) claims of a person other than the person liable in respect of measures taken in order to avert or minimise loss for which the person liable may limit his liability, and further loss caused by such measures¹².

These claims are subject to limitation of liability even if brought by way of recourse or for indemnity under a contract. However, claims of the types in heads (4), (5) and (6) above are subject to limitation of liability to the extent that they relate to a contract of remuneration under a contract with the person liable¹³.

The right to limit liability extends also to salvors¹⁴ and to insurers of liability for claims subject to the general limits of liability¹⁵. The liability of a shipowner includes liability in a claim brought against the vessel itself¹⁶.

1 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 185(1), Sch 7 Pt I art 1; and PARA 1043. As to the persons on whom the right mentioned in the text is conferred see also the text and notes 14-16. In relation to oil pollution, the owner of a ship is permitted to limit liability incurred under s 153: see s 157(1); and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 447.

For a discussion of the substantive law in relation to limitation of liability of shipowners and others see PARA 1042 et seq; and as to the special provisions concerning procedure in proceedings to limit liability see PARA 194 et seq. These provisions do not apply to aircraft.

As to the exclusion of claims in respect of occurrences involving nuclear matter see the Nuclear Installations Act 1965 s 14; and FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1504.

- 2 As to the meaning of 'shipowner' for these purposes see PARA 1043 note 2.
- 3 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 1042 note 5.
- 4 As to the calculation of the limit of liability see PARA 1048 et seq.
- 5 As to the procedure for obtaining a decree see PARA 198 et seq. The tonnage is ascertained as directed by statute: see PARA 1048 note 14.
- 6 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 4; and PARA 1046. Once the shipowner has proven that the claims in respect of which limitation is sought fell within Sch 7 Pt I art 2(1) (see the text and notes 7-12), the burden of proving that the shipowner is not entitled, pursuant to art 4, to limit his liability, falls on those opposing the shipowner's right to limit. This burden of proof will ordinarily lead to a costs order against those who unsuccessfully oppose a shipowner's right to limit: see The Capitan San Luis [1994] QB 465, [1994] 1 All ER 1016.
- 7 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 2(1)(a); and PARA 1044.
- 8 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 2(1)(b); and PARA 1044.
- 9 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 2(1)(c); and PARA 1044.
- 10 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 2(1)(d); and PARA 1044. The United Kingdom has made a reservation in respect of the Convention on Limitation of Liability for Maritime Claims (London, 1-19 November 1976; TS 13 Cm 955) art 2(1)(d) (ie the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 2(1)(d)); consequently, liability for the cost of wreck removal remains unlimited in so far as the operation is performed pursuant to statutory powers: see Sch 7 Pt II para 3; and PARA 921.
- 11 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 2(1)(e); and PARA 1044.
- 12 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 2(1)(f); and PARA 1044.
- 13 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 2(2); and PARA 1044.
- 14 Ie as defined in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I: see Sch 7 Pt I art 1 para 1; and PARA 1043 note 3.
- 15 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 1(6); and PARA 1043. As to a similar provision in the context of pollution claims see s 165(3); and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 455.
- 16 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I art 1(5); and PARA 1043. Thus a shipowner who would be liable in a claim in personam may still enjoy the benefit of limitation of liability even if the claim is brought against the ship in rem. The position would appear to be the same even if the shipowner is not liable in personam, but a claim is brought against his ship in rem. As to Admiralty claims in rem see PARA 158 et seq; and as to Admiralty claims made in personam see PARA 186 et seq.

UPDATE

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iv) Limitation Claims/B. LIMITATION PROCEEDINGS/196. Commencement of limitation proceedings.

B. LIMITATION PROCEEDINGS

196. Commencement of limitation proceedings.

Limitation of liability may always be raised by way of defence in an Admiralty claim already commenced¹. A limitation claim for a restricted decree may be brought by counterclaim², but a limitation claim for a general decree may only be brought by counterclaim with the permission of the Admiralty Court³. Normally, however, a limitation claim is one in which a person faced by two or more actual or potential claims arising out of an occurrence, takes the initiative and invokes the court's special statutory powers⁴. A claim is started by the issue of a limitation claim form⁵. The claimant and at least one defendant must be named in the claim form, but all other defendants may be merely described⁶.

The claimant may constitute a limitation fund⁷ by making a payment into court⁸, which, to be established, must be the sterling equivalent of the number of special drawing rights to which he claims to be entitled to limit his liability under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 together with interest on that sum from the date of the occurrence giving rise to his liability to the date of payment into court⁹. On making any such payment into court, the claimant must give notice of it in writing to every named defendant, specifying the date of the payment in, the amount paid in, the amount of interest included, the rate of such interest, and the period to which it relates¹⁰. Money paid into court in this way¹¹ must not be paid out except under an order of the court¹².

1 This is the effect of Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.18, which provides that nothing in CPR 61.11 prevents limitation being relied on by way of defence. Any decision in favour of the defendant in such a case is binding only upon the claimant. Cf the procedure for making a limitation decree binding upon the whole world: see PARA 199. CPR 61.11 applies to limitation claims: CPR 61.11(1) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). As to the meaning of 'limitation claim' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 13. The procedure governing the early stages of a limitation claim, contained in CPR 61.11 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.1, differs significantly from the procedure relating to other claims: see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N6.1. As to the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide see PARAS 91 note 3, 157 note 1. As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91. As to the jurisdiction of the court in relation to limitation claims see PARAS 194-195. As to the right to obtain release of an arrested ship in certain cases where limitation applies and security has been given see PARA 176.

2 CPR 61.11(22)(a) (as added: see note 1). As to restricted limitation decrees see CPR 61.11(10); and PARA 198. See also Yuille v B & B Fisheries Ltd, The Radiant [1958] 2 Lloyd's Rep 596 (counterclaim for limitation).

3 CPR 61.11(22)(b) (as added: see note 1). As to general limitation decrees see CPR 61.11(11); and PARA 198.

4 Ie under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 185, Sch 7 (prospectively amended): see PARA 195. A limitation claim can be commenced without liability first being admitted or established: see Bouygues Offshore SA v Caspian Shipping Co (No 1, 3, 4 and 5) [1998] 2 Lloyd's Rep 461, CA. As to the possibility of commencing a limitation claim after an award of damages has been made see The Penelope II [1979] 2 Lloyd's Rep 42 (on appeal [1980] 2 Lloyd's Rep 17, CA); The Mekhanik Evgrafov and Ivan Derbenev (No 2) [1988] 1 Lloyd's Rep 330; although quere whether this option would still be available under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995: see The Mekhanik Evgrafov and Ivan Derbenev at 335 per Sheen J.

5 CPR 61.11(2) (as added: see note 1). The limitation claim form must be as set out in the practice direction (ie Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61: see note 1): see CPR 61.11(2) (as so added). Accordingly, the claim form in a limitation claim must be in Form ADM15 (Claim Form (Admiralty limitation claim)): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.1(1). The limitation claim form must be accompanied by a declaration setting out the facts upon which the claimant relies and stating the names and addresses (if known) of all persons who, to the knowledge of the claimant, have claims against him in respect of the occurrence to which the claim relates (other than named defendants), and the declaration must be verified by a statement of truth: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.1(2).

6 CPR 61.11(3) (as added: see note 1).

7 A limitation fund may be established before or after a limitation claim has been started: CPR 61.11(19) (as added: see note 1). However, if a limitation claim is not commenced within 75 days after the date the fund was established, the fund will lapse and all money in court (including any interest accrued) will be repaid to the person who made the payment into court: CPR 61.11(20) (as so added). The fact that a limitation fund has lapsed in this way under CPR 61.11(20) does not prevent the establishment of a new fund: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.9. Neither the constitution of a limitation fund nor the ability to constitute a fund is a pre-condition to a court having jurisdiction: see Seismic Shipping Inc v Total E & P UK plc, The Western Regent [2005] EWCA Civ 985 at [20]-[23], [2005] 2 All ER (Comm) 515 at [20]-[23], [2005] 2 Lloyd's Rep 359 at [20]-[23] per Clarke LJ.

8 CPR 61.11(18) (as added: see note 1). As to the amount to which the claimant is allowed to limit his liability see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7 Pt I arts 6-8; and PARA 1048 et seq.

9 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.10. Where the claimant does not know the sterling equivalent of the number of special drawing rights referred to in the text on the date of payment into court, he may calculate the figure on the basis of the latest available published sterling equivalent of a special drawing right as fixed by the International Monetary Fund: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.11(1). In the event of the sterling equivalent of a special drawing right on the date of payment into court being different from that used for calculating the amount of that payment into court, the claimant may make up any deficiency by making a further payment into court which, if made within 14 days after the payment into court, will be treated, except for the purpose of the rules relating to the accrual of interest on money paid into court, as if made on the date of that payment into court (Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.11(2)(a)); or he may apply to the court for payment out of any excess amount (together with any interest accrued) paid into court (Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.11(2)(b)). Such an application under para 10.11(2)(b) may be made without notice to any party; and must be supported by evidence proving, to the satisfaction of the court, the sterling equivalent of the appropriate number of special drawing rights on the date of payment into court: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.12.

10 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.13(1). The claimant must also give notice in writing to every named defendant of any excess amount (and interest) paid out to him under para 10.11(2)(b) (see note 9): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.13(2).

11 Ie under CPR 61.11(18) (see the text and notes 7-10): see CPR 61.11(21) (as added: see note 1).

12 CPR 61.11(21) (as added: see note 1).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iv) Limitation Claims/B. LIMITATION PROCEEDINGS/197. Service of the limitation claim form and acknowledgment.

197. Service of the limitation claim form and acknowledgment.

A limitation claim form¹ must be served on all named defendants, and any other defendant who requests service upon him, and it may be served on any other defendant². Every defendant upon whom a limitation claim form is served must either:

- 334 (1) within 28 days of service, file a defence to the limitation claim³, or file a notice that he admits the claimant's right to limit liability⁴; or
- 335 (2) if he wishes to dispute the court's jurisdiction, or wishes to argue that the court should not exercise its jurisdiction, file within 14 days of service or (if the limitation claim form is served out of the jurisdiction) within the time specified⁵ file an acknowledgment of service⁶.

However, generally, an acknowledgment of service is not required⁷.

1 A limitation claim is started by the issue of a limitation claim form: see PARA 196. CPR 61.11 applies to limitation claims: CPR 61.11(1) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). As to the meaning of 'limitation claim' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 13. The procedure governing the early stages of a limitation claim, contained in CPR 61.11 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.1, differs significantly from the procedure relating to other claims: see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N6.1. As to the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide see PARAS 91 note 3, 157 note 1. As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91. As to the jurisdiction of the court in relation to limitation claims see PARAS 194-195. As to the right to obtain release of an arrested ship in certain cases where limitation applies and security has been given see PARA 176.

2 CPR 61.11(4) (as added: see note 1). See also Form ADM15B (Notes for defendant (Admiralty limitation claim)).

The claim form may not be served out of the jurisdiction unless the case falls within the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 22(2)(a)-(c) (claims in personam) (see PARA 94), or unless the defendant has submitted or agreed to submit to the jurisdiction of the court, or unless the Admiralty Court has jurisdiction over the claim under any applicable Convention: CPR 61.11(5) (as so added). As to 'any applicable Convention' that may affect jurisdiction see the Civil Jurisdiction and Judgments Act 1982; and PARA 95 et seq. The court must give permission for service out of the jurisdiction in accordance with CPR Pt 6 Section III (CPR 6.17-6.31) (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARAS 156, 168 et seq); see CPR 61.11(5) (as so added). Service of a limitation claim form out of the jurisdiction is permitted in the circumstances identified in CPR 61.11(5) only and the procedure set out in the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide App 15 (Service out of the jurisdiction: related practice) should be adapted accordingly: Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N6.2. As to the possible scope of CPR 61.11(5) see ICL Shipping Ltd v Chin Tai Steel Enterprise Co Ltd, The ICL Vikraman [2003] EWHC 2320 (Comm) at [58]-[65], [2004] 1 All ER (Comm) 246 at [58]-[65], [2004] 1 Lloyd's Rep 21 at [58]-[65].

3 A defence to a limitation claim must be in Form ADM16A (Defence to Admiralty limitation claim): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.2. As to the filing of documents with the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry see PARA 142.

4 CPR 61.11(7)(a) (as added: see note 1). A notice admitting the claimant's right to limit liability in a limitation claim must be in Form ADM16 (Notice of admission of right of claimant to limit liability): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.3.

5 le the time specified in CPR 6.22 (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 185): see CPR 61.11(7)(b) (as added: see note 1).

6 CPR 61.11(7)(b) (as added: see note 1). The acknowledgment of service must be as set out in the practice direction (ie Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61: see note 1): see CPR 61.11(7)(b) (as so added). Accordingly, the acknowledgment of service in a limitation claim must be in Form ADM16B (Acknowledgment of Service (Admiralty limitation claim)): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.4. If a defendant files an acknowledgment of service under CPR 61.11(7)(b), he is treated as having accepted that the court has jurisdiction to hear the claim unless he applies under CPR Pt 11 (procedure for disputing the court's jurisdiction) (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 206) within 14 days after filing the acknowledgment of service: CPR 61.11(8) (as so added).

7 CPR 61.11(6) (as added: see note 1).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/2. ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iv) Limitation Claims/B. LIMITATION PROCEEDINGS/198. Obtaining a restricted or general limitation decree.

198. Obtaining a restricted or general limitation decree.

Where, in a limitation claim¹, one or more named defendants admits the right to limit², the claimant may apply for a restricted limitation decree³. The court will then issue a restricted limitation decree⁴ limiting liability only against such named defendants who have admitted the claimant's right to limit liability⁵. A restricted limitation decree may be obtained against any named defendant who fails to file a defence within the time specified for doing so and need not be advertised, although a copy must be served on the defendants to whom it applies⁶.

Where all the defendants upon whom the claim form has been served admit the claimant's right to limit liability, the claimant may apply to the Admiralty Registrar for a general limitation decree⁷ and the court will issue a limitation decree⁸.

In circumstances where one or more of the defendants upon whom the claim form has been served do not admit the claimant's right to limit, the claimant also may apply for a general limitation decree⁹. Where, in this way, the right to limit is not admitted and the claimant seeks a general limitation decree¹⁰, the claimant must, within seven days of the date of the filing of the defence of the named defendant last served or the expiry of the time for doing so, apply for an appointment before the Admiralty Registrar for a case management conference¹¹.

1 As to the meaning of 'limitation claim' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 13. CPR 61.11 applies to limitation claims: CPR 61.11(1) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91. As to the jurisdiction of the court in relation to limitation claims see PARAS 194-195. As to the right to obtain release of an arrested ship in certain cases where limitation applies and security has been given see PARA 176.

2 This is one of the permitted responses to service of a limitation claim form: see PARA 197.

3 CPR 61.11(9)(a) (as added: see note 1). The application for a restricted limitation decree must be in the form set out in the practice direction (ie Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61: see note 1): see CPR 61.11(9)(a) (as so added). Accordingly, an application for a restricted limitation decree must be in Form ADM17 (Application for restricted limitation decree): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.5.

4 It is in the form set out in the practice direction (ie Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61: see note 1): see CPR 61.11(9)(b) (as added: see note 1). Accordingly, the decree issued by the court on an application for a restricted limitation decree must be in Form ADM18 (Restricted limitation decree): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.5.

5 CPR 61.11(9)(b) (as added: see note 1).

6 CPR 61.11(10) (as added: see note 1).

7 It is in the form set out in the practice direction (ie Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61: see note 1): see CPR 61.11(11) (as added: see note 1). Accordingly, an application for a general limitation decree must be in Form ADM17A (Application for general limitation decree): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.6.

8 CPR 61.11(11) (as added: see note 1). As to the form of a general limitation decree see Form ADM19 (General limitation decree).

9 CPR 61.11(12) (as added: see note 1). The application mentioned in the text must be in the form set out in the practice direction (ie Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61: see note 1): see CPR 61.11(12) (as so added). Accordingly, an application for a general limitation decree must be in Form ADM17A (Application for general limitation decree): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.6. On an application under CPR 61.11(12), the Admiralty Registrar may either grant a general limitation decree, or (if he does not grant a decree) order service of a defence, order disclosure by the claimant, or make such other case management directions as may be appropriate: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.8. As to the Admiralty Registrar see PARA 140.

10 Ie in Form ADM17A (Application for general limitation decree): see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.7.

11 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.7.

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iv) Limitation Claims/B. LIMITATION PROCEEDINGS/199. Effect of granting limitation decree.

199. Effect of granting limitation decree.

When a limitation decree is granted¹, the Admiralty Court²:

- 336 (1) may order that any proceedings relating to any claim arising out of the occurrence be stayed³;
- 337 (2) may order the claimant to establish a limitation fund⁴, if one has not been established, or make such other arrangements for payment of claims against which liability is limited⁵;
- 338 (3) may, if the decree is a restricted limitation decree, distribute the limitation fund⁶; and
- 339 (4) must, if the decree is a general limitation decree, give directions as to the advertisement of the decree and set a time within which notice of claims against the fund must be filed or an application made to set aside the decree⁷.

When the court grants a general limitation decree, the claimant must advertise it in such manner and within such time as the court directs, and file both a declaration that the decree has been advertised as so directed, and copies of the advertisements⁸.

If no decree limiting liability is made by the Admiralty Registrar, statements of case are delivered in limitation claims as in other Admiralty claims in personam⁹.

2 As to the meaning of 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91. As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). The court always has a discretion to extend the time fixed by the limitation decree: The Kronprinz Olav [1921] P 52, CA. Usually, the fact that limitation proceedings are pending is a good ground for the exercise of the court's discretion to extend the time: see The Disperser [1920] P 228.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/(iv) Limitation Claims/B. LIMITATION PROCEEDINGS/201. Distribution of limitation fund.

201. Distribution of limitation fund.

No later than the time set in the limitation decree for filing claims¹, each of the defendants who wishes to assert a claim must file and serve his statement of case on both the limiting party and all other defendants (except where the court orders otherwise)². No later than seven days after the time for filing claims or declarations, the Admiralty Registrar³ will fix a date for a case management conference at which directions will be given for the further conduct of the proceedings⁴.

Unless any proceedings are commenced in due time to set aside the decree⁵, the limitation fund⁶ will be distributed among the parties who have filed valid claims in proportion to their established claims against the fund⁷ at a reference, usually directed by the decree, to the Admiralty Registrar⁸.

1 As to obtaining a restricted or general limitation decree see PARA 198; and as to the time fixed in the decree see PARA 199. As to the jurisdiction of the court in relation to limitation claims see PARAS 194-195.

2 CPR 61.11(15) (CPR Pt 61 added by SI 2001/4015). A claim against the fund must be in Form ADM20 (Defendant's claim in a limitation action): Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.14. A defendant's statement of case filed and served in accordance with CPR 61.11(15) must contain particulars of the defendant's claim: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.15. Any defendant who is unable to file and serve a statement of case in accordance with CPR 61.11(15) and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.15 must file a declaration, verified by a statement of truth, in Form ADM21 (Declaration as to inability of a defendant to file and serve statement of case under a decree of limitation) stating the reason for his inability: Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.16. As to the filing of documents with the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry see PARA 142.

3 As to the Admiralty Registrar see PARA 140.

4 Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.17. These directions may be given in respect of each individual claim and as between defendants eg if any defendant disputes the merits or amount of another defendant's claim. Rival defendants are opposite parties in the litigation, and as such may administer requests for further information and obtain disclosure from each other: The Nedenes (1924) 41 TLR 243.

5 As to proceedings to set aside a general limitation decree see PARA 200.

6 As to the establishment and constitution of a limitation fund see PARA 196.

7 No lien or other right in respect of any ship or property affects the proportions in which the fund is divided: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 185, Sch 7 Pt II para 9; and PARA 1054. This is intended to override the decision in The Countess [1923] AC 345, HL, in which the House of Lords held that if one claimant had a possessory lien over the ship, effect had to be given to the superior right even if the effect was to deprive other claimants of their right of recovery against the limitation fund. Interest on sums due is included in the damages for the purposes of limitation: see The Joannis Vatis (No 2) [1922] P 213.

8 See PARAS 143, 199. The reference is obligatory except in cases where there is only one claimant against the fund or all claimants are represented by the same solicitor. In these cases, an application notice for payment out is sufficient: see PARA 203. As to references to the Registrar see PARA 143.

202. Repayment to claimant.

Where there are loss of life claims, and the statutory amount¹ has all been paid into court, but some of the loss of life claimants fail to come in and enter their claims until after the time appointed for claims to be filed, even though the period of two years has not elapsed within which, under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995², proceedings in respect of such a claim could be commenced, the court may order that the balance of the limitation fund³ which remains in court after all the loss of life claimants who have entered claims in due time have been paid, is to be paid back to the claimants. The claimants who have not entered their claims in time being thus excluded from any share in the limited amount⁴.

1 As to the calculation of the limit of liability see PARAS 195, 1048 et seq.

2 Ie under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 185, Sch 7: see PARA 196.

3 As to the establishment and constitution of a limitation fund see PARA 196.

4 See The Alma [1903] P 55. At the time of that decision, the Maritime Conventions Act 1911 (the forerunner to the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 7) had not been passed, but the court made an order for payment of the balance of the limitation fund to the claimants, although the period of one year prescribed by the Fatal Accidents Act 1846 (now repealed) had not elapsed. It is presumed that the same principles would apply now that the period has been extended by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995. The same principles apparently apply in respect of claims for damage to property, if the general fund exceeds the total of such claims made in time: see The Alma at 60 per Jeune P.

(v) Trial of Admiralty Claims and Post-trial Proceedings

A. OFFERS TO SETTLE

203. Offers to settle and their effect.

The practice as to making an offer to settle proceedings, and a corresponding payment into court (where required) in an Admiralty claim is, in general, similar to the practice applying to proceedings for debt or damages in other claims¹.

However, where a party to a claim to establish liability for a collision claim² (other than a claim for loss of life or personal injury)³:

- 340 (1) makes an offer to settle⁴ not less than 21 days before the start of the trial⁵;
- 341 (2) that offer is not accepted⁶; and
- 342 (3) the maker of the offer obtains at trial an apportionment equal to or more favourable than his offer⁷, the parties will, unless the court considers it unjust, be entitled to the following costs⁸:

- 343 (a) the maker of the offer will be entitled to all his costs from 21 days after the offer was made⁹, and his costs before then in the percentage to which he would have been entitled had the offer been accepted¹⁰; and
- 344 (b) all other parties to whom the offer was made will be entitled to their costs up to 21 days after the offer was made in the percentage to which they would have been entitled had the offer been accepted¹¹; but will not be entitled to their costs thereafter¹².

1 As to offers to settle and payments into court generally see CPR Pt 36; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 729 et seq. See also The Hudson Bay [1957] 2 Lloyd's Rep 506 (open offer to refer only to the proportionate liability which the offeror was prepared to bear by way of settlement).

56 (1) an offer to settle liability at stated percentages (CPR 61.4(12)(a) (as so added));

- 57 (2) an offer to pay costs in accordance with the same percentages (CPR 61.4(12)(b) (as so added));
 - 58 (3) a term that the offer remain open for 21 days after the date it is made (CPR 61.4(12)(c) (as so added)); and
 - 59 (4) a term that, unless the court orders otherwise, on expiry of that period the offer remains open on the same terms except that the offeree should pay all the costs from that date until acceptance (CPR 61.4(12)(d) (as so added)).
- 5 CPR 61.4(10)(a) (as added: see note 3).

B. GENERAL PROCEDURE RELATING TO TRIAL

204. General procedure in the Admiralty Court relating to trial.

For the purposes of an Admiralty claim in rem¹, a collision claim², an Admiralty claim in personam³ and a limitation claim⁴, the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court⁵ governs:

- 345 (1) case management (with certain modifications made in relation to each type of claim)⁶;
- 346 (2) disclosure⁷;
- 347 (3) applications⁸;
- 348 (4) the use of alternative dispute resolution ('ADR')⁹;
- 349 (5) evidence for trial¹⁰;
- 350 (6) conduct of the trial itself¹¹;
- 351 (7) after trial proceedings¹²;
- 352 (8) multi-party disputes¹³;
- 353 (9) litigants in person¹⁴;
- 354 (10) arbitration¹⁵.

The awarding of costs in Admiralty proceedings is in the unfettered discretion of the Admiralty Court or the Admiralty Registrar, as the case may be¹⁶.

1 As to the origin of claims in rem see PARA 83; as to the jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court in relation to claims in rem see PARA 92 et seq; and as to commencing such a claim see PARA 158 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'collision claim' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 12. As to the jurisdiction of the Admiralty Court in relation to collision claims see PARA 180; and as to commencing such a claim see PARA 181 et seq.

3 As to the origin of claims in personam see PARA 84; as to claims in personam generally see PARA 92 et seq; and as to commencing such a claim see PARA 186 et seq.

4 As to limitation claims see PARA 194 et seq.

5 As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies generally to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims generally, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. As to the meanings of 'Admiralty claim' and 'Admiralty Court' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 3. As to the assignment of business to the Admiralty Court see CPR 61.2(1), (2); and PARA 91.

Pre-trial matters in the Admiralty and Commercial Courts are usually dealt with by the judges of those courts: see Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58 para 1.2; and the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para A1.5. However, one significant area of difference between practice in the Commercial Court and practice in the Admiralty Court is that many interlocutory applications are heard by the Admiralty Registrar who has all the powers of the Admiralty judge save as provided otherwise: see CPR 61.1(4); the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N1.3; and PARA 140. As to the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide see PARAS 91 note 3, 157 note 1. As to the Admiralty Registrar see PARA 140.

6 As to the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court in this regard see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras D1-D19, App 6; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1539. However, the two judge team system referred to in the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para D.4 does not apply to Admiralty claims: see para N8.2. All other case management provisions of the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide apply to Admiralty claims save that:

- 60 (1) in Admiralty claims, the case management provisions are supplemented by the provisions of Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 2 (as to which see PARA 158) which make provision for the early classification and streaming of cases (see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N8.1(i));
- 61 (2) in a collision case, the claimant should apply for a case management conference within seven days after the last collision statement of case is filed (see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N8.1(ii));
- 62 (3) in a limitation claim, Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.7 applies (as to which see PARA 198) so that where the right to limit is not admitted and the claimant seeks a general limitation decree, the claimant must, within seven days after the date of the filing of the defence of the defendant last served or the expiry of the time for doing so, apply to the Admiralty Registrar for a case management conference (see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N8.1(iii));
- 63 (4) in a collision claim or a limitation claim, a mandatory case management conference will normally take place on the first available date five weeks after the date when the claimant is required to take steps to fix a date for the case management conference (see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N8.1(iv));
- 64 (5) in a limitation claim, case management directions are initially given by the Registrar (see Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 para 10.8 (cited in PARA 198); and the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N8.1(v));
- 65 (6) in the Admiralty Court, the Case Management Information Sheet should be used in the form given in the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide App 6 but with the inclusion of additional questions that are cited in para N8.1(vi) (see para N8.1(vi)).

As to the filing of documents with the Admiralty and Commercial Court Registry see PARA 142.

It is usual to consolidate pending claims of salvage against the same property (see The Strathgarry [1895] P 264); and the conduct of consolidated salvage claims is usually given to the principal salvor. See also the observations of Hill J in The Creteforest [1920] P 111 at 116-117; and the decision as to costs in The Macgregor Laird [1953] 2 Lloyd's Rep 259 at 268 per Willmer J. Permission for separate representation may be given, but it does not necessarily follow that the costs of separate representation will be allowed: The Longford (1881) 6 PD 60 at 67. Co-claimants in salvage cases are frequently allowed separate representation and separate costs: see eg The Bosworth (No 2) [1960] 1 All ER 729, [1961] 1 WLR 319, [1960] 1 Lloyd's Rep 173, CA. Consolidation may be ordered by the court in its discretion without the consent and notwithstanding the objection of the parties (see The Strathgarry), and if it becomes expedient after judgment has been delivered the court will make an order that the claims should proceed separately thereafter as originally instituted (see The Helen R Cooper (1871) LR 3 A & E 339).

As to the appropriate approach in the Commercial Court and the Admiralty Court to the jurisdiction to strike out, either under CPR 3.4(2) (as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 520) or under the inherent jurisdiction of the court, a damage to cargo and short delivery claim which has proceeded to trial and is therefore likely to be uneconomic see Amgulf Polymers & Chemicals Ltd v The Owners and/or Demise Charterers of MV Athinoula [2001] 2 All ER (Comm) 821.

7 As to the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court in this regard see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras E1-E5, Apps 8-10; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1540. In Admiralty cases, the court may decline to order further information if it will affect the conduct of the proceedings. For instance, in claims of damage, the collision statements of case (as to which see PARA 182 et seq) afford the information which would otherwise be furnished by further information: see The Biola (1876) 34 LT 185; The Isle of Cyprus (1890) 15 PD 134; The Bernard [1905] WN 73. Where, however, one ship is lost with all, or most of, her crew, or one or other of the parties is for any reason unable to offer satisfactory evidence, further information may be allowed: see The Radnorshire (1880) 5 PD 172.

Where the authenticity of any document disclosed to a party is not admitted, that party must serve notice that the document must be proved at trial in accordance with CPR 32.19 (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 778), which provides that such notice must be served by the latest date for serving witness statements or within seven days of disclosure of the document (whichever is later): see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N9.2(a). Where, apart from the authenticity of the document itself, the date upon which a document or an entry in it is stated to have been made or the person by whom the document states that it or any entry in it was made or any other feature of the document is to be challenged at the trial on grounds which may require a witness to be called at the trial to support the contents of the document, such challenge must be raised in good time in advance of the trial to enable such witness or witnesses to be called, and the grounds of challenge must be explicitly identified in the skeleton argument or outline submissions in advance of the trial: see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N9.2(b). Where, due to the late disclosure of a document it or its contents or character cannot practicably be challenged within the time limits prescribed in the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N9.2(a) or N9.2(b), the challenge may only be raised with the permission of the court and having regard to the Overriding Objective (ie CPR 1.1, as to which see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 33): see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N9.2(c). As to summonses used merely to obtain documents and prove their authenticity see Khanna v Lovell White Durrant[1994] 4 All ER 267, [1995] 1 WLR 121.

8 As to the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court in this regard see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras F1-F16, App 5; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1541.

9 As to the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court in this regard see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras G1-G2, App 7; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARAS 1536, 1541.

10 As to the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court in this regard see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras H1-H4, App 11; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1542.

In collision claims, the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para H1.5 and App 8 (Standard pre-trial Timetable) (see note 7) are subject to the proviso that experience has shown that it is usually desirable for the main elements of a witness's evidence in chief to be adduced orally: see para N9.1. As to evidence in cases where a collision statement of case must be filed (as to which see PARA 182 et seq) see further Fisher v CHT Ltd [1965] 2 All ER 601, [1965] 1 WLR 1093 (on appeal on another point [1966] 2 QB 475, [1966] 1 All ER 88, CA). As to the weight to be attached generally to evidence in statements where the facts are contested and there is also oral evidence see The Scarcity, The Daniel M [1967] 2 Lloyd's Rep 498 at 508 per Brandon J. As to the role of assessors in collision claims and other cases involving issues of navigation and seamanship see PARA 205.

Whether it is more reasonable to examine a witness beforehand or to detain him ashore pending the trial depends on the circumstances of each case, but the costs judge has a discretion to disallow the cost of detaining a witness ashore, if he might conveniently have been examined beforehand: see The Ibis VI [1921] P 255, CA. The question whether evidence should be permitted to be taken abroad is to be decided by the court in its discretion; for the principles which are applied see Berdan v Greenwood (1880) 20 ChD 764n, CA. The court is apt to look most favourably on the application of a defendant resident abroad, who has not chosen an English forum (see Ross v Woodford[1894] 1 Ch 38; New v Burns (1894) 64 LQB 104, CA) and least favourably upon the application of a claimant for evidence to be taken abroad (Ross v Woodford; Coch v Allcock(1888) 21 QBD 178, CA; Emanuel v Soltykoff (1892) 8 TLR 331, CA).

The court has a wide discretion to admit statements notwithstanding failure to comply with the rules: see The Ferdinand Retzlaff[1972] 2 Lloyd's Rep 120 at 126.

11 As to the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court in this regard see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras J1-J13, Apps 12-14; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1542. See also the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras N10.1, N10.2; and PARA 143.

In collision claims, the skeleton argument of each party must be accompanied by a plot or plots of that party's case or alternative cases as to the navigation of vessels during and leading to the collision; and all plots must contain a sufficient indication of the assumptions used in the preparation of the plot: see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide para N9.3.

12 As to the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court in this regard see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras K1-K4. As to offers to settle and their effect on costs see PARA 203. As to appraisal and sale of a ship by the court (either before or after judgment) see PARA 178. As to the scope for a rehearing see PARA 206.

13 As to the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court in this regard see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras L1-L2; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1542.

14 As to the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court in this regard see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras M1-M3; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1542.

15 As to the general practice and procedure of the Commercial Court in this regard see the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide paras O1-O20; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1544.

16 See the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 51; CPR Pt 44; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1732 et seq. See also the Admiralty and Commercial Courts Guide App 16 (Security for Costs). As to the extent of the discretion regarding the awarding of costs see Aiden Shipping Co Ltd v Interbulk Ltd [1986] AC 965, [1986] 2 All ER 409, HL. When exercising its discretion in favour of the party incurring the costs, the court must be satisfied that the costs have been incurred for the preservation or enhancement of the fund as a whole rather than solely for one party's benefit: Festive Holidays Ltd v The Demise Charterers of the ship 'Ocean Glory 1' [2002] 1 Lloyd's Rep 679, [2001] All ER (D) 344 (Nov). See also The Young Sid [1929] P 190, CA (costs of partially successful appeal); The Capitan San Luis [1994] QB 465, [1994] 1 All ER 1016 (limitation of liability proceedings).

Where the defendant's vessel was pronounced alone to blame in an action of damage, the defendant was usually ordered to pay all the costs of the proceedings. Similarly, where there was a counterclaim in an action of damage and the vessel was found to be alone to blame, the claimant generally bore the whole costs. In actions where neither party admitted negligence and both the vessels were found to blame in equal degrees, the court usually made no order as to costs, leaving each party to bear his own. See, however, The Lucile Bloomfield [1966] 3 All ER 294n, [1966] 1 WLR 1525 (costs not further considered on appeal [1967] 2 All ER 633n, [1967] 1 WLR 697n, CA), where on a finding of equal blame the defendants were ordered to pay half the claimant's costs because no counterclaim had been pursued by the defendants in the jurisdiction. Cf The Ek [1966] 1 Lloyd's Rep 440.

When, under the Maritime Conventions Act 1911 (repealed) (see now the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 185, Sch 7; and PARA 195 et seq), blame was apportioned in unequal degrees, the court took into account the circumstances of each particular case in exercising its discretion as to costs and had regard to the fact that one party had succeeded more than the other on the question of liability: see The Modica [1926] P 72 at 79-80 per Hill J; The Osprey [1967] 1 Lloyd's Rep 76 at 94 per Brandon J; followed in The Bonifaz [1967] 1 Lloyd's Rep 321. There is no rule that where the blame is unequally divided the costs must be divided in the same proportion: The Modica; The Salabangka [1943] P 13. If a special order as to costs is made, it has generally taken the form of ordering one party to pay a certain proportion of the other party's costs: The Robert Koeppen [1926] P 81n (claimants 25% to blame, defendants 75%; defendants ordered to pay 50% of claimants' costs); The Osprey (claimants to blame for 60%, defendants 40%; claimants ordered to pay 20% of defendants' costs). In making its award as to costs, the court may also take into account factors such as alterations of log-books, failure properly to complete the collision statement of case, or untruthfulness of witnesses: The Lord Northcliffe (1926) 24 Ll L Rep 187; The Levante (1927) 28 Ll L Rep 42; The El Uruguayo (1928) 30 Ll L Rep 118; The Samurai (1945) 78 Ll L Rep 546; The Pulkovo and The Oden [1989] 1 Lloyd's Rep 280. As to the effect of an offer by letter before trial to settle on a percentage of blame basis see The Hudson Bay [1957] 2 Lloyd's Rep 506; The British Patrol [1968] 1 Lloyd's Rep 117, CA. See also The Toni [1974] 1 Lloyd's Rep 489, CA; The Pulkovo and the Oden.

Where there had been no negligence on the part of either party and both the claim and counterclaim have been dismissed, it being a mere accident that one party was claimant and the other defendant, usually no order was made as to costs: see The Dolabella (1944) 77 Ll L Rep 292; The Hoyanger (1946) 79 Ll L Rep 284. If, however, there would have been no litigation had the claimants not issued proceedings, judgment was given for the defendants on the claim with costs, and for the claimants on the counterclaim with costs: The Cardiff Hall [1918] P 56. Where no counterclaim was made the action was usually dismissed with costs: The Llanover (1944) 77 Ll L Rep 198; The Lufesand [1955] 2 Lloyd's Rep 203.

In cases of damage following compulsory pilotage, if the defendants raise a defence both on the merits and on the ground of compulsory pilotage without setting up a counterclaim, and the suit was dismissed by reason of the defence of compulsory pilotage having succeeded, usually no costs were given on either side: see The Daioz (1877) 3 Asp MLC 477, CA; The Winestead [1895] P 170 at 175 per Bruce J; The Mercedes de Larrinaga [1904] P 215 at 235 per Gorell Barnes J; The Ophelia [1914] P 46, CA; and see PARA 222. Where the sole issue to be decided was compulsory pilotage, the party succeeding on that issue was usually held entitled to the costs of the action: see The Oakfield (1886) 11 PD 34 at 37; The Ophelia. The defence of compulsory pilotage was abolished by the Pilotage Act 1913 s 15 (repealed) (see now the Pilotage Act 1987 s 16; and PARA 579), and cannot now arise except in rare instances. Although it is probable that effect would be given to s 16 in the case of a collision occurring on the high seas, compulsory pilotage is still a good defence in the case of a collision occurring in the territorial waters of a country by whose laws that defence has not been abolished: see The Arum [1921] P 12; The Waziristan [1953] 2 All ER 1213, [1953] 1 WLR 1446, [1953] 2 Lloyd's Rep 361; and see PARA 570 et seq.

Where a claimant sued two defendants and succeeded against only one, and the defendants each threw the blame on the other the court ordered the unsuccessful defendant to pay the costs incurred by the claimant and by the successful defendant to each of them direct: see The Esrom and The Hopper Wills No 66 [1914] WN 81. See also The River Lagan (1888) 57 LJP 28; The Mystery [1902] P 115, DC; The Eland and The Monte Urquiola [1969] 2 Lloyd's Rep 328. For an example of an order of costs in an action where blame was apportioned among three vessels see The Miraflores and The Abadesa [1965] 2 Lloyd's Rep 254 (revsd on the question of liability, [1966] P 18, [1966] 1 All ER 553, [1966] 1 Lloyd's Rep 97, CA; affd [1967] 1 AC 826, [1967] 1 All ER 672, [1967] 1 Lloyd's Rep 191, HL). See also The Quickstep (1890) 15 PD 196, DC, where the claimants and one of the defendants were held to blame and the successful defendant obtained an order for costs against the claimants. Where the respective defendants did not mutually blame each other, but the claimant, being in reasonable doubt as to which to sue, sued both and succeeded against only one, the court ordered the claimant to pay the costs of the successful defendant, at the same time giving him permission to add such costs to his costs against the unsuccessful defendant: see The Svein Jarl (1923) 129 LT 255; The Thames III and The KBS (1928) 166 LT Jo 52. Alternatively, the court has made a direct order. The order made is a matter of the judge's discretion: see Hong v A and R Brown Ltd [1948] 1 KB 515, [1948] 1 All ER 185, CA. As to the position in relation to co-defendants see generally CPR Pt 20; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 618 et seq. In such a case the proper course is to join both defendants on one claim form, and the claimant is not allowed the extra costs incurred by bringing separate claims against them: see The Svein Jarl. See also The WH Randall [1928] P 41, CA. Where, however, the unsuccessful defendant did nothing to induce the claimant to sue the successful defendant, and there was nothing in the circumstances of the case to prompt the claimant to sue the successful defendant, the claimant was ordered to pay the latter's costs without any right to receive them from the unsuccessful defendant: see The Theodoros, The Blidensol [1923] P 26 at 30 per Hill J. The same considerations applied where counterclaims were brought against more than one party: see The Svein Jarl.

Where an award of salvage was made in an action of salvage (see PARA 113 et seq) in which no payment into court had been made, the usual practice where the salvors had not been guilty of any misconduct was for the claimants to have all the costs of the action: see The Dwina [1892] P 58 at 64; The Rialto [1891] P 175 at 179 per Butt J. See also Hatton v Akt Durban Hausen 1919 SC 154, where the costs of arresting the defendants' vessel were allowed, even though the subsequent proceedings were brought in personam. For an example of a case involving co-claimants, some of whom were successful see The Southwark [1962] 2 Lloyd's Rep 62. As to the effect of payments into court and of open offers see PARA 203. Even where no salvage was awarded, the practice of the old Court of Admiralty was to award no costs, or only a nominal sum, to the defendants, if it considered that the action was brought in good faith: see The Henrietta (1837) 3 Hag Adm 345n; The Little Joe (1860) Lush 88. It is suggested that this is one of the old rules as to costs which have been obsolete since the Judicature Acts: see The Monkseaton (1889) 14 PD 51, CA. When, however, salvors have been guilty of misconduct and for that reason there has been a forfeiture of salvage, they have been condemned in costs: see The Capella [1892] P 70; The Yan-Yean (1883) 8 PD 147 at 150 per Sir James Hannan. For an example of special orders as to costs made in a case involving a salvage claim and a counterclaim for negligent damage, both partially successful see The Tojo Maru [1970] P 21 at 50, [1969] 2 All ER 155 at 173, [1969] 1 Lloyd's Rep 133 at 149 per Willmer LJ (on appeal [1970] P 21 at 77, [1969] 3 All ER 1179 at 1195-1196, [1969] 2 Lloyd's Rep 193 at 214-215, CA, per Karminski LJ; costs not further considered in the House of Lords [1972] AC 242, [1971] 1 All ER 1110, [1971] 1 Lloyd's Rep 341, HL).

When salvage services have been rendered to ship and cargo and salvage has been awarded against both, the owners of the salvaged ship and of the cargo have usually contributed to the costs in proportion to the values on which the award is made, but this has been said to be without prejudice to the salvor's right to recover the whole from either: see The Elton [1891] P 265 at 271 per Jeune J.

205. Assessors.

In collision claims¹ and other cases involving issues of navigation and seamanship, the Admiralty Court usually sits with assessors². Nautical assessors and Elder Brethren of Trinity House only advise the court on matters of nautical skill on which information is desired, and it is the duty of the court, having received that information, to exercise its own judgment, and decide the case before it on its own responsibility³. Before an Admiralty judge decides whether to accept the evidence of a nautical assessor, the evidence should be put to counsel so that appropriate submissions can be made⁴.

The parties are not permitted to call expert evidence on such matters, unless the court orders otherwise⁵, and they are reminded of the practice with regard to the disclosure of any answers to the court's questions and the opportunity for comment on them⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'collision claim' for these purposes see PARA 91 note 12. As to the procedure that governs Admiralty claims generally, including CPR Pt 61 and Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61, see PARA 91 et seq. CPR Pt 58 (Commercial Court) applies generally to claims in the Admiralty Court where CPR Pt 61 does not provide otherwise (see CPR 61.1(3); and PARA 91 note 3); and the practice direction which supplements CPR Pt 58 (ie Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58) also applies to Admiralty claims except where it is inconsistent with either CPR Pt 61 or Practice Direction--Admiralty Claims PD 61 (see para 1.1; and PARA 91 note 3). As to the practice and procedure that applies in the Commercial Court, including CPR Pt 58 and Practice Direction--Commercial Court PD 58, see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1536 et seq; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 615. 79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(3) PRACTICE OF THE HIGH COURT/ (v) Trial of Admiralty Claims and Post-trial Proceedings/C. PAYMENTS AND ENFORCEMENT/207. Payment of money found due.

C. PAYMENTS AND ENFORCEMENT

207. Payment of money found due.

Where the amount of the liability of the defendants, or of claimants against whom a counterclaim has been substantiated, is ascertained¹ either by the Admiralty Registrar², or by virtue of the amount of the principal sum due being specified in the order of the court, the person entitled to receive the amount may, if the proceeds of a ship or cargo are in court or their value has been paid into court, obtain an order directing the amount found due to him to be paid to him, or on his written authority to his solicitor³. Where there is more than one claimant it is the duty of the court to see that all persons who have a claim on the fund share in its distribution⁴. If the claim is one for damage, and there are claims both for loss of life and for damage to property, the fund will be distributed pro rata among the various claimants unless the defendants take proceedings to limit their liability⁵.

If there have been cross-claims of damage in which both vessels have been held to blame, or proceedings where both claim and counterclaim have succeeded, the amount due will be the amount of the balance, if any, which is found due after the amounts due to the claimants in the cross-claims, or to the claimants and defendants in cases where there are counterclaims, have been set off against each other⁶.

1 Where a wrong in respect of which the claim or counterclaim is made involves an expenditure in a foreign currency, the proper rate of exchange for ascertaining the amount payable in English currency is the rate prevailing at the date of the wrong: SS Celia v SS Volturno [1921] 2 AC 544, HL; The Baarn [1933] P 251, CA. In appropriate cases judgment may be given in a foreign currency: see The Despina R [1979] AC 685, [1979] 1 All ER 421, HL, applied in The Lash Atlantico [1987] 2 Lloyd's Rep 114, CA; The Transoceanica Francesca and Nicos V [1987] 2 Lloyd's Rep 155. In a salvage case, the relevant date for conversion is the date of the services, even though the parties are all foreigners and sterling has been devalued between that date and the date of judgment: The Teh Hu [1970] P 106, [1969] 3 All ER 1200, [1969] 2 Lloyd's Rep 365, CA. As to the extent of Admiralty jurisdiction regarding salvage claims see PARA 113 et seq.

3 See PARA 203.

4 See The Joannis Vatis [1922] P 92, CA, where shipowners, suing for themselves and as bailees of the cargo, recovered judgment for the full amount of damage to their vessel and to the cargo, and the cargo-owners, although they had not assented to the action, were held entitled to share in the fund. 208. Execution by fieri facias.

The ordinary remedies for enforcing a judgment in the High Court are applicable to Admiralty claims¹. Thus writs of fieri facias are issued when necessary to recover the amount, including costs, due under the judgment in a claim in personam². In the case of a claim in rem³, where the defendant has acknowledged service and judgment has been pronounced against him, the claimant is entitled, in the absence of any limitation of liability⁴, to a writ of fieri facias on the ship released on bail, or on any other property belonging to the defendant, in respect of his claim and costs, or the balance if part payment has been made⁵.

(ii) Court of Admiralty of the Cinque Ports

210. Jurisdiction of the Court of Admiralty of the Cinque Ports.

The Confederation of the Cinque Ports originally comprised the five ports of Hastings, Romney, Hythe, Dover and Sandwich, although other ports have been admitted over the years either as corporate members (also known as corporate limbs) or as non-corporate members (also known as non-corporate limbs)¹.

The Court of Admiralty of the Cinque Ports is presided over by the Judge Official and the Commissary of the Court of Admiralty of the Cinque Ports, but its role today is primarily ceremonial, no cases having been heard by it for many years². The court has inherent jurisdiction to hear a number of Admiralty disputes³, and additional statutory jurisdiction to hear salvage disputes on appeal from the Salvage Commissioners of the Cinque Ports⁴. In the absence of the parties' consent, the court sat in St James's Church at Dover, but the court may exercise its jurisdiction within the boundaries of jurisdiction of the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports⁵.

1 The Confederation emerged because in return for certain Channel Ports providing ship service (the supply and maintenance of ships and crew ready for the Crown in case of need) a Royal Charter of 1155 granted rights which included: freedom from toll, lestage, passage and similar taxes and duties; exemption from the jurisdiction of external courts; and the right to levy local taxes, to hold their own courts and to punish offenders: see the official website of the Confederation of the Cinque Ports which, at the date at which this volume states the law, is to be found at: <http://www.cinqueports.org>.

The continuance of the Confederation of the Cinque Ports is unaffected by the local government areas established by the Local Government Act 1972 Pt I (ss 1-19) (as to which see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 5 et seq) (see s 271(3)); and the Secretary of State or any appropriate Minister may at any time by order under s 254(1) make provision for securing the continued discharge of functions in relation to the Confederation of the Cinque Ports and its courts (including so far as is necessary for that purpose, provision for the constitution of a body to replace any existing corporation), for appropriating property or providing funds for the discharge of such functions, and otherwise for securing that anything required or authorised to be done by, to or in relation to the Confederation or any of its courts may continue to be done (s 254(2)(i); and see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 6).

2 See 4 Hasted's History of Kent 118.

3 The court has the same inherent jurisdiction as the High Court of Admiralty possessed before the commencement of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act 1873. As to that inherent jurisdiction see PARA 80 et seq. As to the jurisdiction and rights in respect of royal fish as droits of the Lord Warden see Cinque Ports (Lord Warden) v R (1831) 2 Hag Adm 438. As to royal fish see CROWN PROPERTY vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 229. As to droits of Admiralty see PARA 139.

4 See the Cinque Ports Act 1821 s 4 (amended by the Statute Law Revision Act 1888; and the Statute Law (Repeals) Act 1993). As to the duties and jurisdiction of the Cinque Ports Salvage Commissioners see PARA 211. Nothing in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Pt IX (ss 224-255) (salvage and wreck) (as to which see PARA 883 et seq) prejudices or affects any jurisdiction or powers of Lord Warden or any officers of the Cinque ports or of any court of those ports or of any court having concurrent jurisdiction within the boundaries of those ports; and disputes as to salvage arising without those boundaries must be determined, subject to the International Convention on Salvage (London, 28 April 1989; Misc 8 (1991); Cm 1526), as set out in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 224(1), Sch 11 Pt I (see PARA 891 et seq), in the manner in which they have been hitherto determined: s 314, Sch 14 para 11.

5 As to these boundaries see the Cinque Ports Act 1821 s 18 (amended by the Statute Law Revision Act 1888).

211. Duties and jurisdiction of the Cinque Ports Salvage Commissioners.

The Cinque Ports Salvage Commissioners are appointed by the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports¹, or by the person who is Deputy Warden of the Cinque Ports and Lieutenant of Dover Castle². The Cinque Ports Act 1821, under which such commissioners are appointed, defines the boundaries of the cinque ports to seawards and on the coast³, and enables the commissioners to determine questions arising as to the salvage of anchors and chain cables found at sea or supplied to ships, and as to salvage services rendered generally to ships within the jurisdiction of the Cinque Ports, and to goods which have been wrecked or stranded within that jurisdiction, provided that the master or owner of the salvaged ship or the owners of the salvaged goods, or his or their agents, are present⁴.

1 See the Cinque Ports Act 1821 s 1 (amended by the Statute Law (Repeals) Act 1993).

2 The person who is Deputy Warden of the Cinque Ports may exercise any power conferred by the Cinque Ports Act 1821 on the Lord Warden: see s 5A (added by the Statute Law (Repeals) Act 1993 s 1(2), Sch 2 Pt II para 10).

3 As to these boundaries see the Cinque Ports Act 1821 s 18 (amended by the Statute Law Revision Act 1888).

4 See the Cinque Ports Act 1821 ss 1, 2 (both amended by the Statute Law (Repeals) Act 1993). Although this power of the Lord Warden is obsolete, it has been saved in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 314, Sch 14 para 11 (as to which see PARA 210 note 4).

An appeal from the determination by the Cinque Ports salvage commissioners of any salvage disputes may, within eight days after the award of salvage is made, be brought either to the Court of Admiralty of the Cinque Ports or to the Admiralty Court of the High Court of Justice¹. The proceedings must be commenced within 20 days, and the property in respect of the salving of which the award was made may be released on security being given in double the amount of the award².

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(4) OTHER COURTS HAVING ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION/(iii) Other Admiralty Courts/214. Former local courts of Admiralty.

(iii) Other Admiralty Courts

214. Former local courts of Admiralty.

Many of the seaport boroughs had in their charters a grant of a court of Admiralty¹, but in 1835 all local courts, except that of the Cinque Ports², were deprived of any Admiralty jurisdiction they might have³. Certain titular and honorific rights, however, still appear to survive. For instance, the mayor of Southampton has a silver oar as insigne of a titular admiralty, and is entitled to receive the first visit from foreign men-of-war visiting the port, and the mayors of some other ports have a similar privilege.

1 Some maritime towns had from a very early period courts of the seaport, which administered the law maritime. Disputes as to jurisdiction arose between the Admiral's court and these courts, which led to two statutes (13 Ric 2 stat 1 c 5 (1389-90) (repealed); and the Admiralty Jurisdiction Act 1391 (repealed)) defining and restricting the jurisdiction of the Admiral: see Carter's History of the English Courts (5th Edn) 103.

2 As to which see PARA 210.

3 See the Municipal Corporations Act 1835 s 108 (repealed). By virtue of local legislation, the Liverpool Court of Passage continued to have Admiralty jurisdiction until its abolition by the Courts Act 1971 s 43 (repealed). Pending proceedings were then transferred to the Liverpool county court. The Mayor's and City of London Court was an Admiralty county court until the Admiralty jurisdiction of the county courts was abolished (as to which see PARA 209).

ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION OF THE HIGH COURT/(4) OTHER COURTS HAVING ADMIRALTY JURISDICTION/(iii) Other Admiralty Courts/215. Courts of the Vice-Admirals of the coast.

215. Courts of the Vice-Admirals of the coast.

The sea coast of England and Wales is divided into 19 districts, for each of which a Vice-Admiral of the coast may be appointed¹. Vice-Admirals of the coast represent the Lord High Admiral, or the Lords Commissioners for executing that office, in his capacity so far as it was not concerned with the navy. They are appointed by letters patent under the Great Seal, and the appointment is *durante bene placito*². The jurisdiction extends up to high-water mark and to the first bridges towards the sea on rivers, and is exercisable by a judge³. The patent of the Vice-Admiral empowers him to appoint his own officers, excepting, however, the judge, Registrar and marshal of his Vice-Admiralty Court. These excepted officers are appointed by letters patent, but there are none in existence at the present time, and, consequently, although the jurisdiction of these courts of Vice-Admiralty over causes of action arising in the jurisdiction has never been abolished by statute, there is now no means of executing it. There is no jurisdiction as to wreck.

1 These districts are: (1) Northumberland, Durham, and York; (2) Lincoln; (3) Norfolk; (4) Suffolk; (5) Essex; (6) Kent; (7) Sussex; (8) Hampshire; (9) Dorset; (10) Devon; (11) South Cornwall; (12) North Cornwall; (13) Somerset; (14) Gloucester; (15) South Wales; (16) North Wales; (17) Chester; (18) Lancaster; and (19) Westmorland and Cumberland.

2 The form of patent is printed in Baker's Vice-Admiral of the Coast 50 et seq, where the jurisdiction exercised by the court is stated. As to the Great Seal see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 357 et seq.

3 By an order of a committee of the Lords and Commons, 1635, the judge was to be a discreet and learned man in the civil laws dwelling or resorting within the circuit of his office, or for want of a civilian one learned in the common laws of the realm dwelling within the same circuit. In 1663 the Duke of York (afterwards James II), the then Lord High Admiral, issued instructions to the judge of the Court of Admiralty and to the Vice-Admirals, by which the powers and duties of those officers were regulated. Under these the whole of the judicial powers was directed to be exercised by the judge, but the levying and receiving the perquisites of the office or droits of Admiralty remained with the Vice-Admirals. These instructions did not apparently interfere with the jurisdiction of the judges of the Vice-Admiralty Courts, as these judges continued to be appointed. The patents confer no jurisdiction in prize matters (as to which see further PRIZE). See further Baker's Vice-Admiral of the Coast 69.

216. Jersey, Guernsey and the Isle of Man.

The Royal Courts of Jersey and Guernsey and the Admiralty Court of the Isle of Man have an Admiralty jurisdiction¹.

Accordingly, the Admiralty Jurisdiction (Guernsey) Order 1993, SI 1993/2664, extends the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court to the whole of the Bailiwick of Guernsey (Guernsey, Alderney, Herm, Jethou and Sark) and the territorial waters adjacent thereto. However, at the date at which this volume states the law, no order has been made in respect of Jersey. It would appear that the Royal Court of Jersey probably has jurisdiction over all matters arising within the island: see Re Jersey Jurats (1866) LR 1 PC 94, although the exact extent of Admiralty jurisdiction is unclear. Similarly, no order has been made in respect of the Isle of Man, but its jurisdiction is almost identical with that of the Admiralty Court of the High Court of Justice: see Roscoe's Admiralty Practice (5th Edn) 35, 36.

217. Colonial Courts of Admiralty.

The Colonial Courts of Admiralty have taken the place of the Vice-Admiralty Courts in British possessions¹. The jurisdiction of these courts may be more restrictive than the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court². The judgments of a Colonial Court of Admiralty are subject to the same local rights of appeal as they would have been if pronounced by the court in the exercise of its ordinary civil jurisdiction³. There is an ultimate appeal as of right without special permission to Her Majesty in Council⁴ from a judgment of any court in a British possession in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act 1890⁵. Permission of the Privy Council to appeal is necessary if the petition of appeal has not been lodged within the time prescribed by the rules, or, if no time is so prescribed, within six months from the date of the judgment appealed against⁶.

1 As to the origin and jurisdiction of the Colonial Courts see the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act 1890 s 2; and COMMONWEALTH vol 13 (2009) PARA 838.

2 In The Yuri Maru; The Woron [1927] AC 906, PC, the Privy Council held that the jurisdiction conferred by the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act 1890 was that jurisdiction existing at the time the Act came into force. B. HEARING AND DECISION

220. Principles governing hearing of Admiralty appeal.

The power of receiving additional evidence in its discretion in Admiralty appeals was transferred to the Court of Appeal together with the rest of the jurisdiction over such appeals formerly possessed by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council¹.

When the Court of Appeal is assisted by nautical assessors, who may advise the court on issues of navigation and seamanship in collision cases², it will not generally allow additional evidence to be called on matters of nautical knowledge and skill³. As in the case of the court of first instance, it is the duty of the Court of Appeal, having received the advice of the assessors, to exercise its own judgment⁴ and, if the advice of the assessors in the Court of Appeal differs from that of those in the court of first instance, the Court of Appeal must make its own choice as to which advice it will follow⁵. It is desirable that questions submitted by the Court of Appeal to its assessors should be in writing⁶.

Where there has been a conflict of evidence in the court below, the Court of Appeal must decide, as in other cases, whether the conclusion reached by the judge appealed from is the proper one, but will attach great weight to his view of the evidence owing to the fact that the witnesses were examined before him, and he saw their demeanour and manner of giving evidence⁷.

Where in a claim for damage by collision the judge in the court of first instance has found both vessels to blame and, in accordance with the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁸, has apportioned the blame between them, the Court of Appeal, if it agrees with the judge on the facts, will not lightly interfere with his apportionment of blame. If, however, the Court of Appeal takes a different view of the facts, it is bound to review the apportionment⁹.

222. Costs of Admiralty appeal.

The costs of an appeal, like the costs of an Admiralty claim, are in the unfettered discretion of the court¹. This discretion must be exercised judicially but, in general, costs follow the event. Thus where the Court of Appeal in a collision claim affirms the apportionment of blame made by the court below the appellant will usually be condemned in the costs of the appeal². Where a party succeeds on the appeal, he will be awarded his costs of the appeal, and this is so even in cases where the success consists only in the fact that degrees of blame found by the court below have been readjusted on appeal³. As regards the costs of the court below, the Court of Appeal will generally order the costs to be apportioned in accordance with the apportionment of blame found by the Court of Appeal⁴. The rule of practice has been followed in the Court of Appeal that, where the appellants succeed on the ground of compulsory pilotage, no costs will be given⁵.

² The divisional court's general jurisdiction to hear appeals is rarely invoked in Admiralty matters. However, the Secretary of State may order a case to be reheard in part or wholly if new and important evidence which could not be produced either at a shipping inquiry or at a formal investigation has been discovered, or if there appear to be other grounds for suspecting that a miscarriage of justice may have occurred: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 64(1) (see PARA 523), s 269(1) (see PARA 871). Appeals to the Divisional Court in relation to statutory marine investigations or inquiries and rehearings.

224. Appeals to the Divisional Court in relation to statutory marine investigations or inquiries and rehearings.

Appeals from a formal investigation into a shipping accident¹, or from an inquiry under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 into the fitness or conduct of a master, mate or engineer², lie to the Divisional Court of the Queen's Bench Division (if the decision has been given in England³ or by a naval court) in cases where the person holding the inquiry or investigation (as the case may be) has decided to cancel or suspend the certificate of any person or found any person at fault, and if no application has been made for a re-hearing by order of the Secretary of State⁴, or if such an application has been refused⁵.

Under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, the Secretary of State may order that a rehearing of an inquiry into the fitness or conduct of an officer⁶ or of a seaman other than an officer⁷, or from a formal investigation into a shipping casualty⁸, is to take place either before the persons who held the first hearing, or before a wreck commissioner⁹ or the High Court¹⁰. This provision will only apply where the initial inquiry or investigation was held in England, Wales or Northern Ireland¹¹. A rehearing must be ordered by the Secretary of State under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 if new and important evidence which could not be produced at the shipping inquiry or investigation has been discovered, or if there appear to the Secretary of State to be other grounds for suspecting that a miscarriage of justice may have occurred¹². In a case where at the inquiry or investigation either a person's certificate has been cancelled or suspended or he has been found at fault, then, if an application has not been made to the Secretary of State to order a rehearing, or if one has been made but has been refused, that person, or any other interested person who appeared at the inquiry or investigation, may appeal to the High Court¹³.

Where on any investigation or inquiry into a shipping casualty the court finds that the casualty has been caused or contributed to by the wrongful act or default of any person, and an application for a rehearing has not been made or has been made and refused, the owner of the ship, or any other person having an interest in the investigation or inquiry who has appeared at the hearing and is affected by the decision of the court, has the same right of appeal against the decision as a master has against a decision with respect to the cancellation or suspension of his certificate: see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 ss 64(4), 269(4), concerning appeals by 'interested parties'. A master who has been censured, but whose certificate has not been cancelled or suspended, has a right of appeal as 'a person having an interest' in the inquiry.

79-228 Admiralty Jurisdiction of the High Court

As from 1 October 2009 (see SI 2009/1604) the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales; see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59. Accordingly the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 and for the words 'Supreme Court Act 1981' wherever they occur in any enactment substitute 'Senior Courts Act 1981': see Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1.

225. Procedure on appeal to the Divisional Court.

In relation to appeals made to the Divisional Court under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995¹, the standard practice and procedure applies generally regarding the court's powers² and the conduct of the hearing³. However, aside from an appeal notice⁴, the appellant also must file any report to the Secretary of State⁵ containing the decision from which the appeal is brought⁶; and, where a re-hearing by the Divisional Court is ordered under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁷, the Secretary of State must give reasonable notice to parties whom he considers to be affected by the re-hearing⁸.

The Divisional Court may, in special circumstances, order that security must be given for the costs of the appeal⁹.

3. MERCHANT SHIPS

(1) BRITISH SHIPS

229. Meaning of 'ship' for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995.

For the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'ship' includes every description of vessel used in navigation¹. Whether a vessel comes within that meaning of a ship depends on the facts of each case; the statutory definition is intended to enlarge the meaning of 'ship'². To be a 'ship' for the purposes of the merchant shipping legislation³, a vessel must be used in navigable waters, either inland or at sea⁴, and, although she must be constructed for navigation⁵, it is not necessary to the definition that she should be able to navigate under her own power⁶. The presence of a rudder and the manning of the vessel with a crew are important as showing that a vessel is a ship⁷, but the absence of either does not mean that a vessel is not a ship⁸. The purpose for which a vessel has been and is being used is also material when considering whether she is used in navigation⁹.

The Secretary of State¹⁰ may by order: (1) provide for a shipping provision¹¹ to apply (with or without modification) in relation to specified things which are used, navigated or situated wholly or partly in or on water¹²; (2) provide for a shipping provision not to apply in relation to specified things which are used, navigated or situated wholly or partly in or on water¹³; (3) modify a shipping provision in its application in relation to specified things which are used, navigated or situated wholly or partly in or on water¹⁴.

See Everard v Kendall (1870) LR 5 CP 428 (collision between barges propelled by oars); Ex p Ferguson (1871) LR 6 QB 280 (fishing coble using oars to get out to sea and sails thereafter held to be a ship); The CS Butler (1874) LR 4 A & E 238, 2 Asp MLC 408 (lighter propelled by sails and oars on Thames held not to be a ship); Edwards v Quickenden and Forester [1939] P 261, 63 Ll L Rep 189 (craft propelled by oars held not to be a vessel); Clark (Inspector of Taxes) v Perks [2001] EWCA Civ 1228, [2001] 2 Lloyd's Rep 431, [2001] STC 1254 (jack-up drilling rig with floating hull and retractable legs held to be a ship).

The question appears to be still open whether the use to which the vessel is being put at the time of the collision or the use to which the vessel has been put is the determining factor in deciding whether a vessel is propelled by oars: see The Champion [1934] P 1, 47 Ll L Rep 40, DC. 10 As to the Secretary of State for these purposes see PARA 38.

11 For these purposes, 'shipping provision' means a provision which is made by or by virtue of an Act (including the Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003), and is expressed to apply in relation to ships, vessels or boats (or a specified class or description of ship, vessel or boat): see s 112(2); and PARA 23.

230. Meanings of 'British ship', 'United Kingdom fishing vessel' and 'United Kingdom ship'.

A ship¹ is a 'British ship' if:

- 355 (1) the ship is registered² in the United Kingdom³ under Part II of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁴; or
- 356 (2) the ship is, as a government ship⁵, registered in the United Kingdom in pursuance of an Order in Council⁶; or
- 357 (3) the ship is registered under the law of a relevant British possession⁷; or
- 358 (4) the ship is a small ship⁸ other than a fishing vessel⁹ and is not registered under Part II of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995¹⁰, but is wholly owned by qualified owners¹¹ and is not registered under the law of a country outside the United Kingdom¹².

A ship is a 'United Kingdom ship' for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995¹³ if the ship is registered in the United Kingdom under Part II of the 1995 Act¹⁴; and 'United Kingdom fishing vessel' has¹⁵ a corresponding meaning¹⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

2 As to the meaning of 'registered' for these purposes see PARA 254 note 2.

3 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

4 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 1(1)(a). The text refers to registration under Pt II (ss 8-23) (see PARA 245 et seq): see s 1(1)(a).

5 As to the meaning of 'government ships' see PARA 20 note 3.

6 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 1(1)(b). The text refers to registration in pursuance of an Order in Council under s 308 (see PARA 20): see s 1(1)(b).

7 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 1(1)(c). As to the meaning of 'relevant British possession' for these purposes see PARA 17 note 3.

8 For these purposes, 'small ship' means a ship less than 24 metres in length ('length' having the same meaning as in the tonnage regulations): Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 1(2). As to the meaning of 'tonnage regulations' see PARA 248.

9 In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'fishing vessel' means a vessel for the time being used (or, in the context of an application for registration, intended to be used) for, or in connection with, fishing for sea fish other than a vessel used (or intended to be used) for fishing otherwise than for profit; and for these purposes, 'sea fish' includes shellfish, salmon and migratory trout, as defined by the Fisheries Act 1981 s 44 (see AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 954): Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313(1). A vessel for the time being used (or intended to be used) wholly for the purpose of conveying persons wishing to fish for pleasure is not a fishing vessel: Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313(3).

10 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 1(1)(d)(i). The text refers to registration under Pt II (see PARA 245 et seq): see s 1(1)(d)(i).

11 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 1(1)(d)(ii). For these purposes, 'qualified owners' means persons of such description qualified to own British ships as is prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State for these purposes: Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 1(2). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38; and as to his power to make subordinate legislation under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 41. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made and none have effect as if so made.

Be that as it may, in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, except for s 9 (see PARA 245), and in any other enactment applicable to British ships or ships registered under that Act, any reference, however phrased, to the owner of a British ship, a United Kingdom ship (as to which see the text and notes 12-14) or a ship registered in the United Kingdom, means, in relation to a bareboat charter ship, the person registered as the charterer: see the Merchant Shipping (Modification of Enactments) (Bareboat Charter Ships) Order 1994, SI 1994/774, arts 2, 3 (made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 17(8): see PARA 357).

12 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 1(1)(d)(iii).

13 Ie except the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 85 (safety and health on ships) (see PARA 591) and s 144(3) (notification that a ship other than a United Kingdom ship has been detained for oil pollution offences) (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 434): see s 1(3).

14 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 1(3). The text refers to registration under Pt II (see PARA 245 et seq): see s 1(1)(3).

231. British flag.

The flag which every British ship¹ (other than a government ship²) is entitled to fly is the red ensign (without any defacement or modification) and³ no other colours⁴. The following are, however, also proper national colours, that is to say:

359 (1) any colours allowed to be worn in pursuance of a warrant from Her Majesty or from the Secretary of State⁵;

360 (2) in the case of British ships registered⁶ in a relevant British possession⁷, any colours consisting of the red ensign defaced or modified whose adoption for ships registered in that possession is authorised or confirmed by Her Majesty by Order in Council⁸.

Any Order under head (2) above must be laid before Parliament after being made⁹.

1 As to the meaning of 'British ship' see PARA 230; and as to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

2 The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 2(1) does not apply to government ships: s 2(2). As to the meaning of 'government ships' see PARA 20 note 3.

232. Duty to show British flag.

A British ship¹, other than a fishing vessel², must hoist the red ensign or other proper national colours³ in the following circumstances⁴:

- 361 (1) on a signal being made to the ship by one of Her Majesty's ships, including any ship under the command of a commissioned naval officer⁵; and
- 362 (2) on entering or leaving any foreign port⁶; and
- 363 (3) in the case of ships of 50 or more tons gross tonnage⁷, on entering or leaving any British port⁸.

1 As to the meaning of 'British ship' see PARA 230; and as to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

233. Duty to declare national character of ship.

An officer of Revenue and Customs¹ must not grant a clearance or transire² for any ship³ until the master⁴ of such ship has declared to that officer the name of the nation to which he claims that the ship belongs; and that officer must thereupon enter that name on the clearance or transire⁵.

If a ship attempts to proceed to sea without such clearance or transire, the ship may be detained until the declaration is made⁶.

1 As to the appointment of officers of Revenue and Customs see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 901 et seq.

2 A transire is a warrant from the custom-house to let goods pass: see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1065.

234. Ensigns and mooring.

By Admiralty warrant, yachts belonging to members of the Royal Yacht Squadron are permitted on certain terms to carry the white ensign as worn in Her Majesty's navy¹, and, in the case of other privileged clubs, it is either the blue ensign of Her Majesty's fleet, with or without a device, or the red ensign with the distinctive marks on its fly². These privileges are in each case granted by individual warrant, and, in order to be eligible to wear such an ensign, a vessel must be registered, and must continue to belong to the individual to whom the warrant was granted, and the owner must continue as a member of the privileged club to which he belonged at the time of obtaining the warrant. Further, the owner must be on board the yacht, or in effective control of her, when she is in harbour or at anchor near the shore, and the yacht must never be used for any commercial purpose.

Yacht owners who possess Admiralty warrants are allowed the privilege of mooring at government buoys, at naval dockyard ports in the United Kingdom, as a matter of courtesy and at the discretion of the harbour master.

² For an illustrated list of yacht club flags see Lloyd's Register of Yachts. As to the use of the white, blue and red ensigns generally see CROWN AND ROYAL FAMILY vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 45.

235. Proceedings on forfeiture of a ship.

Where any ship¹ has either wholly or as to any share in it become liable to forfeiture², any commissioned naval³ or military officer⁴, or any person appointed by the Secretary of State⁵ for the purpose, may seize and detain the ship and bring the ship for adjudication before the court⁶.

Where a ship is so subject to adjudication, the court may adjudge the ship and her equipment to be forfeited to Her Majesty and make such order in the case as seems just⁷.

No officer or person bringing such proceedings is liable in damages in respect of the seizure or detention of the ship, notwithstanding that the ship has not been proceeded against or, if proceeded against, adjudicated not liable to forfeiture, if the court is satisfied that there were reasonable grounds for the seizure or detention⁸. If the court is not so satisfied, the court may award costs and damages to the party aggrieved and make such other order as the court thinks just⁹.

(i) Acquisition of Ownership

236. Methods of acquisition.

Ownership in a British ship¹ or share in her may be acquired in any of three ways: (1) by transfer from a person entitled to transfer²; (2) by transmission; or (3) by building.

Acquisition by transfer and transmission have been the subject of statutory enactment³; acquisition by building is governed by common law⁴.

1 As to the meaning of 'British ship' see PARA 230.

2 A ship is not like an ordinary chattel which passes by delivery. A ship is a personal chattel; and specific performance of a contract to sell a ship may be decreed: Behnke v Bede Shipping Co [1927] 1 KB 649, 17 Asp MLC 222. (ii) Rights of Ownership

237. Powers of registered owner of a ship.

Subject to any rights and powers appearing from the register¹ to be vested in any other person, the registered owner of a ship² or of a share in a ship has power absolutely to dispose of it provided that the disposal is made in accordance with the private law provisions for registered ships³ and registration regulations⁴. This is not to be taken to imply that interests arising under contract or other equitable interests cannot subsist in relation to a ship or a share in a ship; and such interests may be enforced by or against owners and mortgagees of ships in respect of their interest in the ship or share in the same manner as in respect of any other personal property⁵.

The registered owner of a ship or of a share in a ship has power to give effectual receipts for any money paid or advanced by way of consideration on any disposal of the ship or share⁶.

Any document authorised or required by or under any enactment to be served on the registered owner of a United Kingdom ship⁷ is to be treated as duly served on him if served on such persons, in such circumstances and by such method, as may be specified in registration regulations⁸.

1 As to the meaning of 'register' see PARA 254 note 2.

2 As to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

3 For the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Pt II (ss 8-23), 'the private law provisions for registered ships' means the provisions of s 16(1), Sch 1 (as to which see PARAS 306, 318, 321, 323-324, 328, 333, 335) and registration provisions made for the purposes of Sch 1 or the provisions of registration regulations made under s 10(4)(a) (as to which see PARA 247): ss 16(6), 23(1). 238. Managing owner.

Part owners sometimes delegate authority in respect of the managing of the ship to one of their number, who is known as the managing owner¹. The managing owner is agent for all the other owners², with power to do what is necessary to enable the ship to prosecute her voyage and to earn freight³.

1 The term 'managing owner' is used in the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 23 (appointment of managing owner where ship has more than one owner) (as to which see PARA 271) and in reg 34 (verification of details and marks) (see PARA 287), but it is not defined. It is a commercial and not a legal expression: see Frazer v Cuthbertson (1880) 6 QBD 93 at 98 per Bowen J. A person who is not a part owner may exercise the functions of a managing owner, in which case he is known as a 'ship's husband'.

239. Distribution of profits.

Profits are distributed in accordance with any agreement between part owners, or in accordance with the interest of each partner in the ship¹. Before profits are distributed, the sum earned by the ship must be applied to meet expenses²; and no partner is entitled to a share of the profits unless he has contributed his proper share of the capital³. A purchaser of a share in a ship which is at the time of the purchase engaged on a voyage is entitled to a share of the freight earned on that voyage, but is liable for a share of the expenses of earning it⁴.

1 See the cases cited in PARA 238 note 3. A part owner may in certain circumstances be entitled to sue for his share of profits, even though they accrue from an illegal voyage: Sharp v Taylor (1849) 2 Ph 801 (but dicta in that case were doubted in Sykes v Beadon (1879) 11 ChD 170 at 195, 196 per Jessel MR); cf CONTRACT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 883. As to the liabilities of part owners see PARA 244.

2 Green v Briggs (1848) 6 Hare 395. These include wages (Lindsay v Gibbs (1859) 3 De G & J 690), and in some cases insurance (Ogle v Wrangham (1790) cited in Abbott's Law of Merchant Ships and Seamen (14th Edn) 130; Hooper v Lusby (1814) 4 Camp 66). 240. Control of ship.

The right to the possession and control of the ship lies with the majority owners. Where the majority owners desire to send the ship on a particular voyage, but she is in the possession of a dissenting minority, the majority owners may arrest the ship and obtain from the court¹ a decree of possession, so that they may be enabled to employ the ship as they wish².

Similarly, where the minority owners object to the voyage on which it is proposed the ship shall be sent, they may arrest her and sue for an order that she be restrained³ from pursuing the voyage⁴.

In either of these cases, before the majority owners are permitted to send the ship on the desired voyage, they will be compelled to give security for the safe return of the vessel⁵.

Where the minority owners object to the prosecution of a particular voyage, they are not obliged to contribute to the expenses of the voyage, but conversely will not be entitled to any of the profits⁶.

1 As to the court's powers in its dealings with the ownership of vessels see also PARA 94. The court will require persons seeking to dispossess others to prove their title to a majority of shares: The Valiant (1839) 1 Wm Rob 64; The Victoria (1859) Sw 408.

2 The New Draper (1802) 4 Ch Rob 287; The Kent (1862) Lush 495.

The right to arrest is not affected by the fact that the charterparty under which the ship is about to sail was negotiated by the ship's husband appointed by the whole of the owners: The Talca; The England. The authority to charter the ship must, however, have been withdrawn from the managing owner before the charterparty was entered into: The Vindobala (1889) 14 PD 50, 6 Asp MLC 376, CA. A foreign vessel may not be arrested at the suit of an English part owner, except possibly where the law of the foreign country is the same as that of England: The Keroula (1886) 11 PD 92, 6 Asp MLC 23. The court does not enter upon questions of ownership of a foreign ship where foreigners are alone concerned, unless by consent of the parties or upon the intervention of the representative of a foreign state: The Johan and Siegmund (1810) Edw 241; The See Reuter (1811) 1 Dods 22; The Evangelistria (1876) 2 PD 241, 3 Asp MLC 264; The Agincourt (1877) 2 PD 239; The Annette, The Dora [1919] P 105. A mortgagee of a ship or share cannot as such bring a restraint action: The Innisfallen (1866) LR 1 A & E 72. An equitable owner may probably do so: Von Freeden v Hull (1907) 10 Asp MLC 247 (revsd on appeal 10 Asp MLC 394, CA). A master cannot now be regarded as having possession of the ship and cargo as a bailee: The Jupiter (No 3) [1927] P 122 (affd [1927] P 250, 17 Asp MLC 250, CA). As to the position of mortgagees see PARA 327 et seq.

5 The Apollo (1824) 1 Hag Adm 306. The giving of a bail bond does not prevent the majority owners from subsequently disputing the right of the minority owners to have arrested the vessel: The Keroula (1886) 11 PD 92, 6 Asp MLC 23. The amount of the security given must bear the same relation to the value of the vessel as does the number of shares held by the minority owners to the whole number of shares in the ship: The Cawdor (1898) 8 Asp MLC 475; and see The Robert Dickinson (1884) 10 PD 15, 5 Asp MLC 341. The minority owners may not rearrest until the ship has returned to the port to which her safe return is pledged: The Regalia (1884) 5 Asp MLC 338. The sureties will be released after a reasonable time: The Vivienne (1887) 12 PD 185, 6 Asp MLC 178.

241. Court order for sale of ship.

In certain cases the court will order the sale of the ship, but a strong case must be made out even by majority owners, while the court will be extremely reluctant to make such an order at the instance of minority owners¹. In a proper case, however, the court will order a sale at the instance of minority owners².

In proper cases the court may order an account to be taken between co-owners³.

The dictum of Bruce J in this case that the majority had no right thus to change the character of the ownership was criticised by Gorell Barnes J in The Loughborough (1904) Shipping Gazette, 20 December.

3 As to the court's power to order accounts and sale see the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 20(2)(b), (4) and PARA 106. The court has ordered accounts to be taken of transactions taking place before this jurisdiction was conferred on it by the Admiralty Court Act 1861 s 8 (repealed) (The Idas (1863) Brown & Lush 65); and between a part owner and one who had ceased to be a part owner by selling his share (The Lady of the Lake (1870) LR 3 A & E 29). The court has also ordered the earnings of the ship in the hands of third persons to be brought into court pending the settlement of a dispute: The Meggie (1866) LR 1 A & E 77.

(iii) Liabilities

242. Liability on bills of lading.

The general rule is that prima facie a bill of lading signed by the master is signed by him as the employee or agent of the shipowner, and the owner is liable on such bills of lading¹. A mere reference in bills of lading to a charterparty which contains a clause that the master should be the employee of the charterer does not amount to notice to the holders of such bills that the master is not the owner's employee². The owner is not, however, liable on bills of lading signed by a master who is not his employee and who has no authority to pledge his credit, even though the shipper has no notice of the charterparty³.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/3. MERCHANT SHIPS/(2) OWNERSHIP/(iii) Liabilities/243. Liability for wages.

243. Liability for wages.

The owner of a ship is liable for seamen's wages, even though the seamen have in fact been engaged by a master who is the charterer's employee¹. Where, however, a ship is chartered by demise, the owner is not liable in respect of an allotment note drawn by the master on the charterer².

1 See Re Great Eastern Steamship Co, Williams' Claim (1885) 5 Asp MLC 511. The decision in this case only refers to the case of seamen discharged before the ship sailed, there having been no written agreement, but it is submitted that the principle may be applied in other circumstances. As to seamen's wages generally see PARA 464 et seq.

2 Meiklereid v West (1876) 1 QBD 428, 3 Asp MLC 129, DC; cf the liability on bills of lading (as to which see PARA 242). As to allotment notes see PARAS 473, 474. As to charterparties by demise see CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS. In the case of a charterparty not amounting to a demise, where the master is the charterer's employee, it seems that the owner is not liable on bills of lading signed by the master, but is still liable for the seamen's wages.

244. Liability as between part owners.

Persons owning shares in a ship are tenants in common¹. They may or may not be partners also²; and, whether they are or are not in fact partners, they may for certain purposes be treated as such³. An agreement between part owners relating to the employment of the ship, as opposed to her ownership, renders them partners in all matters relating to the employment so agreed upon⁴.

A part owner is not bound in respect of liabilities incurred by another part owner in regard to the ship, unless he has given authority⁵ to the other to contract liabilities on his behalf or has held out the other as having that authority⁶, or has ratified the specific acts of the other⁷ which have given rise to liability⁸.

(i) In general

A. ENTITLEMENT TO REGISTER

245. Basic registration provisions.

A ship¹ is entitled to be registered² if:

- 364 (1) it is owned, to the prescribed extent³, by persons qualified to own British ships⁴; and
- 365 (2) such other conditions are satisfied as are prescribed⁵ to secure that, taken in conjunction with the requisite ownership, only ships having a British connection are registered⁶, and any application for registration is duly made⁷.

The registrar⁸ may nevertheless, if registration regulations so provide, refuse to register or terminate the registration of a ship if, having regard to any relevant requirements of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁹, he considers it would be inappropriate for the ship to be or, as the case may be, to remain registered¹⁰.

However, the registrar may, if registration regulations so provide, register a fishing vessel¹¹, notwithstanding that the requirement of head (1) above is not satisfied in relation to a particular owner of a share in the vessel if the vessel otherwise has a British connection¹².

Where a ship becomes registered at a time when it is already registered under the law of a country other than the United Kingdom¹³, the owner of the ship must take all reasonable steps to secure the termination of the ship's registration under the law of that country¹⁴; but this provision does not apply to a ship which becomes registered on a transfer of registration to the register¹⁵ from a relevant British possession¹⁶. Any person who contravenes¹⁷ this provision¹⁸ commits an offence¹⁹.

1 As to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

2 As to the meaning of 'registered' for these purposes see PARA 254 note 2.

3 It is for registration regulations: (1) to determine the persons who are qualified to be owners of British ships, or British ships of any class or description, and to prescribe the extent of the ownership required for compliance with the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 9(1)(a) (see head (1) in the text) (s 9(2)(a)); (2) to prescribe other requirements designed to secure that, taken in conjunction with the requisite ownership, only ships having a British connection are registered (s 9(2)(b)). For the purposes of Pt II (ss 8-23), references to a ship's having a British connection are references to compliance with the conditions of entitlement imposed by s 9(1)(a), (b) (see heads (1) and (2) in the text); and 'declaration of British connection' is to be construed accordingly: ss 9(9), 23(1). As to the meaning of 'British ship' see PARA 230. As to the registration regulations see PARA 247.

- 9 For these purposes, 'the relevant requirements of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995' means the requirements of that Act, including requirements falling to be complied with after registration, relating to: (1) the condition of ships or their equipment, so far as relevant to their safety or any risk of pollution (s 9(8)(a)); and (2) the safety, health and welfare of persons employed or engaged in them (s 9(8)(b)).

ENTITLEMENT TO REGISTER/246. Regulation of registration in British possessions by reference to categories of registries.

246. Regulation of registration in British possessions by reference to categories of registries.

Her Majesty may by Order in Council make provision for regulating the registration in relevant British possessions¹ of ships² other than small ships³ and fishing vessels⁴ by reference to categories of registries established by the Order⁵.

Any such Order may:

- 366 (1) establish different categories of registries to which different restrictions on the registration of ships in such possessions apply, being restrictions framed by reference to: (a) ships' tonnage⁶; or (b) types of ships⁷; or (c) any other specified matter⁸; or (d) any combination of matters falling within one or more of heads (a) to (c) above⁹, as well as a category of registries to which no such restriction applies¹⁰;
- 367 (2) assign any relevant British possession to such one of the categories so established as appears to Her Majesty to be appropriate¹¹;
- 368 (3) provide that, where a relevant British possession has been assigned to a category to which any such restriction on registration as is mentioned in head (1) above applies, no ship covered by that restriction is to be registered under the law of that possession¹²;
- 369 (4) specify circumstances in which ships may be exempted from any provision made by virtue of head (3) above¹³.

1 As to the meaning of 'relevant British possession' for these purposes see PARA 17 note 3.

2 As to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

B. REGISTRATION REGULATIONS

247. Power to make registration regulations.

The Secretary of State¹ must by regulations ('registration regulations') make provision for and in connection with the registration of ships² as British ships³. Without prejudice to the generality of this provision, registration regulations may in particular make provision with respect to any of the following matters:

- 370 (1) the persons by whom and the manner in which applications in connection with registration are to be made⁴;
- 371 (2) the information and evidence (including declarations of British connection⁵) to be provided in connection with such applications and such supplementary information or evidence as may be required by any specified authority⁶;
- 372 (3) the shares in the property in, and the numbers of owners (including joint owners) of, a ship permitted for the purposes of registration and the persons required or permitted to be registered⁷ in respect of a ship or to be so registered in specified circumstances⁸;
- 373 (4) the issue of certificates (including provisional certificates) of registration, their production and surrender⁹;
- 374 (5) restricting and regulating the names of ships registered or to be registered¹⁰;
- 375 (6) the marking of ships registered or to be registered, including marks for identifying the port¹¹ to which a ship is to be treated as belonging¹²;
- 376 (7) the period for which registration is to remain effective without renewal¹³;
- 377 (8) the production to the registrar¹⁴ of declarations of British connection or other information relating thereto, as respects registered ships, at specified intervals or at his request¹⁵;
- 378 (9) the survey and inspection of ships registered or to be registered and the recording of their tonnage as ascertained, or reascertained, under the tonnage regulations¹⁶;
- 379 (10) the refusal, suspension and termination of registration in specified circumstances¹⁷;
- 380 (11) matters arising out of the expiration, suspension or termination of registration, including the removal of marks and the cancellation of certificates¹⁸;
- 381 (12) the charging of fees in connection with registration or registered ships¹⁹;
- 382 (13) the transfer of the registration of ships to and from the register²⁰ from and to registers or corresponding records in countries other than the United Kingdom²¹;
- 383 (14) inspection of the register²²;
- 384 (15) any other matter which is authorised or required by the provisions relating to the registration of ships²³ to be prescribed in registration regulations²⁴.

However, no provision determining, or providing for determining, the fees to be charged or prescribing any arrangements for their determination by other persons may be made without the approval of the Treasury²⁵.

Registration regulations may:

- 385 (a) make different provision for different classes or descriptions of ships and for different circumstances²⁶;
- 386 (b) without prejudice to head (a) above, make provision for the granting of exemptions or dispensations by the Secretary of State from specified requirements of the regulations, subject to such conditions, if any, as he thinks fit to impose²⁷; and
- 387 (c) make such transitional, incidental or supplementary provision as appears to the Secretary of State to be necessary or expedient, including provision authorising investigations and conferring powers of inspection for verifying the British connection of a ship²⁸.

Registration regulations:

- 388 (i) may make provision for the registration of any class or description of ships to be such as to exclude the application of the private law provisions for registered ships²⁹ and, if they do, may regulate the transfer, transmission or mortgaging of ships of the class or description so excluded³⁰;
- 389 (ii) may make provision for any matter which is authorised or required by those provisions to be prescribed by registration regulations³¹; and
- 390 (iii) must make provision precluding notice of any trust being entered in the register or being receivable by the registrar except as respects specified classes or descriptions of ships or in specified circumstances³².

Registration regulations may:

- 391 (A) create offences subject to the limitation that no offence is to be punishable with imprisonment or punishable on summary conviction with a fine exceeding level 5 on the standard scale³³;
- 392 (B) provide for the approval of forms by the Secretary of State and for the discharge of specified functions by specified authorities or persons³⁴;
- 393 (C) provide for any of their provisions to extend to places outside the United Kingdom³⁵;
- 394 (D) provide that any reference in any other Act or in any instrument made under any other Act to the port of registry or the port to which a ship belongs is to be construed as a reference to the port identified by the marks required for the purpose by registration regulations³⁶.

Any document purporting to be a copy of any information contained in an entry in the register and to be certified as a true copy by the registrar is evidence of the matters stated in the document³⁷.

C. THE TONNAGE REGULATIONS

248. Tonnage regulations.

The tonnage of any ship¹ to be registered under Part II of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995² must be ascertained in accordance with regulations ('tonnage regulations') made by the Secretary of State³.

Tonnage regulations may:

- 395 (1) make different provisions for different descriptions of ships or for the same description of ships in different circumstances⁴;
- 396 (2) make any regulation dependent on compliance with such conditions, to be evidenced in such manner, as may be specified in the regulations⁵;
- 397 (3) prohibit or restrict the carriage of goods or stores in spaces not included in the registered tonnage and may provide for making the master⁶ and the owner each liable to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale⁷ where such a prohibition or restriction is contravened⁸.

Tonnage regulations may make provision:

- 398 (a) for assigning to a ship, either instead of or as an alternative to the tonnage ascertained in accordance with the other provisions of the regulations, a lower tonnage applicable where the ship is not loaded to the full depth to which it can safely be loaded⁹;
- 399 (b) for indicating on the ship, by such mark as may be specified in the regulations, that such a lower tonnage has been assigned to it¹⁰; and
- 400 (c) where the lower tonnage has been assigned to it as an alternative, for indicating on the ship the depth to which the ship may be loaded for the lower tonnage to be applicable¹¹.

Tonnage regulations may:

- 401 (i) provide for the measurement and survey of ships to be undertaken, in such circumstances as may be specified in the regulations, by persons appointed by such organisations as may be authorised for the purpose by the Secretary of State¹²;
- 402 (ii) provide for the issue, by the Secretary of State or by persons appointed by such organisations as may be authorised for the purpose by the Secretary of State, of certificates of the registered tonnage of any ship or of the tonnage which is to be taken for any purpose specified in the regulations as the tonnage of a ship not registered in the United Kingdom¹³, and for the cancellation and delivery up of such certificates in such circumstances as may be prescribed by the regulations¹⁴.

Regulations requiring the delivery up of any certificate may make a failure to comply with the requirement an offence punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹⁵.

250. Tonnage of ships of foreign countries adopting the tonnage regulations.

Her Majesty may by Order in Council make such provision in relation to the ships¹ of a foreign country as is authorised in the following way² where it appears to Her that the tonnage regulations³ have been adopted by the foreign country and are in force there⁴.

Such an Order may order that the ships of the foreign country must, without being remeasured in the United Kingdom⁵, be treated as being of the tonnage denoted by their certificates of registration or other national papers, to the same extent, and for the same purposes as the tonnage denoted in the certificate of registration of a United Kingdom ship⁶ is treated as being the tonnage of that ship⁷.

Where such an Order is in force in relation to the ships of any country, any space shown in the ship's certificate of registration or other national papers as deducted from the tonnage is to be treated, if a similar deduction in the case of a United Kingdom ship depends on compliance with any conditions or on the compliance being evidenced in any manner, as complying with those conditions and as being so evidenced, unless a surveyor of ships⁸ certifies to the Secretary of State⁹ that the construction and equipment of the ship as respects that space do not come up to the standard which would be required if the ship were a United Kingdom ship¹⁰.

Any such Order may operate for a limited time and may be subject to such conditions and qualifications, if any, as Her Majesty may consider expedient¹¹.

If it appears to Her Majesty that the tonnage of any foreign¹² ship, as measured by the rules of the country to which the ship belongs, materially differs from what it would be under the tonnage regulations, Her Majesty may by Order in Council order that¹³ any of the ships of that country may, for all or any of the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, be remeasured in accordance with the tonnage regulations¹⁴.

E. PRIVATE LAW PROVISIONS

252. Private law provisions for registered ships and liability as owner.

The statutory provisions which make provision relating to the title to, and the registration of mortgages over, ships¹ have effect², but they do not apply in relation to ships which are excluded from their application by registration regulations³.

Where any person is beneficially interested, otherwise than as mortgagee, in any ship or share in a ship registered⁴ in the name of some other person as owner, the person so interested is liable, as well as the registered owner, to any pecuniary penalties imposed by or under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 or any other Act on the owners of registered ships⁵.

Where the registration of any ship terminates by virtue of any provision of the registration regulations, the termination of that registration does not affect any entry made in the register⁶ so far as relating to any undischarged registered mortgage⁷ of that ship or of any share in it⁸.

3 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 16(2). The text refers to ships excluded from the application of Sch 1 by virtue of registration regulations under s 10(4)(a) (see PARA 247): see s 16(2). The provisions of Sch 1 do not apply to small ships (see the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 91; and PARA 347) or to ships bareboat chartered-in by British charterers (see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 17(7); and PARA 357). 253. Proceedings on forfeiture of ships.

The provisions under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 which relate to proceedings on forfeiture of a ship under the provisions relating to British ships¹ apply in relation to ships or shares in ships which become liable to forfeiture under the provisions relating to registration² as they apply in relation to ships or shares in ships which become liable to forfeiture under the provisions relating to British ships³.

(ii) The Register of British Ships in the United Kingdom

254. Central register of British ships.

There continues to be a register of British ships¹ for all registrations of ships in the United Kingdom². The register must:

- 406 (1) be so constituted as to distinguish, in a separate part, registrations of fishing vessels³ and may be otherwise divided into parts so as to distinguish between classes or descriptions of ships⁴;
- 407 (2) be maintained in accordance with registration regulations⁵ and the private law provisions for registered ships⁶ and any directions of a general nature given to the registrar⁷ by the Secretary of State⁸; and
- 408 (3) be available for public inspection⁹.

The register must be maintained by the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen¹⁰ as registrar¹¹, although the Secretary of State may designate any person to discharge, on behalf of the registrar, all his functions or such of them as the Secretary of State may direct¹². The Secretary of State also may give to the registrar directions of a general nature as to the discharge of any of his functions¹³.

1 As to the meaning of 'British ship' see PARA 230; and as to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

2 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 8(1). For the purposes of Pt II (ss 8-23), 'register' means the register of British ships maintained for the United Kingdom under s 8; and 'registered', except with reference to the law of another country, is to be construed accordingly: s 23(1). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

The central register was established under the Merchant Shipping (Registration, etc) Act 1993 s 1(1) (repealed) and replaced the three then existing registers maintained under the Merchant Shipping Act 1894 Pt I (ss 1-91) (repealed), the Merchant Shipping Act 1983 s 5 (repealed) and the Merchant Shipping Act 1988 s 13 (repealed): see the Merchant Shipping (Registration, etc) Act 1993 s 1(7) (repealed). Those three registers closed on 21 March 1994 and all registrations in those registers in force on that day became registrations in the new register: see s 1(7) (repealed); the Merchant Shipping (Registration, etc) Act 1993 (Commencement No 1 and Transitional Provisions) Order 1993, SI 1993/3137, art 3(1).

The Secretary of State may by order make such amendments of any local Act or instrument so far as it provides for the registration of ships in local registers as appear to him to be appropriate in view of the provisions made for the register mentioned in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 8: s 314(4). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such order had been made and none has effect as if so made. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38; and as to his power to make subordinate legislation under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 41.

10 As to the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen see PARA 61.

11 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 8(2). For the purposes of Pt II, 'registrar' means the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen in his capacity as registrar or, as respects functions of his being discharged by another authority or person, that authority or person: s 23(1).

12 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 8(3).

13 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 8(4). As to the Secretary of State's power to give directions see PARA 41.

255. The register.

The register¹ maintained by the registrar² is divided into the following parts³:

- 409 (1) Part I for ships⁴, owned by qualified persons⁵, which are not fishing vessels or registered on that Part which is restricted to small ships⁶;
- 410 (2) Part II for fishing vessels⁷;
- 411 (3) Part III for small ships⁸; and
- 412 (4) Part IV for ships which are bareboat charter ships⁹.

No ship, including a small ship, may be registered on more than one Part of the register at any one time¹⁰.

Entries in the register must be made in accordance with the following provisions:

- 413 (a) the property in a ship must be divided into 64 shares¹¹;
- 414 (b) subject to the statutory provisions¹² with respect to joint owners or owners by transmission, not more than 64 persons are entitled to be registered at the same time as owners¹³ of any one ship, but this does not affect the beneficial title of any persons represented by or claiming under or through any registered owner or joint owner¹⁴;
- 415 (c) a person is not entitled to be registered as owner of a part of a share, but any number of persons not exceeding five may be registered as joint owners of a ship or of any share or shares in a ship¹⁵;
- 416 (d) joint owners are to be considered as constituting one person only as regards the persons entitled to be registered, and are not entitled to dispose in severalty of any interest in a ship, or in any share in a ship in respect of which they are registered¹⁶.

The registrar is entitled to amend the register where a clerical error has occurred, or sufficient evidence is produced to satisfy him that the entry is incorrect, and, on making the amendment, he must issue a new certificate of registry¹⁷, if necessary¹⁸.

The register may consist of both paper and computerised records and such other records as the Secretary of State may consider to be expedient¹⁹.

Any person is entitled: (i) on application to the registrar, to obtain a transcript, certified by an authorised officer, of the entries in the register²⁰; and (ii) during the official opening hours of the General Registry of Shipping and Seamen, on request to inspect the entries in the register²¹.

1 For these purposes, 'register' means the register of British ships established under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 8 (see PARA 254): Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

2 In accordance with the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 8(1), (2) (see PARA 254): see the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(1); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). For these purposes, 'registrar' means the person described as 'registrar' in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 23(1) (see PARA 254 note 11): Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

3 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(1). The registrar may, in certain circumstances, transfer the registration of a ship from one Part of the register to a different Part: see reg 72A; and PARA 343.

4 For these purposes, unless the context otherwise requires, 'ship' includes a fishing vessel (see head (2) in the text) but does not include a small ship (see head (3) in the text) or a bareboat charter ship (see head (4) in the text) except for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, Pt XII (regs 101-113A) (miscellaneous provisions) (see PARAS 317, 368 et seq) and Pt XIII (reg 114) (offences) (see PARAS 1118-1122): reg 1(2).

5 In accordance with the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138: see reg 2(1)(a). As to persons qualified to be owners of ships to be registered on Part I of the register see PARA 258.

6 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(1)(a). For these purposes, 'small ship' means a ship which is less than 24 metres in overall length and is (or is applying to be) registered under Pt XI (regs 88-100) (registration of small ships) (see PARA 344 et seq): reg 1(2). 'Overall length' has the same meaning as 'length overall' in the Merchant Shipping (Tonnage) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1510 (see PARA 248): Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2) (definition substituted by SI 1998/1915).

7 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(1)(b). For these purposes, 'fishing vessel' means a vessel within the meaning of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313(1) (see PARA 230 note 9): Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). As to the status of any Part II certificate under sea fisheries legislation see PARA 377.

8 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(1)(c).

9 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(1)(d). For these purposes, 'bareboat charter ship' means a ship registered under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 17 (see PARA 357): Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

10 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 5.

11 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(5)(a).

12 In the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 and of the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138: see reg 2(5)(b).

13 For these purposes, 'owner' means, in relation to a ship or share in a ship, the person owning the ship or, as the case may be, a share in the ship, whether or not registered as owner: Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2). However, in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, except for s 9 (see PARA 245), and in any other enactment applicable to British ships or ships registered under that Act, any reference, however phrased, to the owner of a British ship, a United Kingdom ship or a ship registered in the United Kingdom (as to which see PARA 230), means, in relation to a bareboat charter ship, the person registered as the charterer: see the Merchant Shipping (Modification of Enactments) (Bareboat Charter Ships) Order 1994, SI 1994/774, arts 2, 3.

14 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(5)(b).

16 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(5)(d).

17 For these purposes, 'certificate of registry' means a certificate of registration which is issued to a ship which is registered under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 and includes a certificate of bareboat charter, unless the context otherwise requires: Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). 'Certificate of bareboat charter' means a certificate of registration issued to a ship which is registered under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 17 (see PARA 357): Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). As to offences in connection with certificates of registry see PARA 1121 et seq.

256. Simple and full registration of fishing vessels, and changing from full to simple mode.

Registration on Part II of the register¹ is of two kinds²: (1) registration of vessels to which the statutory provisions relating to transfers by bill of sale and the registration of mortgages³ do not apply ('simple registration')⁴; and (2) registration of vessels to which those provisions do apply ('full registration')⁵.

A fishing vessel which has once been registered with full registration may not thereafter be registered with simple registration unless⁶: (a) it is not subject to a registered mortgage⁷; and (b) the vessel has in the meantime been registered outside the United Kingdom⁸; and (c) the registrar⁹ consents¹⁰.

(iii) Qualification and Entitlement for Registration on Part I of the Register

258. Persons qualified to be owners of ships to be registered on Part I of the register.

The following persons are qualified to be the owners¹ of ships² which are registered on Part I of the register³:

- 417 (1) British citizens⁴ or non-United Kingdom⁵ nationals exercising their right of freedom of movement of workers or right of establishment⁶;
- 418 (2) British overseas territories citizens⁷;
- 419 (3) British Overseas citizens⁸;
- 420 (4) persons who under the British Nationality Act 1981 are British subjects⁹;
- 421 (5) persons who are British Nationals (Overseas)¹⁰;
- 422 (6) bodies corporate incorporated in an EEA State¹¹;
- 423 (7) bodies corporate incorporated in any relevant British possession¹² and having their principal place of business in the United Kingdom or in any such possession¹³; and
- 424 (8) European Economic Interest Groupings duly formed¹⁴ and registered in the United Kingdom¹⁵.

A person who is not so qualified to be the owner of a ship registered on Part I of the register may nevertheless be one of the owners of such a ship if¹⁶: (a) a majority interest in the ship¹⁷ is owned by persons who are so qualified¹⁸; and (b) the ship is registered on Part I of the register¹⁹.

MERCHANT SHIPS/(3) REGISTRATION/(iii) Qualification and Entitlement for Registration on Part I of the Register/259. British connection and majority interest in the ship.

259. British connection and majority interest in the ship.

A ship¹ is entitled to be registered on Part I of the register² if a majority interest in the ship is owned by one or more persons³ qualified⁴ to be so registered⁵.

Where a majority interest in a ship is owned by persons qualified⁶ by reason of being:

- 425 (1) British citizens⁷ or non-United Kingdom⁸ nationals exercising their right of freedom of movement of workers or right of establishment⁹;
- 426 (2) British overseas territories citizens¹⁰;
- 427 (3) persons who are British Nationals (Overseas)¹¹;
- 428 (4) bodies corporate incorporated in an EEA State¹²;
- 429 (5) European Economic Interest Groupings duly formed¹³ and registered in the United Kingdom¹⁴, the ship may be registered only if that person or, as the case may be, any of those persons is resident in the United Kingdom¹⁵. Where this condition¹⁶ is not satisfied, the ship may be registered only if a representative person is appointed in relation to the ship¹⁷.

Where the majority interest is owned by persons one or more of whom are persons who are qualified¹⁸ by reason of being:

- 430 (a) British Overseas citizens¹⁹ or persons who under the British Nationality Act 1981 are British subjects²⁰, the ship may be registered only if that person or, as the case may be, any of those persons is resident in the United Kingdom or, where that condition is not satisfied, if the Secretary of State²¹ furnishes a declaration that he consents to the ship being registered, and, in addition, a representative person is appointed in relation to the ship²²;
- 431 (b) bodies corporate incorporated in any relevant British possession²³ and having their principal place of business in the United Kingdom or in any such possession, the ship may be registered only if the body corporate has a place of business in the United Kingdom or, where that condition is not satisfied, if a representative person is appointed in relation to the ship²⁴.

Where the majority interest is owned by the following persons²⁵:

- 432 (i) one or more persons who are qualified by reason of being British citizens or non-United Kingdom nationals exercising their right of freedom of movement of workers or right of establishment²⁶, or being British overseas territories citizens²⁷, or being persons who are British Nationals (Overseas)²⁸, or being bodies corporate incorporated in an EEA State²⁹, or being European Economic Interest Groupings duly formed and registered in the United Kingdom³⁰;
- 433 (ii) one or more persons qualified by reason of being British Overseas citizens³¹ or persons who under the British Nationality Act 1981 are British subjects³²; or
- 434 (iii) one or more persons qualified by reason of being bodies corporate incorporated in any relevant British possession and having their principal place of business in the United Kingdom or in any such possession³³, the ship must only be registered³⁴ if any of those persons is resident in the United Kingdom³⁵ or, where that condition is not satisfied, if a representative person is appointed in relation to the ship³⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 4.

2 As to the meaning of 'register' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 1. Part I of the register, as mentioned in the text, is for ships, owned by qualified persons, which are not fishing vessels or registered on that Part which is restricted to small ships: see the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(1)(a); and PARA 255. As to the meaning of 'fishing vessel' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 7; and as to the meaning of 'small ship' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 6.

3 For these purposes, one or more persons is or are to be treated as owning a majority interest in a ship if there is vested in that person or in those persons, taken together, the legal title to 33 or more shares in the ship, there being left out of account for this purpose any share in which any beneficial interest is owned by a person who is not entitled to be an owner of a British ship: Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 9(a). 264. Dispensations.

Where, in the case of any fishing vessel¹, the Secretary of State² is satisfied that³:

- 443 (1) a fishing vessel would be eligible to be registered on Part II of the register⁴ but for the fact that any particular individual or, as the case may be, each of a number of particular individuals, is not a British citizen⁵ or a national of a member state other than the United Kingdom⁶, and is accordingly not a qualified person⁷; and
- 444 (2) it would be appropriate to dispense with the requirement of British citizenship or nationality of such a member state in the case of that individual or those individuals, in view of the length of time he has or they have resided in the United Kingdom and have been involved in the fishing industry of the United Kingdom⁸, the Secretary of State may determine that that requirement should be so dispensed with⁹.

If he does so, the vessel is treated, so long as head (1) above applies to it and so long as any such determination remains in force, for the purposes of registration on Part II of the register as being eligible to be registered as a British fishing vessel¹⁰.

(v) Appointment of Representative Persons

267. Appointment of representative persons.

Where the entitlement of any ship¹ to be registered is conditional upon the appointment of a representative person², the owner³ of the ship must⁴:

- 448 (1) before applying for the ship to be registered, appoint an individual or body corporate satisfying the requirements set out in heads (a) and (b) below to be the representative person⁵; and
- 449 (2) ensure that, so long as the ship remains registered, an individual or body corporate satisfying those requirements will be so appointed⁶.

A representative person is either: (a) an individual resident in the United Kingdom⁷; or (b) a body corporate incorporated in a member state⁸ and having a place of business in the United Kingdom⁹.

The appointment of the representative person must be made in a form approved by the Secretary of State¹⁰ and must contain the name and the address of the representative person¹¹.

The owner of any ship in relation to which any representative person is for the time being appointed under these provisions must:

- 450 (i) on applying for the ship to be registered, send to the registrar¹² the required appointment¹³;
- 451 (ii) in the event of any change in the identity, or in the address, of the representative person, notify the registrar of the relevant change within seven days of the change occurring¹⁴; and the registrar must record the new particulars in the register¹⁵.

272. Supplementary requirements for application for registration.

Every application for registration¹ must be supported by a declaration of eligibility² which must be in a form approved by the Secretary of State³ and must include⁴:

- 458 (1) a declaration of British connection⁵;
- 459 (2) a declaration of ownership by every owner⁶ setting out his qualification to own a British ship⁷;
- 460 (3) a statement of the number of shares in the ship the legal title of which is vested in each owner whether alone or jointly with any other person or persons⁸; and
- 461 (4) in respect of an application to register a fishing vessel⁹, a statement of the beneficial ownership¹⁰ of any share which is not beneficially owned by its legal owner¹¹.

Every application for registration of a ship which has, immediately prior to the application, been registered on any other register¹² must be accompanied by a certified extract from that register in respect of that ship¹³.

Every application for registration of a fishing vessel on Part II of the register¹⁴ must state whether the application is for full¹⁵ or simple¹⁶ registration¹⁷.

1 As to the meaning of 'application for registration' see PARA 269 note 1.

2 For these purposes, 'declaration of eligibility' means a declaration which complies with the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 22(1): reg 1(2). - 462 (1) if it is a company registered in the United Kingdom³, a copy of its certificate of incorporation, and, in the case of a company which has changed its name since incorporation, its certificates of change of name⁴; or
- 463 (2) if it is a company incorporated in a member state⁵ other than the United Kingdom or a company incorporated in any relevant British possession⁶, proof in accordance with the laws of the country of its incorporation that the company is an incorporated company⁷;
- 464 (3) if it is a company, other than a company incorporated in the United Kingdom, with a place of business in the United Kingdom, a certificate from the registrar of companies in England and Wales⁸, the registrar of Scottish companies⁹ or the registrar of Northern Ireland companies¹⁰ that the company is registered with him as an overseas company¹¹; and
- 465 (4) if it is a body corporate incorporated by virtue of an Act of Parliament, a Charter granted by Her Majesty, or an Act of Ordinance of a relevant British possession, proof, sufficient to satisfy the registrar¹², of its incorporation¹³.

274. Declaration of intent.

Where, at the time when the application for registration¹ is made, the ownership of a ship² has not yet passed (or fully passed) to the persons who are to be its owners³ when it is registered, the application must be accompanied by a declaration of intent instead of a declaration of eligibility⁴. The declaration of intent must consist of: (1) a draft declaration of eligibility setting out particulars of ownership of the ship as they are intended to be when the ship is registered⁵; and (2) a declaration that the ownership of the ship will, at the time when registration occurs, be as stated in the draft declaration of eligibility⁶.

Where an application for registration is accompanied by a declaration of intent and not by a declaration of eligibility, a duly completed declaration of eligibility must be submitted to the registrar⁷ prior to registration⁸.

275. Evidence required to support registration.

An application to register a ship¹ (other than an application in respect of a fishing vessel² requiring simple registration³) must be supported by the following evidence of title⁴:

- 466 (1) in the case of a new ship, the builder's certificate⁵;
- 467 (2) in the case of a ship which is not new: (a) in respect of a pleasure vessel⁶, a previous bill or bills of sale showing the ownership of the ship for at least five years before the application is made or, if the ship has been registered with a full registration at any time within the last five years, a bill or bills of sale evidencing all transfers of ownership during the period since it was so registered⁷; (b) in respect of a fishing vessel, a previous bill or bills of sale showing the ownership of the vessel for at least three years before the application is made, or, if the ship has been registered with full registration⁸ at any time within the last three years, a bill or bills of sale evidencing all transfers of ownership during the period since it was so registered, or evidence that the vessel has been for at least three years continuously registered as a British fishing vessel with simple registration in the names of the owners⁹ applying to be registered and remains so registered¹⁰; or (c) in respect of a ship other than a pleasure vessel or a fishing vessel, one bill of sale showing the most recent transfer of ownership¹¹;
- 468 (3) where the evidence required by head (1) or head (2) above is not available, other evidence of title satisfactory to the registrar¹².

Where such an application is made to register a fishing vessel (whether new or second hand)¹³, the applicant must submit details of the maximum continuous engine power¹⁴ and, where an engine is permanently de-rated, the modification explanation¹⁵. Any owner who contravenes this requirement is guilty of an offence¹⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 4. As to the meaning of 'application for registration' see PARA 269 note 1.

2 As to the meaning of 'fishing vessel' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 7.

3 As to the meaning of 'simple registration' see PARA 256.

4 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 28(1) (amended by SI 1998/2976; renumbered by SI 1999/3206).

5 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 28(1)(a) (reg 28(1) as renumbered: see note 4). For these purposes, 'builder's certificate' means a certificate signed by the builder of the ship and containing a true account of the proper denomination and of the tonnage of the ship, as estimated by him, and of the date and place where the ship was built, and of the name of the person, if any, for whom the ship was built, or the name of the person to whom it was delivered: reg 1(2).

6 For these purposes, 'pleasure vessel' means a pleasure vessel as defined in the Merchant Shipping (Vessels in Commercial Use for Sport or Pleasure) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2771, reg 2 (see PARA 609): Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2) (definition substituted by SI 1999/3206).

- 8 As to the meaning of 'full registration' see PARA 256.
- 9 As to the meaning of 'owner' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 13.
- 10 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 28(1)(b)(ii) (reg 28(1) as renumbered (see note 4); reg 28(1)(b)(ii) amended by SI 1999/3206).
- 11 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 28(1)(b)(iii) (reg 28(1) as renumbered (see note 4); reg 28(1)(b)(iii) added by SI 1999/3206). Where a ship has entered the register by virtue of the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 28(1)(b)(iii) and subsequently becomes a pleasure vessel or a fishing vessel, the owner must then provide the title evidence required under reg 28(1)(b)(i) (see head (2)(a) in the text) or under reg 28(1)(b)(ii) (see head (2)(b) in the text) respectively or under reg 28(1)(c) (see head (3) in the text) for the ship to remain eligible to be registered: reg 28(2) (added by SI 1999/3206). As to the meaning of 'register' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 1.
- 12 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 28(1)(c) (reg 28(1) as renumbered (see note 4); reg 28(1)(c) amended by SI 1999/3206). As to the meaning of 'registrar' see PARA 255 note 2.
- 13 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29A(1)(a) (regs 29A, 29B added by SI 1999/3206).
- 14 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29A(2)(a) (as added: see note 13). The text refers to details of the maximum continuous engine power, determined in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2930/86 of 22 September 1986 defining characteristics for fishing vessels (OJ L274, 25.9.1986, p 1) art 5: see the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29A(2)(a) (as so added). For these purposes, 'maximum continuous engine power' has the same meaning as 'engine power' in EC Council Regulation 2930/86 art 5.1 (defining characteristics for fishing vessels): Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2) (definition added by SI 1999/3206). Where the registrar is not satisfied that the engine power details notified to him, or recorded, for any fishing vessel are correct, he may require the owner to have the engine power measured in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2930/86 art 5: Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29B (as so added).
- 15 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29A(2)(b) (as added: see note 13). For these purposes, 'modification explanation' means the clear explanation, referred to in EC Commission Regulation 1381/87 of 20 May 1987 establishing detailed rules concerning the marking and documentation of fishing vessels (OJ L132, 21.5.1987, p 9) art 3.3, of the method by which any modification of engine power has been carried out: Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2) (definition added by SI 1999/3206). 'Permanently de-rated engine power' means a modification of the maximum continuous engine power referred to in EC Commission Regulation 1381/87 art 3.3: Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2) (definition added by SI 1999/3206).

B. SURVEY AND MEASUREMENT

276. Survey and measurement of ship.

Every ship¹, other than certain fishing vessels², must before registration be surveyed by a surveyor of ships³ and her tonnage ascertained in accordance with the tonnage regulations⁴.

Certain fishing vessels⁵ must before registration be measured by an authorised measurer⁶ and her tonnage calculated in accordance with the tonnage regulations made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁷.

After survey or measurement, the surveyor or measurer must issue a certificate specifying the ship's tonnage and build and such other particulars describing the identity of the ship as may be required by the Secretary of State⁸. The certificate must be delivered to the registrar⁹ before the ship may be registered¹⁰.

A ship which is being registered for the first time which has been surveyed or measured and its tonnage ascertained within the previous 12 months, or which is being re-registered within 12 months of its registration on the register¹¹ ceasing, is not required to be surveyed or measured (or its tonnage ascertained) again¹² if a declaration is made by the owners¹³ confirming that the survey or measurement and tonnage details have not changed from those previously provided to the registrar¹⁴.

1 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 4.

2 I.e. other than a fishing vessel less than 24 metres in length to which the Merchant Shipping (Tonnage) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1510, Pt IIA (regs 12A-12E) (measurement of smaller fishing vessels) (see PARA 248) does not apply: see the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29(1) (amended by SI 1998/1915; SI 1999/3206). 'Length' in the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29 has the same meaning as in the Tonnage Regulations: Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2) (definition added by SI 1998/1915). 'Tonnage regulations' means the Merchant Shipping (Tonnage) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1510 (as to which see PARA 248): Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2) (definition added by SI 1998/1915). As to the meaning of 'fishing vessel' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 7. See the text and notes 5-7.

3 For these purposes, 'surveyor of ships' means a marine surveyor nominated by the Secretary of State to undertake the surveys required by the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, and includes any marine surveyor of the Department of Transport: reg 1(2). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

4 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29(1) (as amended: see note 2). Regulation 29(1) is subject to reg 29A (as to which see PARAS 275, 313-314, 1118): reg 29(1) (as so amended).

5 I.e. a fishing vessel of less than 24 metres other than a fishing vessel to which the Merchant Shipping (Tonnage) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1510, Pt IIA (regs 12A-12E) (measurement of smaller fishing vessels) (see PARA 248) applies: see the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29(2) (amended by SI 1998/1915; SI 1999/3206).

6 For these purposes, 'authorised measurer' means the Secretary of State or any person authorised under the Merchant Shipping (Tonnage) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1510, or the Merchant Shipping (Fishing Vessels - Tonnage) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/1909 (see PARA 248) to carry out the measurement of ships for the purposes of those regulations: Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

7 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29(2) (as amended: see note 5). As to the tonnage regulations made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 248. The Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29(2) is subject to reg 29A (as to which see PARAS 275, 313, 314, 1118): reg 29(2) (as so amended).

8 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29(3).

9 As to the meaning of 'registrar' see PARA 255 note 2.

10 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29(3).

11 As to the meaning of 'register' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 1.

12 In accordance with the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29(1), (2) (see the text and notes 1-7): see reg 29(4) (reg 29(4), (5) added by SI 1998/2976).

13 As to the meaning of 'owner' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 13.

14 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 29(4) (as added: see note 12). The registrar may, if he thinks it appropriate, direct that an authorised measurer or surveyor provides such a declaration: reg 29(5) (as so added). As to the power to dispense with declarations or other evidence otherwise required under the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, see PARA 371.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/3. MERCHANT SHIPS/(3) REGISTRATION/(vi) Registration/C. NAMES/277. Ship's proposed name.

C. NAMES

277. Ship's proposed name.

On making an application for registration¹ of a ship², the applicant must propose a name by which the ship is to be called³.

A ship may not be described by any name other than its registered name⁴; and a change may not be made in a registered ship's name without the prior written permission of the registrar⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'application for registration' see PARA 269 note 1.

2 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 4.

3 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 30(1). As to the approval of names see reg 30(2), Sch 1; and PARA 278.

4 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 30(3).

5 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 30(4). As to the meaning of 'registrar' see PARA 255 note 2.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/3. MERCHANT SHIPS/(3) REGISTRATION/(vi) Registration/C. NAMES/278. Approval of names.

278. Approval of names.

Every application to the registrar¹ to approve a name for a ship² must specify a name which is in Roman letters; any numerals must be in Roman or Arabic numerals³.

In respect of an application to register a ship (other than a fishing vessel⁴) on Part I or IV of the register⁵, the registrar must not approve the proposed name if it is⁶:

- 469 (1) already the name of a registered British ship⁷; or
- 470 (2) a name so similar to that of a registered British ship as to be calculated to deceive or likely to confuse⁸;
- 471 (3) a name which may be confused with a distress signal⁹;
- 472 (4) a name which is prefixed by any letters or name which could be taken to indicate a type of ship or any other word, prefix or suffix which might cause confusion as to the name of the ship¹⁰.

In respect of an application to register a fishing vessel on Part II or IV of the register, the registrar must not approve the proposed name if it is¹¹:

- 473 (a) already the name of a vessel in its port of choice¹²; or
- 474 (b) a name so similar to that of a registered British fishing vessel¹³ in its port of choice as to be calculated to deceive or likely to confuse¹⁴;
- 475 (c) a name which may be confused with a distress signal¹⁵;
- 476 (d) a name which is prefixed by any letters or name which could be taken to indicate a type of ship or any other word, prefix or suffix which might cause confusion as to the name of the ship¹⁶.

If the registrar is satisfied that a name does not fall within heads (1) to (4) above or heads (a) to (d) above, he must notify the applicant in writing that the name is approved and that the ship may be registered with that name¹⁷. However, notwithstanding that the registrar is so satisfied as to the proposed name, he may refuse to approve a name which might cause offence or embarrassment or which has a clear and direct connection with the Royal family¹⁸.

Any approval so given by the registrar is valid only for the period of three months beginning with the date it is notified to the applicant¹⁹. If the registrar is not so satisfied, he must notify the applicant accordingly²⁰.

The registrar may allow the reservation of a ship's name or designation for a period of ten years²¹ if he is satisfied that²²:

- 477 (i) the ship is intended to replace another of the same name which is to be registered within ten years of the date of the application²³; and
- 478 (ii) the applicant is the owner²⁴ of a registered ship with the same name as that which is to be reserved and its British registration will be closed before the registration of the new vessel²⁵; or
- 479 (iii) the applicant is the owner of a registered ship with the same name as that which is to be reserved and it will be sold before the registration of the new vessel on condition that it changes its name and that its name is so changed²⁶.

Applications for such a reservation must be accompanied by a full statement of the circumstances of the case²⁷.

Where a ship having once been registered has ceased to be registered, no person (unless ignorant of the previous registration, proof whereof will lie on him) may apply for registration of the ship other than by the name by which it was previously registered except with the written permission of the registrar²⁸.

D. OFFICIAL NUMBER AND PORT OF CHOICE

279. Allocation of official number and port of choice.

On making an application for registration¹ of a ship², the applicant must specify one of the listed ports³ which it is intended shall be the ship's port of choice⁴.

On receipt of an application for registration of a ship for the first time, the registrar⁵, if he is satisfied that that ship is eligible to be registered, must⁶:

- 480 (1) allocate to the ship a register number ('official number')⁷;
- 481 (2) in the case of a fishing vessel, allocate a port number⁸, and must issue a carving and marking note⁹.

The registrar may, on request by a classification society¹⁰, allocate an official number to a ship notwithstanding that he is not yet satisfied as to its eligibility¹¹. Where a ship has had a number so allocated and that number has been carved into the ship's beam but the ship is not accepted as being eligible for registration, the number must be permanently defaced and a certificate to that effect provided by the classification society to the registrar¹².

1 As to the meaning of 'application for registration' see PARA 269 note 1.

2 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 4.

3 I.e. one of the ports listed in the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 31(1), Sch 2 Pt 1 or Pt 2, as is appropriate: see reg 31(1). The ports of choice for ships to be registered on Part I of the register are: Aberdeen; Aberystwyth; Alloa; Arbroath; Ardrossan; Ayr; Banff; Barnstaple; Barrow; Beaumaris; Belfast; Berwick-on-Tweed; Bideford; Blyth; Borrowstoness; Boston; Bridgwater; Bristol; Brixham; Buckie; Burntisland; Caernarvon; Campbeltown; Cardiff; Cardigan; Chester; Colchester; Coleraine; Cowes; Dartmouth; Dover; Dumfries; Dundee; Exeter; Falmouth; Faversham; Felixstowe; Fishguard; Fleetwood; Folkestone; Fowey; Fraserburgh; Glasgow; Gloucester; Goole; Grangemouth; Granton; Great Yarmouth; Greenock; Grimsby; Hartlepool; Hartlepool West; Harwich; Hull; Inverness; Ipswich; Irvine; King's Lynn; Kircaldy; Kirkwall; Lancaster; Leith; Lerwick; Littlehampton; Liverpool; Llanelli; London; Londonderry; Lowestoft; Maldon; Manchester; Maryport; Methil; Middlesbrough; Milford Haven; Montrose; Newcastle; Newhaven; Newport; Newry; North Shields; Padstow; Penzance; Peterhead; Plymouth; Poole; Portland; Port Talbot; Portsmouth; Preston; Ramsgate; Rochester; Runcorn; Rye; Salcombe; Scarborough; Scilly; Shoreham; South Shields; Southampton; St Ives; Stockton; Stornoway; Stranraer; Sunderland; Swansea; Teignmouth; Troon; Truro; Weymouth; Whitby; Whitehaven; Wick; Wigtown; Wisbech; and Workington: Sch 2 Pt 1 (amended by SI 1998/2976). As to the meaning of 'port of choice' see PARA 278 note 12. As to the meaning of 'register' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 1. Part I of the register is for ships, owned by qualified persons, which are not fishing vessels or registered on that Part which is restricted to small ships: see the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(1)(a); and PARA 255. As to the meaning of 'fishing vessel' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 7; and as to the meaning of 'small ship' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 6.

The ports for ships to be registered on Part II of the register (fishing vessels), the port letters appearing in parentheses, are: Aberdeen (A); Aberystwyth (AB); Alloa (AA); Arbroath (AH); Ardrossan (AD); Ayr (AR); Ballantrae (BA); Banff (BF); Barnstaple (BE); Barrow (BW); Beaumaris (BS); Belfast (B); Berwick-on-Tweed (BK); Bideford (BD); Blyth (BH); Borrowstoness (BO); Boston (BN); Bridgwater (BR); Bristol (BL); Brixham (BM); Broadford (BRD); Buckie (BCK); Burntisland (BU); Caernarvon (CO); Campbeltown (CN); Cardiff (CF); Cardigan (CA); Carlisle (CL); Castlebay, Barra (CY); Chester (CH); Colchester (CK); Coleraine (CE); Cowes (CS); Dartmouth (DH); Dover (DR); Dumfries (DS); Dundee (DE); Exeter (E); Falmouth (FH); Faversham (F); Fleetwood (FD); Folkestone (FE); Fowey (FY); Fraserburgh (FR); Glasgow (GW); Gloucester (GR); Goole (GE); Grangemouth (GH); Granton (GN); Great Yarmouth (YH); Greenock (GK); Grimsby (GY); Hartlepool (HL); Harwich (HH); Hull (H); Inverness (INS); Ipswich (IH); Irvine (IE); King's Lynn (LN); Kircaldy (KY); Kirkwall (K); Lancaster (LR); Leith (LH); Lerwick (LK); Littlehampton (LI); Liverpool (LL); Llanelli (LA); London (LO); Londonderry (LY); Lowestoft (LT); Maldon (MN); Manchester (MR); Maryport (MT); Methil (ML); Middlesbrough (MH); Milford Haven (M); Montrose (ME); Newcastle (NE); Newhaven (NN); Newport, Gwent (NT); Newry (N); Oban (OB); Padstow (PW); Penzance (PZ); Peterhead (PD); Plymouth (PH); Poole (PE); Portland (PO); Portsmouth (P); Port Talbot (PT); Preston (PN); Ramsgate (R); Rochester (RR); Rothesay (RO); Runcorn (RN); Rye (RX); St Ives (SS); Salcombe (SE); Scarborough (SH); Scilly (SC); Shields, North (SN); Shields, South (SSS); Shoreham (SM); Southampton (SU); Stockton (ST); Stornoway (SY); Stranraer (SR); Sunderland (SD); Swansea (SA); Tarbert, Loch Fyne (TT); Teignmouth (TH); Troon (TN); Truro (TO); Ullapool (UL); Weymouth (WH); Whitby (WY); Wick (WK); Wigtown (WN); Whitehaven (WA); Wisbech (WI); and Workington (WO): Sch 2 Pt 2 (amended by SI 1999/3206). 'Port letters' means the letters for the port of choice: Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2) (definition substituted by SI 1999/3206). Part II of the register is reserved for fishing vessels: see the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(1)(b); and PARA 255. As to the status of any Part II certificate under sea fisheries legislation see PARA 377.

The provisions of Sch 2 are applied also for the purposes of reg 72 (transfer of registration from relevant British possession) (as to which see PARA 342) and reg 79 (allocation to bareboat charter ship of port of choice and port numbers) (as to which see PARA 362).

4 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 31(1). Any reference in any Act other than the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 or in any other instrument made under any such other Act to the port of registration of the ship or the port to which the ship belongs is to be construed as a reference to the port of choice required to be marked by the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 31, reg 53 (see PARA 316), reg 72 (see PARA 342) or reg 79 (see PARA 362): reg 122; Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

5 As to the meaning of 'registrar' see PARA 255 note 2.

6 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 31(2).

7 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 31(2)(a).

8 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 31(2)(b) (substituted by SI 1999/3206). Accordingly, for these purposes, 'port number' means the number allocated for a fishing vessel within its port of choice under the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 31(2)(b), reg 53(2) (see PARA 316) or reg 79(2)(a) (see PARA 362): reg 1(2) (definition added by SI 1999/3206).

9 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 31(2).

10 For these purposes, 'classification society' means a person authorised to act as a 'certifying authority' for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping (Tonnage) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1510 (as to which see PARA 248): Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). Apart from any statutory requirements, it is established practice for shipowners to enter their vessels in one of the various classification societies of the world, of which the oldest is Lloyd's Register of Shipping. The classification is of importance to charterers and perhaps most particularly to marine insurers. As to Lloyd's see INSURANCE vol 25 (2003 Reissue) PARA 24.

E. CARVING AND MARKING

280. Carving and marking of ship on first registration.

On receipt of a carving and marking note on first registration¹, the owner² must:

- 482 (1) if the ship³ has not already been surveyed or measured⁴, cause it to be so surveyed or measured⁵;
- 483 (2) cause the ship to be carved and marked⁶;
- 484 (3) where required by the provisions which govern the inspection of marks⁷, cause the ship's carving and marking to be inspected by an inspector of marks⁸.

1 See PARA 279.

281. General requirements relating to carving and marking of ship.

Every ship¹ is required, before it may be registered, to be marked permanently and conspicuously to the satisfaction of the registrar² in accordance with the provisions which govern the carving and marking of ships³.

The Secretary of State⁴ may exempt any class of ship from all or any of the requirements relating to carving and marking⁵, subject to such conditions, if any, as he thinks fit⁶.

The name of a ship⁷ must be marked in Roman letters and any numerals must be in Roman or Arabic numerals⁸.

282. How ships other than fishing vessels and certain pleasure vessels are to be marked.

Subject to any exemption in respect of that class of ship¹, a ship other than a fishing vessel², or a pleasure vessel³ which is under 24 metres⁴, is to be marked as follows⁵:

- 485 (1) its name⁶ must be marked on each of its bows, and its name and its port of choice⁷ must be marked on its stern⁸;
- 486 (2) the marking is to be on a dark ground in white or yellow letters, or on a light ground in black letters, the letters being not less than ten centimetres high and of proportional breadth⁹; and
- 487 (3) its official number¹⁰ and the number denoting its registered tonnage¹¹ must be cut on its main beam or, if that is not possible, marked or fixed thereon in the manner prescribed¹² for pleasure vessels under 24 metres¹³.

283. How pleasure vessels under twenty-four metres in length are to be marked.

A pleasure vessel¹ which is under 24 metres in length is to be marked as follows²:

- 488 (1) the official number³ and registered tonnage⁴ are: (a) to be marked on the main beam or, if there is no main beam, on a readily accessible visible permanent part of the structure of the pleasure vessel either by cutting in, centre punching or raised lettering⁵; or (b) to be engraved on plates of metal, wood or plastic, secured to the main beam (or, if there is no main beam, to a readily accessible permanent part of the structure) with rivets, through bolts with the ends clenched, or screws with the slots removed⁶;
- 489 (2) the name⁷ and port of choice⁸, unless an exempted ship⁹, are to be marked on a conspicuous and permanent part of the stern on a dark ground in white or yellow letters, or on a light ground in black letters, the letters being not less than five centimetres high and of proportionate breadth, or, where this is not possible, by the alternative methods given as follows¹⁰: (a) by engraving on plates of metal or of plastic or by cutting in on a shaped wooden chock; where a shaped wooden chock is used, it should be secured to the hull through bolts, the ends being clenched¹¹; or (b) by individual glass reinforced plastic letters and numbers approximately two millimetres in thickness, these to be fixed to the hull with epoxy adhesive, and painted with suitable paint and coated with translucent epoxy resin¹²; (c) where metal or plastic plates have been used, these must be fixed by the use of epoxy adhesives; metal or plastic plates secured by adhesives should be coated with translucent epoxy resin after they have been fixed in position¹³.

A fishing vessel¹ is to be marked as follows²:

- 490 (1) the name of the vessel³ and the port of choice⁴ must be painted in white on a black background or in black on a white background outside the stern of the boat in letters which must not be less than eight centimetres in height and 1.5 centimetres in breadth⁵; and
- 491 (2) the port letters⁶ and the port number⁷ must be painted or displayed on both sides of the bow and on each quarter, as high above the water as possible so as to be clearly visible from the sea and the air, in white on a black background or black on a white background⁸;
- 492 (3) for vessels not over 17 metres in length, the height of the port letters and port number must be at least 25 centimetres with a line thickness of at least four centimetres⁹;
- 493 (4) for vessels over 17 metres in length, the height of the port letters and port number must be at least 45 centimetres with a line thickness of at least six centimetres¹⁰;
- 494 (5) the port letters and port number must in addition be painted or displayed on the wheel house top or some other prominent horizontal surface¹¹;
- 495 (6) the vessel's official number¹² must be carved into the main beam of the vessel or, if that is not possible, marked or fixed thereon in the manner prescribed¹³ for pleasure vessels under 24 metres in length¹⁴.

285. Marking of ship's draught.

A scale of decimetres, or metres and decimetres, denoting a draught of water must be marked on a ship¹, other than an exempted ship², on each side of its stem and its stern post, as follows³:

- 496 (1) in figures in two-decimetre intervals, if the scale is in decimetres⁴; and
- 497 (2) in figures at each metre interval and at intervening two-decimetre intervals, if the scale is in metres and decimetres⁵, the capital letter 'M' being placed after each metre figure; the top figure of the scale showing both the metre and (except where it marks a full metre interval) the decimetre figure; the lower line of the figures, or figures and letters, as the case may be, coinciding with the draught line denoted thereby; the figures and letters being not less than one decimetre in length and being marked by being cut in and painted white or yellow on a dark ground, or in any such other way as the Secretary of State approves⁶.

In respect of a ship¹, other than a pleasure vessel² which is under 24 metres in length, an inspector of marks³ must satisfy himself that the ship has been duly carved and marked⁴ and, when so satisfied, must complete the carving and marking note and return it to the registrar⁵. In respect of a fishing vessel⁶, the carving and marking note may also be returned to the local office⁷.

In respect of a pleasure vessel which is under 24 metres in length, the owner⁸ must certify that the ship has been duly carved and marked⁹ and return the certified carving and marking note to the registrar¹⁰.

287. Verification of measurement and carving and marking.

If the registrar¹ is not satisfied:

- 498 (1) that the particulars of the measurement and tonnage of the ship² or such other particulars describing the identity of the ship, as have been required by the Secretary of State³, furnished to him are correct⁴; or
- 499 (2) that the ship is carved and marked in the required manner⁵, he may direct the owner⁶ to have the measurement or other details and/or carving or marking of the vessel verified by an authorised measurer⁷ or inspector of marks⁸, as appropriate⁹.

If the owner fails to comply with the direction of the registrar, the registrar may:

- 500 (a) if the ship is not registered, refuse it registration until his direction has been complied with¹⁰; or
- 501 (b) if the ship is registered, serve notice on the owner or managing owner¹¹ or any charterer, manager or operator of the ship requiring him to produce evidence within 30 days sufficient to satisfy him that the particulars of the measurement and tonnage are, or that the marking of the ship is, correct¹².

If, at the expiry of that period of 30 days, the registrar is not so satisfied, he may:

- 502 (i) extend the notice and ask for further information¹³; or
- 503 (ii) serve a final notice which closes the ship's registration, such closure to be effected seven days after the service of that notice¹⁴.

Where a ship's registration is so closed, the owner of the ship must forthwith surrender its certificate of registry¹⁵.

Where the registrar serves such a notice on the owner of a ship in respect of which a mortgage is registered, he must send a copy of that notice to the mortgagee at the address recorded in the register¹⁶ for the mortgagee¹⁷.

F. COMPLETION OF REGISTRATION

289. Registration and refusal of registration of a ship.

Where a registrar¹ is satisfied in respect of an application that²:

- 504 (1) the ship³ is eligible to be registered as a British ship⁴; and
- 505 (2) the ship has been duly carved and marked⁵ and that the appropriate survey or measuring certificate has been provided⁶; and
- 506 (3) the particulars of the ship furnished to him are correct⁷; and
- 507 (4) title to the ship has been adequately proved, where necessary⁸; and
- 508 (5) the relevant requirements imposed by the statutory provisions governing the registration of ships⁹ have been complied with¹⁰, he must register the ship by entering in the register¹¹ the prescribed particulars¹² of the ship and its owners¹³. If the registrar is not so satisfied, he must¹⁴ refuse the application¹⁵.

The registrar may refuse to register any fishing vessel¹⁶ if he is not satisfied that there is in force as respects the vessel any certificate required to be so in force¹⁷ by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995¹⁸.

The registrar must refuse to register any vessel intending to fish in Community waters if that vessel has received a decommissioning grant or any other financial assistance from the European Commission or a member state¹⁹ on condition that it refrains from fishing in those waters or has been withdrawn from fishing as a condition of an award of a construction grant to another boat²⁰.

Notwithstanding that a ship is otherwise entitled to be registered, the registrar may refuse to register it if, taking into account any requirement of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, including any instrument made thereunder, relating to the condition of the ship or its equipment so far as it is relevant to its safety or to any risk of pollution or to the safety, health and welfare of persons employed or engaged in any capacity on board the ship, he considers that it would be inappropriate for the ship to be registered²¹.

295. Particulars to be registered about bareboat charter ships.

In addition to the information otherwise to be registered¹ in respect of ships² registered or to be registered on Part I of the register³ or in respect of fishing vessels registered or to be registered on Part II of the register⁴, the following is to be registered in respect of bareboat charter ships⁵:

- 563 (1) the name and address of the owner⁶;
- 564 (2) the name and address of the charterer⁷;
- 565 (3) the name and address of any representative person⁸;
- 566 (4) the unique number allocated to the ship for identification purposes by its primary register⁹;
- 567 (5) its country of original registration¹⁰;
- 568 (6) the commencement date of the charter period and its expiry date¹¹;
- 569 (7) the name by which the ship is known on the primary register (or a translation of that name)¹².

1 The information in the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 36(1), Sch 4 para 4 (as to which see PARA 293) or in Sch 4 para 5 (as to which see PARA 294): see Sch 4 para 6.

2 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 4.

3 As to the meaning of 'register' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 1. Part I of the register, as mentioned in the text, is for ships, owned by qualified persons, which are not fishing vessels or registered on that Part which is restricted to small ships: see the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(1)(a); and PARA 255. As to the meaning of 'fishing vessel' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 7; and as to the meaning of 'small ship' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 6.

4 Part II of the register, as mentioned in the text, is reserved for fishing vessels: see the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 2(1)(b); and PARA 255. As to the status of any Part II certificate under sea fisheries legislation see PARA 377.

296. Period of registration.

The registration of a ship¹ is valid, unless it is duly terminated², for a period of five years beginning with the date of registration specified in the certificate of registry³ and expires at the end of that period unless it is duly⁴ renewed⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 4.

2 Ie unless it is terminated under the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138: see reg 39 (amended by SI 1998/2976).

3 As to the meaning of 'certificate of registry' see PARA 255 note 17.

4 Ie unless it is renewed in accordance with the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 42 (as to which see PARA 305): see reg 39 (as amended: see note 2).

5 Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 39 (as amended: see note 2). Regulation 39 is expressed to be subject to the transitional provisions contained in reg 116, whose effect has now lapsed: see reg 39 (as so amended). As to the surrender of a certificate on the termination or expiry of registration see PARA 375.

297. Documents to be retained by the registrar.

On registering a ship¹, the registrar² must retain in his possession a copy of any builder's certificate³ or bill of sale or other evidence of title produced on first registration, any certificate of measurement or survey⁴ and all declarations of eligibility⁵.

On a fishing vessel⁶ changing from simple registration⁷ to full registration⁸, the registrar must retain in his possession a copy of the evidence adduced for that change⁹.

On registering a fishing vessel which has had its engine power permanently de-rated¹⁰, the registrar must retain in his possession the modification explanation¹¹ duly submitted to him¹².

All documents which have been produced to the registrar to establish title must be returned to the applicant once the ship has been registered¹³. The documents must be stamped by the registrar to indicate that they have been used for registration of a ship¹⁴.

301. Details contained in certificate of registry for a bareboat charter ship.

A certificate of bareboat charter registry¹ for ships² registered or to be registered on Part IV of the register³ must contain certain of the details prescribed for ships other than fishing vessels⁴ or, as the case may be, those prescribed for fishing vessels⁵, and the following⁶:

- 582 (1) the name and address of the charterer⁷;
- 583 (2) the unique number allocated to the ship for identification purposes by its primary register⁸;
- 584 (3) the country of primary registration⁹;
- 585 (4) the original name (or a translation thereof) if different from its registered name¹⁰.

1 As to the meanings of 'certificate of bareboat charter' and 'certificate of registry' see PARA 255 note 17.

CERTIFICATES OF REGISTRY; TEMPORARY REGISTRATION DOCUMENTS FOR FISHING VESSELS/303. Temporary registration documents for fishing vessels.

303. Temporary registration documents for fishing vessels.

The registrar¹ may, upon registering a fishing vessel², if the owner³ so requests, issue to the owner through a local office⁴ a temporary registration document⁵. The document must contain the registered particulars of the vessel and must specify the period, not exceeding two months, for which it is valid⁶.

During the period of its validity, a temporary registration document has the effect of a certificate of registry⁷.

H. RENEWAL OF REGISTRATION

304. Renewal notices and time limit for renewal.

At least three months (but not more than six months) before the expiry of the registration period¹ for a ship², the registrar³ must issue to the ship's owner⁴ a renewal notice⁵.

The owner may apply for renewal at any time between the date of issue of the renewal notice and the date of expiry of the current registration period⁶. Notwithstanding this, an application for renewal may be made prior to the last three months of the current registration (or issue of a renewal notice), for issue of a certificate of registry⁷ commencing prior to the expiry of the current registration period⁸. Where such a certificate is issued, it is not valid for a period greater than five years commencing on that date of issue and the previous certificate then ceases to be valid⁹.

305. Application for renewal of registration.

Application for renewal of a ship's registration¹ must be in a form approved by the Secretary of State² and must be accompanied by³:

- 586 (1) a declaration of eligibility⁴; and
- 587 (2) a declaration that there have been no changes to any registered details of the ship that have not been notified to the registrar⁵.

In respect of certain fishing vessels⁶, there must also be a declaration that the fishing vessel is correctly measured for tonnage under the tonnage regulations⁷; and, in the case of an application for renewal in respect of a fishing vessel, the application must in addition be accompanied by⁸: (a) where an engine has been permanently de-rated⁹, a declaration describing the method by which the engine has been permanently de-rated¹⁰; or (b) in any other case, a declaration that the engine power recorded is the maximum continuous engine power¹¹.

Where no application for renewal is made, the registrar must notify each and every mortgagee of the expiration of the ship's registration¹².

I. TRANSFERS ETC OF REGISTERED SHIPS

306. In general.

Any transfer of a registered ship¹, or a share in such a ship, must be effected by a bill of sale satisfying the prescribed² requirements, unless the transfer will result in the ship ceasing to have a British connection³. Where any such ship or share has been so transferred, the transferee must not be registered as owner of the ship or share unless:

- 588 (1) he has made the prescribed application to the registrar⁴; and
- 589 (2) the registrar is satisfied that the ship retains a British connection and that he would not refuse to register the ship⁵.

If such an application is granted by the registrar, the registrar must register the bill of sale in the prescribed manner⁶. Bills of sale must be registered in the order in which they are produced to the registrar for the purposes of registration⁷.

Where a registered ship, or a share in a registered ship, is transmitted to any person by any lawful means other than a transfer by way of bill of sale⁸ and the ship continues to have a British connection, that person may not be registered as owner of the ship or share unless⁹:

- 590 (a) he has made the prescribed application to the registrar¹⁰; and
- 591 (b) the registrar is satisfied that the ship retains a British connection and that he would not refuse to register the ship¹¹.

If such an application is granted by the registrar, the registrar must cause the applicant's name to be registered as owner of the ship or share¹².

Where the property in a registered ship or share in a registered ship is transmitted to any person by any lawful means other than a transfer by way of bill of sale¹³, but as a result the ship no longer has a British connection, the High Court may, on application by or on behalf of that person, order a sale of the property so transmitted and direct that the proceeds of sale, after deducting the expenses of the sale, are to be paid to that person or otherwise as the court directs¹⁴. The court may require any evidence in support of the application it thinks requisite, and may make the order on any terms and conditions it thinks just, or may refuse to make the order, and generally may act in the case as the justice of the case requires¹⁵. Every such application must be made within the period of 28 days beginning with the date of the occurrence of the event on which the transmission has taken place, or within such further time, not exceeding one year, as the court may allow¹⁶. If such an application is not made within the time so allowed¹⁷, or if the court refuses an order for sale¹⁸, the ship or share transmitted is liable to forfeiture¹⁹.

Where any court²⁰ orders the sale of any registered ship or share in a registered ship, the order of the court must contain a declaration vesting in some named person the right to transfer the ship or share²¹. The person so named is entitled to transfer the ship or share in the same manner and to the same extent as if he were the registered owner of the ship or share²². The registrar must deal with any application relating to the transfer of the ship or share made by the person so named as if that person were the registered owner²³.

The High Court may, if it thinks fit (without prejudice to the exercise of any other power), on the application of any interested person, make an order prohibiting for a specified time any dealing with a registered ship or share in a registered ship²⁴. The court may make the order on any terms or conditions it thinks just, or may refuse to make the order, or may discharge the order when made, with or without costs, and generally may act in the case as the justice of the case requires²⁵. The order, when a copy is served on the registrar, is binding on him, whether or not he was made a party to the proceedings²⁶.

Where the transfer of a vessel (whether British or not) is a sham, the original owner will retain beneficial ownership²⁷.

307. Evidence of title on registration of transfer of ship by way of bill of sale.

On application for registration¹ of a transfer of a registered ship² (or a share in a registered ship) by way of bill of sale, other than a fishing vessel³ registered with simple registration⁴, the bill of sale must be produced to the registrar⁵.

When an application is made for the registration of a transfer of a fishing vessel which is registered with simple registration, evidence of the transfer satisfactory to the registrar must be produced to him⁶.

1 On an application under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 16(1), Sch 1 para 2(1) (see PARA 306): see the Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 43(1); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). 309. Registration of transfer of a ship by way of bill of sale.

If the application for the transfer of a ship¹ (or of shares in a ship) by way of bill of sale² is granted by the registrar³, he must⁴:

- 592 (1) register the bill of sale by entering the name of the new owner⁵ in the register⁶ as owner of the ship or share in question⁷; and
- 593 (2) endorse on the bill of sale the fact that the entry has been made, together with the date and time when it was made⁸.

If the registrar is satisfied with the evidence that the ship or share in the ship has been transferred⁹, he must enter the name of the new owner in the register as the owner of the ship or share in question and issue a new certificate, which is valid for a period of five years¹⁰.

1 For these purposes, 'transfer of a ship' includes, except where the context otherwise requires, transfer of a share in a ship: Merchant Shipping (Registration of Ships) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/3138, reg 1(2). As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 4.

310. Evidence of title on registration of ship transmitted other than by way of bill of sale.

An application for registration¹ of a transmission of a registered ship² (or a share in a registered ship) other than by way of bill of sale³ must be made in the form approved by the Secretary of State⁴.

The following evidence must be produced to the registrar⁵ on an application for a transfer of a registered ship or share therein by way of transmission⁶:

- 594 (1) if the transmission was consequent on death, the grant of representation⁷ or an office copy thereof or of an extract therefrom⁸;
- 595 (2) if the transmission was consequent on bankruptcy, such evidence as is for the time being receivable in courts of justice as proof of title of persons claiming under bankruptcy⁹;
- 596 (3) if the transmission was consequent on an order of the court, a copy of the order or judgment of that court¹⁰.

312. Refusal of registration of transfer or transmission.

If, on an application for transfer or transmission of a ship (or shares) in a ship¹, the registrar² is not satisfied that the ship is eligible to be registered, then³:

- 597 (1) the registrar must serve a notice on the owner⁴ of the ship⁵ stating: (a) that the registrar is not satisfied that the vessel in question is eligible to be registered⁶; and (b) that the ship's registration will accordingly terminate at the end of the period mentioned in head (2) below⁷; and
- 598 (2) the ship's registration terminates at the end of the period of 14 days beginning with the date of the service of that notice⁸.

1 As to an application for the transfer of a registered ship (or shares therein) see the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 16(1), Sch 1 para 2; and PARA 306. As to an application for the transmission of a registered ship (or shares therein) see Sch 1 para 3; and PARA 306. As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 255 note 4.

2 As to the meaning of 'registrar' see PARA 255 note 2.

J. NOTIFICATION OF CHANGES

313. Notification of changes of ownership etc.

If at any time there occurs, in relation to a registered ship¹:

- 599 (1) any change affecting the eligibility of the ship to be registered, not being a change which affects the qualification or eligibility of the owner² or the British connection of a ship³; or
- 600 (2) in respect of a fishing vessel⁴, any change, not affecting that eligibility, in the percentage of the property in the ship beneficially owned⁵ by qualified persons or companies⁶, the owner of the ship must, as soon as practicable after the change occurs, notify the registrar⁷. Such notification must be made in writing, must be signed by the owner and must specify the nature of the change and the name and the official number of the ship⁸. Any person who contravenes the requirement to notify the registrar of such changes as are mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above is guilty of an offence⁹.

Where there is any transfer or transmission of a registered ship or share in a registered ship¹⁰:

- 601 (a) the person ceasing to own the ship or share (or in the event of his death, his legal personal representative) must notify the registrar and surrender the certificate of registry¹¹; and
- 602 (b) the registrar must cancel the certificate of registry and must freeze¹² the register pending the application for the registration of the transfer or transmission by the new owner or owners of the ship or share¹³.

Where there is a transfer of a registered ship, the new owners must within 30 days of the transfer make application¹⁴ for the transfer to be registered¹⁵. If the transfer is of all the shares in the ship, and application is not made within the 30 days, the registrar may cancel the registration of the ship and the certificate of registry¹⁶. If the transfer is of one or some of the shares in the ship, and application is not made within the 30 days, the registrar must serve a notice on the remaining registered owners notifying them that, unless an application to transfer the share or shares in question is made within 30 days of the date of the notice, the registration of the ship and the certificate of registry may be cancelled¹⁷.

Where there is a transmission of a registered ship, the new owners must promptly make application¹⁸ for the transmission to be registered¹⁹. If the transmission is all the shares in the ship, and application is not made within a reasonable time, the registrar may cancel the registration of the ship and the certificate of registry²⁰. If the transmission is of one or some of the shares in the ship, and application is not made within a reasonable time, the registrar must serve a notice on the remaining registered owners notifying them that, unless an application to register the transmission of the share or shares in question is made within 30 days of the date of the notice, the registration of the ship and the certificate of registry may be cancelled²¹.

Any person who fails to so notify the registrar, to so surrender the certificate of registry, or to make the required applications²² in relation to the transfer or transmission of a registered ship (or share therein) is guilty of an offence²³.

Where such an application is made²⁴ to register a change of ownership of a registered fishing vessel (or share in such vessel)²⁵, the applicant must submit details of the maximum continuous engine power²⁶ and, where an engine is permanently de-rated²⁷, the modification explanation²⁸. Any owner who contravenes this requirement is guilty of an offence²⁹.

314. Change in registered particulars of ship.

Where there is a change:

- 603 (1) in the registered particulars of a ship¹ (other than a change in the tonnage of the ship)²; or
- 604 (2) in the name or address of an owner³ entered in the register⁴ (not being a change of ownership)⁵, application must be made as soon as practicable to the registrar⁶ for the change to be recorded in the register⁷. Such application must be in writing and must be accompanied⁸ by the certificate of registry⁹ and such evidence as to the change as may be required by the registrar¹⁰.

Where there is a change in the tonnage of a ship, it must be¹¹ resurveyed or remeasured¹². Thereafter application in a form approved by the Secretary of State¹³ must be made as soon as practicable for the change to be recorded in the register¹⁴. The application must be accompanied by the certificate of survey or measurement and the certificate of registry¹⁵.

On recording the change in the registered particulars, the registrar must cancel the existing certificate and issue to the owner a new certificate of registry expiring on the same date as the existing one¹⁶.

Where such an application is made¹⁷ to record a change in the length, breadth or engine power of a registered fishing vessel¹⁸, the applicant must submit details of the maximum continuous engine power¹⁹ and, where an engine is permanently de-rated²⁰, the modification explanation²¹. Any owner who contravenes this requirement is guilty of an offence²².

K. CHANGE OF NAME; TRANSFER OF PORT OF CHOICE

315. Change of name.

An owner¹ of a registered ship² may apply to the registrar³ to change the name of the ship⁴. The application must be made in a form approved by the Secretary of State⁵ and must be accompanied⁶ by the certificate of registry⁷. If it appears to the registrar that the name complies with the requirements relating to the approval of names⁸, he must issue a marking note to the owner⁹.

On receipt of the marking note, the owner must cause the ship to be marked with the new name and, in respect of ships over 24 metres and fishing vessels¹⁰, must cause the marking to be duly¹¹ inspected¹². The owner or inspector¹³ must, if satisfied that the ship is marked in the prescribed manner¹⁴, complete the marking note and return it to the registrar¹⁵.

On receipt of the marking note duly completed, the registrar must re-register the ship with its new name and must cancel the existing certificate and must issue to the owner a new certificate of registry expiring on the same date as the existing one¹⁶.

316. Transfer of port of choice.

An owner¹ of a registered ship² may apply to the registrar³ for the ship to change its port of choice⁴ to another such port⁵. The application must be made in a form approved by the Secretary of State⁶ and must be accompanied⁷ by its certificate of registry⁸.

On receipt of such an application in respect of a fishing vessel⁹, the registrar must allocate to the vessel port letters¹⁰ and numbers¹¹ for that port¹². If it appears to the registrar that the requirements relating to the approval of names¹³ are complied with, he must issue a marking note¹⁴.

On receipt of the marking note, the owner must cause the ship to be marked with the new port of choice and, in respect of ships over 24 metres and fishing vessels, must cause the marking to be duly¹⁵ inspected¹⁶. The owner or inspector¹⁷ must, if satisfied that the ship is marked in the prescribed manner¹⁸, complete the marking note and return it to the registrar¹⁹.

On receipt of the marking note duly completed, the registrar must re-register the ship with its new port of choice and must cancel the existing certificate and must issue to the owner a new certificate of registry expiring on the same date as the existing one²⁰.

L. TERMINATION OF SHIP'S REGISTRATION

317. Removal from the register.

The registrar¹ may² terminate a ship's³ registration in the following circumstances⁴:

- 605 (1) on application by the owner⁵;
- 606 (2) if the registered owner has not notified the registrar that ownership of the ship has changed⁶;
- 607 (3) on the ship no longer being eligible to be registered⁷;
- 608 (4) on the ship being destroyed (which includes, but is not limited to, shipwreck, demolition, fire and sinking)⁸;
- 609 (5) if, taking into account any requirements of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, including any instrument made thereunder, relating to the condition of the ship or its equipment so far as relevant to its safety or to any risk of pollution or to the safety, health and welfare of persons employed or engaged in any capacity on board the ship, he considers that it would be inappropriate for the ship to remain registered⁹;
- 610 (6) when a registered fishing vessel¹⁰ which has been licensed to fish ceases to be so licensed for a continuous period of six months or more¹¹;
- 611 (7) when a fishing vessel which requires a licence to fish but at the time of registration did not have such a licence and has not acquired such a licence within six months of the issue of its certificate of registry¹²;
- 612 (8) when any penalty imposed on the owner of a ship in respect of a contravention¹³ of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, or of any instrument in force thereunder, has remained unpaid for a period of more than three months, and no appeal against that penalty is pending¹⁴;
- 613 (9) when any summons for any such contravention has been duly served on the owner of a ship but the owner has failed to appear at the time and place appointed for the trial of the information or complaint in question and a period of not less than three months has elapsed since that time¹⁵;
- 614 (10) when the tonnage of certain fishing vessels¹⁶ has not been duly measured¹⁷ (or though so measured, that information has not been notified to the registrar)¹⁸;
- 615 (11) where the owner of a fishing vessel fails to respond to the registrar within 15 days of a request from him to supply information concerning details on the register¹⁹ of a fishing vessel²⁰;
- 616 (12) where the owner of a fishing vessel supplies information requested by the registrar, but that information is either false or incorrect, or is reasonably considered by the registrar to be insufficient²¹;
- 617 (13) where a fishing vessel certificate²² has expired²³;
- 618 (14) where²⁴ a person is required to notify the registrar of any transfer or transmission of a registered ship or share in a registered ship (or to make an application to do so) and has not done so²⁵; or
- 619 (15) where²⁶ a person is required to make an application for any change in the registered particulars of a ship or in the name or address of an owner to be recorded in the register, and has not done so²⁷.

Where it appears to the registrar that head (2) or head (3) above, or any of heads (5) to (15) above, applies, he may serve notice on the owner or managing owner²⁸, or on any charterer, manager or operator of the ship requiring him to produce, within 30 days, evidence (which may include a declaration of British connection²⁹) sufficient to satisfy him that the ship is eligible to remain on the register³⁰. If, at the expiry of that period of 30 days, the registrar is not so satisfied, he may either: (a) extend the notice and ask for further information or evidence³¹; or (b) serve a final notice which closes the ship's registration, such closure to take effect seven days after the service of that notice³². Where a ship's registration is so terminated, the registrar must issue a closure transcript³³ and the owner of the ship must forthwith surrender its certificate of registry³⁴.

Where the registrar terminates registration under head (1) or (4) above, he must forthwith issue a closure transcript to the owner of the ship and notify any mortgagees of the closure of the registration³⁵. The registrar must issue a closure transcript also when he terminates registration under head (10) above³⁶. On receipt of the closure transcript, the owner must immediately surrender the ship's certificate of registry to the registrar for cancellation³⁷.

Where the registration of a fishing vessel has been terminated by virtue of head (3) above, the ship may not again be registered³⁸ as a British ship³⁹ unless⁴⁰: (i) the registrar consents to the vessel being so registered⁴¹; or (ii) the registrar is satisfied that the vessel has been disposed of by its former registered owner by means of a transaction at arm's length and that no person who for the time being is a relevant owner⁴² of the vessel was a relevant owner of it at the time registration was terminated⁴³.

A. CREATION OF MORTGAGES

318. Mortgages of registered ships.

A registered ship¹ (or share in a registered ship) may be made a security for the repayment of a loan or the discharge of any other obligation².

The instrument creating any such security (a 'mortgage') must be in the form prescribed by or approved under registration regulations³. Where a mortgage executed in this way is produced to the registrar⁴, he must register the mortgage in the prescribed manner⁵.

Mortgages must be registered in the order in which they are produced to the registrar for the purposes of registration⁶.

319. Form of mortgage.

A mortgage¹ produced for registration under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995², a transfer of a registered mortgage³ and a discharge of a registered mortgage⁴, must be in a form approved by the Secretary of State⁵, in each case with appropriate attestation⁶.

321. Priority of registered mortgages.

The rights of unregistered mortgagees are postponed to those of registered mortgagees, even though the date of the unregistered mortgage is antecedent to that of the registered mortgage¹, and even though the existence of the unregistered mortgage was known to the registered mortgagee when he took his mortgage². The rights of the unregistered mortgagee are also postponed to those of a purchaser in good faith for value without notice from the legal owner³, and to those of all persons with prior equities⁴.

Where, under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, two or more mortgages⁵ are registered in respect of the same ship⁶ or share, the priority of the mortgagees between themselves must be determined by the order in which the mortgages were registered, and not by reference to any other matter⁷. Where two or more mortgagees are registered in respect of the same ship or share, a subsequent mortgagee may not, except under an order of a court of competent jurisdiction, sell the ship without the concurrence of every prior mortgagee⁸. Registration regulations⁹ may, however, provide for the giving to the registrar by intending mortgagees of 'priority notices' in a form prescribed by or approved under the regulations which, when recorded in the register¹⁰, determine the priority of the interest to which the notice relates¹¹.

A mortgagee of a ship or share¹² has priority over the judgment creditors of the mortgagor¹³, even though such creditors have a right in rem¹⁴. A registered mortgagee is entitled to the possession of the ship in priority to a subsequent purchaser without notice¹⁵ and to a previous purchaser who has failed to register his title¹⁶.

The rights of mortgagees are deferred to those of persons having either possessory¹⁷ or maritime¹⁸ liens.

2 Black v Williams [1895] 1 Ch 408. Where a registered mortgagee has taken possession of ship and freight, he will be entitled to reimburse himself not only for his advances on the ship, but also for any advances he may have made on the freight without notice of other equitable charges: Liverpool Marine Credit Co v Wilson (1872) 7 Ch App 507, 1 Asp MLC 323.

3 See Barclay & Co Ltd v Poole [1907] 2 Ch 284, 10 Asp MLC 574. The rights of a legal mortgagee of a registered American ship who agreed with his mortgagor to conceal the mortgage in order to facilitate the sale of the ship in England were also postponed: Hooper v Gumm (1862) 2 John & H 602.

In certain circumstances the priorities as between registered mortgages may not depend on the dates, and in such cases the statutory provisions do not apply. Thus, a first mortgagee whose mortgage is taken to cover future advances cannot claim over a second mortgagee the benefit of advances made after he has notice of the second mortgage: The Benwell Tower (1895) 8 Asp MLC 13. A first registered mortgagee who enters into a subsequent mortgage agreement contained in a separate unregistered document will be postponed in respect of advances made under his unregistered mortgage to a second registered mortgagee, even though the latter had notice of the prior unregistered mortgage: Parr v Applebee (1855) 24 LJ Ch 767. Where a second mortgagee unsuccessfully disputes the claim of the first mortgagee, he will have to pay the costs of the dispute: The Volant (1864) Brown & Lush 321; The Western Ocean (1870) LR 3 A & E 38.

8 See the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 1 para 9(2); and PARA 333. This provision refers only to registered mortgagees; quare whether unregistered mortgagees are within the principle. When a first mortgagee takes possession of the ship and freight, he may satisfy his own debt, and will then hold the balance for the benefit of subsequent mortgagees: Tanner v Heard (1857) 23 Beav 555; The Benwell Tower (1895) 8 Asp MLC 13. If there is such a balance, the first mortgagee becomes a trustee of the surplus proceeds and, if he retains them or converts them to his own use, the Limitation Act 1980 cannot be set up as a bar to a claim against him whether the trust is express or constructive: see s 21(1)(b); cf LIMITATION PERIODS; and Banner v Berridge (1881) 18 ChD 254, 4 Asp MLC 420 (decided when such a bar could be set up in favour of a constructive trustee but not in favour of an express trustee).

As to statutory rights in rem see PARA 1023; and as to possessory lien see PARA 1024. A mortgagee under a French hypothèque, although he has not the same right of property as under an English mortgage, has a right to arrest the ship in the hands of a subsequent owner. Since such a right resembles a maritime lien, the mortgagee is entitled under the lex fori to priority over suppliers of goods and materials etc: The Colorado [1923] P 102, 16 Asp MLC 145, CA.

Registered purchasers of shares are entitled, where they have contracted to do so, to apply the purchase money to paying off the ship's debts in priority to paying off an unregistered mortgage debt: Barclay & Co Ltd v Poole [1907] 2 Ch 284, 10 Asp MLC 574.

17 Williams v Allsup (1861) 10 CBNS 417; The Scio (1867) LR 1 A & E 353. Mortgagees, however, get their costs in priority to 'material men': The Sherbro (1883) 5 Asp MLC 88.

The principle applies even though the bond has been incurred in the course of a voyage taken in fraudulent breach of a contract existing between a mortgagor and mortgagee (The Mary Ann (1865) LR 1 A & E 8), or in the case of a master suing for wages or disbursements, even when appointed by the mortgagor (The Mary Ann; The Feronia (1868) LR 2 A & E 65; The Ripon City [1897] P 226, 8 Asp MLC 304). The priority does not extend to any part of the mortgage debt personally guaranteed by the master: The Bangor Castle (1896) 8 Asp MLC 156. The master's right of priority does not extend to the recovery of the amount of a bond which he has been forced to enter into by reason of his own negligent navigation: The Limerick (1876) 1 PD 411, 3 Asp MLC 206, CA. 322. Notices by intending mortgagees; priority notices.

Where any person who is an intending mortgagee under a proposed mortgage of a registered ship¹ (or of a share in a registered ship)² notifies the registrar³ of the interest which it is intended that he should have under the proposed mortgage, the registrar must record that interest⁴. The notice to the registrar for these purposes must be in a form approved by the Secretary of State and must contain the name⁵ and official number of the ship⁶, the name, address and signature of the intending mortgagor, the number of shares to be mortgaged, and the name and address of the intending mortgagee⁷.

Where any person who is an intending mortgagee under a proposed mortgage of a ship which is not for the time being registered⁸ (or of a share in any such ship)⁹ notifies the registrar in writing of the interest which it is intended that he should have under the proposed mortgage¹⁰, the registrar must record that interest in the register¹¹ and, if the ship is subsequently registered, must register the ship subject to that interest (or, if the mortgage has by then been duly executed¹² and produced to the registrar, subject to that mortgage)¹³. Such notice must be in a form approved by the Secretary of State and must contain the following information¹⁴:

- 620 (1) the present name of the ship¹⁵;
- 621 (2) the intended name of the ship¹⁶;
- 622 (3) the approximate length of the ship¹⁷;
- 623 (4) where the ship is registered outside the United Kingdom¹⁸, a copy of its certificate of registry¹⁹ or other document evidencing its registration and giving its port of registration²⁰;
- 624 (5) where the ship is a new ship, the builder's certificate²¹ (or, if that is not available, the name and address of the builder and the ship's yard number)²²;
- 625 (6) where the ship is neither a new ship nor a registered ship, details of any permanent marks on the ship which enable it to be clearly identified²³;
- 626 (7) the name, address and signature of the intending mortgagor, the number of shares to be mortgaged, and the name and address of the intending mortgagee²⁴.

Any notification so given by a person²⁵, and anything done as a result of it, ceases to have effect²⁶: (a) if the notification is withdrawn²⁷; or (b) at the end of the period of 30 days beginning with the date of the notification, unless the notification is duly²⁸ renewed²⁹.

The person by whom any such notification is given may renew or further renew the notification on each occasion for a period of 30 days, by notice in writing given to the registrar before the end of the period mentioned in head (b) above³⁰ or before the end of a period of renewal³¹, as the case may be³².

In a case where the private law provisions relating to the priority of mortgages³³ operate to determine the priority between two or more mortgages³⁴ and where any of those mortgagees gave notification³⁵ with respect to his mortgage³⁶, those private law provisions have effect in relation to that mortgage as if it had been registered at the time when the relevant entry was made³⁷ in the register³⁸.

B. TRANSFER AND TRANSMISSION OF REGISTERED MORTGAGES

323. Transfer of registered mortgage.

A registered mortgage¹ may be transferred by an instrument made in the form prescribed² by or approved under registration regulations³.

Where any such instrument is produced to the registrar⁴, the registrar must register the transferee in the prescribed manner⁵.

TRANSFER AND TRANSMISSION OF REGISTERED MORTGAGES/324. Transmission of registered mortgage by operation of law.

324. Transmission of registered mortgage by operation of law.

Where the interest of a mortgagee in a registered mortgage¹ is transmitted to any person by any lawful means other than by a transfer², the registrar³ must, on production of the prescribed⁴ evidence, cause the name of that person to be entered in the register⁵ as mortgagee of the ship⁶ or share in question⁷.

325. Evidence of transmission of mortgage.

On the application for registration¹ of a transmission of a registered mortgage², the evidence to be produced to the registrar³ is:

- 627 (1) a declaration of transmission of mortgage in a form approved by the Secretary of State⁴; and
- 628 (2) if the transmission was consequent on death, the grant of representation⁵ (or any office copy thereof or an extract therefrom)⁶; or, if the transmission was consequent on bankruptcy, such evidence as is for the time being receivable in courts of justice as proof of title of persons claiming under bankruptcy⁷; or, if the transmission was consequent on an order of a court, a copy of the order of that court⁸.

326. Transfer or transmission of registered mortgage.

Where a transfer of a registered mortgage under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995¹, or evidence of a transmission of a registered mortgage², is produced to the registrar³, he must⁴:

- 629 (1) enter the name of the transferee (or the name of the person to whom the mortgage has been transmitted) in the register⁵ as mortgagee of the ship⁶ or share in question⁷;

C. MORTGAGEE'S RIGHTS AND POWERS

327. In general.

The rights of mortgagees of ships are, so far as the special nature of the security permits, governed by the rules of law laid down in respect of the mortgages of other chattels¹. However, as a ship differs in many respects from other forms of security², these rights have been the subject of special statutory enactments and numerous decisions³.

328. Protection of registered mortgagees.

Where a ship¹ or share is subject to a registered mortgage² then³:

- 631 (1) except so far as may be necessary for making the ship or share available as a security for the mortgage debt, the mortgagee is not by reason of the mortgage to be treated as owner of the ship or share⁴; and
- 632 (2) the mortgagor is to be treated as not having ceased to be owner of the ship or share⁵.

The result is that, while as between the parties to the mortgage the property in the ship has passed⁶, so far as regards third persons, the mortgagor remains in charge with regard to everything connected with the employment of the ship⁷, and the mortgagee is protected from liabilities connected with her⁸.

329. Injunction at suit of charterer against mortgagees out of possession.

An injunction may be granted at the suit of the charterers from a mortgagor of a ship to restrain registered mortgagees who are out of possession¹ from dealing with the ship in any manner which may interfere with the execution of the charterparty, provided that it is not shown that the charterparty is in any way prejudicial to the sufficiency of the mortgagees' security². If, however, the charterparty impairs their security, the mortgagees are not bound by it³.

330. Mortgagee's right to possession.

The chief right of a mortgagee of a ship¹, or of a majority of shares in a ship, is the right in proper circumstances to take possession. This he may do even before any part of the mortgage debt is due² if his security is being impaired³ in some material way⁴.

Possession may be either actual or constructive. Actual possession may be taken either by putting a person in possession without the assistance of the court, or by the arrest of the ship in a mortgagee's action⁵. To obtain constructive possession the mortgagee must clearly indicate his intention to assume the rights of ownership⁶.

Where the mortgagee is justified in taking possession, and in so doing has been compelled to pay off claims for wages or disbursements, or to incur other expenses to avoid the exercise of a maritime lien⁷ by third persons, he can recover the amount expended from the mortgagor⁸.

1 Japp v Campbell (1887) 57 LJQB 79. As to the position of mortgagor and mortgagee generally see PARA 328.

3 The Blanche (1887) 6 Asp MLC 272; The Manor [1907] P 339, 10 Asp MLC 446, CA. The security may be impaired by the action of the mortgagor himself, eg by the carriage of contraband (Law Guarantee and Trust Society v Russian Bank for Foreign Trade [1905] 1 KB 815, 10 Asp MLC 41, CA), or by so working the ship as to render her constantly liable to arrest (The Manor), or by the action of other persons, such as creditors, who may desire to seize the ship (Dickinson v Kitchen (1858) 8 E & B 789). See also The Lord Strathcona [1925] P 143, 16 Asp MLC 536; Jackson v Vernon (1789) 1 Hy Bl 114; Baker v Buckle (1822) 7 Moore CP 349; Briggs v Wilkinson (1827) 7 B & C 30; The Celtic King [1894] P 175, 7 Asp MLC 400; The Myrto [1977] 2 Lloyd's Rep 243 (on appeal [1978] 1 Lloyd's Rep 11, CA). 4 It is not enough merely to show that the enforcement of the security is about to be rendered difficult by the removal of the ship from the jurisdiction: The Fanchon (1880) 5 PD 173, 4 Asp MLC 272. Nor will the mortgagee be entitled to bail in such a case (The Highlander (1843) 2 Wm Rob 109); nor is it enough to show that the ship is not profitably employed (Keith v Burrows (1877) 2 App Cas 636, 3 Asp MLC 481, HL). 7 As to maritime liens see PARA 1014 et seq.

8 The mortgagee recovers on the principle that he has paid a debt for which another was liable by compulsion of law: Johnson v Royal Mail Steam Packet Co (1867) LR 3 CP 38; The Orchis (1890) 15 PD 38, 6 Asp MLC 501, CA; The Heather Bell [1901] P 272, 9 Asp MLC 206, CA. As to this principle generally see RESTITUTION vol 40(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 63 et seq. The principle appears to cover both the payment off of claims for wages and of those for disbursements: The Blazer (6 February 1911, unreported). It appears that the correct course for a mortgagee who has paid off liens or who desires to do so is to obtain leave from the court to stand in the shoes of the lien holder as against the mortgagor: The Blazer. To what extent the mortgagee may recover in rem money so paid in addition to the mortgage debt seems doubtful: The Cornelia Henrietta (1866) LR 1 A & E 51; The St Lawrence (1880) 5 PD 250; The Tagus [1903] P 44, 9 Asp MLC 371. Mortgagees of shares in a ship will not be held liable to contribute to the paying off of liens by other part owners, and will not be held impliedly to have authorised such payment merely from the fact that their property may have been thereby benefited: The Ripon City [1898] P 78, 8 Asp MLC 391.

331. General position of mortgagee in possession.

On taking possession¹, the mortgagee becomes entitled to enjoy any contractual rights relating to the employment of the ship into which the mortgagor may have entered². The mortgagee, in addition to being liable for expenses incurred in the future working of the ship³, is, however, bound⁴ to perform contractual duties incurred by the mortgagor which are of a kind usually incurred by a person who has the apparent ownership and control of a vessel⁵, provided that such engagements relate solely to the future⁶ and are not of such a nature as to impair the security⁷.

Until the mortgagee takes possession¹, the earnings of the ship, apart from special stipulation, remain the property of the mortgagor², but, directly the mortgagee takes possession, he becomes entitled to all the freight³ not already due and payable⁴. When the freight has once come into the mortgagor's hands, the mortgagee, unless by some right other than that afforded by the mere mortgage⁵, cannot recover it from him⁶.

333. Registered mortgagee's power of sale.

A registered mortgagee¹ in possession has complete control over the ship².

Every registered mortgagee has power, if the mortgage money or any part of it is due, to sell the ship³ or share in respect of which he is registered, and to give effectual receipts for the purchase money⁴. However, where two or more mortgagees are registered in respect of the same ship or share, a subsequent mortgagee may not, except under an order of a court of competent jurisdiction⁵, sell the ship or share without the concurrence of every prior mortgagee⁶.

A mortgagee may recover the expenses of the sale from the mortgagor⁷.

An assignee of freight¹ has no rights as against a first mortgagee who has taken possession of freight by virtue of his mortgage², unless the assigned freight became due and payable before possession was taken³; but the assignee of freight has priority over a second mortgagee, even though he has taken the assignment with notice of the second mortgage⁴. D. DISCHARGE OF REGISTERED MORTGAGES

335. Discharge of mortgages.

Where a registered mortgage¹ has been discharged, the registrar² must, on production of the mortgage deed and with such evidence of the discharge as may be prescribed³, cause an entry to be made in the register⁴ to the effect that the mortgage has been discharged⁵.

If for good reason the registered mortgage cannot be produced to the registrar, he may, on being satisfied that the mortgage has been properly discharged, record in the register that the mortgage has been discharged⁶.

339. Certification of provisional registration and its terms.

The registrar¹, on being satisfied that the ship² is eligible for provisional registration³, or the appropriate person⁴ on receipt of such notification⁵ (but not otherwise), may proceed to register the ship provisionally for a period of three months⁶.

The registrar or the appropriate person must issue to the owner⁷ of the ship a certificate of provisional registration in a form approved by the Secretary of State⁸. The certificate has the effect of a certificate of registry⁹ until¹⁰:

- 633 (1) the expiration of three months from its date of issue¹¹; or
- 634 (2) the ship's arrival in the United Kingdom¹²; or
- 635 (3) termination by the registrar on request from the owner¹³,

341. Transfer of registration to relevant British possession.

The registration of a ship¹ registered on Part I of the register² may be transferred from the register to the register of a port in a relevant British possession³. Where such an application is made for the transfer of a ship's registration, the registrar⁴ must not proceed to deal with the application unless he is satisfied that registration of the ship at the intended port of registration is not precluded by either⁵:

- 636 (1) any Order in Council in force under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁶; or
- 637 (2) any provision of the law in force in the possession in question⁷; and any certificate purporting to be signed by the registrar of the intended port of registration and stating that any such provision is in force is conclusive evidence for the purposes of these provisions of the matters stated in it⁸.

Where the registrar of the intended port of registration issues a certificate of registry⁹ following any such application and on notification of the transfer by the registrar of the new port of registration, the registrar must terminate the registration of the ship¹⁰.

Where the registration of a ship is transferred in this way¹¹, the certificate of registry must be surrendered to the registrar for cancellation¹².

On making an application to transfer to the register, the applicant must specify one of the listed ports¹³ which it is intended shall be the ship's port of choice¹⁴.

Where the ship has not previously been required by the registrar of its existing port of registration to have its name approved by the registrar¹⁵, the applicant must propose a name which the ship is to be called¹⁶. On being satisfied that the name complies with the statutory requirements¹⁷, the registrar must issue a marking note¹⁸. On receipt of a marking note, the owner must proceed in accordance with the provisions¹⁹ relating to re-marking of the ship²⁰.

On receipt of the required documents²¹ and the completed marking note, the registrar must enter in the register all the particulars and names so transmitted and issue a new certificate of registry²².

Where entitlement of a ship to be registered is²³ subject to any condition specified in that registration being satisfied, the registration of the ship may not be transferred to the register of British ships²⁴ in the United Kingdom²⁵ unless it appears to the registrar that that condition is satisfied²⁶.

A transfer of registration from a relevant British possession²⁷ does not affect the rights of any person mentioned in head (1) above²⁸.

Notwithstanding that a ship is otherwise entitled to be registered, the registrar may refuse to register it if, taking into account any requirement of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, including any instrument made thereunder, relating to the condition of the ship or its equipment so far as it is relevant to its safety or to any risk of pollution or to the safety, health and welfare of persons employed or engaged in any capacity on board the ship, he considers that it would be inappropriate for the ship to be registered²⁹.

354. Notification of changes of ownership etc of a registered small ship.

If at any time there occurs, in relation to a registered small ship¹:

- 657 (1) any change affecting the eligibility of the ship to be registered as a British ship²; or
- 658 (2) any change in relation to the address of the registered owner of the ship³; or
- 659 (3) any change in details relating to the ship⁴, the registered owner of the ship must, as soon as practicable after the change occurs, notify the registrar⁵.

Notification so made must be in writing, must be signed by the registered owner and must specify the nature of the change and the name and the number of the ship⁶.

(xi) Ships Bareboat Chartered-in

357. Ships bareboat chartered-in by British charterers.

Any ship¹ which:

- 662 (1) is registered under the law of a country other than the United Kingdom² (the 'country of original registration')³;
- 663 (2) is chartered on bareboat charter terms⁴ to a charterer who is a person qualified to own British ships⁵; and
- 664 (3) is so chartered in circumstances where the prescribed conditions of entitlement to registration⁶, read with the requisite modifications⁷, are satisfied as respects the charterer and the ship⁸, is entitled to be registered if an application for registration is duly made⁹.

Such registration of a ship¹⁰ remains in force, unless terminated earlier by virtue of registration regulations and subject to any suspension thereunder, until the end of the charter period¹¹ and then terminates by virtue of this provision¹².

The owner's obligation to take all reasonable steps to secure the termination of the ship's registration under the law of the country where it is already registered¹³ does not apply to a ship registered by virtue of the provisions governing ships bareboat chartered-in by British charterers¹⁴; but registration regulations must include provision for securing that the authority responsible for the registration of ships in the country of original registration is notified of the registration of the ship and of the termination¹⁵ of its registration¹⁶.

Accordingly, throughout the period for which a ship is registered virtue of the provisions governing ships bareboat chartered-in by British charterers¹⁷:

- 665 (a) the ship is entitled, as a British ship, to fly the British flag¹⁸;
- 666 (b) the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 applies to the ship as a British ship or as a registered ship as it applies to other British ships and to registered ships¹⁹; and
- 667 (c) any other enactment applicable to British ships or ships registered under that Act applies²⁰ to the ship as a British ship or as a registered ship²¹.

The private law provisions for registered ships²² do not apply to a ship registered by virtue of the provisions governing ships bareboat chartered-in by British charterers²³; and any matters or questions corresponding to those for which the private law provisions for registered ships make provision must be determined by reference to the law of the country of original registration²⁴.

Her Majesty may by Order in Council provide that any enactment falling within head (b) or (c) above²⁵: (i) is not to have effect²⁶ in relation to a ship registered by virtue of the provisions governing ships bareboat chartered-in by British charterers²⁷; or (ii) is so to have effect subject to such modifications, if any, as may be specified in the Order²⁸. No provision may, however, be made by such an Order in Council which would have the effect of relaxing the relevant requirements of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995²⁹ in their application to a ship to which the provisions governing ships bareboat chartered-in by British charterers apply³⁰. Such an Order in Council may make such transitional, incidental or supplementary provision as appears to Her Majesty to be necessary or expedient, including provision divesting or providing for the divestment of ownership in the ship³¹.

360. Applications for registration of a bareboat charter ship.

Every application for registration¹ of a bareboat charter ship² must be made to the registrar³ at the General Registry of Shipping and Seamen⁴. Every such application must be in a form approved by the Secretary of State⁵ and must be accompanied by⁶:

- 668 (1) a declaration of eligibility which must include⁷:
 - 43. (a) a declaration by every charterer setting out his qualification to register a bareboat charter ship⁸; and
 - 44. (b) in respect of fishing vessels⁹, a declaration that the management, and direction and control, of the ship, will be carried out from within the United Kingdom¹⁰;
- 16
669 (2) a copy of the charterparty showing¹¹:
17
 - 45. (a) the name of the ship¹²;
 - 46. (b) the name of the charterer or charterers and the name of the owner or owners of the ship¹³;
 - 47. (c) the date of the charterparty¹⁴;
 - 48. (d) the duration of the charterparty¹⁵;
- 18
670 (3) the certificate of registry¹⁶ (or other document) issued by the authority responsible for the registration of ships in the country of primary registration showing the ownership of the ship¹⁷; and
- 671 (4) where the charterer is a body corporate, the document or documents required by the provisions¹⁸ governing applications by such bodies¹⁹.

The requirement that ships before registration must be surveyed and measured²⁰ applies to the registration of a bareboat charter ship²¹.

The registrar may refuse to register any fishing vessel as a bareboat charter ship if he is not satisfied that there is in force in respect of the vessel any certificate required to be so in force by virtue of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995²².

361. Names of bareboat charter ship.

On making an application for registration¹ of a bareboat charter ship², the applicant³ must propose a name which the ship is to be called while so registered⁴.

If the registrar⁵ is satisfied that the name complies with the requirements relating to the approval of names⁶, he must approve the name⁷.

362. Allocation of identifying number to bareboat charter ship; port of choice and port numbers.

On making application for registration¹ of a bareboat charter ship², the applicant³ must specify one of the listed ports⁴ which it is intended shall be the port of choice⁵.

Where the application is made in respect of a fishing vessel⁶ and the registrar⁷ is satisfied that the vessel is eligible to be registered as a bareboat charter ship, he must⁸: (1) allocate a port number⁹; and (2) allocate an identifying number¹⁰, whether or not the vessel already has a number allocated by its primary register¹¹.

In the case of any other ship, the registrar may allocate an identifying number, whether or not the ship already has a number allocated by its primary register¹².

363. Marking of bareboat charter ship; inspection etc.

On being satisfied that the ship¹ is eligible for registration² and on production of any required certificate for survey³, the registrar⁴ must issue a carving and marking note⁵.

On receipt of a carving and marking note, the charterer must⁶:

- 672 (1) where the ship is not already so marked, cause it to be marked with its name⁷, its port of choice⁸, and (in respect of a fishing vessel⁹) its port number¹⁰; and
- 673 (2) where the ship is not already so carved, cause it to be carved with its identifying number¹¹ and the number denoting its tonnage¹², in accordance with the prescribed requirements for carving and marking¹³.

The statutory provisions relating to inspection of marks¹⁴ and to the cancellation of a carving and marking note¹⁵ apply as if any reference in them to the owner¹⁶ were a reference to the charterer¹⁷.

364. Registration of bareboat charter ship.

Where the registrar¹ is satisfied in respect of an application for registration² of a bareboat charter ship³:

- 674 (1) that the ship has been duly carved and marked⁴; and
- 675 (2) that, where required, the appropriate certificate of survey has been provided⁵; and
- 676 (3) that the other requirements preliminary to registration have been complied with⁶, he must enter in the register⁷ the details that are prescribed to be so entered⁸.

Upon registering a ship, the registrar must:

- 677 (a) issue and send to the charterer a certificate of bareboat charter registry⁹ containing the required particulars¹⁰; and
- 678 (b) retain in his possession a copy of the charter, a copy of any certificate of survey and all declarations of eligibility¹¹ and (if applicable) any declarations required under the provisions¹² relating to applications made by bodies corporate¹³.

Notwithstanding that a ship is otherwise entitled to be registered, the registrar may refuse to register it if, taking into account any requirement of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, including any instrument made thereunder, relating to the condition of the ship or its equipment so far as it is relevant to its safety or to any risk of pollution or to the safety, health and welfare of persons employed or engaged in any capacity on board the ship, he considers that it would be inappropriate for the ship to be registered¹⁴.

366. Notification of changes occurring in relation to bareboat charter ship.

If at any time there occurs, in relation to a bareboat charter ship¹, any change affecting the eligibility of the ship to be registered², the charterer of the ship must, as soon as practicable after the change occurs, notify the registrar³. Such notification must be made in writing, must be signed by the charterer and must specify the nature of the change and the name and the identifying number⁴ of the ship⁵. Any person who contravenes the requirement to notify⁶ is guilty of an offence⁷.

368. Closure of bareboat charter ship's registration by the registrar.

The registrar¹ may² close the registration of a bareboat charter ship³:

- 684 (1) on application by the charterer⁴;
- 685 (2) on the ship no longer being eligible to be registered⁵;
- 686 (3) on the ship being destroyed (which includes, but is not limited to, shipwreck, demolition, fire and sinking)⁶;
- 687 (4) if, taking into account any requirement of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, including any instrument made thereunder, relating to the condition of the ship or its equipment so far as relevant to its safety or to any risk of pollution or to the safety, health and welfare of persons employed or engaged in any capacity on board the ship, he considers that it would be inappropriate for the ship to remain registered⁷;
- 688 (5) if the bareboat charter ship is a fishing vessel⁸ which requires a licence to fish but at the time of registration did not have such a licence and has not acquired such a licence within six months of the issue of its certificate of bareboat charter registry⁹;
- 689 (6) where the charterer of a fishing vessel fails to respond to the registrar within 15 days of a request from him to supply information concerning details on the register¹⁰;
- 690 (7) where the charterer of a fishing vessel supplies information requested by the registrar, but that information is either false or incorrect or is reasonably considered by the registrar to be insufficient¹¹;
- 691 (8) where¹² the charterer is required to notify the registrar of any changes affecting the ship's eligibility to be registered, and has not done so¹³;
- 692 (9) where¹⁴ a person is required to make an application for any change in the registered particulars of a ship or in the name or address of a charterer to be recorded in the register, and has not done so¹⁵; or
- 693 (10) where a fishing vessel certificate¹⁶ has expired¹⁷.

On closure of a ship's registration under any of heads (1) to (10) above, the charterer must forthwith surrender to the registrar the certificate of bareboat charter registry for cancellation¹⁸.

However, where it appears to the registrar that head (2) above, or any of heads (4) to (10) above, applies, he may serve notice on the owner or managing owner¹⁹, or on any charterer, manager or operator of the ship requiring him to produce, within 30 days, evidence (which may include a declaration of British connection²⁰) sufficient to satisfy him that the ship is eligible to remain on the register²¹. If, at the expiry of that period of 30 days, the registrar is not so satisfied, he may either: (a) extend the notice and ask for further information or evidence²²; or (b) serve a final notice which closes the ship's registration, such closure to take effect seven days after the service of that notice²³. Where a ship's registration is so terminated, the registrar must issue a closure transcript²⁴ and the owner of the ship must forthwith surrender its certificate of registry²⁵.

B. CERTIFICATES OF REGISTRY

373. Duplicate certificates.

If it is shown to the satisfaction of the registrar¹ that the certificate of registry² for a ship³ has been lost, stolen or destroyed or has become defaced or illegible (the 'event'), he may issue to the owner⁴ a duplicate of that certificate, which must be marked as such, and is of the same effect as the original⁵. Where a duplicate certificate of registry is issued, the original, if then available or if subsequently found or recovered, must be forthwith surrendered to the registrar⁶.

If:

- 696 (1) the port where the ship is at the time of the event or, as the case may be, where it first arrives after the event, is not in the United Kingdom⁷; and
- 697 (2) the master of the ship or some other person having knowledge of the facts of the case makes a declaration before the appropriate person⁸ as to the loss, theft, destruction, defacement or illegibility of the certificate⁹, the appropriate person must notify the registrar¹⁰. On being notified of the event and being satisfied that the ship is entitled to be issued with a duplicate certificate, the registrar must¹¹:

- 698 (a) fax to the appropriate person a copy of the duplicate certificate which the appropriate person must indorse with a statement of the circumstances under which it is granted¹²; or
- 699 (b) where there are no fax facilities, authorise the appropriate person to issue a provisional certificate so indorsed¹³.

The faxed certificate or the provisional certificate must, within ten days of the ship arriving in a port in the United Kingdom, be surrendered to the registrar, and a duplicate certificate must be issued¹⁴.

Any person who fails, without reasonable cause, to surrender a certificate of registry when required to do so by these provisions¹⁵ commits an offence¹⁶.

4. HOVERCRAFT

(1) IN GENERAL

381. Meaning of 'hovercraft' for the purposes of the Hovercraft Act 1968.

For the purposes of the Hovercraft Act 1968, 'hovercraft' means a vehicle which is designed to be supported when in motion wholly or partly by air expelled from the vehicle to form a cushion of which the boundaries include the ground, water or other surface beneath the vehicle¹.

Except as otherwise provided by or under the Hovercraft Act 1968, or an enactment passed before 26 August 1968 (ie the date of the passing of the Hovercraft Act 1968), a hovercraft is not to be treated as being a ship, aircraft or motor vehicle for the purposes of any such enactment or any instrument having effect by virtue of any such enactment: s 4(3). For these purposes, 'enactment' includes an enactment contained in a local Act and an enactment contained in any Act passed after and in the same session as the Hovercraft Act 1968 (s 4(1)); and any reference in the Hovercraft Act 1968 to any enactment or instrument is a reference to it as amended, and includes a reference to it as applied, by or under any other enactment (s 4(2)).

382. Power to make Orders in Council under the Hovercraft Act 1968.

Her Majesty may by Order in Council make such provision as she considers expedient¹:

- 702 (1) with respect to the registration of hovercraft²;
- 703 (2) for securing the safety of hovercraft and persons and property in hovercraft and at hoverports³, and for preventing hovercraft from endangering other persons and property⁴;
- 704 (3) for prohibiting or restricting the use of hovercraft unless the prescribed⁵ certificates as to fitness are in force and the prescribed conditions as to maintenance and repair are satisfied with respect to them⁶;
- 705 (4) for prohibiting persons from taking charge or otherwise acting as members of the crew of a hovercraft or from engaging in or being employed in connection with the maintenance or repair of hovercraft, in such capacities as may be prescribed, unless the prescribed conditions as to qualifications and other matters are satisfied with respect to those persons⁷;
- 706 (5) with respect to the investigation of accidents involving hovercraft⁸;
- 707 (6) for regulating the noise and vibration which may be caused by hovercraft⁹;
- 708 (7) for providing that no action is to lie, and no proceedings in pursuance of Part III of the Environmental Protection Act 1990¹⁰ are to be brought, in respect of nuisance by reason only of noise and vibration caused by hovercraft in respect of which the requirements imposed in pursuance of head (6) above are complied with¹¹;
- 709 (8) for applying in relation to hovercraft or to persons, things or places connected with hovercraft¹²:

- 49. (a) any enactment¹³ or instrument¹⁴ relating to ships, aircraft, motor vehicles or other means of transport or to persons, things, places connected therewith¹⁵;
- 50. (b) any rules of law relating to ships or persons, things or places connected with ships (other than rules relating to maritime liens)¹⁶;

20

- 710 and, without prejudice to the generality of the above provisions, for providing that any enactment (other than an enactment mentioned above) is to have effect as if references in it, in whatever terms, to ships, aircraft or motor vehicles or activities connected therewith included references to hovercraft or activities connected with hovercraft¹⁷;
- 711 (9) for applying the following enactments, and any instrument made under them, in relation to the following matters respectively¹⁸, that is to say:

- 51. (a) in relation to the carriage by persons and their baggage by hovercraft, the Carriage by Air Act 1961¹⁹ and the Carriage by Air (Supplementary Provisions) Act 1962²⁰;
- 52. (b) in relation to the carriage of property by hovercraft (except baggage in relation to which provisions of the Acts specified in head (9)(a) above are applied) the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act 1971²¹ and certain provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995²² which limit liability, so far as those provisions relate to property on board a ship²³;

53. (c) in relation to loss of life or personal injury connected with a hovercraft which is caused to persons not carried by the hovercraft, in relation to the loss or damage connected with a hovercraft which is caused to property not carried by the hovercraft and in relation to infringements of rights through acts or omissions connected with a hovercraft, certain provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995²⁴ which limit liability²⁵;
- 22
- 712 (10) for substituting references to hovercraft for references in any enactment or instrument to vehicles designed to be supported on a cushion of air²⁶;
- 713 (11) for repealing the provisions of any enactment or instrument²⁷, in so far as it appears to Her Majesty that those provisions are not required having regard to any provision made or proposed to be made by virtue of the power to make Orders in Council under the Hovercraft Act 1968²⁸;
- 714 (12) with respect to the application of the Order to the Crown and the extra-territorial operation of any provision made by or under the Order²⁹;
- 715 (13) for the extension of any provisions of the Order, with or without modifications³⁰, to Northern Ireland, any of the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man, any colony³¹ and any country or place outside Her Majesty's dominions³² in which for the time being Her Majesty has jurisdiction³³;
- 716 (14) for imposing penalties in respect of any contravention³⁴ of a provision made by or under the Order, not exceeding, in respect of any one contravention, a fine of £400 on summary conviction and imprisonment for 12 months and a fine on conviction on indictment³⁵;
- 717 (15) for detaining any hovercraft in order to secure compliance with any provision made by or under the Order or any hovercraft in respect of which such a contravention is suspected to have occurred³⁶; and
- 718 (16) for requiring the payment of fees in respect of any matter relating to hovercraft which is specified in the Order and for determining with the approval of the Treasury the amount of any such fee or the manner in which that amount is to be determined³⁷.

Nothing in any of heads (1) to (16) above is to be construed as prejudicing the generality of any other of those heads; and in particular head (14) above does not prejudice head (8) above³⁸.

An Order in Council so made may³⁹:

- 719 (i) make different provision for different circumstances or for hovercraft of different descriptions⁴⁰;
- 720 (ii) provide for exemptions from any of the provisions of the Order⁴¹;
- 721 (iii) provide for the delegation of functions exercisable by virtue of the Order⁴²;
- 722 (iv) include such incidental, supplemental and consequential provisions as appear to Her Majesty to be expedient for the purposes of the Order⁴³;
- 723 (v) authorise the making of regulations and other instruments for any of the above purposes, except the purposes of heads (7) to (11) above, and apply the Statutory Instruments Act 1946⁴⁴ to instruments made under the Order⁴⁵;
- 724 (vi) provide that any enactment, instrument or rule of law applied by the Order shall have effect as so applied subject to such modifications as may be specified in the Order⁴⁶; and
- 725 (vii) be revoked or varied by a subsequent Order so made⁴⁷.

No recommendation may be made to Her Majesty in Council to make such an Order containing provisions authorised by heads (6) to (11) above unless a draft of the Order has been approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament⁴⁸; and any other Order in Council under the above provisions, except an Order extending only to territory (other than Northern Ireland) which is mentioned in head (13) above, is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament⁴⁹.

382 Power to make Orders in Council under the Hovercraft Act 1968

NOTE 14--Appointed day is 1 October 2009: SI 2009/1604.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/4. HOVERCRAFT/(1) IN GENERAL/383. Admiralty jurisdiction.

383. Admiralty jurisdiction.

Hovercraft¹ are subject to the Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court². The law relating to maritime liens³ applies⁴ in relation to hovercraft and property connected with hovercraft as it applies in relation to ships and property connected with ships, notwithstanding that the hovercraft in question is on land at any relevant time⁵.

Her Majesty may, however, by Order in Council⁶ provide that the statutory provisions relating to Admiralty jurisdiction and the law relating to maritime liens⁷ are not to apply in relation to hovercraft in such circumstances as may be specified in the Order, or are to have effect, in all circumstances involving hovercraft or such circumstances involving hovercraft as may be specified in the Order, subject to such modifications as may be so specified⁸.

1 As to the meaning of 'hovercraft' under the Hovercraft Act 1968 see PARA 381.

2 Ie by virtue of the fact that, in the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20-24 (Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court) (see PARA 79 et seq), 'ship' includes a hovercraft: see s 24(1); and PARA 85 note 7. There is no longer any jurisdiction in the county court in Admiralty matters: see the Civil Courts (Amendment) (No 2) Order 1999, SI 1999/1011 (which amended the Civil Courts Order 1983, SI 1983/713, so that, as from 26 April 1999, all Admiralty proceedings must be commenced in the High Court); and PARA 209. As to the jurisdiction of the High Court generally see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 606 et seq; and as to county courts generally see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 701 et seq.

3 As to maritime liens see PARA 1014 et seq.

4 Ie subject to the Hovercraft Act 1968 s 2(3) (see the text and notes 6-8): see s 2(2).

5 Hovercraft Act 1968 s 2(2).

6 The provisions of the Hovercraft Act 1968 s 1(3) (Orders in Council) (see PARA 382) apply to an order under s 2(3) as they apply to an Order under s 1 but as if s 1(3)(c), (e), (f) (see PARA 382) was omitted: see s 2(3). No recommendation may be made to Her Majesty in Council to make an Order under s 2 unless a draft of the Order has been approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament: s 2(4).

7 Ie the enactments mentioned in the Hovercraft Act 1968 s 2(1) and the law mentioned in s 2(2) (see the text and notes 3-5) as extended: see s 2(3). Section 2(3) has effect as if the reference to the enactments mentioned in s 2(1) as extended by s 2(1) included a reference to the Supreme Court Act 1981 ss 20-24 (Admiralty jurisdiction of the High Court) (see PARA 79 et seq): Hovercraft Act 1968 s 2(3A) (added by the Supreme Court Act 1981 Sch 5). As from a day to be appointed, the Supreme Court of England and Wales is renamed the Senior Courts of England and Wales and the Supreme Court Act 1981 is to be cited as the Senior Courts Act 1981 accordingly: see the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59, Sch 11 para 1; and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 601 et seq. However, at the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed.

8 Hovercraft Act 1968 s 2(3). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such Order in Council had been made.

(2) CIVIL LIABILITY

386. Application of general provisions relating to civil liability.

The statutory provisions relating to the carriage of passengers and baggage by air¹ apply, with modifications², in relation to the carriage of passengers and their baggage by hovercraft³ as they apply in relation to the carriage of passengers and their baggage by air⁴.

The statutory provisions relating to goods on board or carried by ships⁵ apply, with modifications⁶, to the carriage of goods, other than passengers' baggage, by hovercraft as they apply in relation to goods on board or carried by ship⁷.

The statutory provisions relating to the overall limitation of liability of shipowners⁸ apply, with modifications⁹, in relation to¹⁰:

- 726 (1) loss of life or personal injury connected with a hovercraft which is caused to persons not carried by the hovercraft¹¹;
- 727 (2) loss or damage connected with a hovercraft which is caused to property¹²; and
- 728 (3) infringements of rights through acts or omissions connected with a hovercraft¹³, if and only if at the time of the incident causing the damage the hovercraft was on or over navigable water or on or over the foreshore, or was proceeding between navigable water and a hoverport, or was on or over a hoverport either preparing for or after such transit¹⁴; but this provision does not apply to claims in respect of loss or damage to passengers' baggage carried by the hovercraft or in respect of loss of or damage to crew's¹⁵ property carried by the hovercraft¹⁶.

The provisions relating to ships as to division of loss, damages for personal injuries, rights of contribution and apportionment of salvage¹⁷ apply, with modifications¹⁸, to hovercraft¹⁹.

(3) REGISTRATION ETC

(i) In general

387. Application of general provisions to hovercraft.

The general provisions relating to the registration, certification, maintenance and operation of hovercraft¹ apply to hovercraft² which are used³:

- 729 (1) wholly or partly on or over the sea or navigable waters⁴; or
- 730 (2) on or over land to which the public has access or non-navigable waters to which the public has access⁵; or
- 731 (3) elsewhere for the carriage of passengers⁶ for reward⁷.

This is subject to the proviso that those same general provisions do not apply to hovertrains⁸, nor do they prejudice the operation of the provisions of the Road Traffic Act 1988⁹ which govern the application of road traffic legislation to hovercraft or hover vehicles¹⁰.

1 le the Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674 (see PARA 388 et seq): see art 2. As to the meaning of 'hovercraft' under the Hovercraft Act 1968 see PARA 381.

2 le subject to the proviso that the Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, Pt II (arts 7A-17) (certification and maintenance) (see PARA 396 et seq) and Pt III (arts 17A-24) (duties of operator and captain) (see PARA 402 et seq) do not apply to hovercraft to which the Merchant Shipping (High Speed Craft) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/302 (see PARA 614 et seq) apply: see the Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, art 7A (cited in PARA 396), art 17A (cited in PARA 402); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

388. Crown application.

The general provisions relating to the registration, certification, maintenance and operation of hovercraft¹ apply to or in relation to hovercraft belonging to or exclusively employed in the service of Her Majesty as they apply to or in relation to other hovercraft; and, for the purposes of such application, the government department or other authority for the time being responsible on behalf of Her Majesty for the operational management of the hovercraft is deemed to be the operator² of the hovercraft and, in the case of a hovercraft belonging to Her Majesty, to be the owner of the interest of Her Majesty in the hovercraft³.

Where a military hovercraft⁴ is operated by a civilian and is not commanded by a person who is acting in the course of his duty as a member of any of Her Majesty's naval or military or air forces or as a member of a visiting force or international headquarters⁵, that civilian is bound by the usual duties of a captain⁶ on the occasion of that journey⁷.

Nothing in the provisions governing Crown application⁸ renders liable to any penalty⁹ any department or other authority responsible on behalf of Her Majesty for the management of the hovercraft¹⁰.

1 I.e. the Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674 (see PARAS 387, 389 et seq): see art 34(1). As to the meaning of 'hovercraft' under the Hovercraft Act 1968 see PARA 381.

2 For these purposes, 'operator', in relation to a hovercraft, means the person for the time being having the management of the hovercraft: Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, art 3(1).

3 Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, art 34(1).

4 For these purposes, 'military hovercraft' means the naval, military or air force hovercraft of any country and includes: (1) any hovercraft being constructed for the naval, military or air force of any country under a contract entered into by the Secretary of State; and (2) any hovercraft in respect of which there is in force a certificate issued by the Secretary of State that the hovercraft is to be treated for the purposes of the Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, as a military hovercraft: art 3(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

5 As to visiting forces see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 140; and as to international headquarters see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 150.

6 For these purposes, 'captain' means the person who is designated by the operator to be in charge of a hovercraft during any journey, or, failing such designation, the person who is for the time being lawfully in charge of the hovercraft: Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, art 3(1). As to the duties of a captain see PARA 405.

7 Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, art 34(3). Save as provided in art 34(3), nothing in the Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, applies to or in relation to any military hovercraft: art 34(2).

8 I.e. nothing in the Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, art 34: see art 34(1) proviso.

389. Extra-territorial effect.

Except where the context otherwise requires, the general provisions relating to the registration, certification, maintenance and operation of hovercraft¹ apply as follows²:

- 732 (1) in so far as they apply, whether by express reference or otherwise, to hovercraft registered in the United Kingdom³, they apply to such hovercraft wherever they may be⁴;
- 733 (2) in so far as they so apply to other hovercraft, they apply to such hovercraft when they are within the United Kingdom⁵;
- 734 (3) in so far as they prohibit, require or regulate, whether by express reference or otherwise, the doing of anything by persons in, or by any of the crew of, any hovercraft registered in the United Kingdom, they apply to such persons and crew, wherever they may be⁶; and
- 735 (4) in so far as they prohibit, require or regulate, whether by express reference or otherwise, the doing of anything in relation to any hovercraft registered in the United Kingdom by other persons, they apply, where such persons are British subjects⁷, to them wherever they may be⁸.

However, nothing in the provisions governing the extra-territorial effect of the general hovercraft provisions⁹ is to be construed as extending the criminal liability of certain persons who are not citizens of the United Kingdom and colonies¹⁰ and whose liability is otherwise limited¹¹.

(ii) Registration

390. Necessity for registration.

If used in the United Kingdom¹, a hovercraft² must be registered in the United Kingdom³, unless⁴:

- 736 (1) it is registered in some other country⁵; or
- 737 (2) an unqualified person⁶ holds a legal or beneficial interest in the hovercraft by way of ownership or share therein and the Secretary of State⁷ consents to its use unregistered in the United Kingdom, subject to such conditions as he thinks fit⁸.

A hovercraft may also be used unregistered in the United Kingdom if it has an unladen weight⁹ of less than 1,000 kilograms and is not used for reward¹⁰.

1 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' for these purposes see PARA 389 note 3.

2 As to the meaning of 'hovercraft' under the Hovercraft Act 1968 see PARA 381. As to the hovercraft to which the Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, applies see PARA 387; and as to Crown application see PARA 388.

3 It is subject to the Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, art 7 (hovercraft registered outside the United Kingdom) (see PARA 395): see art 4.

4 Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, art 4.

5 Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, art 4(a). As to hovercraft registered outside the United Kingdom see PARA 395; and as to penalties for contravention see PARA 1123.

6 For these purposes, 'unqualified person' means a person not qualified in accordance with the Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, art 5(3) (see PARA 391) to be the holder of a legal or beneficial interest by way of ownership in the hovercraft: art 3(1). 'Beneficial interest' includes interests arising under contract and other equitable interests: art 3(1).

7 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

8 Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, art 4(b).

9 For these purposes, 'unladen weight', in relation to a hovercraft, means the weight of a hovercraft ready for use, excluding the weight of usable fuel, occupants, baggage, cargo, stores, buoyant life-saving equipment, portable fire-fighting equipment, portable emergency equipment and non-permanent ballast: Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, art 3(1).

391. Procedure for registration of hovercraft in the United Kingdom.

The Secretary of State¹ is the authority for registration of hovercraft² in the United Kingdom³.

A hovercraft may not be registered or continue to be registered in the United Kingdom if it appears to the Secretary of State that⁴:

- 738 (1) the hovercraft is registered outside the United Kingdom and that such registration does not cease by operation of law upon the hovercraft being registered in the United Kingdom⁵; or
- 739 (2) an unqualified person⁶ holds any legal or beneficial interest⁷ in the hovercraft by way of ownership or any share therein⁸.

Only the following persons and no others are qualified to be the holder of a legal or beneficial interest by way of ownership in a hovercraft registered in the United Kingdom or a share therein⁹:

- 740 (a) the Crown in right of Her Majesty's government in the United Kingdom¹⁰;
- 741 (b) persons ordinarily resident in the United Kingdom¹¹;
- 742 (c) bodies incorporated in the United Kingdom and having their principal place of business in the United Kingdom¹²;
- 743 (d) firms carrying on business in Scotland¹³.

However, if an unqualified person holds a legal or beneficial interest by way of ownership in a hovercraft or a share in it, or is a charterer by demise of it, the Secretary of State may register the hovercraft in the United Kingdom subject to such conditions as he thinks fit¹⁴; and he may at any time cancel the registration of the hovercraft so registered¹⁵.

392. Application for the registration of a hovercraft in the United Kingdom.

Application for the registration of a hovercraft¹ in the United Kingdom² must be made in writing to the Secretary of State³ and must include or be accompanied by such particulars and evidence relating to the hovercraft and the ownership and chartering of it as he may require to enable him to determine whether the hovercraft may properly be registered in the United Kingdom and to issue a certificate of registration⁴.

Upon receiving an application for the registration of a hovercraft in the United Kingdom and being satisfied that the hovercraft may properly be so registered, the Secretary of State must (or, in the case of an application by an unqualified person⁵, may) register the hovercraft, wherever it may be, and he must include in the register the following particulars⁶:

- 744 (1) the number of the certificate⁷;
- 745 (2) the registration mark⁸ assigned to the hovercraft by the Secretary of State⁹;
- 746 (3) the name of the constructor of the hovercraft, its type and constructor's number¹⁰;
- 747 (4) the name and address of every person who holds a legal interest¹¹ in the hovercraft by way of ownership or a share in it (or, in the case of a hire-purchase agreement¹², the name and address of the hirer)¹³; and
- 748 (5) in cases where the Secretary of State has allowed registration of a hovercraft in which an unqualified person holds a legal or beneficial interest¹⁴ by way of ownership in a hovercraft or a share in it, or is a charterer by demise of it¹⁵, an indication that it is so registered, and an indication as to whether the person in whose name it is registered is the owner or charterer by demise¹⁶.

The Secretary of State must furnish to the person in whose name the hovercraft is registered (the 'registered owner') a certificate of registration which must include the above particulars and the date on which the certificate was issued¹⁷.

If at any time after the hovercraft has been registered in the United Kingdom an unqualified person becomes the holder of a legal or beneficial interest in the hovercraft by way of ownership or a share in it, the registration of the hovercraft thereupon becomes void¹⁸ and the certificate of registration must forthwith be returned by the registered owner to the Secretary of State for cancellation¹⁹.

393. Notification of changes in particulars furnished on application for registration.

Any person who is registered as the owner of a hovercraft¹ registered in the United Kingdom² must forthwith inform the Secretary of State³ in writing of⁴:

- 749 (1) any change in the particulars which were furnished to the Secretary of State upon application being made for the registration of the hovercraft⁵;
- 750 (2) the destruction of the hovercraft, or its permanent withdrawal from use⁶;
- 751 (3) in the case of a registered hovercraft in respect of which an unqualified person⁷ is a charterer by demise⁸, the termination of the demise charter⁹.

Any person who becomes the owner of a hovercraft registered in the United Kingdom must immediately inform the Secretary of State in writing to that effect¹⁰.

Whenever it appears to him necessary or appropriate to do so for certain purposes¹¹, the Secretary of State may amend the register, or, if he thinks fit, may cancel the registration of the hovercraft, and he must cancel that registration if he is satisfied that there has been a change in the ownership of the hovercraft¹².

394. Nationality and registration marks.

A hovercraft¹ registered in the United Kingdom² must not be used unless³:

- 752 (1) it bears prominently and clearly painted or affixed to the craft its nationality and registration marks⁴; and
- 753 (2) the nationality and registration marks together with the name and address of the registered owner are engraved on a fire-proof metal plate affixed in a prominent position inside the hovercraft near an entrance⁵.

The nationality mark of a hovercraft registered in the United Kingdom must be the capital letters 'GH' in Roman characters and the registration mark must be a group of four digits assigned by the Secretary of State⁶ on the registration of the hovercraft⁷. The letters and digits must be without ornamentation and a hyphen must be placed between the nationality mark and the registration mark⁸.

The nationality and registration marks of a hovercraft are to be used as the sole means of identification of the craft by radio⁹.

395. Hovercraft registered outside the United Kingdom.

A hovercraft¹ registered in a country other than the United Kingdom² must not be used for reward or in connection with a trade or business in or over the United Kingdom, except with the permission of the Secretary of State³ to the operator⁴ or charterer of the hovercraft and in accordance with any conditions to which such permission may be subject⁵.

However, this requirement does not apply to the use of a hovercraft for passage through the territorial waters of the United Kingdom⁶.

(iii) Certification and Maintenance

396. Application of provisions.

The provisions relating to certification and maintenance of a hovercraft¹ do not apply to hovercraft to which the Merchant Shipping (High-Speed Craft) Regulations 2004² apply³.

1 I.e. the Hovercraft (General) Order 1972, SI 1972/674, Pt II (arts 7A-17) (certification and maintenance) (see PARA 397 et seq): see art 7A (added by SI 1996/3173; amended by SI 2004/302). 397. Safety certificate to be in force.

A hovercraft¹ registered in the United Kingdom² may not be used unless there is in force in respect of it a current safety certificate³ and any conditions to which the certificate was issued are complied with⁴. This prohibition does not, however, apply, subject to the prior consent of the Secretary of State⁵ and to any conditions subject to which that consent was given, to a hovercraft in respect of which a safety certificate has previously been in force, which is used solely for the purpose of enabling it⁶:

- 754 (1) to qualify for renewal of a safety certificate or a variation of a certificate after an application has been made for such renewal or variation⁷;
- 755 (2) to proceed to or from a place at which any inspection or test of the hovercraft is to take place for the purpose of qualifying for renewal of a safety certificate or a variation of a certificate after an application has been made for such renewal or variation⁸; or
- 756 (3) to proceed to a place at which repairs can be effected⁹.

398. Issue of safety certificates.

The Secretary of State¹ may issue a safety certificate in respect of a hovercraft² registered in the United Kingdom³ upon being satisfied that it is fit to be used, having regard, in particular, to⁴:

- 757 (1) the results of such investigations of the hovercraft as the Secretary of State may require⁵; and
- 758 (2) the quality of the hovercraft's construction⁶.

Every safety certificate may specify such categories⁷ as have been applied for and are, in the Secretary of State's opinion, appropriate to the hovercraft, and the safety certificate must be issued subject to the condition that the hovercraft is to be used only for specified purposes⁸ in relation to such categories⁹. Accordingly, the categories for which a safety certificate may be so issued are: passenger; cargo; and special¹⁰. In the passenger category, a hovercraft may be used for the purposes of the carriage of passengers¹¹ and their baggage, and any other purposes specified in the certificate¹²; in the cargo category, a hovercraft may be used for the purposes of the carriage of cargo generally, or for such cargo as may be specified in the certificate¹³; and, in the special category, a hovercraft may be used for any purpose specified in the certificate, but not including the carriage of passengers except as expressly permitted¹⁴.

The Secretary of State may issue the safety certificate subject to such other conditions relating to the safety of the hovercraft as he thinks fit¹⁵; and he may, having regard to such investigations as he may require, vary¹⁶ a safety certificate at the request of an applicant and such variation may be subject to such other conditions relating to the safety of hovercraft as he thinks fit¹⁷.

A safety certificate remains in force¹⁸ for such period not exceeding one year as may be specified in it, and may be renewed from time to time by the Secretary of State for such further period not exceeding one year as he thinks fit¹⁹. A safety certificate ceases to be valid in the event of the hovercraft ceasing to be registered in the United Kingdom²⁰.

399. Certificates of compliance with international standards.

The Secretary of State¹ may issue in respect of a hovercraft² registered in the United Kingdom³ such certificates as he deems appropriate, as a result of inspection and survey of the hovercraft by the Civil Aviation Authority⁴, under the International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea⁵ and the International Convention on Load Lines 1966⁶ for the purpose of complying with the law of a country other than the United Kingdom⁷.

The Secretary of State may cancel or suspend⁸ any certificate so issued where he has reason to believe⁹:

- 759 (1) that the certificate has been issued on the basis of inaccurate information¹⁰; or
- 760 (2) that since the issue of the certificate the hovercraft has sustained any material damage or that the condition of the hovercraft or of its equipment does not correspond substantially with the particulars of that certificate¹¹.

The Secretary of State may require any certificate so issued¹² which has expired or been cancelled or suspended to be delivered up as he directs¹³.

400. Inspection and maintenance of hovercraft.

The Secretary of State¹ may at any reasonable time inspect a hovercraft² or part of it or its equipment in respect of which a safety certificate³:

- 761 (1) has been applied for⁴; or
- 762 (2) has been issued and is still in force⁵; or
- 763 (3) has been issued and has ceased within the preceding period of three months to be in force⁶, and he may, for that purpose, enter any premises where persons are employed in the design, construction, maintenance or storage of the hovercraft, or any hoverport⁷.

A hovercraft in respect of which a safety certificate is in force⁸ may not be used unless it is maintained in a condition satisfactory to the Secretary of State, and in accordance with arrangements approved by him⁹.

For the purposes of the certification and maintenance of hovercraft¹⁰, the Secretary of State may accept reports furnished to him by a person whom he may for the time being approve, either absolutely or subject to such conditions as he thinks fit, as qualified to furnish such reports¹¹.

HOVERCRAFT/(3) REGISTRATION ETC/(iii) Certification and Maintenance/401. Revocation, suspension, variation of certificates; power to prevent hovercraft being used.

401. Revocation, suspension, variation of certificates; power to prevent hovercraft being used.

The Secretary of State¹ may, if he thinks fit, provisionally suspend or vary any certificate², approval or other document issued, granted or having effect in relation to the certification and maintenance of hovercraft³ pending inquiry into or consideration of the case; and he may⁴, on sufficient ground being shown to his satisfaction after due inquiry, revoke, suspend or vary any such certificate, approval or other document⁵.

The holder or any person having the possession or custody of any such certificate, approval or other document which has been duly revoked, suspended or varied⁶ must surrender it to the Secretary of State within a reasonable time after being required to do so by him⁷.

The breach of any condition subject to which any such certificate, approval or other document has been granted or issued renders the document invalid during the continuance of the breach⁸.

If it appears likely to the Secretary of State that a hovercraft is intended or likely to be used⁹:

- 764 (1) in such circumstances that any conditions on which the safety certificate¹⁰ has been granted are breached¹¹;
- 765 (2) whilst the approved maintenance arrangements are not adhered to¹²;
- 766 (3) whilst materially damaged¹³; or
- 767 (4) in such circumstances that the Secretary of State has reason to believe that the hovercraft is or may be unsafe¹⁴, the Secretary of State may direct the operator¹⁵ or the captain¹⁶ of the hovercraft that he is not to permit the hovercraft to make the particular journey, or any other journey of such description as may be specified in the direction, until the direction has been revoked by the Secretary of State¹⁷; and the Secretary of State may take such steps as are necessary to detain the hovercraft for a period not exceeding seven days¹⁸.

In the event of the Secretary of State provisionally suspending any certificate, approval or other document in this way¹⁹, or so detaining a hovercraft²⁰, he must, within 48 hours, send to the holder of such certificate, approval or other document a statement in writing of his reasons²¹.

Any document incorporated by reference in any certificate may be varied²² on sufficient ground being shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State, whether or not after due inquiry²³.

403. Operating permits.

Hovercraft¹ registered in the United Kingdom² must not be used for reward or in connection with a trade or business, otherwise than under and in accordance with a permit (an 'operating permit') granted to the operator³ of the hovercraft⁴. Operating permits must be granted with a view to securing the safe operation of the hovercraft⁵.

The Secretary of State⁶ may grant or renew to any person applying therefor an operating permit for the operation of hovercraft of the types and in relation to the areas of operation specified in the operating permit for the purposes so specified⁷. The operating permit may be granted subject to such conditions as the Secretary of State thinks fit to impose with a view to securing the safe operation of hovercraft, remains in force for such time as may be specified in the operating permit or until suspended or revoked by the Secretary of State and may be renewed from time to time by him for such further period as he thinks fit⁸. The Secretary of State may vary an operating permit on application by the holder⁹.

The conditions to which the operating permit may be subject may include¹⁰ conditions in respect of the following matters¹¹:

- 768 (1) crew complement and qualifications¹²;
- 769 (2) type of hovercraft¹³;
- 770 (3) area of operation¹⁴;
- 771 (4) restrictions with regard to working hours and rest periods of crew¹⁵;
- 772 (5) safety arrangements at hoverports¹⁶ or terminal areas¹⁷;
- 773 (6) the weather conditions in which the hovercraft may operate¹⁸;
- 774 (7) day or night operation¹⁹;
- 775 (8) life-saving equipment and procedures²⁰;
- 776 (9) other equipment and procedures necessary for safety of operation²¹;
- 777 (10) radio and radar²²;
- 778 (11) the keeping of records²³;
- 779 (12) medical equipment to be carried²⁴.

404. Duties of operator and owner.

The operator¹ of a hovercraft² registered in the United Kingdom³ must not permit the hovercraft to be used without first⁴:

- 780 (1) designating a member of the crew to be captain⁵ on that journey⁶;
- 781 (2) ensuring that a minimum number of the crew corresponding to the complement necessary for the journey are adequately trained for their duties for that journey⁷;
- 782 (3) ensuring that the safety equipment required to be carried is in working order⁸.

Without prejudice to his other statutory duties⁹, an operator must at all times take all reasonable precautions at hoverports¹⁰ and terminal areas so as to ensure the safety of persons and property in the hovercraft and on the ground¹¹.

An operator must not permit any hovercraft to be used if he has reason to believe or suspect it is in an unsafe condition¹².

It is also the duty of the owner of a sea-going hovercraft registered in the United Kingdom which was constructed on or after 1 January 1996 to ensure that masters and officers, ratings and other personnel have completed the training specified by the Secretary of State¹³.

405. Duties of captain.

The captain¹, before the departure of the hovercraft²: (1) must take reasonable steps to ensure³: (a) that the craft is properly loaded and any cargo adequately secured in the craft⁴; (b) that there is an adequate supply of fuel⁵; and (c) that the craft is in a fit state and that the safety equipment required to be carried is in a fit condition and ready to be used⁶; and (2) must satisfy himself that the journey can safely be made, taking into account the latest information available to him as to the route and weather⁷.

406. Duty of captain and operator to keep operational records.

The captain¹ of every hovercraft² registered in the United Kingdom³ must ensure that records are kept of the following matters relating to any journey of the hovercraft⁴:

- 783 (1) names of terminal and any intermediate points, and the times of departure from and arrival at such points⁵;
- 784 (2) weather conditions, such as wind, sea condition and visibility experienced⁶;
- 785 (3) any accidents⁷ or unusual occurrences on the journey⁸;
- 786 (4) any births or deaths which occur on the journey⁹;
- 787 (5) a summary of all communications relating to distress, urgency and safety traffic¹⁰.

The operator¹¹ of every hovercraft registered in the United Kingdom must keep records of crew emergency and distress drills (including names of persons present)¹², and the names of all crew aboard a hovercraft on any journey¹³.

The captain or operator, as the case may be, must, within a reasonable time after being requested to do so by an authorised person¹⁴, cause the records that are required to be kept by them¹⁵ to be produced to that person¹⁶. Such records must be preserved by the operator for at least 12 months after any journey or drill to which they refer¹⁷; and the records to be kept by the captain¹⁸ must be delivered to the operator of the hovercraft to which the records relate by the captain at the time he ceases to be the captain, or when the operator requires their delivery¹⁹. A person required to preserve any record by reason of his being the operator of a hovercraft must, if he ceases to be the operator of the hovercraft, continue to preserve the record as if he had not ceased to be the operator, and, in the event of his death, the duty to preserve the record falls upon his personal representative²⁰.

409. Notification of casualties.

A hovercraft¹ casualty is deemed to occur² when a hovercraft³:

- 791 (1) has sustained, caused or been involved in any accident occasioning loss of life or any serious injury to any person⁴;
- 792 (2) becomes lost, abandoned, missing or stranded⁵;
- 793 (3) suffers such damage as the result of any accident that its safety is impaired⁶;
- 794 (4) becomes involved in a collision with another hovercraft or ship⁷; or
- 795 (5) causes any damage⁸,

but only when the occurrence takes place:

- 796 (a) on or over the sea or other navigable water⁹; or
- 797 (b) between the time when any person goes on board the hovercraft for the purpose of making a journey which would involve crossing the sea or other navigable water and the time when it comes to rest at the end of such a journey¹⁰; or
- 798 (c) during the testing or maintenance of a hovercraft which normally makes journeys on or over the sea or other navigable water¹¹; and also only if, at the time the occurrence takes place, the hovercraft was registered in the United Kingdom¹² or was within the United Kingdom¹³.

Where a hovercraft casualty has occurred, the captain¹⁴ (or, if the captain is incapacitated, the operator¹⁵) of the hovercraft must¹⁶:

- 799 (i) by the quickest available means inform the Secretary of State¹⁷ of the happening of the casualty, stating the registration number¹⁸ or identity of the hovercraft¹⁹ and the place where the casualty occurred or is believed to have occurred and, in the case of a hovercraft which is missing, the route it was on²⁰; and
- 800 (ii) within 48 hours, or as soon thereafter as possible, transmit to the Secretary of State a report, signed by the captain or operator, of the casualty and of the probable occasion of it, stating the registration number or identity of the hovercraft and the place where the casualty occurred or is believed to have occurred²¹.

413. Power to prevent hovercraft from operating.

If it appears to the Secretary of State¹ or an authorised person² that any hovercraft³ is intended or likely to be operated⁴:

- 805 (1) in such circumstances that certain provisions as to the registration and operation of hovercraft⁵ would be contravened in relation to the journey⁶; or
- 806 (2) in such circumstances that the journey would be in contravention of any other general provision relating to hovercraft⁷ and be a cause of danger to any person or property whether or not in the hovercraft⁸; or
- 807 (3) while in a condition unfit for operation whether or not the journey would otherwise be in contravention of any of those provisions⁹, the Secretary of State or that authorised person may direct the operator¹⁰ or the captain¹¹ of the hovercraft that he is not to permit the hovercraft to make the particular journey, or any other journey of such description as may be specified in the direction, until the direction has been revoked by the Secretary of State or by an authorised person; and the Secretary of State or that person may take such steps as are necessary to detain the hovercraft¹².

(vii) Births, Deaths and Missing Persons

418. Returns relating to births and deaths.

The operator of a hovercraft¹ registered in the United Kingdom² must, as soon as practicable but not later than three months after the occurrence in any part of the world of a birth or death in the hovercraft³, transmit to the Secretary of State⁴ a return of such birth or death in the prescribed form⁵. If, however, such particulars are not known to the operator of the hovercraft, he must so transmit so many of the particulars as he is reasonably able to ascertain having regard to the circumstances of the birth or death⁶.

To facilitate the rendering of such returns, the person in command⁷ of a hovercraft registered in the United Kingdom must make records available to the operator as soon as practicable of the occurrence in any part of the world of a birth or death in the hovercraft⁸. If, however, all such particulars are not known to the person in command of a hovercraft and cannot be readily ascertained by him, he must record and so make available so many of such particulars as are readily ascertainable⁹.

1 As to the meaning of 'hovercraft' under the Hovercraft Act 1968 see PARA 381. Note, however, that the Hovercraft (Births, Deaths and Missing Persons) Regulations 1972, SI 1972/1513, were made under the Civil Aviation Act 1949 s 55 (repealed), but have effect as if made under the Civil Aviation Act 1982 s 83 (as to which see AIR LAW vol 2 (2008) PARAS 582, 583).

2 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' for these purposes see PARA 389 note 3. As to the procedure for registration of hovercraft in the United Kingdom see PARA 391 et seq.

3 For these purposes, references to births or deaths in a hovercraft include references to births or deaths on a hovercraft's lifeboat or life-raft and, in the case of deaths, to being lost from a hovercraft or hovercraft's lifeboat of hovercraft's life-raft: Hovercraft (Births, Deaths and Missing Persons) Regulations 1972, SI 1972/1513, reg 2(1).

4 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

5 Hovercraft (Births, Deaths and Missing Persons) Regulations 1972, SI 1972/1513, reg 3(1). The text refers to a return of such birth or death in the form, in accordance with the instructions for completion, and containing the particulars prescribed in reg 3(1), App A (in the case of a birth) or App B (in the case of a death): see reg 3(1). In the case of the birth of an illegitimate child, the name of any person as father of such child is not to be entered in any return or record of particulars of the birth of such child unless the mother of the child and the person acknowledging himself to be the father of the child have signed a completed form of return as informants: reg 7.

6 Hovercraft (Births, Deaths and Missing Persons) Regulations 1972, SI 1972/1513, reg 3(1) proviso.

7 For these purposes, 'person in command' of a hovercraft means, in a case where a person other than the captain is in command of the hovercraft, that person and, in any other case, the captain: Hovercraft (Births, Deaths and Missing Persons) Regulations 1972, SI 1972/1513, reg 2(1).

8 Hovercraft (Births, Deaths and Missing Persons) Regulations 1972, SI 1972/1513, reg 3(2).

The provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 that relate to masters¹ and seamen², with certain exceptions³, apply only to ships⁴ which are sea-going ships and masters and seamen employed in sea-going ships⁵; and are subject to modification in their application to fishing vessels⁶ and persons serving in them⁷.

424. Meanings of 'master' and 'seaman'.

In the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, unless the context otherwise requires, 'master' includes every person (except a pilot¹) having command or charge of a ship² and, in relation to a fishing vessel³, means the skipper⁴.

'Seaman' includes every person (except masters and pilots) employed or engaged in any capacity on board any ship⁵.

- 5 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313(1).

Persons have been regarded as seamen for the following purposes:

- 811 (1) wages: a woman employed as ship-keeper, steward and cook (The Jane and Matilda (1823) 1 Hag Adm 187); a crew engaged for a voyage in respect of which the ship had never left port (Re Great Eastern Steamship Co, Williams' Claim (1885) 5 Asp MLC 511); a storekeeper who had not been actually engaged for a voyage (Thomson v Hart (1890) 28 SLR 28); a stevedore (R v City of London Court Judge and SS Michigan (Owners) (1890) 25 QBD 339); and
- 812 (2) regulations in respect of the accommodation of seamen: lascars (Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co v R [1901] 2 KB 686, 9 Asp MLC 228).

Persons whose natural calling was the sea, but who were not at the time actually employed or engaged as seamen, were held not to be seamen within the meaning of the Conspiracy and Protection of Property Act 1875 s 16 (repealed): R v Lynch and Jones [1898] 1 QB 61, 8 Asp MLC 363, CCR. 425. Power to grant exemptions to fishing vessels or to persons serving on them.

The Secretary of State¹ may grant exemptions from any requirements of the provisions relating to masters and seamen² or the provisions relating to the skipper and seamen of fishing vessels³ or of any regulations made thereunder⁴:

- 71 (1) with respect to any fishing vessel⁵ or to a fishing vessel of any description⁶; or
- 72 (2) with respect to any person or a person of any description serving in a fishing vessel or in a fishing vessel of any description⁷; and nothing in any other provision of the provisions relating to masters and seamen or the provisions relating to the skipper and seamen of fishing vessels conferring a power to provide for or grant exemptions is to be taken to restrict the power conferred by these provisions⁸.

(2) THE MASTER

(i) Employment

426. Contract of service.

The contract of service between an owner and a master is a matter of agreement¹. However, by statute, in every contract of employment between the owner of a United Kingdom ship² and the master³ of or any seaman⁴ employed in the ship there is implied, notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, an obligation on the owner of the ship that the owner, the master and every agent charged with the loading of the ship, the preparing of the ship for sea or the sending of the ship to sea must use all reasonable means to ensure the seaworthiness of the ship for the voyage at the time when the voyage commences, and to keep the ship in a seaworthy condition for the voyage during the voyage⁵. There is, however, no liability on the owner where, owing to special circumstances, the sending of the ship to sea in an unseaworthy state was reasonable and justifiable⁶.

1 Reasonable notice of discharge must be given, having regard to the terms of the contract: Green v Wright (1876) 1 CPD 591, 3 Asp MLC 245, DC. See also Savage v British India Steam Navigation Co (1930) 46 TLR 294. The law will presume that terms agreed upon with regard to a first voyage apply, in default of further stipulation, to a second voyage during which the master's services are retained: The Gananoque (1862) Lush 448. If wrongfully discharged, a master is entitled to damages equal to his wages up to the end of the voyage, or until he obtains other employment: The Camilla (1858) Sw 312. See also The Royalist (1863) Brown & Lush 46. An action in rem for wrongful dismissal may be brought in the High Court: The Great Eastern (1867) LR 1 A & E 384; The Blessing (1878) 3 PD 35, 3 Asp MLC 561.

Although historically employment law originated in what was termed the law of master and servant, the modern terminology adopted is that of 'employer' and 'employee'; and 'contract of employment' is used rather than the older phrase 'contract of service' (save that the latter phrase is still used in social security and related legislation): see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 1.

427. Appointment and removal of master.

In the ordinary course the master is appointed or removed by the owners of the ship or by other persons having control over her, but he may be appointed or removed by persons who in cases of emergency are in a position to exercise authority¹. (ii) Master's Authority and Liability

429. Master's general authority as owners' agent.

The master is the servant of the owners¹, and, in general, he will be their agent for those purposes for which he is employed, that is to say in all acts which are usual and necessary for the use and employment of the vessel². Whether or not, in particular circumstances, the master has authority to bind shipowners to contractual obligations depends upon a number of considerations³. He may have express authority, derived from express instructions, written or oral⁴. His authority may be implied from those instructions, or from the fact of his employment as master⁵, or it may be implied from the conduct of the owners⁶. In some cases, it may be conferred by the necessity of the circumstances⁷; and in others it may arise from subsequent ratification of an act which he was not authorised to perform but which he nevertheless purported to do as agent⁸.

430. Extent of master's implied authority as owners' agent.

The extent of the master's authority which may be implied from the fact of his employment as master varies according to the usages of trade and all the circumstances of the case, including the place where he is and the accessibility of the owners or other agents of the owners¹. Thus, a master may have authority to bind his owners by charterparty when he is in a foreign port and his owners are not there, and there is difficulty in communicating with them². He has, however, no implied authority to agree to the substitution of another voyage for one to which the owners have already bound themselves³, or to vary the contract by substituting another and a more distant port of loading, or a different quality or description of cargo⁴, although in minor matters he may vary the contract⁵.

It is the master's duty to obey his owner's instructions, and his implied authority cannot extend to any act which is inconsistent with the law of the land because obedience to the law is implied in his instructions⁶. An owner may by express instructions to his master limit or extend what might otherwise be his implied authority⁷, but third persons dealing with the master without notice of a limitation are not affected by it. If the matter is within the ordinary scope of a master's authority, the shipowners may be bound by his act⁸.

1 The Fanny, The Mathilda (1883) 5 Asp MLC 75, CA. The scope of the master's authority has declined considerably during the last 100 years. This is due partly to the development of communications technology which makes it possible in many circumstances for masters to consult their owners to obtain express instructions before binding them to contractual obligations. In addition, many shipowners have appointed representatives at foreign ports who are authorised to act on their behalf for many purposes which formerly would have been part of the master's duties. Many of the authorities referred to subsequently must be read in the light of these developments and changing circumstances. As to the extent of the authority of an agent generally see AGENCY vol 1 (2008) PARA 30 et seq.

431. Liability of master.

According to the principles of agency, a master will not be liable personally on a contract made in the course of the usual employment of the ship unless he has failed to disclose to the third person that he is an agent¹. When a master purports to act as agent, he is deemed to warrant that he has authority to do so; if he has no such authority to bind his owners, he may be personally liable to third persons who have relied upon that warranty, and in consequence suffered loss or damage, for breach of his warranty of authority².

The master is personally responsible to his owners for any injury or loss to the ship or cargo by reason of his negligence or misconduct, or for acting without authority³. He is in the position of a trustee for his owners and is bound to account for all profits made by the ship while under his command⁴.

1 See Garnham v Bennett (1728) 2 Stra 816; Rich v Coe (1777) 2 Cowp 636; and AGENCY vol 1 (2008) PARA 156 et seq.

2 See Gordon v Hare (1823) 1 LJOSKB 70. A master is liable upon bills of exchange drawn upon his owners if these are dishonoured upon presentation (Watson and Parker v Gregory, The Cairo [1908] WN 230, 11 Asp MLC 161); and he may be liable upon a bill of exchange drawn by him unless its terms relieve him of liability expressly or impliedly (The Elmville [1904] P 319, 9 Asp MLC 606).

A master has no right to delegate his authority, and, except in the case of some higher authority (eg officers of the Royal Navy), he has no right to give up control except to one of his own officers: The Bonvilston (1914) 30 TLR 311 per Bagnall J. The fact that a ship is being navigated in an area and in circumstances in which pilotage is compulsory for it does not affect any liability of the owner or master of the ship for any loss or damage caused by the ship or by the manner in which it is navigated: see the Pilotage Act 1987 s 16; and PARA 579. 432. Exoneration of master; ship's protests.

A ship's protest is a declaration by the master when damage has been caused to a ship or her cargo, and is made before a notary or British consul at the first port of call¹. The object of a protest is to record promptly in an authentic form the circumstances in which loss or damage occurred so as to exonerate the master and his crew from blame². Although protests are not compulsory or essential in England³, they are often made in practice to support insurance claims by foreign cargo owners in countries where protests are required. In English courts they are not receivable in evidence, although they may be used in cross-examination⁴.

1 An important branch of a notary's practice deals with the drawing up and noting of ships' protests: see LEGAL PROFESSIONS vol 66 (2009) PARA 1458. As to British consular officers see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 30.

2 A 'note' of the protest is made in a book of the notary, stating the date, the name of the ship, the name of her master and the voyage, and protests against the perils of the seas causing damage: see LEGAL PROFESSIONS vol 66 (2009) PARA 1458. Thus, a protest would record details of an accident or heavy weather encountered on a voyage which might have caused loss of deck cargo or which might have prevented the ventilation of cargo or which might have delayed the voyage, or caused the vessel to put into a port of refuge.

(iii) Master's Authority to make Contracts

433. General instances of master's authority to contract.

The master of a ship has implied authority to contract to carry goods on board¹, to assign freight and to authorise the collection of freight², but he cannot bind his owners to carry freight free³, or contract with the freighter to carry at a lower freight than that agreed upon with the owners⁴, or authorise its payment in an unusual manner⁵. He may sign bills of lading for goods put on board⁶, and acknowledge the weight, value and condition of such goods⁷. Shipowners are bound by statements by the master in the bill of lading as to the condition of goods⁸ and as to whether freight is payable or not⁹.

The master has implied authority to do whatever is necessary and prudent for the preservation of ship and cargo¹⁰. He has authority to contract for the services of a crew at an increased remuneration if the risks of war arise and to discharge the crew from their obligations under an existing contract of employment¹¹. He has the authority to conclude contracts for salvage operations on behalf of the owner of the vessel and to conclude such contracts on behalf of the owner of the property on board the vessel¹². If he is performing a charterparty which does not expressly bestow authority, he may deviate to save life, but not to save property¹³. The master has implied authority to bind the shipowner to pay for repairs, stores, provisions, disbursements paid and money advanced in circumstances necessary for the use and employment of the ship¹⁴.

434. Master's authority to contract for necessities.

The master of a vessel has implied authority to contract as agent on behalf of the shipowner for such things as are necessary for the use and employment of the ship¹. Thus, a shipowner is liable for necessary repairs done to a ship by the master's order². The repairs must be such as are fit and proper for the vessel on her voyage³ and such as a prudent owner himself, if present, would have ordered⁴. The master's authority may also extend to contracts for the supply of anchors, cables, rigging⁵, fuel⁶, provisions and clothing for the crew⁷, copper sheathing⁸, a screw propeller⁹, or for the advance of money to pay for necessities¹⁰, or money to pay off a shipwright's lien for necessary repairs¹¹, or to pay towage and harbour charges¹² and such other things as a prudent owner would have authorised the master to order if he had been present at the time¹³. It must be shown not only that the money borrowed or goods supplied were reasonably necessary according to the ordinary course of prudent conduct, but also that it was reasonably necessary that the master should obtain or order them on the owner's credit¹⁴. The burden of proof lies upon the creditor who seeks to establish the shipowner's liability¹⁵.

435. Master's lien and right of indemnity.

When a master acting within the scope of his authority makes disbursements or accepts personal liabilities for the benefit of the shipowners, he is entitled to be indemnified by them¹. The master has a statutory lien upon the ship for his remuneration, liabilities and disbursements². This lien only arises when the disbursements or liabilities were made or incurred by the master acting as master and being entitled to pledge the owner's credit³. The disbursement or liability must also have been necessary for the protection of the owner's interest⁴ in the circumstances where the master could not communicate with the owner⁵.

This liability in personam remains notwithstanding a change in the ownership of the ship⁴.

The creditor may also be entitled to enforce his claim against the shipowner by an action in rem⁵ if the contract made by the master was in respect of goods or materials supplied to a ship for her operation or maintenance or in respect of the construction, repair or equipment of a ship or dock charges or dues⁶. (iv) Master's Authority to hypothecate Ship and Freight 437. Bottomry.

The master has authority in circumstances of unforeseen necessity or distress to pledge the ship and freight to raise the necessary funds for the voyage¹ by a contract called 'bottomry', the bottom or keel of the ship being figuratively used to express the whole body of the ship².

There is no settled form for the bottomry contract. It has usually taken the form of a bond³ by which the master states the occasion for resorting to bottomry and pledges himself the ship and freight, and sometimes the cargo, for the repayment of the principal and interest on the safe arrival of the ship at the end of her voyage on such conditions as to risk as may be agreed upon. Where the cargo alone is hypothecated, the instrument is called a respondentia bond. Bottomry and respondentia are obsolete in practice⁴.

(v) Master's Authority to tranship or jettison Cargo

438. Transhipment.

It is the master's duty to convey the cargo to the place of destination by any reasonable and practical method. Where the ship in the course of the voyage has suffered damage and cannot be repaired at all or not without very great loss of time or expense, the master is at liberty to tranship the cargo to another vessel to be forwarded to its original destination¹. He is not bound to do this²; nor is he under an absolute obligation to the cargo owner to forward the cargo in the original vessel, although in his capacity of agent to the shipowner it is his duty to do so if he can³.

439. Jettison to remove danger.

In case of imminent danger to the ship or to the lives on board the ship, the master may jettison such amount of cargo as may be necessary to remove the danger. In extreme cases, he may jettison the whole of the cargo; and, when jettisoning, he may select what articles he pleases, and may determine what quantity¹.

If the master jettisons more cargo than is necessary to remedy the danger to the ship, the shipowner is liable to make good the full value to the cargo owner, and the shipowner is similarly liable when cargo has been rightly jettisoned in case of necessity, but at a time when there has been a deviation from the agreed voyage².

Whenever cargo is jettisoned from necessity, its owners are entitled to average contribution unless the cargo was carried on deck and there is no custom justifying such carriage³.

440. Sale of ship.

By virtue of his employment, the master has not merely those powers which are necessary for the navigation of the ship and the conduct of the adventure to a safe termination, but also in case of extreme necessity¹, as when such termination becomes impossible and no prospect remains of bringing the vessel home, authority to do the best for all concerned, and, if necessary, to sell the ship². Before resorting to a sale, he is bound, if money is what is required to enable the voyage to be completed, seriously and deliberately to try every other expedient to raise the necessary funds³.

441. Meaning of 'necessity'.

It is impossible to give an exact and concise definition of 'necessity', for it will depend upon all the circumstances of the case¹. It must be impracticable for the master to communicate with the owners, and therefore modern means of communication make it a matter of extreme rarity for a master to act upon his authority to sell. The sale must be in good faith and for the benefit of all concerned, so that the prudent uninsured owner would have sold the ship; there must also be an urgent necessity for the sale². The burden of proof that the sale was necessary lies on the person seeking to support the sale, on the purchaser as against the owner³, and on the owner as against the insurers⁴.

442. Foreign judgment.

A judgment in rem of a foreign court, having jurisdiction in the matter, ordering the sale of the ship is binding even though all the facts were not before the court, provided that the judgment was not obtained by fraud¹. If, however, in a foreign country the master, for the purpose of evading the effect of the restrictions on his powers of sale, either fraudulently procures the condemnation and sale of the ship as unfit for sea from some court or judge having jurisdiction in maritime matters, or without fraud procures such a condemnation from a court or judge not having jurisdiction, or from an official, these findings are not binding in the English courts, and the question of the necessity for sale may be inquired into and the sale declared void².

A sale of cargo by the master is a matter which requires the utmost caution on his part, for the cargo has been entrusted to him for the express purpose of being carried to its destination¹. When it becomes necessary to provide funds to enable the ship to reach her destination, and this can only be done by hypothecation of the cargo or a sale of a part of it, a sale is allowed, but it must be limited to a part of the cargo, for a sale of the whole would defeat the very purpose for which the master has been entrusted with the cargo, and this purpose he is bound to accomplish by every reasonable and practicable method².

447. Master's power of arrest.

The master¹ of any United Kingdom ship² may cause any person on board the ship to be put under restraint if and for so long as it appears to him necessary or expedient in the interest of safety or for the preservation of good order or discipline on board the ship³.

(viii) Master's Duty to assist Aircraft in Distress

448. Duty to assist aircraft in distress.

The master of a ship¹, on receiving at sea a signal of distress from an aircraft² or information from any source that an aircraft is in distress, must proceed with all speed to the assistance of the persons in distress (informing them, if possible, that he is doing so), unless³:

- 73 (1) he is unable, or in the special circumstances of the case considers it unreasonable or unnecessary to do so⁴; or
- 74 (2) he is released from the duty by being informed by the persons in distress (or by the master of any ship that has reached the persons in distress) that assistance is no longer required⁵.

If a master fails to comply with the duty to assist⁶, he commits an offence⁷.

Compliance by the master of a ship with the duty to assist⁸ does not affect his right, or the right of any other person, to salvage⁹.

1 The duties imposed on the master of a ship by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 93(1) apply to the masters of United Kingdom ships and to the masters of foreign ships when in United Kingdom waters: s 93(3) (amended by SI 1998/1691). (ix) Master's Duty where he ceases to be Master during Voyage

449. Master's duty to deliver documents where he ceases to be master during voyage.

If a person ceases to be the master¹ of a United Kingdom ship² during a voyage of the ship, he must deliver to his successor the documents relating to the ship or its crew which are in his custody³.

If without reasonable excuse the master of such a ship fails to comply with this requirement⁴, he commits an offence⁵.

(3) ENGAGEMENT AND DISCHARGE OF CREWS

(i) Engagement of Crews

A. CREW AGREEMENTS

450. General provision for crew agreements.

An agreement in writing must¹ be made between each person employed as a seaman² in a United Kingdom ship³ and the person employing him and must be signed both by him and by or on behalf of them⁴.

The agreements so made with the several persons employed in a ship must be contained in one document (a 'crew agreement')⁵ except that in such cases as the Secretary of State⁶ may approve⁷:

- 75 (1) the agreements to be so made with the persons employed in a ship may be contained in more than one crew agreement⁸; and
- 76 (2) one crew agreement may relate to more than one ship⁹.

The provisions and form of a crew agreement must be of a kind approved by the Secretary of State¹⁰; and different provisions and forms may be so approved for different circumstances¹¹.

Subject to any exemptions or variations which may be allowed and any liability for contraventions¹², a crew agreement must be carried in the ship to which it relates whenever the ship goes to sea¹³.

The Secretary of State may make regulations providing for exemptions from the requirements of the general provision for crew agreements¹⁴:

- 77 (a) with respect to such descriptions of ship as may be specified in the regulations or with respect to voyages in such areas or such description of voyages as may be so specified¹⁵; or
- 78 (b) with respect to such descriptions of seamen as may be specified in the regulations¹⁶; and the Secretary of State may grant other exemptions from those requirements, whether with respect to particular seamen or with respect to seamen employed by a specified person or in a specified ship or in the ships of a specified person, in cases where the Secretary of State is satisfied that the seamen to be employed otherwise than under a crew agreement will be adequately protected¹⁷.

Where, but for an exemption granted by the Secretary of State, a crew agreement would be required to be carried in a ship or a crew agreement carried in the ship would be required to contain an agreement with a person employed in a ship, the ship must carry such documents evidencing the exemption as the Secretary of State may direct¹⁸.

Regulations so made may enable ships required so to carry a crew agreement to comply with the requirement by carrying a copy thereof, certified in such manner as may be provided by the regulations¹⁹.

If a ship goes to sea or attempts to go to sea in contravention²⁰ of the requirements of the general provision for crew agreements, the master²¹, or the person employing the crew, commits an offence²²; and the ship, if in the United Kingdom, may be detained²³.

1 le except as provided under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 25(5) (see the text and notes 14-17): see s 25(1).

2 As to the meaning of 'seaman' see PARA 424.

3 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom ship' see PARA 230. As to the meaning of 'ship' under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 229; and as to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

4 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 25(1). As to the application of s 25 see PARA 423. Crew agreements, lists of crews made under s 78 (see PARA 534) and notices given under Pt III (ss 24-84) of additions to or changes in crew agreements and lists of crews, are admissible in evidence and, when in the custody of the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen, are open to public inspection: see s 287(1)(c); and PARA 1109. As to the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen see PARA 61.

The Employment Rights Act 1996 ss 1-7 (right to written statements of terms and conditions of employment) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 94 et seq), Pt II (ss 13-27) (deductions from wages) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 230 et seq) and ss 86-91 (rights to minimum notice and rights during notice) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 692 et seq) do not apply to a person employed as a seaman in a ship registered in the United Kingdom under a crew agreement the provisions and form of which are of a kind approved by the Secretary of State: s 199(1). As to the Secretary of State for these purposes see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 5. Nor do ss 8-10 (right to itemised pay statement) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 99), ss 50-54 (time off work for public duties, looking for work and making arrangements for training) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 303 et seq) and Pt XII (ss 182-190) (insolvency of employer) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARAS 557-560) apply to employment as a merchant seaman: s 199(4). For these purposes, 'employment as a merchant seaman': (1) does not include employment in the fishing industry or employment on board a ship otherwise than by the owner, manager or charterer of that ship except employment as a radio officer (s 199(5)(a)); but (2) subject to that, includes: (a) employment as a master or a member of the crew of any ship (s 199(5)(b)(i)); (b) employment as a trainee undergoing training for the sea service (s 199(5)(b)(ii)); and (c) employment in or about a ship in port by the owner, manager or charterer of the ship to do work of the kind ordinarily done by a merchant seaman on a ship while it is in port (s 199(5)(b)(iii)).

Certain provisions of the Employment Rights Act 1996 apply to employment on board a ship registered in the register maintained under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 8 (central register of British ships) (as to which see PARA 254) if and only if:

813 (i) the ship's entry in the register specifies a port in Great Britain as the port to which the vessel is to be treated as belonging (Employment Rights Act 1996 s 199(7)(a) (s 199 (7), (8) added by the Employment Relations Act 1999 s 32(4)));

814 (ii) under his contract of employment the person employed does not work wholly outside Great Britain (Employment Rights Act 1996 s 199(7)(b) (as so added)); and 815 (iii) the person employed is ordinarily resident in Great Britain (s 199(7)(c) (as so added)).

As to the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 17 note 3. As to the meaning of 'contract of employment' for these purposes see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 2. As to ordinary residence see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 134; CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 58. The provisions of the Employment Rights Act 1996 which do not so apply are: ss 8-10 (right to itemised pay statement) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 99); Pt II (ss 13-27) (deductions from wages) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 230 et seq); Pt III (ss 28-35) (guarantee payments) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 237 et seq); Pt V (ss 43M-49A) (protection from suffering detriment in employment) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 544 et seq); Pt VI (ss 50-63C) (time off for work) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 303 et seq) apart from ss 58-60 (occupational pension scheme trustees) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARAS 314-315); Pt VII (ss 64-70) (suspension from work) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 316 et seq); Pt VIII (ss 71-80E) (maternity etc leave) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 323 et seq); Pt VIIIA (ss 80F-80I) (flexible leave) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARAS 83-86); s 92 (right to written statement of reasons for dismissal) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 712); s 93 (complaint to employment tribunal) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 713); and Pt X (ss 94-134A) (unfair dismissal) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 714 et seq): Employment Rights Act 1996 s

199(8) (as so added; amended by the Employment Act 2002 Sch 7 paras 24, 44(1), (3)). The Employment Rights Act 1996 s 199(7) preserves the position of persons working on registered ships, despite the general repeal of the jurisdictional rules in the Employment Rights Act 1996 s 196 (repealed), which originally contained an equivalent provision: see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 139. The predecessor of this provision, ie the Employment Protection (Consolidation) Act 1978 s 141(5) (repealed), was held not to apply where a seaman was employed under a contract which required him to work on non-British, as well as British, ships: Royle v Globtik Management Ltd [1977] ICR 552, EAT.

451. Regulations relating to crew agreements.

The Secretary of State¹ may make regulations²:

- 79 (1) requiring such notice as may be specified in the regulations to be given to a superintendent³ or proper officer⁴, except in such circumstances as may be so specified, before a crew agreement⁵ is made or an agreement with any person is added to those contained in a crew agreement⁶;
- 80 (2) providing for the delivery to a superintendent or proper officer or the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen⁷ of crew agreements and agreements added to those contained in a crew agreement and of copies of crew agreements and of agreements so added⁸;
- 81 (3) requiring the posting in ships⁹ of copies of or extracts from crew agreements¹⁰;
- 82 (4) requiring copies of or extracts from crew agreements to be supplied to members of the crew demanding them and requiring copies of or extracts from documents referred to in crew agreements to be made available, in such circumstances as may be specified in the regulations, for inspection by members of the crew¹¹; and
- 83 (5) requiring any documents carried in a ship pursuant to the general provision for crew agreements¹² to be produced on demand to an officer of revenue and customs¹³.

Regulations so made may make a contravention¹⁴ of any provision thereof an offence punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale or such less amount as may be specified in the regulations¹⁵.

MASTERS AND SEAMEN/(3) ENGAGEMENT AND DISCHARGE OF CREWS/(i) Engagement of Crews/A. CREW AGREEMENTS/452. Exemptions from general provision for crew agreements.

452. Exemptions from general provision for crew agreements.

The requirements of the general statutory provisions relating to crew agreements¹ do not apply to the following descriptions of ships² and voyages³:

- 84 (1) a ship belonging to a general lighthouse authority⁴;
- 85 (2) a ship of less than 80 register tons⁵ engaged solely on coastal voyages⁶;
- 86 (3) a pleasure yacht which is engaged on a coastal voyage, or a pleasure yacht which is engaged on any other voyage provided that not more than four members of the crew receive wages for their employment⁷;
- 87 (4) a coastal voyage by any ship solely for the purpose of trials of the ship, its machinery or equipment⁸.

Nor do the general provisions relating to crew agreements⁹ apply to the following descriptions of seamen¹⁰:

- 88 (a) a person employed in a ship solely in connection with the construction, alteration, repair or testing of the ship, its machinery or equipment, and not engaged in the navigation of the ship¹¹;
- 89 (b) a person solely employed in work directly related to:
- 23 54. (i) the exploration of the sea bed or subsoil or the exploitation of their natural resources¹²;
- 55. (ii) the storage of gas in or under the sea bed or subsoil or the exploitation of their natural resources¹³;
- 56. (iii) the laying, inspection, testing, repair, alteration, renewal or removal of any submarine telegraph cable¹⁴;
- 57. (iv) pipeline works¹⁵ including the assembling, inspection, testing, maintaining, adjusting, repairing, altering, renewing, changing the position of, or dismantling a pipeline or length of pipeline¹⁶; or
- 58. (v) the provision of goods, personal services or entertainment on board¹⁷,
- 24 90 and who is not employed by the owner¹⁸ or the person employing the master of the ship and is not engaged in the navigation of the ship in the deck, engine room, radio, medical or catering department of that ship and who has been given a written statement by his employer specifying the nature of the employment, the remuneration, the intervals at which the remuneration is to be paid and the length of notice which he is required to give and entitled to receive to determine his employment and specifying any terms or conditions of his employment relating to sick pay, hours of work (including any terms and conditions relating to normal working hours), pensions and entitlement to holidays¹⁹;
- 91 (c) a member of the naval, military or air forces of the Crown or of any service administered by the Defence Council²⁰, when acting as such a member²¹.

1 le the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 25 (see PARA 450): see the Merchant Shipping (Crew Agreements, Lists of Crew and Discharge of Seamen) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2144, reg 4(1); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). As to the meaning of 'crew agreement' under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 450.

2 For these purposes, 'ship' means a ship registered in the United Kingdom but does not include a fishing vessel: Merchant Shipping (Crew Agreements, Lists of Crew and Discharge of Seamen) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2144, reg 2. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3. As to the registration of ships in the United Kingdom see PARA 245 et seq.

4 Merchant Shipping (Crew Agreements, Lists of Crew and Discharge of Seamen) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2144, reg 4(1)(a). As to General Lighthouse Authorities see PARA 1068.

5 For these purposes, references to the gross or to the register tonnage of a ship are, in the case of a ship having alternative gross or alternative register tonnages, references to the larger of its gross tonnages or to the larger of its register tonnages, as the case may be: Merchant Shipping (Crew Agreements, Lists of Crew and Discharge of Seamen) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2144, reg 2.

6 Merchant Shipping (Crew Agreements, Lists of Crew and Discharge of Seamen) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2144, reg 4(1)(b). For these purposes, 'coastal voyage' means a voyage between places in the British Islands, including the Republic of Ireland, or from and returning to such a place during which, in either case, no call is made at any place outside those islands: reg 2. 453. Carrying of copy of crew agreement in ships.

A ship¹ required² to carry a crew agreement³ may, in the case of an agreement which relates to both that and to other ships and which is kept at an address ashore in the United Kingdom⁴, comply with that requirement by carrying a copy of the agreement certified in the following manner⁵, namely that such a copy so carried in a ship bears a certificate signed by the master certifying that it is a true copy of the crew agreement and specifying the address in the United Kingdom at which the crew agreement is kept and the name of the person by whom it is so kept⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 452 note 2.

2 Is required under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 25 (see PARA 450): see the Merchant Shipping (Crew Agreements, Lists of Crew and Discharge of Seamen) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2144, reg 5(1); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

454. Delivery of crew agreement.

An employer must, within three days of the date when the last person remaining employed under the crew agreement¹ ceases to be employed under that agreement, or, if it is not practicable within that period, as soon as practicable thereafter, deliver the crew agreement to a superintendent or proper officer² for the place where the ship³ was when that person ceased to be so employed⁴. If the crew agreement covers an indefinite period, the employer must deliver the crew agreement within seven days of it being opened to a superintendent or proper officer for the place where the ship was when the agreement opened⁵.

A person who fails to comply with such an obligation imposed on him⁶ to deliver the crew agreement commits an offence⁷.

1 As to the meaning of 'crew agreement' under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 25 see PARA 450.

2 For these purposes, 'appropriate superintendent or proper officer' means a superintendent or proper officer for the place at which a crew agreement, or an agreement with any person added to those contained in a crew agreement, is or is to be made: Merchant Shipping (Crew Agreements, Lists of Crew and Discharge of Seamen) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2144, reg 3.

455. Display of crew agreement on ship.

The master of a ship¹ must cause:

- 92 (1) a copy of any crew agreement relating to the ship²; or
- 93 (2) an extract containing the terms of that agreement applicable to all seamen employed under it and to each description of seamen so employed³, to be posted in some conspicuous place on board the ship where it can be read by the persons employed under the crew agreement⁴; and he must cause it to be kept so posted and legible so long as any seaman is employed in the ship under the crew agreement⁵.

A master who fails to comply with such an obligation imposed on him⁶ to display the crew agreement commits an offence⁷.

MASTERS AND SEAMEN/(3) ENGAGEMENT AND DISCHARGE OF CREWS/(i) Engagement of Crews/A. CREW AGREEMENTS/456. Supply and production of copy documents on demand by seamen.

456. Supply and production of copy documents on demand by seamen.

Upon a seaman making a demand of his employer (or of the master), the employer (or the master, as the case may be) must, within a reasonable time¹:

- 94 (1) cause to be supplied to him a copy of the crew agreement under which he is employed² or such extracts therefrom as are necessary to show the terms on which he is employed³; and
- 95 (2) cause to be made available to him a copy of any document referred to in the agreement⁴.

A person or, as the case may be, a master who fails to comply with such an obligation imposed on him⁵ to supply and produce on demand copy documents related to the crew agreement commits an offence⁶.

458. Regulations relating to crew agreements on United Kingdom fishing vessels.

The Secretary of State¹ may make regulations² prescribing the procedure to be followed in connection with the making of crew agreements between persons employed in United Kingdom fishing vessels³ and persons employing them and prescribing the places where such crew agreements are to be made or where an agreement with any person may be added to those contained in such a crew agreement⁴.

Such regulations may make a contravention⁵ of any provision thereof an offence punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale⁶ or such less amount as may be specified in the regulations⁷.

4 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 109(1). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made under s 26 but, by virtue of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b), the Merchant Shipping (Crew Agreements, Lists of Crew and Discharge of Seamen) (Fishing Vessels) Regulations 1972, SI 1972/919 (as to which see AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARAS 1025, 1026) have effect as if so made. As to the Secretary of State's power to grant exemptions see PARA 425.

The following provisions of the Employment Rights Act 1996 do not apply to employment as master, or as a member of the crew, of a fishing vessel where the employee is remunerated only by a share in the profits or gross earnings of the vessel, namely: ss 8-10 (right to itemised pay statement) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 99); Pt III (ss 28-35) (guarantee payments) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 237 et seq); s 44 (health and safety cases) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 544); s 45 (Sunday working for certain workers) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 545); s 47 (employee representatives) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 41 (2009) PARA 1176); s 47C (leave for family or domestic reasons) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 548); s 47E (flexible working) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 547); ss 50-57B (time off work for public duties, looking for work and making arrangements for training, ante-natal care and dependants) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 303 et seq); ss 61-63 (time off work for employee representatives) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 41 (2009) PARA 1177); Pt VII (ss 64-70) (suspension from work) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 316 et seq); Pt VIII (ss 71-80E) (maternity etc leave) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 323 et seq); Pt VIIIA (ss 80F-80I) (flexible leave) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARAS 83-86); s 92 (right to written statement of reasons for dismissal) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 712); s 93 (complaints to employment tribunal) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 713); Pt X (ss 94-134A) (unfair dismissal) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 714 et seq); Pt XI (ss 135-181) (redundancy payments etc) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 790 et seq); and Pt XII (ss 182-190) (insolvency of employers) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARAS 557-560): Employment Rights Act 1996 s 199(2) (amended by the Employment Relations Act 1999 ss 9, 44, Sch 4 Pt III paras 5, 34(a), (b), Sch 9; the Employment Act 2002 s 53, Sch 7 paras 24, 44(1), (2)(a), (b); and the Employment Relations Act 2004 s 41(8)). As to the meanings of 'employee' and 'employment' for these purposes see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 2. On the true construction of the Employment Rights Act 1996 s 199(2), the singular cannot be read as including the plural in the words 'the vessel'; and, therefore, the application of s 199(2) is restricted to those members of a crew who are remunerated only by a share in the profits or gross earnings of the vessel on which they were employed: Goodeve v Gilsens (a firm) [1985] ICR 401, CA.

5 As to the meaning of 'contravention' see PARA 50 note 3.

6 As to the meaning of 'standard scale' see PARA 1099.

7 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 109(2). As to offences under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 1099 et seq.

As to the powers of inspectors appointed under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 256(6) (see PARA 46) to serve improvement notices or prohibition notices where s 109 and the provisions of any instrument of a legislative character having effect thereunder are being contravened, or where activities to which s 109 applies are carried on so as to involve serious personal injury or serious pollution, see PARA 50 et seq.

NOTE 4--Employment Rights Act 1996 s 47F (study and training) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 547), Pt VIA (ss 63D-63K) (study and training) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 305A) are also disapplied in relation to such employment: Employment Rights Act 1996 s 199(2) (further amended by Apprenticeships, Skills, Children and Learning Act 2009 Sch 1 para 7(a), (b)) (Sch 1 is fully in force on 6 April 2011: see SI 2010/303).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/5. MASTERS AND SEAMEN/(3) ENGAGEMENT AND DISCHARGE OF CREWS/(i) Engagement of Crews/B. SEAFARING DUTIES/459. Performance of seafaring duties by crew.

B. SEAFARING DUTIES

459. Performance of seafaring duties by crew.

A seaman is not bound to perform any services other than those specified in his contract of service¹. However, he is required to perform duties which, although not specifically stipulated, are reasonably incidental to a seafaring life. Thus, the seaman must navigate the ship in all sorts of weather and perils unless the contract of service is duly dissolved²; he must conduct himself in a properly respectful manner towards his superiors³; and he must assist with the working of the cargo in ports of call⁴.

1 Thus a seaman who has agreed to serve on an ordinary voyage is not bound to continue to serve when the voyage has become extraordinary, eg:

816 (1) as when the risk ceases to be a commercial risk by reason of the carriage of contraband (Burton v Pinkerton (1867) LR 2 Exch 340; O'Neil v Armstrong, Mitchell & Co [1895] 2 QB 418, 8 Asp MLC 63, CA; Lloyd v Sheen (1905) 10 Asp MLC 75, DC; Austin Friars Steam Shipping Co v Strack [1905] 2 KB 315, 10 Asp MLC 70, DC (on appeal [1906] 2 KB 499, CA); Palace Shipping Co Ltd v Caine [1907] AC 386, 10 Asp MLC 529, HL; Collins v Simpson Steamship Co (1907) 24 TLR 178, CA); or

817 (2) where the voyage is to a war zone (Robson v Sykes [1938] 2 All ER 612, 61 Ll L Rep 16, DC); or

818 (3) where war breaks out and the ship is in danger of being captured or sunk (Liston v The Carpathian (Owners) [1915] 2 KB 42, 13 Asp MLC 70); or

819 (4) where the voyage is extended beyond the time and scope agreed upon (The Eliza (1823) 1 Hag Adm 182; The Countess of Harcourt (1824) 1 Hag Adm 248; The Minerva (1825) 1 Hag Adm 347; The George Home (1825) 1 Hag Adm 370; The Westmorland (1841) 1 Wm Rob 216; Donkin v Hastie (1897) 61 JP 568, DC); or 820 (5) where there is a shortage of provisions (The Castilia (1822) 1 Hag Adm 59).

As to when a voyage will be deemed to be terminated see Haylett v Thompson [1911] 1 KB 311, 11 Asp MLC 512, DC. The voyage to be considered is the 'voyage of the ship', not the voyage of the cargo: The Scarsdale [1906] P 103, 10 Asp MLC 235, CA (affd sub nom Board of Trade v Baxter, The Scarsdale [1907] AC 373, 10 Asp MLC 525, HL).

821 (1) the act of the master if he discharges the seaman (see PARA 460 et seq); or

822 (2) the legitimate abandonment of the vessel at sea to save life, and with the authority of the master; or 823 (3) the hostile capture of the vessel (see PARA 1210 et seq).

(ii) Discharge of Crews

460. Secretary of State's power to make regulations.

The Secretary of State¹ may make regulations² prescribing the procedure to be followed in connection with the discharge of seamen³ from United Kingdom ships⁴.

Such regulations may⁵ make provision⁶:

- 96 (1) requiring notice of such a discharge to be given at such time as may be specified in the regulations to the superintendent⁷ or proper officer⁸ at a place specified in or determined under the regulations⁹;
- 97 (2) requiring such a discharge to be recorded, whether by entries in the crew agreement¹⁰ and discharge book¹¹ or otherwise, and requiring copies of any such entry to be given to a superintendent or proper officer or the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen¹².

Regulations so made may also:

- 98 (a) provide that in such cases as may be specified in the regulations, or except in such cases as may be specified in or determined under the regulations, a seaman is not to be discharged outside the United Kingdom from a United Kingdom ship without the consent of the proper officer¹³;
- 99 (b) make a contravention¹⁴ of any provision thereof an offence punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹⁵ or such less amount as may be specified in the regulations¹⁶.

Regulations so made may apply any provision relating to the power under which they are made¹⁷, with such modifications as appear to the Secretary of State to be appropriate, to cases where a seaman employed in a United Kingdom ship is left behind outside the United Kingdom otherwise than on being discharged from the ship¹⁸.

461. Notice of discharge.

The master of a ship¹ must, not less than 48 hours before a seaman is discharged from the ship² or, if it is not practicable within that period, as soon as practicable thereafter, give a notice of discharge in writing to a superintendent or proper officer for the place where the seaman is to be discharged³. A notice of discharge must contain the following particulars⁴:

- 100 (1) the name of the ship, its port of registry and official number⁵;
- 101 (2) the place, date and time of the seaman's discharge⁶;
- 102 (3) the capacity in which the seaman is employed in the ship⁷.

If a notice of discharge relates to more than one seaman, it must state, in addition to the particulars specified in heads (1) to (3) above, the number of seamen being discharged⁸.

A master who fails to comply with an obligation imposed on him⁹ to give such a notice of discharge in the circumstances described commits an offence¹⁰.

1 As to the meaning of 'ship' for these purposes see PARA 452 note 2.

462. Procedure on discharge.

Where a seaman is present at the time of his discharge¹:

- 103 (1) the master, or one of the ship's² officers authorised by him in that behalf must, before the seaman is discharged³:
- 25
- 59. (a) if the seaman produces his discharge book⁴ to him, record in it the name of the ship, its port of registry, gross or register tonnage and official number⁵, the description of the voyage, the capacity in which the seaman has been employed in the ship, the date on which he began to be so employed and the date and place of his discharge⁶; or
- 60. (b) if the seaman does not produce his discharge book to him, give to the seaman a certificate of discharge containing the like particulars⁷;
- 26
- 104 (2) the master must ensure that the seaman is discharged in the presence of the master himself, or the seaman's employer or a person authorised in that behalf by the master or employer⁸;
- 105 (3) the person mentioned in head (2) above in whose presence the seaman is being discharged must⁹:
- 27
- 61. (a) make and sign an entry in the official log book¹⁰ recording the place, date and time of the seaman's discharge¹¹; and
- 62. (b) make and sign an entry in the crew agreement¹² or, if there is a list of crew separate from a crew agreement, in the list of crew, recording the place and date of, and the reason for, the seaman's discharge¹³; and
- 28
- 106 (4) the seaman must sign the entry in the crew agreement and list of crew referred to in head (3)(b) above¹⁴.

Any person, including a master:

- 107 (i) who fails to comply with an obligation imposed on him by or under head (1) or head (3) above¹⁵; or
- 108 (ii) who fails to comply with an obligation imposed on him by head (3)(b) above in relation to an entry in a crew agreement or in a list of crew¹⁶, commits an offence¹⁷; a master who fails to comply with an obligation imposed on him by head (2) above, or by head (3) above in circumstances where a seaman is not present at his own discharge¹⁸, commits an offence¹⁹; and a seaman who fails to comply with an obligation imposed on him by head (4) above commits an offence²⁰.

If a seaman so requests, within a period of six months from the date of his discharge from or his leaving the ship, the master, or one of the ship's officers authorised by him in that behalf, must give to the seaman a certificate (which must be separate from any other document) either as to the quality of his work or indicating whether he has fully discharged his obligations under his contract of employment²¹. Any person, including a master, who fails to comply with this requirement commits an offence²².

463. Discharge of seamen when ship ceases to be registered in the United Kingdom.

Where a United Kingdom ship¹ ceases to be registered², any seaman³ employed in the ship is discharged from the ship⁴ unless he consents in writing to continue his employment in the ship⁵; and the statutory provisions which relate to the payment and account of seamen's wages⁶ apply in relation to his wages as if the ship had remained a United Kingdom ship⁷.

The provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 which relate to the relief and return of seamen etc left behind and shipwrecked (ie s 73) (see PARA 527) apply to a person left behind on being discharged in pursuance of s 29, whether or not at the time he is left behind the ship is still a United Kingdom ship: see s 73(7); and PARA 527.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/5. MASTERS AND SEAMEN/(4) WAGES ETC/(i) Entitlement to Wages etc/464. Right, or loss of right, to wages in certain circumstances.

(4) WAGES ETC

(i) Entitlement to Wages etc

464. Right, or loss of right, to wages in certain circumstances.

Where a United Kingdom ship¹ is wrecked² or lost³, a seaman⁴ whose employment in the ship is thereby terminated before the date contemplated in the agreement under which he is so employed is⁵ entitled to wages⁶ at the rate payable under the agreement at the date of the wreck or loss for every day on which he is unemployed in the two months following that date⁷.

Where a United Kingdom ship is sold while outside the United Kingdom or ceases to be a United Kingdom ship and a seaman's employment in the ship is thereby terminated before the date contemplated in the agreement under which he is so employed, then, unless it is otherwise contemplated in the agreement, he is⁸ entitled to wages at the rate payable under the agreement at the date on which his employment is terminated for every day on which he is unemployed in the two months following that date⁹.

A seaman is not, however, so entitled to wages for a day on which he was unemployed, if it is shown¹⁰:

- 109 (1) that the unemployment was not due to the wreck or loss of the ship or, as the case may be, the termination of his employment on the sale of the ship or its ceasing to be a United Kingdom ship¹¹; or
- 110 (2) that the seaman was able to obtain suitable employment for that day but unreasonably refused or failed to take it¹².

Wages continue to accrue after the institution of proceedings for recovery¹³.

2 A ship is a 'wreck' if she is so seriously damaged that she ceases to be a navigable ship: The Olympic [1913] P 92 at 101, 12 Asp MLC 318 at 321, CA, per Bagnall Deane J. A ship which collided with another on her first day out, and was so damaged that she was unable to continue her voyage, although she was able to regain her port of departure under her own steam, was, therefore, held to be a 'wreck': The Olympic. A ship is not necessarily deemed a 'wreck' because underwriters have abandoned her (Lloyd v Sheen (1905) 10 Asp MLC 75, DC (discovery of contraband cargo)); and in any case abandonment must be clearly proved (The Warrior (1862) Lush 476). The scuttling of a ship in port to put out a fire has been held to constitute 'wreck or loss': The Woodhorn (1891) 92 LT Jo 113. A seaman incapacitated by accident in the course of duty was formerly by maritime custom entitled to his wages for the whole voyage: Chandler v Grieves (1792) 2 Hy Bl 606n.

3 Destruction of a neutral ship, not shown to have been carrying contraband of war, by a belligerent state constitutes 'loss' (Sievwright v Allen [1906] 2 KB 81, 10 Asp MLC 251); but, where, unknown to the crew, the vessel is carrying contraband of war, the crew's right to wages does not cease with the capture of the ship (Austin Friars Steam Shipping Co v Strack [1905] 2 KB 315, 10 Asp MLC 70, DC; on appeal [1906] 2 KB 499, CA). See also Horlock v Beal [1916] 1 AC 486, 13 Asp MLC 250, HL (where a British ship was detained in an enemy port at the outbreak of war, and the crew interned; it was held that the detention of the ship did not constitute 'loss of the ship' within what is now the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 38, but that the further performance of the crew's contract of service had become impossible from the date of the detention of the ship, and that a seaman ceased to be entitled to his wages as soon as the further performance of the contract became impossible). The provision that is now embodied in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 38 is not exhaustive: Horlock v Beal. Loss may also be caused by explosion: see Collins v Simpson Steamship Co (1907) 24 TLR 178, CA. The wreck or loss may be deemed to occur not when the vessel goes ashore but when the venture terminates: The Terneuzen [1938] P 109, [1938] 2 All ER 348, 60 Ll L Rep 368. As to wreck see the cases cited in note 2; and Barras v Aberdeen Steam Trawling and Fishing Co Ltd [1933] AC 402, 18 Asp MLC 384, HL (applying the meaning of 'wreck' in what is now the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 38).

5 le subject to the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 38(2)-(4) (see the text and notes 4, 8-12): see s 38(1).

6 For these purposes, 'wages' includes emoluments: Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313(1).

7 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 38(1). As to the application of s 38 see PARA 423; and as to the power to grant exemptions with respect to fishing vessels see PARA 425. The Employment Rights Act 1996 Pt II (ss 13-27) (deductions from wages) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 230 et seq) does not apply to a person employed as a seaman in a ship registered in the United Kingdom under a crew agreement the provisions and form of which are of a kind approved by the Secretary of State (see s 199(1); and PARA 450 note 4); nor do ss 8-10 (right to itemised pay statement) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 99) apply to employment as a merchant seaman (see s 199(4); PARA 450 note 4).

465. Extra wages.

As a general rule, seamen are not entitled to claim any additional wages in respect of services rendered in the course of the period of engagement, even though the master has agreed to pay them, the contract being considered void for absence of consideration as well as from public policy¹. The fact that a vessel is about to sail short-handed is, however, a fact which will justify an agreement to pay additional remuneration²; and a seaman who is promoted during a voyage is entitled to be paid at an enhanced rate of payment³, even though no alteration as to rate of pay is made in the ship's articles⁴. The owners may be bound by an agreement in reasonable terms made by the master to pay extra remuneration to the crew to bring a vessel home from a foreign port after war has broken out and the members of the crew have refused to sail, unless they are paid such extra remuneration in view of the war risks not contemplated by the members of the crew in their original agreement of wages for the voyage⁵.

The crew may be bound by an agreement in reasonable terms to accept half wages in the event of certain contingencies⁶.

(ii) Payment and Account of Wages

467. Payment of seamen's wages on discharge.

Where a seaman¹ employed under a crew agreement² relating to a United Kingdom ship³ leaves the ship on being discharged from it, then⁴ the wages⁵ due to the seaman under the agreement must either⁶:

- 111 (1) be paid to him in full at the time when he so leaves the ship (the 'time of discharge')⁷; or
- 112 (2) be paid to him within a pay cycle, in accordance with the provisions governing payment up-to-date at specified intervals⁸.

If the amount shown in the account duly delivered to a seaman⁹ as being the amount shown payable to him under head (1) above is replaced by an increased amount shown in a further account duly delivered to him¹⁰, the balance must be paid to him within seven days of the time of discharge; and, if the amount so shown in the account so delivered to him exceeds £50 and it is not practicable to pay the whole of it at the time of discharge, not less than £50 nor less than one-quarter of the amount so shown must be paid to him at that time and the balance within seven days of that time¹¹.

If any amount which (except under head (2) above)¹² is payable to a seaman is not paid at the time at which it is so payable, the seaman is entitled to wages at the rate last payable under the crew agreement for every day on which it remains unpaid during the period of 56 days following the time of discharge; and, if any such amount or any amount so payable remains unpaid after the end of that period, it carries interest at the rate of 20 per cent per annum¹³.

Where the crew agreement¹⁴ provides for the seaman's basic wages to be payable up-to-date at specified intervals not exceeding one month, and for any additional amounts of wages to be payable within the pay cycle following that to which they relate, any amount of wages due to the seaman under the agreement must be paid to him not later than the date on which the next payment of his basic wages following the time of discharge would have fallen due if his employment under the agreement had continued¹⁵. If, however, it is not practicable, in the case of any amount due to the seaman by way of wages additional to his basic wages, to pay that amount by the required date¹⁶, that amount must be paid to him not later than what would have been the last day of the pay cycle immediately following that date if his employment under the crew agreement had continued¹⁷. If any amount which is so payable¹⁸ to a seaman is not paid at the time at which it is so payable, it carries interest at the rate of 20% per annum¹⁹.

However, these provisions which govern the late payment of wages²⁰ do not apply if the failure to pay was due to²¹: (a) a mistake²²; (b) a reasonable dispute as to liability²³; (c) the act or default of the seaman²⁴; or (d) any other cause, not being the wrongful act or default of the persons liable to pay his wages or of their servants or agents²⁵; and so much of those provisions as relates to interest on the amount due does not apply if a court in proceedings for its recovery so directs²⁶.

Where a seaman is employed under a crew agreement relating to more than one ship, the provisions governing payment of his wages on discharge²⁷ have effect, in relation to wages due to him under the agreement, as if for any reference to the time of discharge there were substituted a reference to the termination of his employment under the crew agreement²⁸.

Where a seaman²⁹ is discharged from a ship outside the United Kingdom but returns to the United Kingdom under arrangements made by the persons who employed him, the provisions governing payment of his wages on discharge³⁰ have effect, in relation to the wages due to him under a crew agreement relating to the ship, as if for the references³¹ to the time of discharge there were substituted references to the time of his return to the United Kingdom³².

For these purposes, any amount of wages, if not paid to him in cash, is taken to have been paid to a seaman³³: (i) on the date when a cheque, or a money or postal order issued by the Post Office company³⁴, for that amount was dispatched by the recorded delivery service to the seaman's last known address³⁵; or (ii) on the date when any account kept by the seaman with a bank or other institution was credited with that amount³⁶.

468. Account of seamen's wages.

The master¹ of every United Kingdom ship² must³ deliver to every seaman⁴ employed in the ship under a crew agreement⁵ an account of the wages⁶ due to him under that crew agreement and of the deductions subject to which the wages are payable⁷. The account must indicate that the amounts stated therein are subject to any later adjustment that may be found necessary and must be delivered not later than 24 hours before the time of discharge⁸ or, if the seaman is discharged without notice or at less than 24 hours' notice, at the time of discharge⁹. If the amounts stated in the account require adjustment, the persons who employed the seaman must deliver to him a further account stating the adjusted amounts; and that account must be delivered not later than the time at which the balance of his wages is payable to the seaman¹⁰.

Where certain of the provisions governing the late payment of wages customarily paid up-to-date at specified intervals¹¹ apply to the payment of any amount of wages due to a seaman under a crew agreement¹²:

- 113 (1) the person who employed the seaman must deliver to him an account of the wages payable to him under those provisions¹³ and of the deductions subject to which the wages are payable¹⁴; and
- 114 (2) any such account must be so delivered at the time when the wages are paid to him¹⁵; and
- 115 (3) the usual provisions as to delivery of an account¹⁶ do not apply¹⁷.

Where a seaman is employed under a crew agreement relating to more than one ship, any account which otherwise¹⁸ would be required to be delivered to him by the master must instead be delivered to him by the persons employing him and must be so delivered on or before the termination of his employment under the crew agreement¹⁹.

If a person fails without reasonable excuse to comply with the provisions which govern the accounting of seamen's wages²⁰, he commits an offence²¹.

469. Regulations relating to wages and accounts.

The Secretary of State¹ may make regulations²:

- 116 (1) authorising deductions to be made from the wages³ due to a seaman⁴ under a crew agreement⁵, in cases where a breach of his obligations under the agreement is alleged against him and such conditions, if any, as may be specified in the regulations are complied with, or in such other cases as may be specified in the regulations⁶;
- 117 (2) regulating the manner in which any amounts deducted under the regulations are to be dealt with⁷;
- 118 (3) prescribing the manner in which wages due to a seaman under a crew agreement are to be or may be paid⁸;
- 119 (4) regulating the manner in which such wages are to be dealt with and accounted for in circumstances where a seaman leaves his ship⁹ in the United Kingdom¹⁰ otherwise than on being discharged¹¹ therefrom¹²;
- 120 (5) prescribing the form and manner in which any account required to be delivered¹³ is to be prepared and the particulars to be contained therein, which may be estimated amounts¹⁴.

470. Power of superintendent or proper officer to decide disputes about wages.

Any dispute relating to the amount payable to a seaman¹ employed under a crew agreement² may be submitted by the parties to a superintendent³ or proper officer⁴ for decision⁵. However, the superintendent or proper officer is not bound to accept the submission or, if he has accepted it, to decide the dispute, if he is of the opinion that the dispute, whether by reason of the amount involved or for any other reason, ought not to be decided by him⁶.

The decision of a superintendent or proper officer on a dispute so submitted to him is final⁷.

471. Restriction on assignment of and charge upon wages.

As respects the wages¹ due or accruing to a seaman² employed in a United Kingdom ship³:

- 121 (1) the wages are not subject to attachment⁴;
- 122 (2) an assignment thereof before they have accrued does not bind the seaman and the payment of the wages to the seaman is valid notwithstanding any previous assignment or charge⁵; and
- 123 (3) a power of attorney or authority for the receipt of the wages is not irrevocable⁶.

However, these restrictions do not affect the provisions with respect to allotment notes⁷; nor do they apply to any disposition relating to the application of wages⁸:

- 124 (a) in the payment of contributions to a fund declared by regulations made by the Secretary of State⁹ to be a fund to which these provisions apply¹⁰; or
- 125 (b) in the payment of contributions in respect of the membership of a body declared by regulations made by the Secretary of State to be a body to which these provisions apply¹¹;

(iii) Allotment of Wages

473. Allotment notes.

A seaman¹ may², by means of an allotment note issued in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State³, allot to any person or persons part of the wages⁴ to which he is to become entitled in the course of his employment in a United Kingdom ship⁵ or ships⁶. A seaman's right so to make an allotment is subject to such limitations as may⁷ be imposed by regulations made by the Secretary of State⁸.

Regulations made by the Secretary of State for these purposes may prescribe the form of allotment notes⁹; and:

- 130 (1) may limit the circumstances in which allotments may be made¹⁰;
- 131 (2) may limit, whether by reference to an amount or by reference to a proportion, the part of the wages that may be allotted and the number of persons to whom it may be allotted and may prescribe the method by which that part is to be calculated¹¹;
- 132 (3) may limit the persons to whom allotments may be made by a seaman to persons of such descriptions or persons standing to him in such relationships as may be prescribed by the regulations¹²;
- 133 (4) may prescribe the times and the intervals at which payments under allotment notes are to be made¹³.

Regulations so made may make different provision in relation to different descriptions of seamen and different circumstances¹⁴.

474. Right of person named in allotment to sue in own name.

A person to whom any part of a seaman's wages¹ has been allotted by an allotment note issued in accordance with the regulations² has the right to recover that part in his own name, and for that purpose has the same remedies as the seaman has for the recovery of his wages³.

In any proceedings brought by a person named in such an allotment note as the person to whom any part of a seaman's wages has been allotted it is presumed, unless the contrary is shown, that the seaman is entitled to the wages specified in the note and that the allotment has not been varied or cancelled⁴.

(iv) Proceedings for Recovery of Wages

475. Admiralty jurisdiction.

A seaman has a maritime lien for wages¹ and cannot by any agreement forfeit it or be deprived of any remedy for the recovery of his wages to which, in the absence of the agreement, he would be entitled².

Seamen may sue in the Admiralty court either in rem or in personam and either separately or jointly on one claim under the Admiralty jurisdiction³.

In the case of any such claim where the claim arises in connection with a ship and the person who would be liable on the claim in an action in personam (the 'relevant person') was, when the cause of action arose, the owner or charterer of, or in possession or in control of, the ship⁴, an action in rem may, whether or not the claim gives rise to a maritime lien on that ship, be brought in the High Court against:

- 134 (1) that ship, if at the time when the action is brought the relevant person is either the beneficial owner of that ship as respects all the shares in it or the charterer of it under a charter by demise⁵; or
- 135 (2) any other ship of which, at the time when the action is brought, the relevant person is the beneficial owner as respects all the shares in it⁶.

State-owned vessels are immune from arrest⁷, but otherwise a ship against which an action in rem has been instituted may, if necessary, be arrested and sold by proper process to meet established claims for wages⁸.

These provisions apply to all ships, whether British or not and whether registered or not and wherever the residence or domicile of their owners may be, but they do not extend the cases in which property or money is recoverable under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995⁹; and courts have a discretion to refuse to entertain an action in rem for wages by the master or member of the crew of a ship, not being a British ship, if the consul of the country to which the ship belongs on due notification of the action in rem protests against the action proceeding¹⁰.

476. Protection of certain rights and remedies.

A seaman's lien¹, his remedies for the recovery of his wages², his right to wages in case of the wreck or loss of his ship³, and any right he may have or obtain in the nature of salvage⁴ are not capable of being renounced by any agreement⁵. However, this does not affect such of the terms of any agreement made with the seamen belonging to a ship which, in accordance with the agreement, is to be employed on salvage service, as provide for the remuneration to be paid to them for salvage services rendered by that ship⁶.

(v) Claims against Seamen's Wages for Maintenance etc of Dependants

478. In general.

Where, during a seaman's¹ employment in a ship², expenses are incurred by a responsible authority³ for the benefit of any dependant of his and the expenses are of a kind specified in regulations⁴ and such further conditions, if any, as may be so specified are satisfied, the authority may by notice in writing complying with the regulations require the persons employing the seaman⁵:

- 136 (1) to retain for a period specified in the notice such proportion of his net wages as may be so specified⁶; and
- 137 (2) to give to the responsible authority as soon as may be notice in writing of the seaman's discharge⁷ from the ship⁸; and the persons employing the seaman must comply with the notice and give notice in writing of its contents to the seaman⁹.

For these purposes;

- 138 (a) the following persons, and no others, are to be taken to be a seaman's dependants, that is to say, his spouse and any other person under the age of 19 whom he is liable, for the purposes of any enactment in any part of the United Kingdom, to maintain or in respect of whom he is liable under any such enactment to make contributions to a local authority¹⁰; and
- 139 (b) expenses incurred for the benefit of any person include, in addition to any payments made to him or on his behalf, expenses incurred for providing him with accommodation or care or for exercising supervision over him¹¹;

but no expenses may be specified in regulations made for these purposes¹² unless they are such that a magistrates' court has power under any enactment in force in any part of the United Kingdom to order the making of payments in respect thereof¹³.

Not more than the following proportion of a seaman's wages¹⁴ may be so retained, whether in pursuance of one or more notices¹⁵:

- 140 (i) one-half (if the notice or notices relates or relate to one dependant only)¹⁶;
- 141 (ii) two-thirds (if the notice or notices relates or relate to two or more dependants)¹⁷.

Where a responsible authority has so served a notice¹⁸ on the persons employing a seaman, a magistrates' court may, on the application of the authority, make an order for the payment to the authority of such sum, not exceeding the proportion of the seaman's wages which those persons were required¹⁹ to retain, having regard to the expenses incurred by the authority and the seaman's means, thinks fit²⁰.

Any sums paid out of a seaman's wages in pursuance of such an order are deemed to be paid to him in respect of his wages; and the service, on the persons who employed the seaman, of such an order or of an order dismissing an application for such an order terminates the period for which they were required to retain the wages²¹.

An application for such an order²² for the payment of any sum by the persons who employed the seaman is deemed, for the purposes of any proceedings, to be an application for an order against the seaman; but the order, when served on those persons, has effect as an order against them and may be enforced accordingly²³.

Any such notice or order²⁴ may be served by registered post or recorded delivery service²⁵.

The Secretary of State may make regulations²⁶ specifying²⁷:

- 142 (A) the expenses in respect of which a notice may be served by a responsible authority²⁸;
- 143 (B) any conditions that must be satisfied if such a notice is to be served²⁹;
- 144 (C) the period that may be specified in such a notice, being a period beginning with the service of the notice and ending a specified number of days after the seaman's discharge from his ship³⁰;
- 145 (D) the form of such a notice and the information to be contained therein³¹; and
- 146 (E) the amounts to be deducted from a seaman's wages in computing his net wages for the purposes of these provisions³².

1 As to the meaning of 'seaman' see PARA 424.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/5. MASTERS AND SEAMEN/(4) WAGES ETC/ (vi) Wages Provisions relating to Fishing Vessels/480. Regulations relating to wages etc in respect of employment in a fishing vessel.

480. Regulations relating to wages etc in respect of employment in a fishing vessel.

As from a day to be appointed, the following provisions have effect¹.

The Secretary of State's general power to make regulations relating to seamen's wages² and accounts³ includes power to provide that the amount of a deduction of a description specified in the regulations from wages in respect of employment in a fishing vessel⁴ is to be determined by a body established or approved by the Secretary of State in pursuance of regulations made under the general provisions relating to breaches by seamen of codes of conduct⁵.

1 The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 111 does not have effect until the Secretary of State by order appoints a day for s 111 to come into force: see s 314(3), Sch 14 para 5(1), (2); and PARA 16 note 1. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such order had been made. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38;

2 As to the meaning of 'seaman' see PARA 424; and as to the meaning of 'wages' see PARA 464 note 6.

3 The power conferred by the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 32 (see PARA 469): see s 111. See note 1. By virtue of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b), the Merchant Shipping (Seamen's Wages and Accounts) (Fishing Vessels) Regulations 1972, SI 1972/1701 (amended by SI 1988/2064; SI 1999/3360) (as to which see AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1027) have effect as if made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 32. As to the power of the Secretary of State to make subordinate legislation under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, including his power to appoint committees for the purpose of advising him when considering the making or alteration of any regulations etc, see PARA 41.

481. Accounts of wages and catch.

The persons employing any seaman¹ under a crew agreement relating to a United Kingdom fishing vessel² must³ deliver to him at a time prescribed by regulations⁴ an account of the wages⁵ due to him under that crew agreement and of the deductions subject to which the wages are payable⁶.

Where the wages of any person employed in a United Kingdom fishing vessel are in any manner related to the catch, the persons employing him must at a time prescribed by such regulations deliver to the master⁷ an account (or, if the master is the person employing him, make out an account) showing how those wages (or any part of those wages related to the catch) are arrived at and must make the account available to the crew in such manner as may be prescribed by the regulations⁸.

Where there is a partnership between the master and any members of the crew of a United Kingdom fishing vessel, the owner of the vessel must at a time prescribed by such regulations make out an account showing the sums due to each partner in respect of his share and must make the account available to the partners⁹.

The Secretary of State may make regulations prescribing the time at which any such account¹⁰ is to be delivered or made out, and the manner in which the account¹¹ is to be made available¹².

If a person fails without reasonable excuse to comply with the provisions governing the accounting of wages (and catch where wages are related to catch) in relation to a United Kingdom fishing vessel, he commits an offence¹³.

MASTERS AND SEAMEN/(4) WAGES ETC/ (vi) Wages Provisions relating to Fishing Vessels/482. Effect of general restriction on assignment of and charge upon seamen's wages.

482. Effect of general restriction on assignment of and charge upon seamen's wages.

The general statutory restriction on the assignment of and charge upon a seaman's wages¹ does not affect the operation of the Attachment of Earnings Act 1971² in relation to wages due to a person employed in a fishing vessel³.

483. Effect of general right, or loss of right, to seamen's wages in certain circumstances.

The statutory right, or loss of right, to a seaman's wages¹ in circumstances where a United Kingdom ship² is wrecked or lost or is sold while outside the United Kingdom or otherwise ceases to be a United Kingdom ship³ does not apply to so much of the wages of a seaman employed in a fishing vessel⁴ as is in any manner related to the catch⁵.

(5) CONDITION OF SHIP AND WELFARE OF CREW

(i) Implied Obligation as to Seaworthiness of Ship

484. Obligation of shipowners as to seaworthiness.

In every contract of employment between the owner of a United Kingdom ship¹ and the master² of or any seaman³ employed in the ship there is to be implied an obligation on the owner of the ship that⁴: (1) the owner of the ship⁵; (2) the master of the ship⁶; and (3) every agent charged with the loading of the ship, the preparing of the ship for sea, or the sending of the ship to sea⁷, must use all reasonable means to ensure the seaworthiness⁸ of the ship for the voyage at the time when the voyage commences and to keep the ship in a seaworthy condition for the voyage during the voyage⁹.

This obligation¹⁰ applies notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary¹¹; and no liability on the owner of a ship arises under this obligation¹² in respect of the ship being sent to sea in an unseaworthy state where, owing to special circumstances, the sending of the ship to sea in such a state was reasonable and justifiable¹³.

6 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 42(1)(b).

8 For these purposes, 'seaworthy' means that the ship should be in a fit state as to repairs, equipment and crew, and in all other respects, to encounter the ordinary perils of the voyage; see Dixon v Sadler (1839) 5 M & W 405 at 414; and CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS. The master's negligence in not using with proper care the means of safety provided does not make the ship unseaworthy within the meaning of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 42: see Hedley v Pinkney & Sons Steamship Co Ltd [1894] AC 222, HL.

(ii) Crew Accommodation

485. Power to make regulations.

The Secretary of State¹ may make regulations² with respect to the crew accommodation³ to be provided in United Kingdom ships⁴. Regulations so made may⁵, in particular⁶:

- 147 (1) prescribe the minimum space per man which must be provided by way of sleeping accommodation for seamen and the maximum number of persons by whom a specified part of such sleeping accommodation may be used⁷;
- 148 (2) regulate the position in the ship in which the crew accommodation or any part thereof may be located and the standards to be observed in the construction, equipment and furnishing of any such accommodation⁸;
- 149 (3) require the submission to a surveyor of ships⁹ of plans and specifications of any works proposed to be carried out for the purpose of the provision or alteration of any such accommodation and authorise the surveyor to inspect any such works¹⁰;
- 150 (4) provide for the maintenance and repair of any such accommodation and prohibit or restrict the use of any such accommodation for purposes other than those for which it is designed¹¹; and such regulations may:

- 151 (a) make different provision with respect to different descriptions of ship or with respect to ships which were registered¹² in the United Kingdom at different dates or the construction of which was begun at different dates and with respect to crew accommodation provided for seamen of different descriptions¹³;
- 152 (b) exempt ships of any description from any requirements of the regulations, and the Secretary of State may grant other exemptions from any such requirement with respect to any ship¹⁴;
- 153 (c) require the master¹⁵ of a ship or any officer authorised by him for the purpose to carry out such inspections of the crew accommodation as may be prescribed by the regulations¹⁶.

If the provisions of any of the regulations are contravened¹⁷ in the case of a ship, the owner or master is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale¹⁸ and the ship, if in the United Kingdom, may be detained¹⁹.

486. Crew accommodation.

The requirements relating to crew accommodation¹ to be complied with by ships registered in the United Kingdom² cover:

- 154 (1) divisions between the crew accommodation and other parts of the ship³;
- 155 (2) interior bulkheads⁴;
- 156 (3) overhead decks⁵;
- 157 (4) floor decks⁶;
- 158 (5) access and escape arrangements⁷;
- 159 (6) pipes in crew accommodation spaces⁸;
- 160 (7) awnings⁹;
- 161 (8) heating¹⁰;
- 162 (9) lighting¹¹;
- 163 (10) ventilation¹²;
- 164 (11) sidescuttles and windows¹³;
- 165 (12) drainage¹⁴;
- 166 (13) interior finishes¹⁵;
- 167 (14) marking¹⁶;
- 168 (15) sleeping rooms¹⁷;
- 169 (16) beds¹⁸;
- 170 (17) furniture and fittings in sleeping rooms¹⁹;
- 171 (18) mess rooms²⁰;
- 172 (19) furniture and fittings in mess rooms²¹;
- 173 (20) recreation spaces²²;
- 174 (21) offices²³;
- 175 (22) sanitary accommodation²⁴;
- 176 (23) supply of drinking water and the supply of fresh water²⁵;
- 177 (24) facilities for washing and drying clothes and for hanging oilskins and working clothes²⁶;
- 178 (25) galleys²⁷;
- 179 (26) dry provision store rooms²⁸;
- 180 (27) cold store rooms and refrigerating equipment²⁹;
- 181 (28) hospitals³⁰;
- 182 (29) medical cabinet³¹;
- 183 (30) protection from mosquitoes³²;
- 184 (31) maintenance and inspection of crew accommodation³³.

It is the duty of an owner of a ship to which these regulations apply³⁴ to ensure that: (a) the floor coverings in the decks as referred to in head (4) above and in every permanent hospital as referred to in head (28) above³⁵; (b) the sidescuttles or windows in a sleeping room, day room, mess room, recreation room or hospital ward as referred to in head (11) above³⁶; (c) the vacuum discharge pipe systems that are required to be connected to every water closet and the thermostatic mixing valves that required to be fitted to every shower as referred to in head (22) above³⁷; and (d) plant used to produce drinking water and/or fresh water on board a ship as referred to in head (23) above³⁸, are of an approved type³⁹. However, the Secretary of State may grant exemptions from all or any of the provisions relating to approved equipment⁴⁰, as may be specified in the exemption, on such terms (if any) as he may so specify and may, subject to giving reasonable notice, alter or cancel any such exemption⁴¹. Any owner who fails to ensure the supply of approved equipment as mentioned in heads (a) to (d) above commits an offence⁴²; and the ship may be detained⁴³.

General provisions regarding crew accommodation requirements are also set out: see the Merchant Shipping (Crew Accommodation) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1508, reg 4.

The Merchant Shipping (Crew Accommodation) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1508, apply to every United Kingdom ship, except fishing vessels, pleasure vessels, and ships belonging to a general lighthouse authority, and excepting as well as any ship the keel of which was laid or which was at a similar stage of construction before 1 July 1979, and which has not been substantially reconstructed or altered since that date, provided that it complies with the standards laid down in the Merchant Shipping (Crew Accommodation) Regulations 1978, SI 1978/795 (revoked), as if they had not been revoked: see the Merchant Shipping (Crew Accommodation) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1508, reg 3. However, the Merchant Shipping (Crew Accommodation) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1508, do not apply to certain vessels which have met the stated requirements set out in the Merchant Shipping (Vessels in Commercial Use for Sport or Pleasure) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2771: see PARA 610. 487. Complaints about provisions or water.

If three or more seamen¹ employed in a United Kingdom ship² consider that the provisions or water provided for the seamen employed in that ship are not in accordance with safety regulations³ containing requirements as to the provisions and water to be provided on ships, whether of bad quality, unfitness for use or deficiency in quantity, they may complain to the master⁴, who must investigate the complaint⁵.

If the seamen are dissatisfied with the action taken by the master as a result of his investigation or by his failure to take any action, they may state their dissatisfaction to him and may claim to complain to a superintendent⁶ or proper officer⁷; and thereupon the master must make adequate arrangements to enable the seamen to do so as soon as the service of the ship permits⁸. The superintendent or proper officer to whom a complaint has been so made must investigate the complaint and may examine the provisions or water or cause them to be examined⁹.

If the master fails without reasonable excuse to comply with the procedure governing complaints so made to a superintendent or proper officer¹⁰, he commits an offence¹¹; and, if the master has been notified in writing by the person duly making an examination of the provisions or water¹² that any provisions or water are found to be unfit for use or not of the quality required by the safety regulations, then: (1) if they are not replaced within a reasonable time, the master or owner commits an offence unless he proves that the failure to replace them was not due to his neglect or default¹³; or (2) if the master without reasonable excuse permits them to be used, he commits an offence¹⁴.

489. In general.

The provisions governing manning, qualifications, training and uniform as they relate to masters¹ and seamen² apply to every United Kingdom ship³, and also to any ship registered under the law of a country outside the United Kingdom which carries passengers⁴ either:

- 185 (1) between places in the United Kingdom or between the United Kingdom and the Isle of Man or any of the Channel Islands⁵; or
- 186 (2) on a voyage which begins and ends at the same place in the United Kingdom and on which the ship calls at no place outside the United Kingdom⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'master' see PARA 424.

2 I.e. the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 ss 47-51 (see PARA 490 et seq): see s 46. As to the meaning of 'seaman' see PARA 424.

3 As to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229; and as to the meaning of 'United Kingdom ship' see PARA 230. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

(ii) Manning

A. IN GENERAL

490. Power to make regulations in relation to manning.

The Secretary of State¹ may make regulations²:

- 187 (1) requiring applicable ships³ to carry such number of qualified officers of any description, qualified doctors and qualified cooks and such number of other seamen⁴ or qualified seamen of any description as may be specified in the regulations⁵; and
- 188 (2) prescribing or enabling the Secretary of State to specify standards of competence to be attained and other conditions to be satisfied, subject to any exceptions allowed by or under the regulations, by officers and other seamen of any description in order to be qualified for the purposes of these provisions⁶.

The Secretary of State may not, however, exercise his power to make regulations requiring ships to carry seamen other than doctors and cooks except to the extent that it appears to him necessary or expedient in the interests of safety⁷.

Such regulations may make different provision for different descriptions of ship or ships of the same description in different circumstances⁸.

Without prejudice to the generality of head (2) above, the conditions prescribed or specified thereunder may include conditions as to nationality⁹; and regulations made for the purposes of head (2) above may make provision, or enable the Secretary of State to make provision, for¹⁰:

- 189 (a) the manner in which the attainment of any standard or the satisfaction of any other condition is to be evidenced¹¹;
- 190 (b) the conduct of any examinations, the conditions for admission to them and the appointment and remuneration of examiners¹²; and
- 191 (c) the issue, form and recording of certificates and other documents¹³; and different provisions may be made or enabled to be made for different circumstances¹⁴.

If a person makes a statement which he knows to be false or recklessly makes a statement which is false in a material particular for the purpose of obtaining for himself or another person a certificate or other document which may be so issued¹⁵, he commits an offence¹⁶.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 47(1). This power is subject to s 47(2) (see the text and note 7): see s 47(1). However, the power to make regulations under s 47 includes power to make regulations providing that pre-1979 certificates must, except in such cases as are specified in the regulations, be deemed for the purposes of such of the provisions of Pt III (ss 24-84) (see PARAS 423 et seq, 491 et seq) as are so specified to be issued in pursuance of s 47 and to confer on the persons to whom they were issued such qualifications for the purposes of s 47 as are so specified: s 314(3), Sch 14 para 4(1). For these purposes, 'pre-1979 certificate' means a certificate granted under the Merchant Shipping Act 1894 s 93, 99 or 414 (all repealed), a certificate referred to in an Order in Council made under s 102 (repealed), a certificate granted under the Merchant Shipping Act 1906 s 27(2) (repealed) or by an institution approved in pursuance of s 27(2) (repealed) and a certificate granted under the Merchant Shipping Act 1948 s 5 (repealed): Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Sch 14 para 4(2). As to the power of the Secretary of State to make subordinate legislation under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, including his power to appoint committees for the purpose of advising him when considering the making or alteration of any regulations etc, see PARA 41.

In exercise of the power conferred by s 47, the Secretary of State has made the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348 (see PARA 496); the Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320 (see PARAS 497, 634, 635); the Merchant Shipping (High Speed Craft) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/302 (see PARA 614 et seq); and the Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223 (see PARA 499). By virtue of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b), the following regulations also have effect as if made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 47: the Merchant Shipping (Certification of Ships' Cooks) Regulations 1981, SI 1981/1076 (see PARA 498); the Fishing Vessels (Certification of Deck Officers and Engineer Officers) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1115 (see AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1024); and the Merchant Shipping (Officer Nationality) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1427 (see PARA 495). The Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, extends a part of its provisions, and the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 47 and s 48 (as to which see PARA 491), in so far as they have not already been so extended, to specified classes of non-United Kingdom ships which are passenger craft operating on inland waterways or on some short coastal voyages: see PARA 499.

As to the powers of inspectors appointed under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 256(6) (see PARA 46) to serve improvement notices or prohibition notices where s 47 and the provisions of any instrument of a legislative character having effect thereunder are being contravened, or where activities to which s 47 applies are carried on so as to involve serious personal injury or serious pollution, see PARA 50 et seq.

491. Power to exempt from manning requirements.

The Secretary of State¹ may exempt any ship² or description of ship from any requirements of regulations relating to manning requirements made by him³. An exemption so given may be confined to a particular period or to one or more particular voyages⁴.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 As to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

3 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 48(1). The text refers to regulations made under s 47 (see PARA 490): see s 48(1). As to the application of s 48 see PARAS 423, 489; and as to the power to grant exemptions with respect to fishing vessels see PARA 425.

The fee for the granting by the Secretary of State of an exemption, pursuant to s 48 (power to exempt from manning requirements), from the requirements in the Merchant Shipping (Officer Nationality) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1427, reg 3 (see PARA 495) relating to a strategic ship is £160: Merchant Shipping (Fees) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/2055, reg 3, Sch 1 Pt 15.

492. Requirements as to crew's knowledge of English.

Where, in the opinion of a superintendent¹ or proper officer², the crew of a ship³ consists of or includes persons who may not understand orders given to them in the course of their duty because of their insufficient knowledge of English and the absence of adequate arrangements for transmitting the orders in a language of which they have sufficient knowledge⁴, then:

- 192 (1) if the superintendent or proper officer has informed the master⁵ of that opinion, the ship must not go to sea⁶; and
- 193 (2) if the ship is in the United Kingdom⁷, it may be detained⁸.

If a ship goes to sea or attempts to go to sea in contravention of these restrictions⁹, the owner or master is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale¹⁰.

Officer nationality requirements for masters of strategic ships.

B. QUALIFICATIONS, STANDARDS OF COMPETENCE TO BE SATISFIED ETC

495. Officer nationality requirements for masters of strategic ships.

The master of every strategic ship, that is to say:

- 194 (1) a British registered fishing vessel¹ of 24 metres or more in length²; or
- 195 (2) a United Kingdom ship³ of 500 tons⁴ or more which is a cruise ship⁵, a product tanker⁶ or a ro-ro ship⁷, must be:

- 196 (a) a Commonwealth citizen⁸; or
- 197 (b) an EEA⁹ national¹⁰; or
- 198 (c) a national of a state, other than an EEA state, which is a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation¹¹.

1 For these purposes, 'British registered fishing vessel' means a fishing vessel registered in the register of British ships established under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 8 (see PARA 254): Merchant Shipping (Officer Nationality) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1427, reg 2; Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

2 For these purposes, 'length', in relation to a British registered fishing vessel, means the register length shown on the vessel's certificate of registry: Merchant Shipping (Officer Nationality) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1427, reg 2. As to certificates of registry see PARA 298 et seq.

3 For these purposes, 'United Kingdom ship' has the same meaning as in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 85(2) (see PARA 591 note 4): Merchant Shipping (Officer Nationality) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1427, reg 2; Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

4 For these purposes, 'tons' means gross tons: see the Merchant Shipping (Officer Nationality) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1427, reg 2.

5 For these purposes, 'cruise ship' means a passenger ship of Class I, within the meaning of the Merchant Shipping (Passenger Ship Construction: Ships of Classes I, II and II(A)) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2514 (see PARA 599 note 4), certified to carry more than 200 passengers: Merchant Shipping (Officer Nationality) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1427, reg 2; Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

6 For these purposes, 'product tanker' means either an oil tanker constructed for the carriage of petroleum products in bulk or a chemical tanker constructed for the carriage in bulk of any liquid chemical listed in the 'International Code for the Construction and Equipment of Ships carrying Dangerous Chemicals in Bulk (IBC Code)' (1990 Edition), published by the International Maritime Organisation: Merchant Shipping (Officer Nationality) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1427, reg 2. As to the International Maritime Organisation see PARA 13.

7 For these purposes, 'ro-ro ship' means a ship provided with cargo or vehicle spaces in which cargo or vehicles can be loaded and unloaded in a horizontal direction: Merchant Shipping (Officer Nationality) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1427, reg 2.

8 Merchant Shipping (Officer Nationality) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1427, reg 3(a). As to who are Commonwealth citizens see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 11.

9 The European Economic Area ('EEA') is formed under the Agreement on the European Economic Area (Oporto, 2 May 1992; EC 7 (1992); Cm 2183) as adjusted by the Protocol (Brussels, 17 March 1993; EC 2 (1993); Cm 2183).

11 Merchant Shipping (Officer Nationality) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1427, reg 3(c). The fee for the granting by the Secretary of State of an exemption, pursuant to the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 48 (power to exempt from manning requirements) (see PARA 491), from the requirements in the Merchant Shipping (Officer Nationality) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1427, reg 3 relating to a strategic ship is £160: Merchant Shipping (Fees) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/2055, reg 3, Sch 1 Pt 15. As to the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 518.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/5. MASTERS AND SEAMEN/(6) MANNING, QUALIFICATIONS AND TRAINING/(ii) Manning/B. QUALIFICATIONS, STANDARDS OF COMPETENCE TO BE SATISFIED ETC/496. Certification, training etc relating to officers on sea-going ships and hovercraft personnel.

496. Certification, training etc relating to officers on sea-going ships and hovercraft personnel.

A master or seaman employed in a sea-going ship registered in the United Kingdom¹, other than a fishing vessel or a pleasure craft², is qualified as an officer³ if he holds a certificate of competency or certificate of equivalent competency, or a certificate treated as equivalent, in one of the following capacities⁴:

- 199 (1) master, chief mate or officer in charge of a navigational watch⁵; or
- 200 (2) chief engineer, second engineer officer or officer in charge of an engineering watch⁶; or
- 201 (3) radio operator⁷.

Provision is made in relation to certificates⁸ and for mandatory requirements to be met in relation to training and qualification⁹.

It is the duty of every owner of a hovercraft¹⁰ to ensure that masters and officers, ratings and other personnel have completed the training specified by the Secretary of State¹¹. Any owner who contravenes this requirement¹² commits an offence¹³.

1 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

2 I.e a pleasure craft as defined in the Merchant Shipping (Vessels in Commercial Use for Sport or Pleasure) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2771, reg 2 (see PARA 609) and which is less than 80 gross tons or under 24 metres in length: see the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348, reg 3(b) (amended by SI 1997/1911); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). The Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348, do not apply to certain vessels which have met the stated requirements set out in the Merchant Shipping (Vessels in Commercial Use for Sport or Pleasure) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2771: see PARA 610.

3 I.e for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 47 (see PARA 490): see the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348, reg 4.

825 (2) masters, officers, ratings and other personnel on ro-ro passenger ships see reg 11 (amended by SI 2000/836);

826 (3) masters, officers, ratings and other personnel on passenger ships other than ro-ro passenger ships and high speed craft, where such ships are engaged on international voyages see the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348, reg 11A (added by SI 2000/836); and 827 (4) masters, officers and other personnel on high-speed craft see the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348, reg 12.

As to the mandatory minimum requirements for:

828 (a) familiarisation, basic safety training and instruction for all seafarers see reg 13;

829 (b) the issue of certificates of proficiency in survival craft, rescue boats and fast rescue boats see reg 14; and 830 (c) training in advanced fire-fighting see reg 15.

As to the mandatory requirements relating to medical first aid and medical care see regs 9, 16.

As to the training requirements which the Secretary of State may specify under the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348, in respect of the training and certification of masters, officers, ratings and other personnel working on High Speed Craft registered in the United Kingdom, including hovercraft, see also Merchant Shipping Notice 1740(M) (Training and Certification of Officers and Crew on High Speed Craft).

10 Ie every sea-going hovercraft registered in the United Kingdom which was constructed on or after 1 January 1996: see the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348, reg 22(1).

11 See the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348, reg 22(2). It is the duty of any person providing such training to issue documentary evidence to every person successfully completing such training: reg 22(3). In the case of masters, and of officers having an operational role on high-speed craft, the documentary evidence is a certificate in a form specified by the Secretary of State and must be endorsed in a manner specified by the Secretary of State: reg 22(3). In relation to certificates issued under reg 22, reg 17 (form, validity, record and surrender of certificates) (see note 8), reg 18 (refusal of certificates and appeals against refusal) (see note 8) and reg 19 (loss of certificates) (see note 8) apply as they apply to certificates issued under Pt II (regs 3-21): reg 23. However, the Secretary of State may exempt the owner of any hovercraft from any of the requirements of reg 22 subject to such conditions as he may specify, and may alter or cancel any exemption so granted: reg 24. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

12 Ie any owner who contravenes the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348, reg 22(2) (see the text and notes 10-11): see reg 22(4).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/5. MASTERS AND SEAMEN/(6) MANNING, QUALIFICATIONS AND TRAINING/(ii) Manning/B. QUALIFICATIONS, STANDARDS OF COMPETENCE TO BE SATISFIED ETC/497. Duties of owner and master of United Kingdom ships in relation to certification, training etc.

497. Duties of owner and master of United Kingdom ships in relation to certification, training etc.

In relation to United Kingdom ships only¹, every company² must ensure that³:

- 202 (1) every master and seaman assigned to any of its ships holds an appropriate certificate⁴ or a certificate of equivalent competency⁵ in respect of any function he is to perform on that ship⁶;
- 203 (2) every master and seaman on any of its ships has had training specified in the Training and Certification Regulations⁷ in respect of any function he is to perform on that ship⁸; and
- 204 (3) documentation and data relevant to all masters and seamen employed on its ships are maintained and readily available for inspection and include, without being limited to, documentation and data on their experience, training, medical fitness and competency in assigned duties⁹.

However, nothing in heads (1) to (3) above is to prohibit the allocation of tasks for training under supervision or in case of force majeure¹⁰.

The company must provide written instructions to the master of each of its ships setting out the policies and the procedures to be followed¹¹ to ensure that all seamen who are newly employed on board the ship are given a reasonable opportunity to become familiar with the shipboard equipment, operating procedures and other arrangements needed for the proper performance of their duties, before being assigned to those duties¹².

Without prejudice to these requirements¹³, the company and the master must ensure that there are carried at all times on board ship all original certificates and other documents issued pursuant to the Convention on Standards of Training, Certification and Watchkeeping indicating the qualification of any member of the crew to perform functions which they are required to perform aboard ship in the course of their designated duties¹⁴.

Any owner, master, or any member of the crew, of a United Kingdom ship, who contravenes the requirements imposed on him in relation to certification and training commits an offence¹⁵; and, in any case where it is found in relation to a ship that there is any such contravention, the ship may be detained¹⁶.

1 The Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 4 applies only to United Kingdom ships: reg 4(1). See, however, note 14. The Secretary of State may grant, on such terms, if any, as he may specify, exemptions from all or any provisions of the Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, for classes of cases or individual cases, and may alter or cancel any exemptions so granted: reg 18 (amended by SI 2000/484). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 For these purposes, 'company' includes an individual, and in relation to a ship means the owner of the ship or any other organisation or person such as the manager, or the bareboat charterer, who has assumed the responsibility for the operation of the ship from the owner and who, on assuming such responsibility, has agreed to take over all the duties and responsibilities imposed on the company by the regulations annexed to the International Convention on Standards of Training, Certification and Watchkeeping for Seafarers 1978 (London, 1 December 1978 to 30 November 1979; TS 50 (1984); Cmnd 9266) (the 'STCW Convention') (as to which see PARA 8): Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 2(1).

3 Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 4(2). As to enforcement of this duty see PARA 1131.

4 For these purposes, 'appropriate certificate' means, in relation to United Kingdom ships, an appropriate certificate as defined in the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348 (see PARA 496) (and in relation to other ships, an appropriate certificate as defined in the STCW Convention): reg 2(1).

5 For these purposes, 'certificate of equivalent competency' means a document entitled 'certificate of equivalent competency' issued under the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348, reg 5 (see PARA 496): Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 2(1) (definition added by SI 2000/484).

6 Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 4(2)(a) (amended by SI 2000/484).

7 In the Merchant Shipping (Training and Certification) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/348, (see PARA 496): see the Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 4(2)(b) (amended by SI 2000/484).

8 Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 4(2)(b) (as amended: see note 7).

9 Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 4(2)(c) (amended by SI 2000/484).

10 Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 4(3).

11 For these purposes, the policies and procedures include:

831 (1) allocation of a reasonable period of time during which each newly employed seaman will have an opportunity to become acquainted with the specific equipment the seaman will be using or operating, and with ship-specific watchkeeping, safety, environmental protection and emergency procedures and arrangements the seafarer needs to know to perform the assigned duties properly (reg 4(5)(a)); and

832 (2) designation of a knowledgeable crew member who will be responsible for ensuring that an opportunity is provided to each newly employed seaman to receive essential information in a language the seaman understands (reg 4(5)(b)).

12 Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 4(4). It is the duty of any master and any member of a crew designated with an obligation under reg 4(4) (as to which see note 11) to carry out that obligation: reg 4(6). As to enforcement of this duty see PARA 1131.

13 In without prejudice to the Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 4 (see the text and notes 1-12): see reg 14.

14 Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 14. A person authorised by the Secretary of State may inspect any ship which is not a United Kingdom ship for the purposes of verifying that the master and all seamen serving on board who are required to be certificated hold valid appropriate certificates (as to which see note 4) (see reg 15(1)(a) (amended by SI 2000/484)); and if an authorised person finds, on inspection, a failure of the master or any seaman, required to hold an appropriate certificate, to have a valid appropriate certificate or a valid exemption from that requirement, he must notify in writing the master of the ship and in the case of a ship registered outside the United Kingdom, the nearest maritime, consular or diplomatic representative of the flag state (Merchant Shipping (Safe Manning, Hours of Work and Watchkeeping) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1320, reg 15(2), (3)(a) (reg 15(3)(a) amended by SI 2000/484)).

498. Requirement for ships' cooks to be qualified and certificated.

United Kingdom ships¹ of 1,000 gross register tonnage or over, other than pleasure craft or fishing vessels, which go to sea beyond the Near Continental trading area and which carry a crew, the majority of whom are domiciled in the United Kingdom², must carry a qualified and certificated ship's cook³.

1 As to the meaning of 'ship' under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 229; and as to the meaning of 'United Kingdom ship' under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 230. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

2 As to the rules of domicile and residence generally see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 35 et seq.

3 See the Merchant Shipping (Certification of Ships' Cooks) Regulations 1981, SI 1981/1076, reg 2. The cook to be carried as mentioned in the text must be duly qualified (ie in accordance with reg 4) and be the holder of a certificate of competency duly issued (ie under reg 5) or duly recognised (ie under regs 8, 9). The Secretary of State may specify approved institutions, courses of training, examinations and certificates for these purposes: see reg 3. As to the form and record of a certificate see reg 6; and as to the loss of a certificate see reg 7.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/5. MASTERS AND SEAMEN/(6) MANNING, QUALIFICATIONS AND TRAINING/(ii) Manning/B. QUALIFICATIONS, STANDARDS OF COMPETENCE TO BE SATISFIED ETC/499. Regulation of masters and crew of vessels sailing in local waters.

499. Regulation of masters and crew of vessels sailing in local waters.

Masters of certain classes of United Kingdom and non-United Kingdom ship engaged on voyages in specified local waters¹, and members of the crew of specified classes of local passenger vessels², must be qualified appropriately³.

A person who is serving as master of a specified class of passenger craft operating on inland waterways or on some short coastal voyages⁴ and who is not a person to whom other working time regulations apply⁵ must comply with the self-employed master's working hours code⁶.

1 The Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, Pt 2 (regs 5-26) applies to any person serving as master of a vessel which is a United Kingdom or non-United Kingdom ship of Class IV, V, VI, VI(A), IX(A) or IX(A)(T) (other than a pleasure vessel) and engaged on any voyage in waters of category A, B, C or D, or any voyage to sea within United Kingdom waters in the course of which the vessel is never more than 15 miles (exclusive of waters of category A, B, C or D) from its point of departure or more than 3 miles from land: see reg 7. For these purposes, vessels are classified as follows:

833 (1) vessels which are passenger ships: Class IV (vessels engaged only on voyages in waters of category A, B, C or D); Class V (vessels engaged only on voyages in waters of category A, B or C); Class VI (vessels carrying not more than 250 passengers engaged on voyages to sea or in waters of category A, B, C or D, in favourable weather and during restricted periods, in the course of which the vessels are at no time more than 15 miles, exclusive of waters of category A, B, C or D, from their point of departure or more than 3 miles from land); and Class VI(A) (vessels carrying not more than 50 passengers engaged on voyages over a distance of not more than 6 miles to or from isolated communities on the islands or coast of the United Kingdom and in the course of which they are never more than 3 miles from land) (reg 3(3), Table); and 834 (2) vessels which are not passenger ships: Class IX(A) (vessels other than passenger ships and tankers which do not proceed to sea); Class IX(A)(T) (Tankers which do not proceed to sea) (reg 3(3), Table).

Any reference to waters of a specified category is a reference to waters of that category as specified under or by virtue of the Merchant Shipping (Categorisation of Waters) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/2356, and to waters in the United Kingdom having the characteristics of waters of that category but not specified as such under or by virtue of those Regulations: see the Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, reg 3(2). Accordingly, for the purposes of rules or regulations made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, 'category A, B, C or D waters' respectively means the waters specified as Category A, B, C or D waters in Merchant Shipping Notice 1776(M): see the Merchant Shipping (Categorisation of Waters) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/2356, reg 3; Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). Merchant Shipping Notice 1776(M) (Categorisation of Waters: Notice to Owners, Operators and Masters) (March 2003) is published by the Maritime and Coastguard Agency and it categorises United Kingdom waters which are not regarded as 'sea' for the purposes of Merchant Shipping legislation (excepting marine pollution). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3. As to the Maritime and Coastguard Agency see PARA 56.

The Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, Pt 2 does not apply to a person serving as the master of a certificated small commercial vessel or as the master of a seagoing vessel (other than a pleasure vessel) if he holds an appropriate qualification or certificate: see reg 7.

However, the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 ss 47, 48 (see PARAS 490, 491), s 49 (see PARA 1136), s 50 (see PARA 501), and s 52 (see PARA 1140), in so far as they have not already been so extended, and the Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, Pt 2, extend to non-United Kingdom ships of Classes IV, V, VI, VI(A),

IX(A) and IX(A)(T) (other than pleasure vessels) and the masters employed in those vessels while they are engaged on any voyage in waters of category A, B, C or D, and any voyage to sea within United Kingdom waters in the course of which the vessel is never more than 15 miles (exclusive of waters of category A, B, C or D) from its point of departure or more than 3 miles from land: see reg 4.

2 The Merchant Shipping (Local Passenger Vessels) (Crew) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3224, apply to every United Kingdom vessel which is a passenger ship (being a vessel carrying more than 12 passengers) of a class specified in reg 3(1), Table (which specifies Classes IV, V, VI, VI(A) in identical terms to those used in note 1 head (1)): see reg 3(1).

3 See the Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, reg 8; and the Merchant Shipping (Local Passenger Vessels) (Crew) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3224, regs 4, 5. As to boatmasters' licences see the Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, regs 9-14; as to boatmasters' certificates see regs 15-19; as to Rhine Navigation licences see reg 20; as to licensing requirements under local legislation see reg 21; and as to records, the surrender and loss of documents see regs 22-23. As to enforcement see PARA 1135.

4 Is a craft which is either a United Kingdom ship which is a passenger ship of Class IV, V, VI or VI(A), or a hovercraft carrying more than 12 passengers: see the Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, reg 28(a).

5 See the Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, reg 28(b). The regulations referred to in the text are the Working Time Regulations 1998, SI 1998/1833 (as to which see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 244 et seq); the Merchant Shipping (Hours of Work) Regulations, SI 2002/2125; and the Merchant Shipping (Working Time: Inland Waterways) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/3049 (as to which see PARA 625): see the Merchant Shipping (Inland Waterway and Limited Coastal Operations) (Boatmasters' Qualifications and Hours of Work) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3223, reg 28(b). 500. Certificates of A.B.

Until a day to be appointed, the following provisions have effect¹.

A seaman² engaged in any United Kingdom ship³ must not be rated as A.B. unless he is the holder of a certificate⁴ of competency granted in pursuance of regulations under these provisions⁵.

The Secretary of State may make regulations providing for the grant of certificates of competency as A.B. for these purposes⁶; and the regulations must direct that no certificate is to be granted to any person unless:

- 205 (1) he has reached such minimum age as may be prescribed⁷;
- 206 (2) he has performed such qualifying service at sea as may be prescribed⁸; and
- 207 (3) he has passed such examination as may be prescribed⁹.

The regulations may make such consequential provisions as appear to the Secretary of State to be necessary or expedient, including provision:

- 208 (a) for the payment of prescribed fees in respect of any application for the grant or replacement of a certificate¹⁰;
- 209 (b) for applying the statutory provisions relating to offences¹¹ to certificates, subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be prescribed¹².

Where provision is made by the law of any Commonwealth country for the grant of certificates of competency as A.B. and the Secretary of State is satisfied that the conditions under which such a certificate is granted require standards of competency not lower than those required for the grant of a certificate under the regulations, Her Majesty may by Order in Council direct that certificates granted in that country are to have the same effect for these purposes as if they had been granted under the regulations; and any such Order may apply to any such certificate any of the provisions of the regulations¹³. Any such Order in Council must be laid before Parliament after being made¹⁴.

Any superintendent¹⁵ or other officer before whom a seaman is engaged in any United Kingdom ship must refuse to enter the man as A.B. on the crew agreement unless the seaman produces a certificate or such other proof that he is the holder of such a certificate as may appear to the superintendent or other officer to be satisfactory¹⁶.

1 The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 314(3), Sch 14 para 3 ceases to have effect on such day as the Secretary of State by order appoints: see Sch 14 para 6(1), (2). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 As to the meaning of 'seaman' see PARA 424.

2 He qualified for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 47 (see PARA 490): see s 116(1). As to the Secretary of State's power to grant exemptions see PARA 425.

3 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 116(1). For these purposes, 'Sea Fisheries Acts' means any enactment for the time being in force relating to sea fishing, including any enactment relating to fishing for shellfish, salmon or migratory trout: Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 116(3). As to who are British sea-fishery officers for the purposes of the Sea Fisheries Acts see AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 963.

4 As to the powers of inspectors appointed under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 256(6) (see PARA 46) to serve improvement notices or prohibition notices where s 116 and the provisions of any instrument of a legislative character having effect thereunder are being contravened, or where activities to which s 116 applies are carried on so as to involve serious personal injury or serious pollution, see PARA 50 et seq.

(iii) Employment of Young Persons

503. Power to make regulations regarding the employment of young persons on United Kingdom ships.

A person under school-leaving age¹ must not be employed in any United Kingdom ship² except as permitted by regulations³.

The Secretary of State⁴ may make regulations⁵:

- 210 (1) prescribing circumstances in which and conditions subject to which persons under school-leaving age who have attained such age as may be specified in the regulations may be employed in a ship which is not a sea-going United Kingdom ship in such capacities as may be so specified⁶;
- 211 (2) prescribing circumstances and capacities in which persons over school-leaving age but under the age of 18 or under such lower age as may be specified in the regulations must not be employed in a United Kingdom ship which is not a sea-going ship or may be so employed only subject to such conditions as may be specified in the regulations⁷;
- 212 (3) prescribing circumstances and capacities in which persons of at least the age of 16 but under the age of 18 or under such lower age as may be specified in the regulations must not be employed in a sea-going United Kingdom ship or may be so employed only subject to such conditions as may be specified in the regulations⁸.

If any person is employed in a ship in contravention of these provisions, or if any condition subject to which a person may be employed under regulations made for the purposes of these provisions is not complied with, the owner or master is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale⁹.

1 For these purposes, a person employed in a ship is deemed to be over school-leaving age if he has, and under school-leaving age if he has not, attained the age which is the upper limit of compulsory school age under the enactments relating to education in the part of the United Kingdom in which he entered into the agreement under which he is so employed or, if he entered into that agreement outside the United Kingdom or is employed otherwise than under that agreement, under the enactments relating to education in England and Wales; and, if he is treated for the purposes of those enactments as not having attained that age, he is to be so treated also for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 55: s 55(5). As to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229. As to the meanings of 'England' and 'Wales' see PARA 17 note 2; and as to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3. As to compulsory school age see EDUCATION vol 15(1) (2006 Reissue) PARA 15.

2 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom ship' see PARA 230.

3 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 55(1) (amended by SI 2002/2125). The text refers to regulations made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 55 (see the text and notes 4-8): see s 55(1) (as so amended). Section 55(1) is subject to s 55(1A): see s 55(1) (as so amended). Accordingly, a person under 16 years of age must not be employed in any sea-going United Kingdom ship: s 55(1A) (added by SI 2002/2125). As to the application of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 55 see PARA 423; and as to the power to grant exemptions with respect to fishing vessels see PARA 425. The Education Act 1996 s 560 (work experience in last year of compulsory schooling) does not permit the employment of any person contrary to the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 55(1): see the Education Act 1996 s 560(3); and CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS vol 5(4) (2008 Reissue) PARA 744.

As to the powers of inspectors appointed under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 256(6) (see PARA 46) to serve improvement notices or prohibition notices where s 55 and the provisions of any instrument of a legislative character having effect thereunder are being contravened, or where activities to which s 55 applies are carried on so as to involve serious personal injury or serious pollution, see PARA 50 et seq.

4 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

5 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 55(2). Regulations made for the purposes of s 55 may make different provision for different employments and different descriptions of ship and any other different circumstances: s 55(3). As to the regulations made in exercise of the power under head (2) in the text see the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411 (see PARA 504 et seq). As to the power of the Secretary of State to make subordinate legislation under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, including his power to appoint committees for the purpose of advising him when considering the making or alteration of any regulations etc, see PARA 41; and as to the Secretary of State's power to make regulations prescribing fees to be charged in respect of the issue or recording of any certificate, licence or other document see PARA 62.

8 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 55(2)(c) (added by SI 2002/2125).

9 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 55(4). As to the meaning of 'standard scale' see PARA 1099. See further PARA 1137.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/5. MASTERS AND SEAMEN/(6) MANNING, QUALIFICATIONS AND TRAINING/(iii) Employment of Young Persons/504. Provisions regarding the employment of young persons on United Kingdom ships.

504. Provisions regarding the employment of young persons on United Kingdom ships.

All of the provisions relating to the employment of young persons¹ on United Kingdom ships² apply to all activities of young persons engaged as workers³ on United Kingdom ships⁴; and certain of those provisions⁵ apply to all activities of young persons engaged as workers on ships other than United Kingdom ships which are in United Kingdom waters⁶. However, in either case, the provisions do not apply to or in relation to:

- 213 (1) the activities of a worker which are covered by the Management of Health and Safety at Work Regulations 1999⁷;
- 214 (2) any work⁸ carried out in circumstances which are unusual and unforeseeable, beyond the employer's control or due to exceptional events⁹, where: (a) that work is of a temporary nature and must be performed immediately¹⁰; and (b) adult workers are not available¹¹; and (c) the young persons affected are allowed equivalent compensatory rest time within the following three weeks¹².

Except where a duty is imposed on any other person, it is the duty of every employer to comply with the provisions relating to the employment of young persons on ships¹³; and, where a person on whom a duty is imposed by any of those provisions does not have control of the matter to which the provision relates because he does not have responsibility for the operation of the ship, then any duty imposed by that provision also extends to any person who has control of that matter¹⁴.

The provisions relating to the employment of young persons on United Kingdom ships also govern:

- 215 (i) the appropriate measures to be taken by the employer to protect young persons at work¹⁵;
- 216 (ii) the specific minimum daily and weekly rest periods which must be provided by the employer¹⁶;
- 217 (iii) the requirement, except in specified circumstances, for young persons to be employed in any capacity on a ship only where an appropriate medical certificate certifies the young person to be fit to be engaged in that capacity¹⁷;
- 218 (iv) records to be kept of the young persons engaged as workers and the inclusion in every crew agreement of a short summary of the regulations governing the employment of young persons on United Kingdom ships¹⁸;
- 219 (v) offences for the contravention of any duty¹⁹, including provision made for corporate and partnership offences²⁰ and for the onus of proving what is reasonably practicable to fall on the defendant²¹;
- 220 (vi) the inspection and detention of United Kingdom ships²² and non-United Kingdom ships²³, including provision made for the enforcement of detention²⁴; and
- 221 (vii) the application of provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 dealing with arbitration and compensation²⁵.

1 For these purposes, 'young person' means, in relation to employment on a sea-going United Kingdom ship, any person who is of the age of 16 or 17 or, in relation to employment on any other United Kingdom ship, any person who is under the age of 18 and, in Great Britain, is over school-leaving age for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 55 (as to which see PARA 503): Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 2(2) (definition substituted by SI 2002/2125). As to the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 17 note 3. 'United Kingdom ship' means a ship which is a United Kingdom ship within the meaning of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 85(2) (as to which see PARA 591 note 4) or which is a government ship within the meaning of s 308(4) (as to which see PARA 20) or which is a hovercraft registered under the Hovercraft Act 1968 (as to which see PARA 381 et seq): Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 2(2).

2 The provisions of the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411: see reg 3(1). These regulations give effect as respects shipping activities in the United Kingdom both to EC Council Directive 94/33 (OJ L216, 20.8.1994, p 12) on the protection of young people at work and in part to The Merchant Shipping (Minimum Standards) Convention 1976 (International Labour Organisation Convention 147) (Cmnd 7183).

3 For these purposes, 'worker' means any person who is employed by an employer under a contract of employment, including trainees and apprentices, where the term 'trainees and apprentices' does not include trainees on a sail training vessel: Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 2(2). 'Employer' means a person by whom a worker is employed under a contract of employment; and 'contract of employment' means a contract of employment, whether express or implied, and if express, whether oral or in writing: reg 2(2). As to the contract of employment generally see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 1 et seq. 'Sail training vessel' means a vessel which is being used either to provide instruction in the principles of responsibility, resourcefulness, loyalty and team endeavour, and to advance education in the art of seamanship, or to provide instruction in navigation and seamanship for yachtsmen, and is operating under a statutory code, where 'statutory code' means the Code of Practice for the Safety of Small Commercial Sailing Vessels, the Code of Practice for the Safety of Small Commercial Motor Vessels, or the Code of Practice for the Safety of Large Commercial Sailing and Motor Vessels: see reg 2(2).

4 Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 3(1).

5 The Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, regs 1-3, 14-16 (as to which see heads (vi) and (vii) in the text): see reg 3(2).

6 Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 3(2).

7 Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 3(3)(a). The text refers to the Management of Health and Safety at Work Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3242 (as to which see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 52 (2009) PARA 429 et seq): see the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 3(3)(a).

8 For these purposes, 'work' is to be construed by reference to the meaning of 'working time', which means any period during which the worker is working, at his employer's disposal and carrying out his activity or duties, and any additional period which is to be treated as working time for the purpose of the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, under a relevant agreement: reg 2(2). 'Relevant agreement', in relation to a worker, means a workforce agreement which applies to him, any provision of a collective agreement which forms part of a contract between him and his employer, or any other agreement in writing which is legally enforceable as between the worker and his employer: reg 2(2). 'Collective agreement' means a collective agreement within the meaning of the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992 s 178 (see EMPLOYMENT vol 41 (2009) PARAS 1042-1043), the trade union parties to which are independent trade unions within the meaning of s 5 (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 859); and 'workforce agreement' means an agreement between an employer and workers employed by him or their representatives in respect of which the conditions set out in the Working Time Regulations 1998, SI 1998/1833, reg 2(1), Sch 1 (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 253) are satisfied: Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 2(2).

9 Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 3(3)(b).

10 Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 3(3)(b)(i).

11 Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 3(3)(b)(ii).

12 Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 3(3)(b)(iii). For these purposes, 'week' means a period of seven days starting at midnight on Sunday: reg 2(2).

13 Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 4(1). The duty mentioned in the text is to comply with the provisions of the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411: see reg 4(1).

14 Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 4(2).

15 See the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 5, Schedule. The text refers to measures to be taken in addition to the general duties required by the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/2962 (as to which see PARA 623): see the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 5. Where the assessment of risk which is required under reg 5 shows the young person's safety or health is at risk (or where the young person will be regularly required to work at night) free health monitoring must be provided: see reg 7.

16 See the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 6 (amended by SI 2002/2125). For these purposes, 'rest period' means any period which is not working time: Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 2(2). The Company (owner) is required to ensure that the employer meets the obligation set out in head (ii) in the text: see reg 6. 'Company', in relation to a ship to which the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411 apply, means the owner of the ship or any other organisation or person such as the manager, or bareboat charterer, who has assumed the responsibility for operation of the ship from the owner: reg 2(2).

17 See the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 8 (prospectively amended by SI 2002/3135).

18 See the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 9. For these purposes, 'crew agreement' means a crew agreement made under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 25 (see PARA 450): Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 2(2).

19 See the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 10; and PARA 1137.

20 See the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 11; and PARA 1137.

21 See the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 12; and PARA 1137.

22 See the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 13. A relevant inspector may inspect any United Kingdom ship and, if he is satisfied that there has been a failure to comply in relation to that ship with the requirements of the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, he may detain the ship until the health and safety of all young persons aboard the ship is secured; but he must not in the exercise of these powers detain or delay the ship unreasonably: see reg 13. For these purposes, 'relevant inspector' means a person mentioned in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 258(1)(a), (b) or (c) (see PARA 48); and 'health and safety' includes the occupational health and safety of persons whilst on board the ship and whilst boarding or leaving the ship: Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 2(2).

23 See the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 14. A relevant inspector may inspect any ship which is not a United Kingdom ship when the ship is in United Kingdom waters and, if satisfied that the ship does not conform to the standards required of United Kingdom ships by the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, he may send a report to the government of the country in which the ship is registered (and a copy thereof to the Director General of the International Labour Office) and, where conditions on board are clearly hazardous to health and safety, he may take such measures as are necessary to rectify those conditions or he may detain the ship: see reg 14(1). However, such measures (excluding the sending of reports) may be taken only when the ship has called at a United Kingdom port in the normal course of business for operational reasons (see reg 14(2)); and, if the inspector takes measures to rectify conditions or detain the ship, he must forthwith notify the nearest maritime, consular or diplomatic representative of the state whose flag the ship is entitled to fly (see reg 14(3)). The relevant inspector must not in exercise of his powers detain or delay the ship unreasonably: see reg 14(4).

24 See the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 15. Where a vessel is liable to be detained under the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 284(1)-(5), (8) (enforcing detention of ships) (see PARA 1253) applies in relation to the ship, subject to modifications: see the Merchant Shipping (Local Passenger Vessels) (Crew) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3224, reg 15.

25 See the Merchant Shipping and Fishing Vessels (Health and Safety at Work) (Employment of Young Persons) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2411, reg 16.

UPDATE

504 Provisions regarding the employment of young persons on United Kingdom ships

NOTE 17--Amendment in force on 16 November 2009: London Gazette, 21 August 2009.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/5. MASTERS AND SEAMEN/(6) MANNING, QUALIFICATIONS AND TRAINING/ (iv) Training for Service in Merchant Ships/505. Financial assistance for training.

(iv) Training for Service in Merchant Ships

505. Financial assistance for training.

The Secretary of State¹ may, with the consent of the Treasury², give any person or body of persons of any description determined by him³ financial assistance in respect of expenses incurred or to be incurred by any such person or body in connection with the training (whether in the United Kingdom⁴ or elsewhere) of officers and ratings for service in merchant ships⁵, including expenses incurred or to be incurred by any such person in connection with his undergoing any such training⁶. Such assistance may be given by way of a grant or a loan or otherwise, and, in giving any such assistance, the Secretary of State may impose such conditions as he thinks fit, including conditions requiring a grant to be repaid in specified circumstances⁷.

This power to give financial assistance⁸ is without prejudice to any other power of the Secretary of State to give such assistance in connection with any such training⁹ (whether in the United Kingdom or elsewhere) of officers and ratings for service in merchant ships¹⁰.

In providing such assistance¹¹, the Secretary of State must have regard to the maintenance and development of the United Kingdom's merchant fleet and marine related business¹² and for that purpose he must¹³: (1) keep under review all aspects of that fleet and business¹⁴; and (2) seek the advice of those who appear to him to have experience of that fleet or business¹⁵.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 As to the Treasury see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARAS 512-517.

3 Ie for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 56: see s 56(1).

4 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

5 As to the meaning of 'ship' see PARA 229.

6 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 56(1). As to the application of s 56 see PARA 423; and as to the power to grant exemptions with respect to fishing vessels see PARA 425.

7 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 56(2).

8 Ie the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 56: see s 56(3).

9 Ie any such training as is mentioned in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 56(1): see s 56(3).

10 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 56(3).

11 Ie in accordance with the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 56: see s 56(4) (s 56(4), (5) added by the Merchant Shipping and Maritime Security Act 1997 s 17).

12 For these purposes, 'marine related business' means any trade, business or other activity concerned with the manufacture of, or the provision of goods and services for, or the operation or use of, ships and includes maritime educational establishments, marine classification societies, marine equipment suppliers, marine surveyors, marine and naval architects, marine insurance companies, protection and indemnity clubs, providers of maritime financial or legal services, the operators of ports and harbours and shipbrokers: Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 56(5) (as added: see note 11).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW (VOLUME 93 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-590; VOLUME 94 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 591-1254)/5. MASTERS AND SEAMEN/(7) MAINTENANCE OF DISCIPLINE/506. Breaches by seamen of codes of conduct.

(7) MAINTENANCE OF DISCIPLINE

506. Breaches by seamen of codes of conduct.

As from a day to be appointed, the following provisions have effect¹.

The Secretary of State may make regulations² for the purpose of maintaining discipline on board United Kingdom ships³.

Regulations may provide for the hearing on shore in the United Kingdom, by a disciplinary body⁴, of a complaint by the master⁵ or owner of a United Kingdom ship (other than a fishing vessel⁶) against a seaman⁷ alleging that during his employment on board the ship the seaman contravened⁸ a provision of a code of conduct approved by the Secretary of State⁹. The alleged contravention may be one on or off the ship and in the United Kingdom or elsewhere¹⁰.

Regulations may enable a disciplinary body:

- 222 (1) to dismiss the complaint if it finds the allegation not proved¹¹;
- 223 (2) if it finds the allegation proved, to warn the seaman, to reprimand the seaman or to recommend to the Secretary of State that the seaman is, either for a period specified in the recommendation or permanently, to cease to be entitled to a discharge book¹² and is to be required to surrender any such book which has been issued to him¹³.

Regulations may:

- 224 (a) enable the seaman to appeal against such a recommendation to another disciplinary body (an 'appellate body')¹⁴;
- 225 (b) enable an appellate body to confirm the recommendation, to cancel the recommendation or, in the case of a recommendation that the seaman is to cease to be entitled to a discharge book permanently or for a particular period, to substitute for it a recommendation that he is to cease to be so entitled, instead of permanently, for a period specified in the substituted recommendation or, instead of for the particular period, for a shorter period so specified¹⁵.

Regulations may make provision:

- 226 (i) for securing that a recommendation that the seaman is to permanently cease to be entitled to a discharge book is not submitted to the Secretary of State unless it has been confirmed, either on appeal or otherwise, by an appellate body¹⁶;
- 227 (ii) for the establishment or approval for these purposes of such number of bodies as the Secretary of State thinks fit and with respect to the composition, jurisdiction and procedure of any such body¹⁷;
- 228 (iii) for the payment, out of money provided by Parliament, of such remuneration and allowances as the Secretary of State may, with the consent of the Treasury¹⁸, determine to any member of such a body¹⁹.

Regulations also may²⁰ include provision for any proceedings to take place notwithstanding the absence of the seaman to whom they relate²¹.

However, nothing in the regulations or done in pursuance of the regulations is to be construed as affecting any power to institute, prosecute, entertain or determine proceedings, including criminal proceedings, under any other enactment or at common law²².

In relation to United Kingdom fishing vessels²³, the provisions relating to breaches by seamen of codes of conduct²⁴ have effect with modification²⁵.

1 The Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 60 does not have effect until the Secretary of State by order appoints a day for s 60 to come into force: s 314(3), Sch 14 para 5(1), (2); and PARA 16 note 1. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38. As to the application of s 60 see PARA 423; and as to the power to grant exemptions with respect to fishing vessels see PARA 425.

(8) DISQUALIFICATION OF CERTIFICATE HOLDER

507. Disqualification of holder of seaman's certificate other than an officer.

Where it appears to the Secretary of State¹ that a person who is the holder of a certificate of competence² or any certificate issued under the provisions relating to manning³, other than one certifying that a person is qualified as an officer⁴, is unfit to be the holder of such a certificate, whether by reason of incompetence or misconduct or for any other reason, the Secretary of State may give him notice in writing that he is considering the suspension or cancellation of the certificate⁵. The notice must state the reasons why it appears to the Secretary of State that that person is unfit to be the holder of such a certificate and must state that, within a period specified in the notice, or such longer period as the Secretary of State may allow, he may make written representations to the Secretary of State or claim to make oral representations to the Secretary of State⁶. After considering any representations so made, the Secretary of State must decide whether or not to suspend or cancel the certificate and must give the holder of it written notice of his decision⁷.

Where the decision is to suspend or cancel the certificate, the notice must state the date from which the cancellation is to take effect, or the date from which and the period for which the suspension is to take effect, and must require the holder to deliver the certificate to the Secretary of State not later than the date so specified unless before that date the holder has required the case to be dealt with by a statutory inquiry⁸. Where, before the date specified in the notice, he requires the case to be dealt with by such an inquiry, then, unless he withdraws the requirement, the suspension or cancellation does not take effect except as ordered in pursuance of the inquiry⁹.

The Secretary of State may make regulations¹⁰ prescribing the procedure to be followed with respect to the making and consideration of such representations¹¹, the form of any notice to be given and the period to be specified in any such notice as the period within which any steps are to be taken¹².

508. Suspension or cancellation of seaman's certificate.

A notice served¹ by the Secretary of State² stating that he is considering the suspension or cancellation of a certificate of competence³ or any certificate or other document issued under the provisions relating to manning⁴, other than one certifying that a person is qualified as an officer⁵, must be given to the holder of the certificate in the prescribed form⁶. Service of such notice must be effected either by serving the holder of the certificate concerned personally or by sending it to him at his last known address by registered post or by the recorded delivery service⁷.

Within six weeks of the receipt of such notice, or such longer period as the Secretary of State may allow, the holder of the certificate may inform the Secretary of State of his intention to make written representations or claim to make oral representations to the Secretary of State⁸. In the case of a claim to make oral representations, the Secretary of State must seek to agree with the holder of the certificate a suitable date and place for the oral representations to be heard and, if no such agreement is reached, they must be heard at the prescribed address⁹ on the last working day of the period for representations so allowed¹⁰. If oral representations are to be made, the holder of the certificate may be accompanied by a friend who may advise him or speak on his behalf¹¹. Representations, whether written or oral, must be made within ten weeks of receipt of the notice¹².

The Secretary of State must give the holder notice of his decision in the prescribed form¹³; and service of that notice must be effected either by serving the holder of the certificate concerned personally or by delivering it to his last known address or by sending it by post to his last known address¹⁴.

- 230 (2) take evidence on oath (and for that purpose administer oaths) or, instead of administering an oath, require the person examined to make a solemn affirmation⁵.

If, on the failure of a person to attend such an inquiry in answer to such a summons⁶:

- 231 (a) the persons holding the inquiry are satisfied by evidence on oath that the person in question is likely to be able to give material evidence or produce any document which relates to any matter in question at the inquiry, that he has been duly served with the summons and that a reasonable sum has been paid or tendered to him for costs and expenses⁷; and
- 232 (b) it appears to them that there is no just excuse for the failure⁸, they may issue a warrant to arrest him and bring him before the inquiry at a time and place specified in the warrant⁹.

If any person attending or brought before such an inquiry refuses without just excuse to be sworn or give evidence, or to produce any document, the persons holding the inquiry may¹⁰:

- 233 (i) commit him to custody until the end of such period not exceeding one month as may be specified in the warrant or until he gives evidence or produces the document, whichever occurs first¹¹; or
- 234 (ii) impose on him a fine not exceeding £1,000¹²,

A. IN GENERAL

511. Inquiry into fitness or conduct of officer.

If it appears to the Secretary of State¹ that an officer²:

- 235 (1) is unfit to discharge his duties, whether by reason of incompetence or misconduct or for any other reason³; or
- 236 (2) has been seriously negligent in the discharge of his duties⁴; or
- 237 (3) has failed to comply with his duty to assist another ship⁵ in case of collision⁶, the Secretary of State may cause an inquiry to be held by one or more persons appointed by him and, if he does so, may, if he thinks fit, suspend, pending the outcome of the inquiry, any certificate issued to the officer under the manning provisions⁷ and require the officer to deliver it to him⁸. Where a certificate issued to an officer has been suspended in this way⁹, the suspension may, on the application of the officer, be terminated by the High Court, and the decision of the court on such an application is final¹⁰.

Any such inquiry¹¹ must be conducted in accordance with the inquiry rules¹²; and those rules must require the persons holding the inquiry to hold it with the assistance of one or more assessors¹³.

The persons holding such an inquiry¹⁴ into the fitness or conduct of an officer¹⁵:

- 238 (a) may, if satisfied of any of the matters mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above, cancel or suspend any certificate issued to him¹⁶ or censure him¹⁷;
- 239 (b) may make such order with regard to costs of the inquiry as they think just¹⁸; and
- 240 (c) must make a report on the case to the Secretary of State¹⁹; and, if the certificate is cancelled or suspended, the officer, unless he has delivered it to the Secretary of State²⁰, must deliver it forthwith to the persons holding the inquiry or to the Secretary of State²¹.

Notice of inquiry into fitness or conduct of officer.

B. PROCEDURE

512. Notice of inquiry into fitness or conduct of officer.

When the Secretary of State¹ causes an inquiry into the fitness or conduct of an officer² to be held, he must cause a notice (a 'notice of inquiry') to be served on the officer concerned, who must be made a party to the inquiry³. Service of such a notice must be effected at least 30 days⁴ before the date fixed for the inquiry either by serving the officer concerned personally or by sending the notice to his last known address by registered post or by the recorded delivery service⁵.

The notice of inquiry must state: (1) the facts giving rise to the inquiry⁶; (2) the allegation⁷ made against the officer to whom the notice is addressed and the grounds therefor⁸; (3) the time and date when and the place where the inquiry is to be held⁹; (4) the officer's rights¹⁰ at the inquiry¹¹.

² I.e. an inquiry under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 61 (see PARA 511): see the Merchant Shipping (Section 52 Inquiries) Rules 1982, SI 1982/1752, rr 2(1), 4(1); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). For these purposes, 'officer' means an officer qualified for the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 47 (see PARA 490) and includes a master, skipper, mate, second hand, deck officer, marine engineer officer, radio officer and doctor: Merchant Shipping (Section 52 Inquiries) Rules 1982, SI 1982/1752, r 2(1); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). As to qualification as an officer see PARA 495 et seq.

The Merchant Shipping (Section 52 Inquiries) Rules 1982, SI 1982/1752, r 4(1) refers to a 'section 52 inquiry', which is defined as an inquiry into the fitness or conduct of an officer under the Merchant Shipping Act 1970 s 52 (repealed): see the Merchant Shipping (Section 52 Inquiries) Rules 1982, SI 1982/1752, r 2(1). 513. Appointment of court of inquiry into fitness or conduct of officer.

The person appointed¹ to hold an inquiry into the fitness or conduct of an officer² must conduct it with the assistance of one or more assessors who must be appointed by the Lord Chancellor³.

Wherever possible, at least one of the assessors appointed must have had experience in the same capacity and in the same type of ship as the officer concerned⁴. However, a person may not be appointed after the day on which he attains the age of 70 to assist with such an inquiry as an assessor⁵.

1 For these purposes, 'person appointed' means the person or persons appointed by the Secretary of State to hold an inquiry under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 61 (see PARA 511): Merchant Shipping (Section 52 Inquiries) Rules 1982, SI 1982/1752, r 2(1); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

514. Holding of inquiry into fitness or conduct of officer.

At the time and the place appointed for holding an inquiry into the fitness or conduct of an officer¹, the person appointed² may proceed with the inquiry whether the party upon whom the notice of inquiry³ was served, any other party, any person who has applied to become a party, or any of them, are present or not; but, where the officer concerned has been served with the notice of inquiry by post, the person appointed must not proceed with the inquiry in his absence unless satisfied that the officer has been duly served⁴.

Any other person, not being the officer concerned, may, with the leave of the person appointed, become a party to the inquiry⁵.

The inquiry must be held in public save to the extent to which the person appointed is properly satisfied that in the interests of justice, or for other good and sufficient reason in the public interest, any part of the evidence or any argument relating thereto should be heard in private⁶.

515. Procedure at inquiry into fitness or conduct of officer.

The proceedings at an inquiry into the fitness or conduct of an officer¹ must commence with the presentation of behalf of the Secretary of State² of the case against the officer concerned³.

The officer concerned has the right:

- 241 (1) to defend himself against the allegation⁴, in person or otherwise⁵;
- 242 (2) to admit, before or at any time after the commencement of the inquiry, the allegation or any part of it made against him⁶.

Where more than one allegation is made against an officer, his admission of an allegation or any part of it pursuant to head (2) above is without prejudice to his right to defend himself against any other allegation which he does not admit⁷.

Any party to the inquiry has the right in person or by a representative to make an opening statement, call witnesses⁸, cross-examine witnesses called by other parties, tender evidence other than oral evidence and address the person appointed in such order as the person appointed⁹ may direct¹⁰. If a party does not appear in person at the inquiry and is not represented by another person, he may make representations in writing to the person appointed and such written representations must be read out at the inquiry by or on behalf of the person appointed¹¹.

Without prejudice to the admission of documents as secondary evidence allowed by statute or otherwise, affidavits, depositions, statutory declarations and other written evidence must, unless the person appointed considers it unjust, be accepted as evidence at the inquiry¹².

The person appointed may postpone or adjourn the hearing of the inquiry for such period as he thinks fit either of his own motion or upon the application of any party¹³.

A. IN GENERAL

517. Inquiry into fitness or conduct of seaman other than officer.

Where a person has, before the due date¹, required his case to be dealt with by an inquiry into the fitness or conduct of a seaman² other than an officer³, the Secretary of State⁴ must cause an inquiry to be held by one or more persons appointed by him⁵.

Any such inquiry must be conducted in accordance with inquiry rules made by the Secretary of State⁶; and those rules must require the persons holding the inquiry to hold it with the assistance of one or more assessors⁷.

The persons holding any such inquiry:

- 243 (1) may confirm the decision of the Secretary of State and cancel or suspend the certificate accordingly⁸;
- 244 (2) may, where the decision was to cancel the certificate, suspend it instead⁹;
- 245 (3) may, where the decision was to suspend the certificate, suspend it for a different period¹⁰;
- 246 (4) may, instead of confirming the decision of the Secretary of State, censure the holder of the certificate or take no further action¹¹;
- 247 (5) may make such order with regard to the costs of the inquiry as they think just¹²; and
- 248 (6) must make a report on the case to the Secretary of State¹³;

and, if the certificate is cancelled or suspended, it must be delivered forthwith to the persons holding the inquiry or to the Secretary of State¹⁴.

1 le before the date mentioned in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 62(4) (see PARA 507), being the date from which the cancellation of a certificate issued under s 54 (see PARA 494), or of any certificate issued under s 47 (see PARA 490), is to take effect, or the date from which and the period for which the suspension of such a certificate is to take effect: see s 63(1).

Notice of inquiry into the fitness or conduct of a seaman other than an officer.

B. PROCEDURE

518. Notice of inquiry into the fitness or conduct of a seaman other than an officer.

Where the Secretary of State¹ causes an inquiry into the fitness or conduct of a seaman other than an officer² to be held, he must cause a notice (a 'notice of inquiry') to be served in writing on the certificate holder³ concerned who must be made a party to the inquiry⁴. Service of such a notice must be effected at least 30 days⁵ before the date fixed for the inquiry either by serving the certificate holder concerned personally or by sending the notice to his last known address by registered post or by the recorded delivery service⁶.

The notice of inquiry must state: (1) the facts giving rise to the inquiry⁷; (2) the allegation⁸ made against the certificate holder to whom the notice is addressed and the grounds therefor⁹; (3) the time and date when, and the place where, the inquiry is to be held¹⁰; (4) the certificate holder's rights¹¹ at the inquiry¹².

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 For these purposes, 'inquiry' means any inquiry, and any rehearing of such an inquiry, to which the Merchant Shipping (Section 63 Inquiries) Rules 1997, SI 1997/347, apply (r 2(1)); and the Merchant Shipping (Section 63 Inquiries) Rules 1997, SI 1997/347, apply to any inquiry under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 63 (see PARA 517), and to any rehearing of such an inquiry under s 64 (see PARA 523) which is not held by the High Court (Merchant Shipping (Section 63 Inquiries) Rules 1997, SI 1997/347, r 3).

3 For these purposes, 'certificate holder' means the holder of a certificate of competency issued under either the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 47 (see PARA 490) (other than one certifying that a person is qualified as an officer) or s 54 (see PARA 494): Merchant Shipping (Section 63 Inquiries) Rules 1997, SI 1997/347, r 2(1). As to qualification as an officer see PARA 495 et seq.

5 Any period specified in the Merchant Shipping (Section 63 Inquiries) Rules 1997, SI 1997/347, by reference to days is exclusive of the first day and inclusive of the last day unless the last day falls on a Saturday, Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday or any day appointed by law to be a bank holiday in the part of the United Kingdom where the inquiry is to be held, in which case the time must be reckoned exclusively of that day also: r 2(2). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

7 Merchant Shipping (Section 63 Inquiries) Rules 1997, SI 1997/347, r 4(3)(a).

8 For these purposes, 'allegation' means an allegation by the Secretary of State that a certificate holder is unfit to be the holder of such a certificate, whether by reason of incompetence or misconduct or for any other reason, within the meaning of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 62(1) (see PARA 507); Merchant Shipping (Section 63 Inquiries) Rules 1997, SI 1997/347, r 2(1).

519. Appointment of court of inquiry into the fitness or conduct of a seaman other than an officer.

The person appointed¹ to hold an inquiry² into the fitness or conduct of a seaman other than an officer must conduct it with the assistance of one or more assessors who must be appointed by the Lord Chancellor³. An assessor must be suitably qualified to assess the competence of a seaman to discharge the duties and responsibilities commensurate with his certificate⁴.

1 For these purposes, 'person appointed' means the person or persons appointed by the Secretary of State to hold an inquiry under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 63 (see PARA 517): Merchant Shipping (Section 63 Inquiries) Rules 1997, SI 1997/347, r 2(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

Decision of inquiry into the fitness or conduct of a seaman other than an officer.

522. Decision of inquiry into the fitness or conduct of a seaman other than an officer.

The person appointed¹ must, at the conclusion of an inquiry² into the fitness or conduct of a seaman other than an officer, or as soon as possible thereafter, announce his decision in public³.

Each assessor⁴ must either sign the report with or without reservations, or state in writing his dissent therefrom and his reasons for such dissent, and any such reservations or dissent and reasons must be forwarded to the Secretary of State⁵ with the report⁶.

The Secretary of State must inform the certificate holder⁷ concerned, in writing, of the decision of the person appointed if the certificate holder was not present when that decision was announced and make a copy of the report available to him⁸.

A copy of the report must be made available to any party to the inquiry upon request to the Secretary of State⁹.

(iv) Rehearings and Appeals

523. Rehearing of and appeal from inquiries into fitness or conduct.

Where an inquiry has been held into the fitness or conduct either of officers¹, or of seamen other than officers², the Secretary of State³ may order the whole or part of the case to be reheard⁴; and he must do so:

- 251 (1) if new and important evidence which could not be produced at the inquiry has been discovered⁵; or
- 252 (2) if there appear to the Secretary of State to be other grounds for suspecting that a miscarriage of justice may have occurred⁶.

Such an order may provide for the rehearing to be by the persons who held it, by a wreck commissioner⁷ or by the High Court⁸.

Any rehearing which is not held by the High Court must be conducted in accordance with the statutory rules⁹.

Where the persons holding the inquiry have decided to cancel or suspend the certificate of any person or have found any person at fault, then, if no application for an order¹⁰ has been made, or if such an application has been refused, that person or any other person who, having an interest in the inquiry, has appeared at the hearing and is affected by the decision or finding may appeal to the High Court¹¹.

(10) RELIEF AND REPATRIATION OF SEAMEN

527. Relief and return of seaman etc left behind and shipwrecked.

Where:

- 253 (1) a person employed as a seaman¹ in a United Kingdom ship² is left behind in any country outside the United Kingdom³ or is taken to such a country on being shipwrecked⁴; or
- 254 (2) a person who became so employed under an agreement entered into outside the United Kingdom is left behind in the United Kingdom or is taken to the United Kingdom on being shipwrecked⁵, the persons who last employed him as a seaman must make such provision for his return and for his relief and maintenance⁶ until his return and such other provisions as may be required by regulations made by the Secretary of State⁷. The provisions to be so made may include the repayment of expenses incurred in bringing a shipwrecked seaman ashore and maintaining him until he is brought ashore and the payment of the expenses of the burial or cremation of a seaman who dies before he can be returned⁸.

The Secretary of State may also make regulations providing for the manner in which any wages⁹ due to any person left behind or taken to any country¹⁰, and any property of his left on board ship, are to be dealt with¹¹.

The Secretary of State may make regulations requiring a superintendent¹² or proper officer¹³:

- 255 (a) to make such provision as may be prescribed by the regulations with respect to any matter for which provision may be required to be made by regulations relating to seaman and others left behind and shipwrecked¹⁴; and
- 256 (b) to make the like provision with respect to persons who are British citizens¹⁵, British overseas territories citizens¹⁶ or British Overseas citizens¹⁷ and are found in distress in any country outside the United Kingdom after being employed in ships registered in, or belonging to the government of, such a country¹⁸.

Without prejudice to the generality of the above provisions, regulations so made may make provision:

- 257 (i) for determining the place to which a person is to be returned¹⁹;
- 258 (ii) for requiring the master of any United Kingdom ship to convey a person to a place determined in accordance with the regulations and for enabling a superintendent or proper officer to give the master directions for that purpose²⁰;
- 259 (iii) for the making of payments in respect of the conveyance of a person in accordance with the regulations²¹; and
- 260 (iv) for the keeping of records and the rendering of accounts²².

Regulations so made may make a contravention²³ of any provision thereof an offence punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale²⁴ or such less amount as may be specified in the regulations²⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'seaman' see PARA 424.

2 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom ship' see PARA 230. As to the meaning of 'ship' under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 229; and as to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3.

3 For the purposes of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 Pt III (ss 24-84) (see PARA 423 et seq), a seaman discharged from a ship in any country and left there is deemed to be left behind in that country notwithstanding that the ship also remains there (s 84(4)); and a seaman is discharged from a ship when his employment in that ship is terminated (s 84(3)). Section 73 applies:

835 (1) to a person left behind on being discharged in pursuance of s 29 (see PARA 463) (ie when a ship ceases to be registered in the United Kingdom) whether or not at the time he is left behind the ship is still a United Kingdom ship (s 73(7)); and 836 (2) to the master of a ship as it applies to a seaman; and s 74 (limit of employer's liability under s 73) (see PARA 528) and s 75 (recovery of expenses incurred for relief and return etc) (see PARA 529) have effect accordingly (s 73(8)).

4 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 73(1)(a).

5 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 73(1)(b). See note 3.

6 For these purposes, 'relief and maintenance' includes the provision of surgical or medical treatment and such dental and optical treatment, including the repair or replacement of any appliance, as cannot be postponed without impairing efficiency: Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 84(1).

7 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 73(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38. As to the power of the Secretary of State to make subordinate legislation under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, including his power to appoint committees for the purpose of advising him when considering the making or alteration of any regulations etc, see PARA 41. At the date at which this volume states the law, no regulations had been made under s 73(1) but, by virtue of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b), the Merchant Shipping (Repatriation) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/97 and the Merchant Shipping (Increased Penalties) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/1519 (an amending provision), have effect as if so made. The Merchant Shipping (Repatriation) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/97 make provision in relation to:

837 (1) the application of the provisions (see reg 2);

838 (2) the return and relief of seamen left behind or shipwrecked (see reg 3 (amended by SI 1979/1519));

839 (3) other matters relating to seamen left behind and shipwrecked seamen (see the Merchant Shipping (Repatriation) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/97, regs 4, 5 (both amended by SI 1979/1519));

840 (4) the place for return (see the Merchant Shipping (Repatriation) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/97, reg 6);

841 (5) a seaman's return, relief and maintenance by superintendents and proper officers (see reg 7);

842 (6) conveyance orders and directions (see regs 8-10 (regs 8, 9 amended by SI 1979/1519));

843 (7) wages of seamen employed in ships who are left behind (see the Merchant Shipping (Repatriation) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/97, reg 11 (amended by SI 1979/1519));

844 (8) wages of seamen employed in fishing vessels who are left behind (see the Merchant Shipping (Repatriation) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/97, regs 12-14 (reg 12 amended by SI 1979/1519));

845 (9) other records and accounts (see the Merchant Shipping (Repatriation) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/97, reg 15 (amended by SI 1979/1519));

846 (10) the property of seamen left behind and of shipwrecked seamen (see the Merchant Shipping (Repatriation) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/97, reg 16 (amended by SI 1979/1519)); and 847 (11) official log book entries (see the Merchant Shipping (Repatriation) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/97, reg 17).

The provisions of regs 11-14 (see heads (7), (8)) also apply to any seaman who became employed in a ship registered in the United Kingdom under an agreement entered into in the United Kingdom and who leaves his ship in the United Kingdom, otherwise than on being discharged therefrom: see reg 2(2). 529. Recovery of expenses incurred for relief and return of seaman etc left behind and shipwrecked.

Where any expenses are incurred in respect of any matter for which the employers of a seaman¹ left behind and shipwrecked are required to make provision², then:

- 261 (1) if the expenses are incurred by the Secretary of State³ (or are incurred by the government of any country outside the United Kingdom⁴ and repaid to them on behalf of the Crown) the Secretary of State may recover them from the employers⁵;
- 262 (2) if the expenses are incurred by the seaman, he may recover them from the employers unless they prove either that under the terms of his employment they were to be borne by him or that he would not have been left behind but for his own wrongful act or neglect⁶.

Where, in the case of any seaman, expenses are incurred by the Secretary of State or are incurred by the government of any country outside the United Kingdom and repaid to them on behalf of the Crown:

- 263 (a) in respect of any matter for which⁷ the seaman's last employers would otherwise⁸ have been required to make provision⁹; or
- 264 (b) in respect of any matter for which provision is required to be made¹⁰ with respect to persons who are British citizens¹¹, British overseas territories citizens¹² or British Overseas citizens¹³ and are found in distress in any country outside the United Kingdom after being employed in ships registered in, or belonging to the government of, such a country¹⁴,

The Secretary of State¹ may, with the consent of the Treasury², give financial assistance to³:

- 265 (1) the owner of a ship⁴ registered⁵ in the British Islands⁶; or
- 266 (2) any manager of a ship so registered, being either an individual ordinarily resident in the British Islands⁷ or a body corporate which is incorporated in the British Islands and has its principal place of business there⁸, in respect of travel and other costs incurred by the owner or manager in connection with members of the ship's crew⁹ joining or leaving the ship outside the limited European trading area¹⁰.

If the Secretary of State so determines, eligibility for such assistance¹¹ is conditional on the fulfilment of such conditions with respect to all or any of the following matters as are specified in his determination¹²:

- 267 (a) the nationality of any person in relation to whom any such costs as are mentioned above are incurred¹³;
- 268 (b) the ordinary residence of any such person¹⁴;
- 269 (c) the place, outside the limited European trading area, where any such person joins or leaves his ship¹⁵.

Such assistance¹⁶ may be given by way of a grant or loan or otherwise; and, in giving any such assistance, the Secretary of State may impose such conditions as he thinks fit¹⁷.

(11) REQUIRED DOCUMENTATION

(i) Official Log Books

531. Keeping official log books.

An official log book in a form approved by the Secretary of State¹ must² be kept in every United Kingdom ship³.

If a person intentionally destroys or mutilates or renders illegible any entry in an official log book, he commits an offence⁴.

¹ As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

² Ie except as provided by regulations under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 77 (see PARA 532): see s 77(1).

³ Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 77(1). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom ship' see PARA 230. As to the meaning of 'ship' under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see PARA 229; and as to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 17 note 3. As to the application of s 77 generally see PARA 423; and as to the power to grant exemptions with respect to fishing vessels see PARA 425.

The official log book of any ship kept under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 77 and, without prejudice to s 288(2) (see PARA 1110), any document purporting to be a copy of an entry therein and to be certified as a true copy by the master of the ship, are admissible in evidence and, when in the custody of the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen, are open to public inspection: see s 287(1)(b); and PARA 1109. As to the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen see PARA 61.

532. Power to make regulations in relation to official log books.

The Secretary of State¹ may make regulations² prescribing the particulars to be entered in official log books³, the persons by whom such entries are to be made, signed or witnessed, and the procedure to be followed in the making of such entries and in their amendment or cancellation⁴.

The regulations may require the production or delivery of official log books to such persons, in such circumstances and within such times as may be specified therein⁵.

Regulations so made may exempt ships⁶ of any description from any requirements thereof, either generally or in such circumstances as may be specified in the regulations⁷; and they may make a contravention⁸ of any provision thereof an offence punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 2 on the standard scale⁹ or not exceeding a lesser amount¹⁰.

535. Power to make regulations in relation to list of crew.

The Secretary of State¹ may make regulations²:

- 280 (1) specifying the particulars to be entered in a list of the crew³;
- 281 (2) limiting the time for which a list of the crew may remain in force⁴;
- 282 (3) providing for the maintenance by such persons and either in such place as may be specified in the regulations or, if it is so specified, in the ship⁵, of a copy or copies of each list of a crew, and for the notification to such persons of any changes therein⁶;
- 283 (4) for the production of a list of the crew to such persons, in such circumstances and within such time as may be specified in the regulations⁷; and
- 284 (5) for the delivery to a superintendent⁸ or proper officer⁹ or the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen¹⁰, in such circumstances as may be specified in the regulations, of a list of the crew or a copy thereof maintained under the regulations and for the notification to him of any changes in such a list¹¹.

Such regulations may:

- 285 (a) enable a list of the crew to be contained in the same document as a crew agreement¹² and may treat any particulars entered in the crew agreement as forming part of the particulars entered in the list¹³;
- 286 (b) exempt from the requirements of the regulations such descriptions of ship as may be specified in the regulations and may make different provisions for different circumstances¹⁴;
- 287 (c) make a contravention¹⁵ of any provision of the regulations an offence punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 2 on the standard scale¹⁶ or not exceeding a lesser amount¹⁷.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 38.

2 Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 78(2). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made under s 78 but, by virtue of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b), the Merchant Shipping (Crew Agreements, Lists of Crew and Discharge of Seamen) (Fishing Vessels) Regulations 1972, SI 1972/919 (as to which see AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARAS 1025, 1026), the Merchant Shipping (Increased Penalties) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/1519 (an amending provision), and the Merchant Shipping (Crew Agreements, Lists of Crew and Discharge of Seamen) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2144 (as to which see PARA 536 et seq), have effect as if so made. As to the power of the Secretary of State to make subordinate legislation under the Merchant Shipping Act 1995, including his power to appoint committees for the purpose of advising him when considering the making or alteration of any regulations etc, see PARA 41. 538. Particulars to be specified in list of crew.

A list of crew must¹ contain the following particulars²:

- 288 (1) the name of the ship³, its port of registry and official number⁴;
- 289 (2) the name of the owner of the ship and his address and of any other person registered as manager or ship's husband⁵;
- 290 (3) the number of the certificate evidencing an exemption granted by the Secretary of State⁶ from the requirements of the provisions relating to crew agreements⁷ with respect to the ship or any person in it⁸; and
- 291 (4) with respect to every seaman⁹ from time to time on board the ship, whether or not he is employed¹⁰ under a crew agreement¹¹:
- 29 (a) his name¹²;
- 63. (b) his address¹³;
- 64. (c) the number of his current discharge book¹⁴, if any, or the date and place of his birth¹⁵;
- 65. (d) the name of the ship in which he was last employed, and, if he was discharged¹⁶ from that ship more than 12 months before he became employed in the ship to which the crew list relates, the year in which he was so discharged¹⁷;
- 66. (e) the capacity in which he is employed in the ship¹⁸;
- 67. (f) the grade, including any command, service or other endorsement¹⁹, and number of any certificate of competency or of service held by him²⁰;
- 68. (g) the date on which he went on board the ship to commence his employment in it²¹;
- 69. (h) the date on and place at which he left the ship and, if he left on discharge, the reason for his discharge²²;
- 70. (i) if he is left behind otherwise than on discharge, the date and place of and the reason, if known to the master, for this being done²³; and
- 71. (j) the name and relationship of his next of kin and the address of his next of kin, if different from that of the seaman²⁴.

A list of crew which relates to a ship belonging to a general lighthouse authority²⁵ need contain only the particulars referred to in heads (1), (4)(a), (4)(b), (4)(g) and (4)(h) above²⁶.

A list of crew which relates to seamen employed under a crew agreement need contain only the particulars referred to in head (1) above and, in respect of each seaman, the particulars referred to in heads (4)(a), (4)(b), (4)(c), (4)(e), (4)(g) and (4)(h) above if the remaining particulars referred to in heads (1) to (4) above are contained in the crew agreement²⁷.

With respect to a member of the naval, military or air forces of the Crown or of any service administered by the Defence Council²⁸ when acting as such a member, a list of crew need contain only the particulars referred to in heads (4)(a), (4)(b), (4)(g) and (4)(h) above²⁹.
